A farewell party was given at the home of John Baumgartner on Wednesday evening. The party was given for Morris and Steve Day, Jrs. who will return to their college work at Morningside on Monday. The guests all enjoyed themselves immensely, and all departed at a late hour declaring that the Baumgartner home was just the place to spend an evening, and pronouncing their host and hostess par excellant entertainers.

The Christmas Ball was not very largely attended owing to the cold, disagreeable night, but those who attended had a royal good time. There was not a sufficient number present to pay expenses but the management went down in their "jeans" and made up the deficiency. They done as advertised however and in the long run they will come out on the top of the heap.

A Most Liberal Offer.

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper The Iowa Homestead, its Special Farmers' Institute Editions, and The Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our home, and make the price of the four one year for only $1.40. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known thruout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Iowa Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the West; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while The Special Farmer's Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

The Masquerade.

The Masquerade ball which was held on Wednesday evening was largely attended, though very few seemed to be ashamed of their looks and availed themselves of the opportunity to improve their personal appearance. Some of the costumes worn by the ladies were elaborate though as much cannot be said for the gentlemens' costumes. The hall was well filled with unmasked dancers, however, and everyone seemed to be having a splendid time. Financially, this dance was much more of a success than the previous one, over 70 numbers having been sold.

The management is to be congratulated upon the manner in which they handled this crowd. The best of order was maintained, no obsterous or noisy individuals being present. We understand that the next dance will be given St. Patrick's day, March 17 The lady being the most becomingly attired was Mollie Hayes, and the gentleman's prize was awarded to Chas. Hanson. The prizes were very desirable one.

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

WARRANTS FOR THEIR ARREST

Quartette to Be Charged With Murder of Jerry Corcoran One Week Ago—Coal Famine Is a Possibility—Many Orders Cannot Be Filled.

Des Moines, Dec. 28.—An information charging James W. Burns, George Beveridge, John Ba Tiese and Carrie Ba Tiese with murder in the first degree was filed in Justice Duncan's court today by Chief of Detectives Eli Hardin. The quartette will be charged with the murder of Jerry Corcoran at the Ba Tiese barber shop at 116 East Court avenue aturday night, Dec. 20, by administering to him an overdose of morphine in pursuance of a plan devised by Burns to rob him of a check for $38.85 which he had earned as member of the "steel gang" on the Iowa Falls road now being built into Des Moines.

The confession of Beveridge, in which it was charged that Burns had administered the fatal dose to Corcoran, has been published. Yesterday a written confession was extracted from Ba Tiese and an oral statement was secured from the woman and from Burns himself. In all of these the story of Beveridge was corroborated.

Burns himself admitted that he had procured the morphine and had himself taken a dose and had given Beveridge some of the drug, but he insisted that he was too drunk to remember whether he also gave Corcoran a portion or not.

Mrs. Ba Tiese stated that Burns had gone after the poison and returned to the house with it the night in question. She said she did not see the drug administered.

Ba Tiese said that Burns had told him during the evening of the murder, that he was on his way to the drug store, and that Burns first discovered the dead body of Corcoran.

The statements were elicited from the Ba Tieses and Burns by Chief Hardin yesterday in the presence of County Attorney-elect Miller, and the present and future assistant county attorney, Robert Brennan. The authorities are so certain of their case against Burns and the others that they propose to proceed at once to the prosecution.

COAL IS SCARCE.

Dealers Cannot Fill Orders Received For Immediate Shipment.

Des Moines, Dec. 29.—Coal dealers say that the cold snap of the past week has exhausted the coal supplies that had been accumulated at many points in the state during the weather and that they are again up to their necks in rush orders from dealers who are demanding immediate shipments and claiming that unless they are made suffering will be occasioned.

In Des Moines the situation has not shown marked improvement over a week ago and orders booked a week ago are just being filled. The companies are in slightly better shape for handling shipping orders, though, and are keeping up to within from three days to a week of them.

Continued cold weather it is feared will make the situation out in the state serious. In Des Moines dealers say that so long as consumers will keep up the good work of ordering a week to ten days ahead of time of actual need that there is no actual danger of serious trouble.

Shippers are carding the retail trade in the state and urging upon it the necessity of taking advantage of the first mild weather to stock up and relieve the situation at the mines, saying that if they allow their stocks to run low there will be no help for them in the event of another cold snap.

Plans Big Building.

Mason City, Dec. 28.—Commodore Isaac Whitaker of Clear Lake has plans drawn for an immense auditorium to be built upon piles over the lake next spring. The basement, or floor next to the water, will be given over to the billiard room, bowling alley, barber shop, etc. On this floor passengers will be landed from the boats and will pass up stairs to the main floor, which is practically a veranda 496 feet long, extending around the four sides of the building. Inside is the auditorium, which will be 56x68, after taking off room for a large stage and plenty of dressing rooms. The auditorium will seat 800 people, and will contain a balcony with a seating capacity of 800 more. The floor will be of yellow pine and arranged for dancing.

$2,500 FIRE AT VAN METER.

Four Frame Buildings Were Burned to the Ground, and It Was With Difficulty the Adjoining Structures Were Saved.

Van Meter, Dec. 24.—Van Meter suffered a $2,500 fire this morning, which destroyed four small buildings on East Main street. Flames were discovered at 3 a. m. breaking through the roof of one of the building, which was occupied by William Smith as a photograph galery. The alarm was given and the volunteer fire company and citizens turned out. The flames spread to the adjoining structures, two on one side and one on the other, and all four were burned to the ground. The frame structures on either side of the burned buildings were saved with the greatest difficulty. The four shops destroyed were the property ofE. Goar. Two of the houses were unoccupied. The third contained household good owned by E. Martin, part of which were saved. The Smiths were also able to save some of their stuff. The losses in detail are as follows:

E. Goar, buildings, $2,000, insurance $1,200.

William Smith, photograph gallery, and household goods, $500, small insurance.

Ed Martin, household goods, $20, no insurance.

The origin of the fire is unknown. A number of tramps were seen about town yesterday, and it is thought some of these might have fired the property, although how the flames could have reached the second story of the building first is not known.

TRIED TO SAVE HIS VALUABLES.

Mysterious Joe Howard Was Wounded Three Times in the Fight.

Clinton, Ia., Dec. 29.—One of the most sensational hold-ups in the history of the city occurred here recently when three masked men entered the apartments of Joe Howard and three companions and demanded their valuables. Howard had a belt around his waist containing $1,000, and $250 in his pocket, beside a valuable diamond ring and a diamond stud, and would not give up his valuables.

He grappled with one of the robbers, and in the struggle that ensued, was shot three times. However, owing to the fact that the men were locked in tight embrace, the robber could not get a good shot, and all his bullets struck at such an angle that serious, but not fatal wounds were inflicted.

Seeing that he could not escape the robber, Howard fell at the last shot and feigned death, but the robber was not to be balked and commenced to hunt for the man's money, whereupon the struggle was renewed. The robber got a diamond pin from Howard's tie, but while trying to take a ring from the latter's finger, Howard secured the pin and threw it into a cuspidore. When his pistol emptied, the robber struck Howard on the head laying open the scalp.

Howard then kicked out the window and called "murder," whereupon the burglars fled. While the fight was in progress one of the other robbers relieved Howard's companions of their valuables and $200, while the other stood guard at the stairs. There is no clew.

The robbery raised the question as to who Howard is and what is his business. He has elegantly furnished apartments and appears to be wealthy. He came here from Chicago several months ago, but has never made known his business. He does not conduct a gambling house, yet gamblers are his companions. He gets several telegrams each day, but there is nothing to indicate his business.

FAITH IN PILLOWS SHATTERED.

One Did Not Serve to Protect Money of Theodore Fredricksen.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 27.—Theodore Fredrickson, a resident of Atlantic, journeyed to Omaha and brought a large sized bank roll. Because of his belief in pillow protection Fredrickson now mourns the loss of $580 in crisp government currency, which loss he reported to the police.

Fredrickson came to the city on business and before leaving Atlantic drew from the bank nearly $600 in cash. This he placed in his inside pocket, thinking that it would be secure from the shrewd methods practiced by the light-fingered gentry. After his arrival here he went to the Klondike hotel and registered, retiring about 1 o'clock. Between that hour and 6 o'clock a. m. his financial condition underwent a sudden change and he was reduced nearly to poverty. Before retiring he took the precaution to protect his valuables by removing his vest and placing it beneath his pillow. Fredrickson did not awaken until early in the morning and his first thought was of his cash. Upon looking for his temporary bank he found that during the night some thief had entered his room and removed the big roll without awakening him, and a hasty search failed to produce any results His gold watch was not taken.

CHARGE AGAINST A BANK.

Claim Made Chattel Mortgage Was Released Without Authority.

Sioux City, Dec. 27.—Serious charges continue to be made against the Oto bank of which Fred H. Cutting and J. T. Willett were owners, and which recently closed its doors.

The charge is made against the Oto bank and Cutting and Willett in a petition filed in the district court that the bank released a chattel mortgage of record without authority, without any consideration and without actual payment being made upon the indebtedness of $5,000 which the mortgage represented.

The suit is begun by the First National bank of Lyons, which holds a note for the amount stated against J. H. Melott. Melott executed the note to the Oto bank August 10, 1901, and the bank afterward rediscounted the note to the Lyons bank. The plaintiff asks the court to render a personal judgment against Molett, to declare the release of the mortgage as null and void, and to foreclose the mortgage. A number of other banks, which have set up claims on which it was ascered the same property was security are included as defendants by the Lyons bank.

Its circulation is now over 40,000.

Bad Fire at Sibley.

Sibley, Dec. 27.—Fire destroyed four frame buildings worth $4,000 and merchandise valued at $3,000. The insurance on the building is as follows: John Delsos, $600 in St. Paul Fire and Marine; Mrs. Lister, $500 in London and Lancaster. On merchandise, Miss Anderson, $800 in St. Paul Fire and Marine and $300 in the Insurance Company of North America; Lyman Millinery Company, $350 in the American Mutual of Sioux City. Other insurance on buildings is estimated at $700.

YOUNG STUBBS ARRESTED.

Fairfield, Dec. 24.—Rex. Stubbs, a grandson of Hon. Daniel P. Stubbs was arrested by Sheriff Wright charged with being the party that had fired a double-barreled shotgun into the sleighing party of last week, painfully wounding two girls. The young fellow is about 15 years of age and has had his share of troubles. He will have to answer to the charge of assault with the intent to commit murder, and as he has waived preliminary examination, the grand jury at the February term will investigate his case.

Kitchen Range Blown to Atoms.

Belmond, Dec. 27.—Mrs. W. P. Rosecrans, wife of a prominent merchant, was seriously injured in an explosion. Her arm and leg were broken and her face and hand badly lacerated. The pipe for heating water which passed through the range had become frozen up and the steam formed caused a terrific explosion, blowing the stove down and wrecking the room.

"Land is mighty cheap here. You can buy a good farm for a song." "Just my darn luck! I can't sing.—New York Sun.

PARENTS STOP ELOPMENT.

Capture Carl Hoyt and Effie Robinson After a Seventy-fifive Mile Ride.

Dewitt, Dec. 28.—The police yesterday captured Miss Effie Robinson and Carl Hoyt, a couple of eloping young people who had driven in a furious race across Illinois and part of Iowa to escape their pursuing parents. some time afterwards the fathers of the runaway couple arrived and took charge of them and took them back home. The girl is just 16 years old, and the boy one year her senior.

The pair eloped from Bishop Hill, Henry county, Illinois, and with the mercury below zero, facing a north west gale, drove for seventy-five miles in an attempt to get married in spite of the opposition of their parents.

The parents thought the children were too young to wed, and refused to give their consent. The young couple confided their story to the school teacher, and the secret was too good to keep. Early Christmas morning Hoyt secured his father's best team and buggy, and getting the girl, started on the trip. They crossed Rock Island and Whiteside counties and over the Mississippi river to Dewitt, where they were captured. On arriving home Hoyt was whipped and the bride to be was scolded.

SMALLPOX IN DAVENPORT.

Six Well Developed Cases Are Reported in That City.

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 29.—The cold weather has caused the smalpox bacillus to grow robust. Six cases are reported by the city physician in two homes already under quarantine. In one of these—the Jens home—the entire family, living over a confectionary shop on Union and Washington streets, is infected with smallpox. The Ehlers family, in which the disease was discovered on December 14, shows two more victims. As the outbreak is in homes already under quarantine, and where exposure assisted it, there is no cause for alarm, if infection can be balked elsewhere.

Health Officer High states that none of the infected parties were vaccinated, and attributes their present condition to this omission.

The cases of smallpox as reported Monday morning were as follows:

Mrs. Jens, 1530½ Union street;
Edward Jens, 1530½ Union street;
Elmer Jens, 1530½ Union street;
Charles Jens, 1530½ Union street.

There are four additional cases in a home already quarantined, wherein, on December 22, the case of Frank Jens was discovered and reported by Dr. Henry Matthey.

The other two cases are in the Ehlers family at 1425 Marquette street wherein Carl Ehlers was quarantined on December 14 last. The new cases there are Mrs. Carl Ehlers and Henry Ehlers, the latter of tender age.

ALLAN DAWSON ON HOMESTEAD.

Editorial Writer of the Old Leader in a New Position.

Des Moines, Dec. 27.—Allan Dawson, former editor of the Des Moines Leader, and since its establishment, managing editor of the Register and Leader, will retire from that paper January 1st, to become an editorial writer on the Iowa Homestead. The addition of Mr. Dawson to the Homestead force will not affect the relation of Mr. James Atkinson to that paper. Mr. Atkinson will continue as agricultural editor, Mr. Dawson writing on general and economic topics.

At the time of the consolidation of the Iowa State Register and the Des Moines Leader, it was Mr. Dawson's intention to close out his interest at a convenient time. He has remained with the Register and Leader to assist in organizing the new force and to lend his practical knowledge of the newspaper business to the new enterprise.

Among the several flattering opportunities open to him to engage in the newspaper business elsewhere he has elected to accept the offer made by James M. Pierce, proprietor of the Homestead, and as stated, will be connected with that paper after January 1st.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Harry Adams of Algona Shoots His Wife and Then Himself.

Algona, Dec. 27.—Harry Adams shot and killed his wife and then turned the gun on himself with fatal effect. Adams was 28 years of age and has lived here for fifteen years. His wife was 24. The tragedy was the result of long standing trouble between the pair. Recently Mrs. Adams left her husband and two children and took lodging with a neighbor woman. Adams, who has frequently importuned her to return, went to the neighbor's house, and again urged her to reconsider her action, and upon her refusing he clubbed her into insensibility with a shot gun and then put a charge of shot in her head, causing instant death. He then shot himself. Mrs. Adams' conduct has been criticised and it is in a measure responsible for the tragedy.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER KILLED.

John Duffy and Nellie Duffy Struck by Milwaukee Freight.

Bayard, Dec. 28.—Mr. John Duffy and Nellie, his daughter, were both killed last evening by the way freight which passes through Bayard at 4 p. m. It seems they were in a covered buggy and pretty well muffled up and probably did not hear the train, which was nearing the Ocheltree crossing just east of town. The buggy was demolished and both of the occupants were killed. Mr. John Duffy was one of the wealthy and influential citizens of Green county. He lived four miles north of Bayard. The coroner was called and empanelled a jury, which at this hour had not returned its verdict.

Pay of Milwaukee Men Increased.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—The 4,700 engineers and firemen on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway system have been given an increase in pay of about 10 per cent. The joint committees of the locomotive engineers and firemen on that system, which have been in Chicago since December 1 adjusting the wage scale, reached an agreement with the management of the entire system today.

Indignation Against Envoys.

Caracas, Dec. 25.—There is much indignation among the people of La Guaira with Signor De Riva and Herr von Pilgrim-Baltazzi, who are considered responsible for the shelling of the forts at Puerto Cabello. The envoys promenade daily on the beach at La Guiara, and it is feared they may be the object of some demonstration. At Caracas everything is quiet. President Castro went to LaVictoria yesterday.

On a lounge an elegantly dressed woman was sitting, reading a novel "La, child!" she cried, "come here and give me a kiss. So you wear that sweet-fancied suit again. Is that the Dutch style, then, child? It must be extremely charming. La, here comes Richard! He is going to ask you to take a sail on the river; and I shall lend you my new green parasol. I do believe it is the only one in the country."

"I came to sit with you, and work with my worsteds. Perhaps my mother—might not like me to go on the river with—any one."

But Katherine had no time to defend herself; for, with his cavalry cap in his hand and a low bow, Capt. Hyde entered the room. In a few minutes afterward she was going down the terrace steps with him; and he was looking into her face with shining eyes, and whispering the commonest words in such an enchanting manner that it seemed to her as if her feet scarcely touched the low, white steps, and she was some sort of glorified Katherine Van Heemskirk, who never, never, never could be unhappy again.

They did not go on the river. Capt. Hyde did not want a third party near, in any capacity. The lower steps were shaded by great water beeches, and the turf under them was green and warm. A sweeter hour, a lovelier maid, man could never hope to find; and Capt. Hyde was not one to neglect his opportunity.

"Let us stay here, my beloved," he whispered. "I have something sweet to tell you. Upon mine honor, I can keep my secret no longer."

The innocent child! Who could blame her for listening to it?—at first with a little fear and a little reluctance, but gradually resigning her whole heart to the charm of his soft syllables and his fervent manner, until she gave him the promise he begged for—love that was to be for him alone, love for him alone among all the sons of men.

What an enchanted afternoon it was! how all too quickly it fled away, one golden moment after another!

In a few minutes Joanna and the elder came in. He had called for her on his way home; for he liked the society of the young and beautiful, and there were many hours in which he thought Joanna fairer than her sister. Then tea was served in a pretty parlor with Turkish walls and colored windows, which, being open into the garden, framed lovely living pictures of blossoming trees. Every one was eating and drinking, laughing and talking; so Katherine's unusual silence was unnoticed, except by the elder, who indeed saw and heard everything, and who knew what he did not see and hear by that kind of prescience to which wise and observant years attain.

Joanna was talking to Neil Semple in the recess of a window; but Neil's face was white with suppressed anger, and, though he seemed to be listening to her, his eyes—full of passion—were fixed upon Hyde. Perhaps the young soldier was conscious of it; for he occasionally addressed some trivial remark to him, as if to prevent Neil losing sight of the advantages he had over him.

"The vera air o' this room is gunpowdery," thought the elder; "and ane 'or the other will be flinging a spark o' passion into it ,and then the deil will be to pay. I'll e'en tak' the lasses hame mysel'; and I'll speak to Joris for his daughter—as good now as any other time."

Then he said in his blandest tones, "Joanna, my dearie, you'll hae to tell Neil the rest o' your tale the morn; and, Katherine, put awa' now that bit o' busy idleness, and don your hoods and mantles, baith o' you. I'm going to ta' you hame, and I dinna want to get my deathe wi' the river mist."

"Pray, sir," said Hyde, "consider me at your service. I have occasion to go into town at once, and will do your duty to the young ladies with infinite pleasure."

"Much obliged, captain, vera much obliged; but it tak's an auld wise-headed, wise-hearted man like mysel' to walk safely atween two bonnie lasses.'

While he was speaking, Neil left the room. He was glad to escape from a position which he felt to be both painful and humiliating. He was in a measure Capt. Hyde's host, and subject to traditions regarding the duties of that character; any display of anger would be derogatory to him, and yet how difficult was restraint! So his father's interference was a welcome one; and he was reconciled to his own disappointment, when, looking back he say the old gentleman slowly taking the road to Van Heemskirk's, with the pretty girls in their quilted red hoods, one on each side of him.

The elder was very polite to his charges; but he noticed that Katherine was silent and disappointed, and that she lingered in her own room after her arrival at home. Her subsequent pretty cheerfulness, her delight in her lilies, her confiding claims upon her father's love—nothing in these things deceived him. He saw beneath all the fluttering young heart, trembling, and yet happy in the new, sweet feeling, never felt before, which had come to it that afternoon.

But he thought most girls had to have this initiative; it prepared the way for a soberer and more lasting affection. In the end Katherine would perceive how imprudent, how impossible a marriage with Capt. Hyde must be; and her heart would turn back to Neil, who had been her lover from boyhood. Yet, he reflected, it would be well to have the matter understood, and to give it that "possibility" which is best attained on a money basis.

So, while he and the Van Heemskirks discussed the matter—a little reluctantly, he thought, on their part—Katherine talked with Joanna of the Gordons. Joanna had not a suspicion of the joy and danger that had come to the dear little one at her side. She was laughing softly with her, even while the fearful father stood at the closed door, and lifted up his tender soul in that pathetic petition, "Ach, mijn kind! mijn kind! mijn liefste kind! Almighty God preserve thee from all sin and sorrow!"

CHAPTER II.

Oranje Boven.

"Well, well, to-day goes to its forefathers, like all the rest; and, as for what comes after it, everything is in the love and counsel of the Almighty One."

This was Joris Van Heemskirk's last thought ere he fell asleep that night, after Elder Semple's cautious disclosure and proposition. In his calm, methodical, domestic life, it had been an "eventful day." We say the words often and unreflectingly; seldom pausing to consider that such days are the results which months, years, perchance centuries, have made possible. Thus, a long course of reckless living and reckless gambling, and the consequent urgent need of ready money, had made Capt. Hyde turn his thoughts to the pretty daughter of the rich Dutch merchant.

"She is a homespun little thing," laughed the colonel's fashionable wife, "and quite unfit to go among people of our condition. But she adores you, Dick; and she will be passably happy with a house to manage, and a visit from you when you can spare the time."

It was in this mood that Katherine and her probable fortune had been discussed; and thus she was but one of the events, springing from lives anterior to her own and very different from it.

Also, in her father's case, the motives influencing his decision stretched backward through many generations. None the less was their influence potent to move him. In fact, he forgot entirely to reflect how a marriage between his child and Capt. Hyde would be regarded at that day; his first thoughts had been precisely such thoughts as would have occurred to a Van Heemskirk, living two hundred years before him.

Joris' age was not an age inclined to analysis, and he was still less inclined to it from a personal standpoint. For he was a man of few, but positive ideas; yet these ideas, having once commended themselves to his faith or his intelligence, were embraced with all his soul. Semple's communication regarding Capt. Hyde and his daughter had aroused in him certain feelings, and led him to certain decisions. He went to sleep, satisfied with their propriety and justice. He awoke in precisely the same mood. Then he dressed and went into his garden. It was customary for Katherine to join him there; and he frequently turned, as he went down the path, to see if she were coming.

But this morning she did not come. He walked alone to his lily bed; but his face brightened when he heard her calling him to breakfast and very soon he saw her leaning over the half-door, shading her eyes with both hands, the better to watch his approach.

Lysbet was already in her place; so was Joanna, and also Bram. Joris and Bram discussed the business of the day; Katherine was full of her visit to Semple house the preceding evening. Dinorah was no restraint. The slaves Joris owned, like those of Abraham, were born or brought up in his own household.

And yet, this morning, Joris waited until Lysbet dismissed her handmaid, before he said the words he had determined to speak ere he began the work of the day. Then he put down his cup with an emphasis which made all eyes turn to him, and said:

"Katryntje, my daughter, call not to-day, nor call not any day, until I tell you different, at Madame Semple's. The people who go and come there, I like them not. They will be no good to you—Lysbet, what say you in this matter?"

"What you say, I say, Joris. The father is to be obeyed. When he will not, the children can not.'

Katherine had drawn her chair close to her father's and taken his big hand between her own and was stroking and petting it; then as she answered she leaned her head upon his breast.

"Father, I like to see the English lady; and she is teaching me the new stitch."

"Schoone Lammetje! There are many other things far better for thee to learn. In these things the best of all good teachers is thy mother.'

"I can do these things also, father. The lady loves me and will be unhappy not to see me."

"Then, let her come here and see thee. That will be the proper thing. Why not? Always honor thyself, as well as others. That is the Dutch way; that is the right way. Mind what I tell thee."

His voice had gradually grown sterner, and he gently withdrew his hand from her clasp, and rose as a man pressed with affairs.

When he had left the room Lysbet instantly began to order the wants of the house. Katherine still sat at the table; her eyes were cast down, and she was arranging—without a consciousness of doing so—her bread crumbs upon her Delft plate. Roused from her revery she comprehended in a moment how decisive her father's orders were intended to be. Yet in this matter she was so deeply interested that she instinctively made an appeal against them.

"Mother, my mother, shal: I not go once more to see Madam Gordon? So kirk's, with the pretty girls in their quilted red hoods, one on each side of him.

The elder was very polite to his charges; but he noticed that Katherine was silent and disappointed, and that she lingered in her own room after her arrival at home. Her subsequent pretty cheerfulness, her delight in her lilies, her confiding claims upon her father's love—nothing in these things deceived him. He saw beneath all the fluttering young heart, trembling, and yet happy in the new, sweet feeling, never felt before, which had come to it that afternoon.

But he thought most girls had to have this initiative; it prepared the way for a soberer and more lasting affection. In the end Katherine would perceive how imprudent, how impossible a marriage with Capt. Hyde must be; and her heart would turn back to Neil, who had been her lover from boyhood. I am pleased to make this statement, believing it will help others who have been troubled as I have, to a permanent cure."

This satisfaction finds frequent expression in words. People who have been cured seem to take pleasure in telling of it. Take what Mrs. Lydia Parker says for example:
"I was trouble with Back Ache," says Mrs. Parker. "And all the time when I was stooping over a stitch would take me in the back, and I could not straighten up for a while.
"I sent and got a couple of boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and before I had finished taking the first, the stitch had gone and it has not been back since."
Other people here have had similar experiences with Dodd's Kidney Pills and their popularity is steadily on the increase.

A "BOY" AT SIXTY-EIGHT.

New Yorker's Playful Comment on Somewhat Elderly Friend.

Two elderly men were conspicuous the other morning in a Sixth Avenue elevated train. They entered at opposite ends of the car. One was short slow and heavy of tread, and yet obviously anxious to appear spry and youthful. The other was tall, spare and active, and only gave token of advanced years by the fussiness with which he dusted the car seat before settling down to his morning paper, says the New York Times.

As the crowd thinned out at Park Place the two men caught sight of each other and the tall one moved over to a seat alongside his friend.

"How spry you are for your age!" remarked the short one, with a sympatom of envy in his tone.

"Age?" exclaimed the other. "Why I have not begun yet to grow old. I am only seventy-four."

"Well, well," puffed the stout one "are you seventy-four? I didn't think you were older than I am. I am only sixty-eight."

"Why," exclaimed the lean one, tapping his companion playfully on the knee, "you are quite a boy yet."

Eating in Old Times.
The Romans took their meals while lying upon very low couches, and not until the time of Charlemagne was a stand used around which guests were seated on cushions, while the table only made its appearance in the middle ages, bringing with it benches and backs. The Greeks and Romans ate from a kind of porringer. During a portion of the middle ages, however, slices of bread cut round took the place of plates. The spoon is of great antiquity, and many specimens are in existence that were used by the Egyptians as early as the seventeenth century B. C. The knife, though very old, did not come into common use as a table utensil until after the tenth century. The fork was absolutely unknown to both Greeks and Romans, appeared only as a curiosity in the middle ages and was first used upon the table of Henry III. Drinking cups —in the middle ages made from metal, more or less copious, according to the owner's means—naturally date from the remotest age.

The End of the World!
A somewhat learned professor of a French university met his class the other day with the serious announcement that, since the end of the world was evidently coming, he would not lecture any more, but would devote his time to preparing for death. Dr. Ressinger, who is in charge of a French asylum, states that a dozen new cases have been brought in, raving solely about the comet meeting the earth, and hence reducing the world to ashes. The Republican Ardennais, a provincial paper, reports that in the Ardennes mountains two entire villages are abandoned, the inhabitants having retired to wild gorges in order to fast and pray and prepare for their coming doom.

Not in the House.
Representative MacCartney of the Massachusetts legislature tells the story of an associate who, on being elected to the general court of the state for the first time, was very greatly impressed with the dignity of his office. One night he was sleeping soundly when his wife heard, or thought she heard, a noise. She tried to arouse her spouse and found it far from easy. Giving him a hard shake, she whispered:
"John, John, wake up! There are thieves in the house."
"No, no, Maria, you are mistaken," he answered; "there may be one or two in the senate, but there are none in the house."—New York Times.

EXPRESS HIT A FREIGHT

The Freight Tried to Make Passing Siding But Failed to Clear—No House Was Accessible, So Two Unlojored Pullman Cars Were Used as Hospitals.

London, Ont., Dec. 28.—One of the worst railroad accidents in many years happened a short distance from the little station of Wanstead, on the Sarnia branch of the Grand Trunk railway, last night. The trains in collision were the Pacific express and a freight. The express was nearly two hours late and was making fast time. The freight was endeavoring to make a siding to get clear of the express but failed, and the crash came. The locomotives reared up and fell over in the ditch, the baggage car of the express telescoped the smoker, and in an instant the shrieks and cries of the wounded and injured filled the air. The loss of life is twenty-eight. The injured will number considerable more, and many of these will die.

The responsibility for the accident has not been definitely fixed, but it is believed to have been due to a telegraph operator's error in delivering orders to one of the trains.

The freights topped at Wanstead to sidetrack and was telescoped by the express. The blinding storm which was raging, rendered objects invisible at the distance of a few feet.

There was not a house at hand to which the injured could be carried. Fortunately, however, the two Pullman cars on the train did not sustain any damage. They were warm and comfortable, and were converted into temporary hospitals. The injured were placed in berths and everything possible done to ease their sufferings.

According to Master of Transportation Price of this city it was the agent and operator at Watford, the next station east of Wanstead, who failed to deliver the train crew of No. 7 their orders to pass the freight crew at Wanstead. The trainmaster, Price, says that in explanation of the mistake that brought such terrible results, the operator says he understood the dispatcher to kill the orders for No. 5 to pass the freight at Wanstead but it is understood in the offices here that the order for No. 5 was killed.

The Pacific express, which was late and endeavoring to make up time, was made up of two Pullmans cars, two first class day coaches, and two baggage cars. The train was crowded with people returning from holiday trips. No. 5 was running fully fifty miles an hour through the blizzard when at the Wanstead siding the headlight of the freight engine loomed up through the snow. It was impossible to see a hundred feet ahead because of the snow, and the trains crashed together almost before the engine crews realized that a collision was imminent. The impact threw the engines clear off the tract on the right hand side. The two day coaches of the express were between the heavily loaded baggage and the weighty Pullmans. With a terrific grinding crash the rear baggage car was driven into the coach for three-fourths of its length, and in a twinkling a score of the occupants were dead, and two score more were pinned down in the wreckage, crushed and mangled. The horror of fire was mercifully spared the suffering persons buried in the wreck. A little flame broke out but the uninjured passengers extinguished it before it could gain any headway. The occupants of the two Pullmans and the second day coach swarmed out of their cars to the rescue. A perfect bedlam of noise greeted them. The hiss of escaping steam from the wrecked engines mingled with the cries mingled with the cries of the unfortunates pined in the ruins. The bitter cold wind and snow added to their suffering.

SHIP ORDERED AWAY.

La Guaira, Dec. 27.—The Swedish bark Framnas, from Cardiff, with 475 tons of coal for the La Guaira-Caracas railway, a British concern, arrived off this port and was ordered to remain outside the blockade line. Then orders were conveyed to the captain of the bark to leave. This step was taken because the coal was considered contraband of war. The vessel was not seized, as she left Cardiff before the trouble with Venezuela commenced.

The captain of the Framnas is awaiting orders from his consignees.

The Dutch consul here has asked for permission of the commander of the British cruiser Tribune to send a schooner to Los Roques, a group of small islands about 120 miles north of here, where the charcoal burners, who trade with La Guaira, are at present without provisions or water, their sloops having been seized by the blockaders. The schooner must carry a flag of truce. She can only take enough provisions to last the trip, and she will remove all the inhabitants of Los Roques to Willemstad, Curacao, and then return here.

Two schooners were captured yesterday. The total number of craft tken by the blockaders is now twenty.

ARCHBISHOP DEAD.

He had Been Ill for Some Time, and Was Primate of All England.

London, Dec. 24.—The Most Rev. Frederick Temple, archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England, who has been ill for some time past, is dead.

The archbishop of Canterbury passed away quite peacefuly at 8:15 o'clock in the presence of his wife and two sons. His death had been expected for some days and only the archbishops remarkable vitality enabled him to counteract his extreme weakness. The final collapse occurred about 6 o'clock and he was unconscious toward the end.

The primate died of old age. The pathetic scene in Westminster Abbey at the coronation of King Edward was one of the earliest indications of his failing strength. Then came the collapse in the house of lords at the conclusion of a vigorous speech in support of the education bill. He had not left his bed since. He will be buried at Canterbury. The Bishop of Winchester is considered likely to be his successor.

Make a companion of vice and you will soon become its slave.

SPEAKERSHIP OF THE HOUSE.

Only One Ohio Man Has Held the Office—No New Yorker Since 1872.

Among the earliest duties which will devolve upon the recently elected members of the Fifty-eighth Congress will be the choice of a speaker, and present indications make it probable that the speaker will be chosen from the west.

The speaker of the Fifty-seventh Congress, David B. Henderson, was the first to be chosen from the territory west of the Mississippi.

The first speaker was F. A. Muhlenburg of Pennsylvania. The post of speaker was held in the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Congresses by James K. Polk, afterward president.

Speakers of the House of Representatives who have been candidates for president are numerous and include Henry Clay, John Bell and James G. Blaine. Schuyler Colfax after having been speaker, was vice president of the United States.

The oldest surviving speaker is Galusha A. Grow, born in 1823 and speaker from 1861 to 1863.

The last Democratic speaker Charles F. Crisp, was a native of England. Two surviving speakers, John G. Carlisle and Thomas B. Reed, though elected Representatives in Kentucky and Maine respectively, are now residents of the city of New York.

There has never been a speaker from the Pacific coast and it is a somewhat curious circumstance that Ohio, though pre-eminent in nearly all other political offices, has had in the country's history but one speaker, John W Kiefer, who served only a single term.

The state of New York has had no speaker since the close of the Nineteenth Congress in 1827, though New York has been, during the whole of that period, the most populous state and the one having the largest congressional representation.

The speaker of the Fifty-eighth congress when chosen will preside over a larger number of Members of Congress than any of his predecessors, the total membership of the next house being 386.

In a recent lecture to his people, Booker T. Washington told them that there is little or nothing to be obtained without work, adding: "There was an old negro, professionally pious, who wanted a luxurious Christmas dinner, and who night after night, prayed to the Lord to send him a turkey. The days passed, Christmas approached, and the old fellow undertook to compromise by asking the Lord to send him to a turkey. He got one that very night."

THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME

ARE NEVER WITHOUT PERUNA IN THE HOUSE FOR CATARRHAL DISEASES.

MR. AND MRS. J. O. ATKINSON, INDEPENDENCE, MO.

UNDER date of January 10, 1897, Dr. Hartman received the following letter:

"My wife had been suffering from a complication of diseases for the past 25 years.

"Her case had baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. One of her worst troubles was chronic constipation of several years' standing.

"She also was passing through that most critical period in the life of a woman—change of life. In June, 1895, I wrote to you about her case. You advised a course of Peruna and Manalin, which we at once commenced, and have to say it completely cured her. She firmly believes that she would have been dead only for these wonderful remedies.

"About the same time I wrote you about my own case of catarrh, which had been of 25 years' standing. At times I was almost past going. I commenced to use Peruna according to your instructions and continued its use for about a year, and it has completely cured me.

"Your remedies do all that you claim for them, and even more. Catarrh cannot exist where Peruna is taken according to directions. Success to you and your remedies."

John O. Atkinson.

In a letter dated January 1, 1900, Mr. Atkinson says, after five years' experience with Peruna:

"I will ever continue to speak a good word for Peruna. In my rounds as a traveling man I am a walking advertisement for Peruna and have induced many people during the past year to use Peruna with the most satisfactory results. I am still cured of catarrh."

John O. Atkinson,
Box 272, Independence, Mo.

When old age comes on, catarrhal diseases come also. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people.

This explains why Peruna has become so indispensable to old people Peruna is their safe-guard. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised that meets these cases exactly.

Such cases cannot be treated locally; nothing but an effective systemic remedy could cure them This is exactly what Peruna is.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis

Address Dr Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Constipation Will Undermine Your Health.

Mull's Grape Tonic Cures Constipation.

When the sewer of a city becomes stopped up, the refuse backs into the streets where it decays and rots, spreading disease-creating germs throughout the entire city. An epidemic of sickness follows. It is the same way when the bowels fail to work. The undigested food backs into the system and there it rots and decays. From this festering mass the blood saps up all the disease germs, and at every heart beat carries them to every tissue, just as the water works of a city forces impure water into every house. The only way to cure a condition like this is to cure the constipation. Pills and the ordinary cathartics will do no good.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC
Is a crushed fruit tonic-laxative
which permanently cures the affliction. The tonic properties contained in the grape go into every afflicted tissue and creates strength and health. It will quickly restore lost flesh and make rich, red blood. As a laxative its action is immediate and positive, gentle and natural. Mull's Grape Tonic is guaranteed or money back.

His weekly contributions are valued very highly by both the Ell Center readers and the management. Were it possible to get such a correspondent in every locality we would be much pleased. Hoping that he continue his correspondence for three years more we thank him very kindly for past services.

The allied forces of Germany, England and Italy have at last consented to arbitration. The matter will be taken before the Hague tribunal. The U. S. will have nothing more to say concerning the matter unless the allied forces again try to tamper with the Monroe doctrine when the president will again call a halt. The Monroe doctrine is a bitter pill for territory-grabbing European nations, but Dr. Roosevelt says take it and we think it will have to go.

The exercises at the various churches on Christmas eve were grand successes. The inclement weather hindered many who would have attended, from going to the exercises, yet a fair sized audience was in attendance. At the Eng. M. E. church the program was indeed very good. The choir, under the supervision of Chas. P. Ell, rendered some very fine selections, and the choir as a whole has been the recipients of many praiseworthy comments. In fact those who have been regular attendants upon the church say it was the best singing that they have ever heard there. The recitations, declamations and dialogues were also well received Very elaborate and appropriate programs were also rendered in both the German churches. The different Christmas trees were loaded with gifts for the children and Santa Claus was kept busy distributing well filled sacks of candy, nute and pop corn to the over-joyed youngsters.

Our Lecture Course.

The G. B. Swartz lectures thus far this week have been quite well attended considering the weather. On Monday night standing room was a premium when he delivered his lecture, "The Stars and Stripes." His illustrated lecture on Abrahzm Lincoln on Wednesday evening was very fine and was well received by the audience. Mr. Swartz is certainly a very able speaker, a deep thinker and his thoughts are couched in choicest language. All his lectures are of special interest to the boys, and he portrays for young America high ideals from which they may copy. His lectures are not only entertaining but tend to educate and uplift humanity, and our community will, we believe, be bettered by Mr. Swartz having spent a week among us.

Following is the program for the remainder of the week:

Thursday.—"Ten Nights in a Bar Room."
Friday.—"Ben Hur."
Saturday.—"Fall Of Babylon."
Sunday.—"The Passion Play."

A Birthday Surprise.

On Tuesday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Lau was the scene of a very pleasant social gathering. On that day occurred the anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Lau, and her friends fearful lest she would not get started properly on her journey toward her next mill stone, decided to gather in and see correctly embarked. Mrs. Lau was taken completely by surprise, but was equal to the occasion and entertained her guests royally. The affair was planned and carried to a very successful conclusion by Mesdames H. Lau and Fred Ridder. For a reminder of the occasion in time to come, and in order that she may recline with ease during her declining years, Mrs. Lau was presented with a beautiful Reed rocker. She was also the recipient of numerous other gifts. There was about 50 invited guests. Delicious refreshments were served, games played and a royal good time was had by all. At a late hour the guests departed feeling that they had had a splendid time, and wishing Mrs. Lau many happy returns of the day.

Follow the crowd and attend the Lecture Course. The rest of the week. Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings.

A TRUE TALE.

Concerning Englishman Who Had Never Seen American Dried Apples.

An English gentleman relates an amusing incident in connection with his first visit to this country about a quarter of a century ago. The steamer upon which he had taken passage having put into port at St. John, N. B., our friend took the opportunity to go on shore for an hour or two.

He wandered about, regarding his surroundings with curious interest. Presently he came to a quaint little shop, with diamond-shaped, low windows, wherein were displayed numerous jars, containing cakes, candies and other sweets. Two jars in particular attracted his attention, for the reason that they were filled with eatables—presumably—with which our traveler was unacquainted.

Entering the shop, he pointed to one of the jars in question, saying:

"Give me five cents' worth of that, please."

The little shopwoman, filling a bag of generous dimensions with the commodity indicated, passed it to the stranger. The latter, on sampling the purchase, was rather disappointed to find a tough, leathery substance, devoid of any characteristic flavor. But he heroically, pointing to another jar, demanded:

"Five cents' worth of that."

A smaller bag was filled from the jar now specified, and again the investigator tasted, discovering a hard, sugary compound, not unpalatable, but not greatly to his liking. He silently bore away his two packages. Once outside the shop, he began to consider how he might dispose of them.

Presently he espied a small boy seated on a doorstep, and he hastened to bestow upon him the mysterious purchases. The urchin received the donation with great gratification, and proceeded to polish off the contents of both bags, in the order of their size.

Having watched this disappearance, the visitor withdrew in a self-satisfied frame of mind. His satisfaction was considerably lessened, however, when, on his arrival in this country, he learned that his two purchases were respectively dried apples and maple sugar. Learning of the expansive properties of the former, he has ever since been haunted by grave apprehensions as to the probable fate of the youthful recipient of his bounty.—N. Y. Ledger

AFRAID OF ANGELS.

Story Told of Little Boy Sent to Bed in the Dark.

Jamie is just as manly as the rest of the small boys on our block, and I fancy he has as many black eyes to his credit as most youngsters of his age, but he does not like to go to bed in the dark. At least that is the way he puts it. It isn't that he is afraid; not at all, but he does not like the dark, and therefore an adoring mother has respected his idiosyncrasy and paid the gas bill cheerfully. But when Jamie arrived at the dignity of a tenth birthday she concluded that it was time to institute a long-deferred reform, and so, filled with birthday cake and despair, Jamie was left in solitude and darkness. But before she turned off the gas his mother, hoping to cheer her disconsolate son, told him that no one need be afraid of the dark, because the angels were always ready to protect one. Jamie listened, cynical and unconvinced, but ready to hear any story that would defer the awful moment when the light should go out. Fifteen minutes later, from her station on the stairway, where she was tearfully meditating on the cruelty of reform methods, his mother heard his voice and crept softly upstairs to listen at the open door. The room was as black as midnight, but from the bedclothes in muffled tones came the moan:

"Mebby it's so, but it beats everything how afraid I am of angels."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Brokers for Bridal Couples.

Marriage brokers are a regular institution in Italy. In Genoa there are regular marriage brokers, who have pocket books filled with the names of the marriageable girls of the different classes, with notes of their figures, personal attractions, fortune, and other circumstances. These brokers go about endeavoring to arrange connections, in the same off-hand mercantile manner which they would bring to bear upon a purely business transaction, and when they succeed they get a commission of two or three per cent. upon the portion, with such extras or bonuses as may be voluntarily bestowed by the party.

HAPPENINGS IN HAWKEYEDOM

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

MUST KEEP THE FEE RECORD.

Executive Council Passes on the Merriam Case—Bold Hold-up of a Farmer and His Wife Takes Place Near Bussey—One of Robbers Seriously Wounded.

Des Moines, Jan. 3.—The state executive council yesterday issued a statement in the matter of the controversy between insurance companies and State Auditor Merriam which has been setting the state officials against each other for some weeks. The members of the council believed that a proper and fair statement of the case wyas due the public and this has been made.

The official opinion of the attorney general was read and considered by the council at the forenoon meeting, all the members being present. Attorney General Mullan held, in the matter of the right and authority of the state auditor to make examinations of insurance companies outside the state that, as previously stated, the law is ambiguous and it cannot certainly be affirmed that the state auditor has not the authority to make such examinations. But he also held distinctly, and this is a most important point, that when the law refers to "foreign" insurance companies it means those outside the state and not necessarily those in other nations. This is contrary to the holding of State Auditor Merriam, who has proceeded on the theory that the foreign insurance companies referred to in the statute are those outside of the United State.

The most important point in the opinion was that the state auditor must keep a public record of these examinations and of the fees received. This has not before been done.

Mr. Merriam explained to the council that he had brought up the matter of his authority with the former executive council and it had been informally decided he had authority to make examinations. If any individual company questioned his authority he would be given specific authority in that case. He read a letter he had received from Secretary Shaw in which he stated that the matter was discussed in this way and that there was some such understanding. This letter also received the approval of Mr. Dobson, who was on the council at the same time. Mr. Merriam explained that he had not heard from Lieut. Governor Herriott, the other member of the council.

In regard to the record of examinations Mr. Merriam stated he had the record. He did not have the record of fees, but would get it and make it a part of the records of the office.

The council's statement sets forth these and other facts relating to the matter, criticises the auditor for failure to keep the records and for the other irregularities. This will probably be the end of the matter unless the insurance companies have something further.

TRIED TO SAVE HIS VALUABLES.

Mysterious Joe Howard Was Wounded Three Times in the Fight.

Clinton, Ia., Dec. 29.—One of the most sensational hold-ups in the history of the city occurred here recently when three masked men entered the apartments of Joe Howard and three companions and demanded their valuables. Howard had a belt around his waist containing $1,000, and $250 in his pocket, beside a valuable diamond ring and a diamond stud, and would not give up his valuables.

He grappled with one of the robbers, and in the struggle that ensued, was shot three times. However, owing to the fact that the men were locked in tight embrace, the robber could not get a good shot, and all his bullets struck at such an angle that serious, but not fatal wounds were inflicted.

Seeing that he could not escape the robber, Howard fell at the last shot and feigned death, but the robber was not to be balked and commenced to hunt for the man's money, whereupon the struggle was renewed. The robber got a diamond pin from Howard's tie, but while trying to take a ring from the latter's finger, Howard secured the pin and threw it into a cuspidore. When his pistol emptied, the robber struck Howard on the head, laying open the scalp.

Howard then kicked out the window and called "murder," whereupon the burglars fled. While the fight was in progress one of the other robbers relieved Howard's companions of their valuables and $200, while the other stood guard at the stairs. There is no clew.

The robbery raised the question as to who Howard is and what is his business. He has elegantly furnished apartments and appears to be wealthy. He came here from Chicago several months ago, but has never made known his business. He does not conduct a gambling house, yet gamblers are his companions. He gets several telegrams each day, but there is nothing to indicate his business.

REV. DREW MAY CLEAR HIMSELF.

It is Charged He Was Victim of Conspiracy.

Columbus Junction, Dec. 31.—The outcome of the trial of Rev. Monroe Drew is regarded by many here as one of the outrages of the day. Many do not hesitate to say that a most useful man in the community was removed by a conspiracy. The commission which tried Drew did so behind closed doors and no official publication has been given out. It is known, however, that he has been suspended from the work of the ministry for a space of one year. At the end of that time he may be reinstated, depending entirely upon the attitude the presbytery may assume in the matter. There was no criminal charge against him, only petty charges by his wife, a woman with whom his life seemed to be absolutely incompatible.

An Eye Shot Out.

Sioux City, Jan. 5.—While playing with a loaded revolver at Sergeants Bluffs Charles Johnson, a 5-year-old boy, was accidently shot by a companion named Albert Coeley. The bullet entered the temple and plowed through the boy's eye, coming out near the nose. Although there is no definite evidence that the brain was touched the boy is in a very precarious condition. The eye was shot completely out of its socket.

JUDGE GIVEN APPOINTED.

Named by Governor Cummins for Polk County Bench.

Des Moines, Jan. 5.—Judge Josiah Given, nearly thirteen years one of the judges of the supreme court of Iowa, and for many years district judge, has been appointed by Governor Cummins to fill the vacancy on the Polk county district bench caused by the death of Judge C. P. Holmes. Judge Given has consented to serve, and he has assured Governor Cummins he will not be a candidate before the primaries or the convention.

Following the announcement of the appointment, Governor Cummins authorized the following statement giving his reasons for the selection of Judge Given:

"I have appointed Josiah Given to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Holmes, and in view of the contest made before me, I think it is not inappropriate to state briefly my reasons for so doing. I have been informed that the nominating primaries will be held early in March. A republican candidate for judge will then be selected by the republican voters of the county, and inasmuch as so little time intervenes before this expression of the people will take place, I believe it to be my duty to leave the several aspirants for judicial honors without either the advantage or disadvantage which an appointment of either would confer or impose. The fact that the members of the bar differ so radically in their preferences deepens the conviction that the course suggested is the proper one. Judge Given is eminently qualified for the office and therefore the public will, during the short time that he will be on the bench, be efficiently served. He has informed me that he will not be a candidate before the primaries or convention."

Judge Given will hold office until his successor is elected and qualified following the November election. He is now dean of the law school of Highland Park college. He is upwards of 70 years of age. He is a distinguished veteran of the Mexican and civil wars and his career on the bench has been an interesting one. He was on the Polk county district bench for a number of years, and March 12, 1889, was appointed to fill the vacancy on the supreme bench caused by the resignation of Joseph R. Reed. He was elected November 5, 1889, for the balance of the unexpired term and also for the full term ending December 31, 1895. He was re-elected November 5, 1895 and served a second full term ending December 31, 1901.

WABASH TRAIN WRECKED.

Two Cars Crushed By Engine and Conductor Crowley Injured.

Des Moines, Jan. 2.—East bound Rock Island freight No. 94, in charge of Conductor Kline, caused a wreck near Great Western Junction at 9:55 last night, by running through the incoming Wabash freight No. 67, in charge of Conductor Crowley and Engineer Margram. With the exception of Conductor Crawley, no one was injured, although a lady and child passengers on the Wabash freight and the crews were badly shaken up. The scene of the collision is near East Eighteenth and Market streets and at the junction of the Rock Island tracks. They cross at an angle of about 45 degrees.

The Wabash train carried eighteen cars and a caboose and sixteen of these had cleared the crossing when Rock Island train hit the first of the last two cars. The two cars were loaded with coal and so great was the force of the impact that they were literally smashed to pieces and tossed into a ten foot ditch to the north of the tracks. The only part of the two which remained intact were the rear trucks of the first car. The caboose was turned half around and stood straight across the tracks.

The Rock Island engine was one of the big 1400 series and with the exception of the loss of the pilot sustained no damage, and when it backed away from the ruins threw light from its Lead on the wreck.

Conductor Crawley of the Wabash train lays the blame of the wreck on the Rock Island engineer and said that the latter did not whistle for the crossing or ring his bell. Both trains were traveling at a good rate of speed and the headlight of the incoming train was probably obscured from the view of the Rock Island engineer by the big Eighteenth street elevator.

The sixteen cars of the Wabash train which were not injured by the collision were pulled into the city and a switch engine was sent after Crawley, who was removed to Mercy hospital in charge of Dr. Finlayson. His injuries, though serious, are not necessary fatal. His right ankle was dislocated, he was badly bruised all over his body and sustained internal injuries which make the case serious.

A wrecking crew in charge of Supt. Wagner of the Des Moines Union left at midnight to clear the track.

TRAINMEN MAY GO ON STRIKE.

Unless Demand is Acceded to by January 5 Men Will Quit Work.

Des Moines, Jan. 2.—Trainmen on all the railway systems west of Chicago are asking a raise of 20 per cent in their present wage scale. Unless their demands are acceded to or a compromise affected by January 5 1903, the demand will be attempted to be enforced by a strike. Should the strike be declared every train running west of Chicago would be brought to a standstill. Everything but the United States mails will be tied up. Coming on the heels of the coal famine the strike would be a most serious affair and would probably entail great suffering throughout the west if long continued.

The wage demanded is based on the argument of the strikers that the cost of living has been advancing steadily during the past three years and that at the same time there has been no increase in the prices for labor.

It is generally believed that the railway companies and their men will settle the trouble without resorting to that final arbitration of labor disputes—the strike. The men are inclined to concede something if this is necessary to bring about peace and the railroad managers are generally of the opinion that the demand for a wage increase is warranted.

Woman Teacher Totally Burned.

Waterloo, Jan. 5.—Amanda Strayer a teacher in the Waterloo public schools, was fatlly burned, by the explosion of a gasoline can. She was emptying the gasoline from the can into another vessel when the gas was ignited. The burning mass was thrown over her and she was instantly enveloped in a sheet of flames. Her mother was dangerously burned about the face, arms and hands in trying to help the young woman.

"Of all earthly things!" said Mrs. Gordon. "A letter from that poor child, Katherine Van Heemskirk. She has more wit than I expected. So her father won't let her come to me. Why, then, upon my word, I will go to her."

Capt. Hyde was interested at once. "You will go to-morrow?" he asked; "and would it be beyond good breeding to accompany you?"

"Indeed, nephew, I think it would. Be patient; to-morrow morning I will call upon our fair neighbor."

The next morning was damp, for there had been heavy rain during the night; but Capt. Hyde would not let his aunt forget or forego her promise. A negro woman was polishing the brass ornaments of the door, and over its spotless threshold she passed without question or delay.

A few minutes she waited alone in the best parlor, charmed with its far-off air and Eastern scents, and then Madam Van Heemskirk welcomed her. In her heart she was pleased at the visit. She thought privately that her Joris had been a little too strict. And Mrs. Gordon's praise of Katherine and her declaration that "she was inconsolable without the dear creature's society,' seemed to the fond mother the most proper and natural of feelings.

"Do but let me see her an hour, madam," she said. "You know my sincere admiration. Is not that her voice? I vow, she sings to perfection! And what a singular melody! Please to set wide the door madan."

"It is the brave song of the brave men of Zealand, when from the walls of Leyden they drove away the Spaniards;" and madam stood in the open door, and called to her daughter, "Well, then, Katherine, begin again the song of 'The Beggars of the Sea.'"

At the second verse, Mrs. Gordon rose and said, "Indeed, madam, I find my good breeding no match against such singing. And the tune is wonderful; it has the ring of trumpets, and the roar of the waves in it. Pray let us go at once to your daughter's."

"At work are they; but, if you mind not that, you are welcome indeed." Then she led the way to the large living, or dining, room, where Katherine stood at the table cleaning the silver flagons and cups and plates that adorned the great oak sideboard.

Joanna, who was darning some fine linen, rose and made her respects with perfect composure. She had very little liking, either for Mrs. Gordon or her nephew; and many of their ways appeared to her utterly foolish and not devoid of sin. But Katherine trembled and blushed with pleasure and excitement, and Mrs. Gordon watched her with a certain kind of curious delight. Her hair was combed backword, plaited, and tied with a ribbon; her arms bare to the shoulders, her black bodice and crimson petticoat neatly shielded with a linen apron; and poised in one hand she held a beautiful silver flagon covered with raised figures, which with patient labor she had brought into shining relief.

Conversation was easily maintained. Madam Van Heemskirk knew the pedigree or the history of every tray or cup, and in reminiscence and story an hour passed away very pleasantly indeed. Then Mrs. Gordon, after bidding madam an effusive good-by, turned suddenly and said, "Pray allow yoru daughter to show me the many ornaments in your parlor. The glimpse I had has made me very impatient to see them more particularly."

The moment the parlor door had been shut, Mrs. Gordon lifted Katherine's face between her palms, and said:

"Faith, child, I am almost run off my head with all the fine things I have listened to for your sake. Do you know who sent me here?"

"I think, madam, Capt. Hyde."

"Psha! Why don you blush, and stammer, and lie about it? Now, Capt. Hyde wishes to see you; when can you oblige him so much?"

"I know not. To come to Madam Semple's is forbidden me by my father."

"Oh, indeed! Has your father forbidden you to walk down your garden to the river bank?"

"No, madam."

"Then, if Capt. Hyde pass about 3 o'clock, he might see you there?"

"Three?"

The word was a question more than an assent, but Mrs. Gordon assumed the assent, and did not allow Katherine to contradict it. "And I promised to bring him a token from you—he was exceedingly anxious about that matter."

Katherine looked thoughtfully around. There was a small Chinese cabinet on the table. She went to it and took from a drawer a bow of orange ribbon. Holding it doubtfully in her hand, she said, "My St. Nicholas ribbon."

"There, there! I can really wait no longer. Some one is already in a fever of impatience. Good-by again, child; my service once more to your mother and sister," and so, with many compliments, she passed chatting and laughing out of the house.

Katherine closed the best parlor, and lingered a moment in the act. She felt that she had permitted Mrs. Gordon to make an appointment for her lover, and a guilty sense of disobedience made bitter the joy of expectation.

But she kept her own counsel, and doubted and debated the matter in her heart until the hands of the great clock were rising quickly to the hour of fate. Then she laid down her fine sewing and said, "Mother, I want to walk in the garden. When I come back, my task I will finish."

"That is well. Joanna, too, has let her work fall down to her lap. Go, both of you, and get the fine air from the river."

This was not what Katherine wished, but nothing but assent was possible, and the girls strolled slowly down the box-bordered walks together.

When they reached the river bank a boat rowed by with two English soldiers, stopped just below them, and lay rocking on her oars. Then an officer in the stern rose and Katherine saw Capt. Hyde fling back from his left shoulder his cloak, in order to display the bow of orange ribbon on his breast.

Katherine went back to the house as merry as a bird. She chatted of this and of that and sang snatches of songs, old and new. And all the time her heart beat out its own glad refrain, "My bow of orange ribbon, my bow of orange ribbon!"

CHAPTER III.

Joy in the House.

"Honored gentleman, when will you pay me my money?"

The speaker was an old man, dressed in a black coat buttoned to the ankles, and a cap of silk and fur, from beneath which fell a fringe of gray hair. The inquiry was addressed to Capt. Hyde. He paid no attention whatever to it, but, gayly humming a stave of "Marlbrook," watched the crush of wagons and pedestrians, in order to find a suitable moment to cross the narrow street.

"Honored gentleman, when will you pay me my moneys?"

The second inquiry elicited still less attention.

"I do not wish to make you more expenses, captain," and Cohen, following the impulse of his anxiety, laid his hand upon his debtor's arm. Hyde turned in a rage, and flung off the touch with a passionate oath. Then the Jew left him and walked slowly towards his store and home.

He soon recovered the calmness which had been lost during his unsatisfactory interview with Capt. Hyde. "A wise man frets not himself, for the folly of a fool;" and, having come to this decision, he entered his house with the invocation for its peace and prosperity on his lips.

Soon there was a little stir in the street—that peculiar sense of something more than usual, which can make itself felt in the busiest thoroughfare—and Cohlen went to the door and looked out.

"The Great Christopher" had come to anchor—Capt. Batavius de Vries.

There was quite a crowd on the wharf. Some were attracted by curiosity; others, by the hope of a good job on the cargo; others, again, not averse to a little private bargaining for any curious or valuable goods the captain of the "Great Christopher" had for sale.

Joanna Van Heemskirk had had a message from her lover, Capt. de Vries, and she was watching for his arrival. There was no secrecy in her love affairs, and it was amid the joy and smiles of the whole household that she met her affianced husband. They were one of those loving, sensible couples, for whom it is natural to predict a placid and happy life, and the first words of Batavius seemed to assure it:

"My affairs have gone well, Joanna, as they generally do; and now I shall build the house, and we shall be married."

Joanna laughed. "I shall just say a word or two, also, about that, Batavius."

"Come, come, the word or two was said so long ago. Katrijintje, mijn meisje, what's the matter now, that you never come once?"

Katherine was standing at the open window, apparently watching the honey-bees among the locust blooms, but really perceiving something far beyond them—a boat on the river at the end of the garden. So the question of Batavius touched very lightly her physical consciousness. A far sweeter, a far more peremptory voice called her; but she answered:

"There is nothing the matter, Batavius. I am well, I am happy. And now I will go into the garden to make me a fine nosegay," and she walked slowly out of the door and stopped or stooped at every flowerbed, while Joanna watched her.

Out of sight of the window, Katherine ran rapidly to the end of the garden, and, parting the lilac bushes, stood flushed and panting on the river bank. Capt. Hyde's pretty craft shot into sight, and a few strokes put it at the landing stair. In a moment he was at her side. He took her in his arms, and in spite of the small hands covering her blushing face, he kissed her with passionate affection, vowing with every kiss that she was the most adorable of women, and protesting "on his honor as a soldier" that he would make her his wife, or die a bachelor for her sake.

And who can blame a young girl if she listens and believes, when listening and believing mean to her perfect happiness? Not women who have ever stood, trembling with love and joy, close to the dear one's heart. If they be gray-haired, and on the very shoal of life, they must remember still those moments of delight—the little lane, the fire-lit room, the drifting boat, that is linked with them. If they be young and lovely, and have but to say, "It was yesterday," or, "It was last week," still better they will understand the temptation that was too great for Katherine to overcome.

And, as yet, nothing definite had been said to her about Neil Semple, and the arrangement made for her future, so that in effect, she was still free, since Neil had not spoken.

On the night of De Vries' return there was a great gathering at Van Heemskik's house. Conspicuous in the happy, chattering company, Lysbet Van Heemskikrk bustled about, in the very whitest and stiffest of lace caps. Very soon after sundown, Elder Semple and madam his wife arrived; and the elder, as usual, made a decided stir among the group which he joined.

"No, no, councillor," he said, in answer to the invitation of Joris to come outside. "No, no, I'll not risk my health, maybe my vera life, oot on the stoop after sunset."

"Well, then, neighbors, we'll go inside," said Joris. "Clean pipes, and a snowball (gin mixed stiff with sugar), or a glass of Hollands, will not, I think, be amiss."

The movement was made among some jokes and laughter, and they gathered near the hearthstone.

Katherine came and stood behind her father's chair. She let her head fall down over his shoulder, and he raised his own to clasp it. "What is it then, mijn, Katrijntje kleintje?"

"It is to dance. Mother says 'yes,' if thou art willing."

"Then I say 'yes,' also.

For a moment she laid her cheek against him, and the happy tears came into his eyes, and he stroked her face and half-reluctantly let Batavius lead her away.

At that day there were but few families of any wealth who did not own one black man who could play well upon the violin. Joris possessed two, and they were both on hand, putting their own gay spirits into the fiddle and the bow. And oh, how happy were the beating feet and the beating hearts that went to the stirring strains! It was joy and love and youth in melodious motion. The old looked on with gleaming, sympathetic eyes; the young forgot that they were mortal.

Miss Katern Van Heemskirk and Mr. Neil Semple will now hab de honor ot 'bliging de company wid de French minuet."

At this announcement, made by the first negro violin, there was a sudden silence; and Neil rose, and with a low bow offered the tips of his fingers to the beautiful girl, who rose blushing to take them.

Neil's dark, stately beauty was well set off by his black velvet suit and powdered hair and gold buckles. And no lovelier contrast could have faced him than Katherine Van Heemskirk; so delicately fresh, so radiantly fair, she looked in her light blue robe and white lace stomacher, with a pink rose at her breast.

Neil had a natural majesty in his carriage; Katherine supplemented it with a natural grace. As she was in the very act of making Neil a profound courtesy, the door opened and Mrs. Gordon and Capt. Hyde entered. The latter took in the exquisite picture in a moment, and there was a fire of jealousy in his heart when he saw Neil lead his partner to her seat, and with the deepest respect kiss her pretty fingers ere he resigned them.

But he was compelled to control himself, as he was ceremoniously introduced to Councillor and Madam Van Heemskirk by his aunt, who with a charming effusiveness declared "she was very uneasy to intrude so far, but, in faith, councillor," she pleaded, "I am but a woman, and I find the news of a wedding beyond my nature to resist."

DEPEW TELLS SOMETHING NEW.

Latest Story Put Forth by the New York Senator.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew says that this is his latest, and he guarantees it to be new. He told it to a group of friends at the Chamber of Commerce banquet Tuesday night.

"I was walking down Wall street today," he said, "hastening to keep an important business engagement, when I was stopped by a man who said:

"'Pardon me, senator, but I see you have been taking an active part in this state election, and I am anxious to learn what you think of the result.'

"'I am naturally much pleased by the election of Gov. Odell,' I replied.

"'But there was a big slump in the Republican vote in the city and Odell's plurality was very small. I was afraid that this might have a serious significance for the future of our great party.'

"I replied that I did not think so, and, remembering my appointment, sought to get rid of my questioner, but he persisted:

"'You greatly relieve my mind,' he said. 'So you are sure you are pleased with the result of the election!'

"'Quite so,' I responded.

"'Then you will be glad, I know, to lend me fifty cents.'

"I said that there had been a slump in the stock market that day and I could only let him have a quarter."—New York Times.

All Things Perfect.

When President Roosevelt made his flying trip to Chattanooga, one of the chief points of interest included in his entertainment was Lookout Mountain, standing in solemn majesty above the yellow ribbon of the Tennessee. From it the mountains, hills and valleys of seven states seem to blend into a glorious harmony. Down at the base of the mountain the rushing Tennessee twists into Moccasin Bend, the heel, toe, and ankles all sharply defined—Chattanooga in the bend of the ankle and waving fields of grain in the toe itself.

The President's party stood awed by the majestic beauty of the scene. Said one, with an appreciation of the curious:

"The river—see? It's a perfect foot!"

"Yes," remarked President Roosevelt, "even to the corn on the toe."

Sure of Part of It.

Among the duties of Dr. Hedden's office boy, who was somewhat averse to overexertion, was the emptying and refilling the water cooler every morning. Archie, the boy, sometimes neglected the emptying part of his task, and one morning the doctor, when he had swallowed a copious draught of the water, was conscious of a foul taste in the liquid.

"Archie," he called, "is this water fresh?"

"Ye-e-s, sir," answered Archies, hesitatingly.

The doctor noticed the hesitation, so he repeated severely:

"Archie, are you sure this water is fresh?"

"Part of it is," naively answered Archie.—New York Times.

HONOLULU CABLE IN WORKING ORDER

First Words Passed Under the Ocean a Few Moments After Eleven.

SAN FRANCISCO PEOPLE HAPPY

The Wire Worked Perfectly—President Roosevelt Was Not Awakened to Receive the Message—Honolulu Has Cause to Be Jubilant.

Honolulu, Jan. 3.—(By Pacific Cable)—The first section of the cable that is to connect the United States with its insular possessions in the Pacific was completed at 8:40 Thursdday night, when the two ends were brought together in Molokai channel, 65 miles from Honolulu, where the San Francisco end had been buoyed since December 26. Shortly after communication was established, the fact was announced to the crowd in waiting and was greeted with applause.

The point of landing was at the beautiful private park of San Soucie Beach, five miles east of the city of Honolulu. With the shore end landed, there still remained a span of almost two score of miles to be laid between the buoyed deep sea and in Molokai channel and the heavy beach line laid a half mile out from shore. The closing of this gap proved a task that taxed the patience as well as the ingenuity of the Silvertown's staff. Five days elapsed, the most of which was spent in awaiting the favor of the wind and sea before their labors were completed and the first signal flashed along the entire length of the two thousand or more miles.

San Francisco, Jan. 3.—San Francisco and Honolulu are now connected by cable. The first words passed under the ocean a few moments after 11 o'clock Thursday night. The wire worked perfectly.

The Silvertown, just before splicing the ends, some thirty miles off shore from Honolulu, telegraphed both ways for the land stations to wait until 11:10 o'clock, San Francisco time, before trying the cable. That time was desired to insure the perfect hardening of the gutta percha in the splice after the joint should be lowered overboard from the ship in about 2,500 feet of water.

Operators sat anxiously and eagerly about the instruments in King street at Honolulu and in the cable office on Market street in San Francisco, waiting for the time limit to expire. San Francisco was watching for Honolulu to signal first.

A few moments after 11 o'clock, before the time limit was up, a signal went from this end to Honolulu.

The first little response from Honolulu came into San Francisco at exactly 11:03 o'clock. It was exactly 8:41 o'clock in Honolulu, the time difference being two hours and twenty-two minutes and a few seconds.

The first message received was from Governor Dole to President Roosevelt. It was merely a formal greeting and congratulation from the people of Hawaii to the people of the United States from one chief executive to the other. The message was transmitted at the Market street office to a wire leading directly to the executive mansion at Washington, and receipt was acknowledged at 11:25 o'clock.

When the message reached the whitehouse President Roosevelt was asleep and the operator refused to awaken him.

Right after the Dole signature on the first message came a second through from Honolulu. It was a greeting from the people of Hawaii to Clarence H. Mackay, president of the cable company, congratulating him on the completion of the cable and expressing sorrow that John Mackay had not survived to see the instantaneous bond between the islands and the American continent. This message was signed by Henry E. Cooper, secretary of the Territory of Hawaii.

Then came a message from the Associated Press correspondent on the Silvertown, telling of the successful laying of the cable and of the celebration of the event in Honolulu. The paper ribbon containing the record of the first experimental words between San Francisco and Honolulu was cut into little sections of a few phrases each and divided among the score of spectators who were assembled about the instruments when San Francisco and Honolulu first spoke to each other under the Pacific ocean.

The line is now open for business.

DARING DEED OF HIGHWAYMAN.

Draws a Knife and Attempts to Cut Off Fingers of a Young Lady.

New York, Jan. 2.—Henry Goodman 19 years of age, was arrested just before midnight, charged with having attempted to cut off a young woman's hand to obtain the diamond rings displayed on her fingers. The attack was made in full view of scores of merrymakers, including two men escorts. Miss May Matthews and Miss May Lewis started out with their escorts for an automobile ride and later went to supper. It was after 11 o'clock when the start was made for home. Soon something went wrong with the machine and the two men got down to examine it. Miss Lewis held a handbag which contained a small amount of money. On the fingers of Miss Matthews' left hand flittered diamonds, it is said fully worth $1,500.

Suddenly from the crowd sprang a young man, who held in one hand a knife. From Miss Lewis he grabed the bag she was carrying and then seizing Miss Matthews by the fingers, he drew his knife across her knuckles cutting a deep gash. The young woman shrieked and her assailant, brandishing his knife in the faces of those who sprang to the rescue, dashed west along Houston street. After a long chase he was captured, but did not surrender until beaten into subjection by policemen. The general impression was that an attempt had been made to murder the girl and had it not been for the policeman he would fared badly. The officer had to fight off his pursuers and at the same time prevent the prisoner from stabbing him with the knife which he used on Miss Matthews. With much difficulty Goodman was taken to the station, where he said he intended to cut off the girl's hand for the rings.

PEOPLE POOR IN PHILIPPINES.

Agricultural Depression Is Favorable to Rise of Ladronism.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The annual report of the Philippine commission and a separate report by Governor W. H. Taft, made public at the war department yesterday, gives a review of the results of the year's work of the commission and contains recommendations for legislative action by congress deemed essential to the welfare of the islands.

Governor Taft in his report says it has not been definitely determined what shall be done with respect to Mindanao where, he says, hostility to Americans does not extend beyond the Lake Lanao Moros. The Moros, he says, do not understand popular government and do not desire it, preferring control by the dattos. "Possibly far in the future," says the report, "control by dattos may cease. For the present, however, it is necessary only to provide a paternal, strong but sympathetic government for these followers of Mohammed."

Governor Taft tells of the conditions that have made it necessary for the islands to purchase about $15,000,000 worth of food on which to live, and of the effects war has had upon agriculture, almost the only resource of wealth in the islands. The greatest blow to agriculture, he says, is the destruction of about 90 per cent of the carabao, or water buffalo, on which the cultivation of rice is almost wholly dependent.

After speaking of the ravages of Asiatic cholera, Governor Taft says: "The bane of Philippine civilization in the past was ladronism and the present conditions are most favorable for its growth and maintenance. It is not certain whether in the depressed state of agriculture, with the temptations to ladronism, that the constabulary will be able without the assistance of the military to stamp it out. Were there temptations to agriculture, were prosperous conditions in the country, it would not be a troublesome matter to deal with; but when want and famine are staring people in the face, the life of the free booter forms to the desperate and the weak a very great attraction. The natural discontent with the government when suffering is at hand, promoted as it is by cholera restrictions and the high prices of rice and other commodities which have been greatly enhanced by the depreciation of silver, might well cause a new breaking out of the insurrection and in my judgment it speaks wonders for the ease with which this country may be governed in normal times that we have comparatively so little disorder since the surrender of the insurgent arms in April."

Since the civil government was completely established in the Philippine provinces throughout the archipelago in July of last year, the governor says an American soldier has not been called on once to fire a gun, the country having been policed by the constabulary, a force of 5,000 or 6,000 men.

"It may be," says Governor Taft, "that as the conditions grow worse—for they are likely to do so before they grow better—it will be necessary in a province like Cavite, where ladronism seems inbred in the people, to proclaim martial law and even to call in the military finally to suppress it, but it is still hoped this may be avoided."

SULTAN WINS BY COUP.

Brings Brother to Fetz, Thus Sorely Discrediting Pretender.

Tangier, Morocco, Jan. 5.—According to official news received here from Fez the adroit movement of the sultan in bringing his brother Mulai Mohammed to the capital has attained the desired object of depriving the pretender to the throne of his prestige, and the latter has retired, discredited, to Taza. He has been deserted by a number of the local tribes, who dispersed to make sure of their booty.

Buhamara, the pretender, having claimed the intention of enthroning Mulai Mohammed, his rebellion has no longer any reason to continue, as the sultan has publicly reconciled himself with his brother and Mulai Mohammed has made a solemn entry into Fez acclaimed by the populace.

The sultan has announced the appointment of Mulai Mohammed as governor of the province of Fez, thus disproving the rumors that Mulai Mohammed aspired to the throne. When this had been done, according to the official authority for these statements, the tribes around Fez swore fidelity to the sultan and denounced Buhamara as an imposter whom they would prevent from coming to Fez.

All immediate danger disappeared. The routes from Fez to the coast are open. It is said the sultan is now preparing a large expedition with the intention of crushing the rebellion.

Advices received here from Fez, under date of December 29, are to the effect that the members of the Haina tribe, who were fighting for the pretender, have declared their allegiance to the sultan. Twenty thousand troops have reached Fez from the Sus district. The sultan has placed his brother Mulai Mohammed in command of the expedition against Buhamara.

MAYOR OF SAN JUAN ARRESTED.

He and Others Are Accused of Peculiarities of Public Funds.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Jan. 5.—The mayor of this city, Manuel Egozzue, has been arrested and is held in $5,000 bail on the charge made by Insular Official Inspector Holst, of destroying the records of the city water receipts, which constituted the only evidence of talleged extensive peculations and embezzlement.

The alleged charges against the mayor were originally made in October in a petition of citizens which was presented to the governor and which asked for prosecution of the mayor. The editor of the News, which published the text of the petition, was arrested October 23 on the complaint of the mayor on a charge of libel. This arrest caused considerable excitement, which ended in the shooting of two men. Since then three other officials have been arrested and are being prosecuted for alleged shortage in their acounts and for embezzlements. The peculations are said to range from $8,000 to $43,000 and misappropriations of other funds are also alleged.

The arrest of the mayor led to great excitement. Mobs congregated in the plaza and streets and surrounded the office of Lawyer Acuna, who had undertaken the defense of a former city official named Rivera, who turned state's evidence. Shots were fired, but no persons sustained serious injury.

Dr. Spooner said "Let there be light," so accordingly he purchased a gas lamp which he has had put up in front of his residence property. Gas light is much better than electricity and a whole lot cheaper

A very pleasant social event occured at the home Henry Yohnke on Friday evening. About 25 young people were in attendance and the evening was most pleasantly whiled away in games and other forms of social recreation. During the evening very toothsome refreshments were served. The Chicago Weekly Inter-Ocean is the only weekly newspaper published in Chicago in connection with the great daily papers. It contains a judiciously selected summary of the news of the nation and world, the best stories, home, farm, women's, and other special departments, and fair, patriotic, able editorials, written from a Republican view point. It is by far the best general newspaper of the western states. The regular price for the Weekly Inter Ocean is $1.00 and for the TIES $1.00, but subscriptions will be received at this office for the two papers in combination for one year for only $1.45.

The Court House Petition.

The rustling business men of Garner are now before the voters of our county asking that the proposition to re-locate the county seat at Garner, be submitted to the Board of Supervisors. Of course Britt will circulate a remonstrance and in order to get signers will no doubt make some very rash promises, but to the intelligent voter and tax payer the real article appeals to his good judgment far more than a possibility, and the fact that Garner has a court house which has cost the tax-payer (other than those public spirited Garnerites) nothing while Britt promises to build one, but puts up no coin, will make the victory for the petition comparatively easy

No voter should "cut off his nose to spite his face," and because he has a grudge against some Garner party refuse to sign the petition. for it means much to the tax-payer who will in the end, if the court house is ever located at Britt, have to pay for the erection thereof. Sign the petition, and when the remonstrance is presented to you for your signature, turn it down and show to the people of the county that you are not two-faced and that you appreciate what the business men of Garner have done for the tax-payers of the county.

The youngest brother of F. Ufken met with quite a serious and painful accident on last Saturday evening. In some manner while wrestling with his brother he broke his right limb just above the ankle. Dr Spooner was called, dressed the wound and he is now getting along nicely.

Klemme supplied the Chicago market with live atock on Tuesday. On that day seven cars of stock were shipped from here among the shippers being Herman and Julius Priebe, W. R. Bloom, Aug. Lau, Henry Theiman, Fred Haupt, Chas. Krouse and Ben Swalve. Some very fine stock was among the bunch. Oh, it's Klemme against the world when it comes to business.

The annual meeting of the directors of the Klemme Creamery Co. took place in the creamery on Friday. After the regular routine of business the officers for the ensuing year were chosen. and are as follows:

President, D. Webner; Vice Pres. Aug. Katter; Secretary, Louis Sampson; Treasurer, H. A. Sweigard The directors for the year are H. F. Ludeke, Aug. Barz,, John Neuberger, Fred Ax and Fred Bock. Myron Haskins was retained as butter maker for another year with a neat advance in salary of $110. That Mr. Haskins has given universal satisfaction is shown by the advance in salary. Everything is always in ship-shape around the creamery and his butter ranks high in the city market. He is a very pleasant gentleman and has treated the patrons of the creamery with such respect and courtesy that he is much admired by them all. This selection by the executive board as well as the balance of the appointments was indeed wise.

KLEMME, IOWA.

On Sunday night about 11:00 o'clock the fire bell rang, and a large number of our citizens rushed to the school house which was supposed to be on fire, but fortunately it proved to be only the burning out of the chimney The fire company responded promptly to the fire alarm, and had there have been a fire would undoubtedly have extinguished it efore serious damage was done. Klemme certainly has a very good fire company, and is quite well equipped for the fighting of a conflagration.

EDITOR A MAN OF RESOURCES.

Oklahoma Journalist Rose Grandly to the Situation.

Senator Burnham of New Hampshire, who does not wear a full beard, had a rare experience with one of the progressive weekly journals of Oklahoma during his recent Southwestern trip. It was in Woodward county, and the editor was apparently short on photographs of the distinguished members of the subcommittee on territories. Nevertheless, he had plenty of patent medicine pictures, and from the assortment did the best he could to show his readers what kind of looking Senators they had in their midst. For Mr. Burnham he guessed badly, having selected a statesman of long, flowing beard.

To make good, the territorial editor wrote an article around the picture, just as though he had seen them and talked at great length about statehood with them. Of the New Hampshire Senator he said in part:

"Just here Col. Wiggins clapped old man Burnham on the back and asked him if they had anything in old New Hampshire bigger than Woodward county. The Senator studied a few minutes, combed out his oiled whiskers, bit off the end of a cigar, and drawled:

"'Well, there are the White mountains; they are chock-full of granite, and will furnish more tombstones than will ever be needed in Oklahoma.'"—Washington Post.

HER IDEA OF A BARGAIN.

Whole Case of Consumption Cure for Nineteen Cents.

There is a little woman whose bargain-hunting instincts are so highly developed that she couldn't pass a marked down sale without going in any more than a child could pass a human Santa Claus without stopping to watch his antics. Every time she buys anything she doesn't want and brings it home to her stricken husband she declares that it was "just like picking up ten dollars." Last week she came home with a bottle of patent medicine.

"What is it?" asked her husband, resignedly. He knows it is always better to ask "What is it?"

"Consumption cure!" she announced triumphantly, holding up the bottle to the light. "Isn't it a pretty color?"

"But who the devil's got consumption around here?" asked the husband, brutally.

The wife opened her eyes.

"Why, James," she remarked coldly, "I'm surprised at you! It was just like picking up hundreds of dollars. It just cost 19 cents! A whole case of consumption cure for 19 cents! Aren't you broad-minded enough to see the bargain." And hugging the consumption cure close to her heart as though it were an abused poodle she huffed out of the room.—New York Press.

Phonology New Art.

Persons who are interested in phrenology, graphology, chiromancy or astrology will be glad to learn that a new predictive art has been invented. It is known as phonology, and it is based on the assumption that the character of every person can be learned from his voice.

A voice which is clear and melodious, we are told, invariably indicates frankness, honesty and strength of character, whereas a voice which is gruff and husky is always an indication of ill temper and other undesirable qualities.

It naturally follows that a soft and sweet voice is an index of loving kindness and philanthropy, though it is hardly so clear why a shrill, squeaky voice should generally indicate a discontented and suspicious nature.

Marriage Custom.

At Cardiff each Mayor has to award a marriage dowry to a domestic servant, who, having been in her situation for at least eight years, wishes to marry. She has to declare that the money will be of use to her, and has to possess an excellent character. The money itself is the interest of a gift of £1,000 by the Marquis of Bute himself a former Mayor of the town Last year the interest amounted to £28—surely a nice present for a servant about to marry. When the Mayor is presenting the gift to the intending bride, she must be accompanied by the intending bridegroom, and his Worship has to read a passage from the Gospel appropriate to the occasion and to deliver a short sermon to the two on the solemnity of matrimony.

A Unique Phenomenon.

"An' you says, Brer Eph'm," said the convert, thoughtfully, "dat ah kain' cuss nor sw'ar none after I's been bap tize'?"

"De Bible says no, Brer Saul."

"Nor say 'Good Lor',' nor one o' den t'ings?"

"Not unless you's in meetin', Brer Saul."

The Whaler's Fine Voyage.

"That reminds me," said Congressman Littlefield of Maine, "of a story they tell on an old whaler of New Bedford. He was gone for a two years' cruise after whales in the South Atlantic. Finally one day the ship was seen coming up the bay, and the owner rushed down to the pier to be the first to greet the Captain and ascertain the result of his venture.

"How many whales did you get?" shouted the owner.

"Narry a whale," was the reply, "but we had an awful fine sail."—Philadelphia Press.

NO GRATITUDE IN TRAMPS.

Philanthropist Ruined by His Efforts to Aid Them.

Ingratitude on the part of those whom he wished to aid has served to discourage Thomas Terradel, who lives near Trenton, N. J., and who has lost a fortune in his attempt to conduct a home for tramps. Terradel is known to hoboes from one end of the country to the other as "Glad Hand Tom." He was a locomotive driver on a railroad in the west when the notion first came to him to establish an institution for the exclusive use of tramps. He had made a fortune left him, and after doing evangelistic work for years, he built "Terradelphia," near Trenton, at a cost of $100,000.

Terradelphia was a mammoth structure, containing several hundred rooms. The ground floor was devoted to plants for the manufacture of brooms, brushes and a kindling establishment. Terradel operated the establishment for a year, but was forced to evacuate two years ago, having incurred an indebtedness of over $80,000. The privileges he offered tramps were abused and the industrial end proved to be the least favorite place in the institution. For two years Terradel has made an heroic effort to rehabilitate himself and has gathered about $5,000, which he hopes to put into a similar enterprise which he has started and which will, he expects, prove successful.

THE LAWS AGAINST KISSING.

Anti-Osculating Statutes Are Not a New Idea.

The proposed American statute for the abolition of kissing and a fine of $25 for each indulgence in unhygienic osculation is not new. The old Puritan blue laws of Massachusetts forbade the exchange of kisses in public as a breach of good behavior. This law has never been repealed, and not very long ago there was much amusement and some indignation in Boston at the arrest of a prominent citizen for kissing his wife on the street. Milan has a similar ordinance against kissing or other amatory demonstrations in public places. It dates from the time of the Sforzas, and only a short time ago a pair of perfectly respectable lovers were haled before a magistrate for kissing each other in the park. He ruled that though a kiss under such circumstances was not immoral, it was inconsistent with the decorum of civilization, and inflicted a fine of 12s. A similar law imposed in England on bank holidays would make the income tax a superfluity—if the fines were paid!—London Chronicle.

Reaping Machines in Syria.

Reaping machines were employed this year for the first time by native farmers of Syria. These pioneers all came from Chicago. Eleven were working during the late harvest in Coele-Syria and twenty-six in the plain of Esdraelon. Also, for the first time in the history of this country, the present year has witnessed the introduction and operation in Syria of a steam threshing outfit. It came from Richmond, Ind., and caused considerable stir in Coele-Syria, where it was installed. Its success was complete, even to the bruising of the straw—a most important item, since, in the absence of hay and with the sparing use of oats, barley and other grains, crushed straw, in these parts, constitutes the staple food for stock. Furthermore, for the first time in the annals of Syria, an oil-motor flour mill has been successfully started in this land; it came from Indianapolis, and is now grinding wheat in Lebanon.—Consular report.

How a Woman Handles an "Ad."

A woman comes into a newspaper office, comments on the condition of the weather, removes her gloves, raises her veil, gets out her $4 lace handkerchief, digs into her chatteline bag and brings out a little scrap of paper, upon which is written a simple advertisement for a hired girl. She then inquires the price, which is to run at the head of the want column 213 days in the year, asks for the best location possible, expresses a hope that she will get a good girl this time, puts her gloves back on, and, picking up her skirt, says: "Well, I guess that's all, and departs, leaving her handkerchief on the counter. When she trots her 10-year-old boy on the errand he dashes in, drops a quarter and a slip of paper on the counter, says, "Mom wants this in the paper," and is gone, after having slammed the door. But he has transacted the same business.—Atchison Globe.

Excusable Profanity.

Rear Admiral Melville addressed the Engineering society of Columbia university on Arctic experiences last week, and for nearly three hours kept his audience deeply interested, many of his hearers being women. In telling what happened at the wreck of the Janette he said that at one time he was afraid of being swamped and that made him swear. "So I turned," said he, "and yelled, G— d—n it, I must run for it or swamp.' It made me swear, ladies and gentlemen." For a moment everybody was startled, but a round of applause soon testified to an understanding that the sailor was merely realistic and not profane in the ordinary way.

USES OF THE FLAG.

Small Boy Tells Why It Was Placed on the Wall.

During the campaign preceding the last municipal election a prominent speaker for the Union party had occasion to refer to the campaign button worn by the followers of the Quay party.

The small tokens of loyalty to Quay, it will be remembered, bore the red white and blue stripes of the American flag, and the speaker demonstrated his attitude towards thus using the colors by relating the following story:

A district school was paid an official visit by the Board of Education. The occasion was made memorable by appropriate decorations, including the American flag, which was placed over the wall in such a manner as to cover an unsightly spot, caused by rain leaking through the roof and running down the side. After the Board of Education had listened to the recitations for some time, one of the Directors questioned a small boy as to the significance of the flag.

"What does that flag represent?" asked the Director.

"Liberty, independence and civilization," answered the boy.

"And why is the flag placed upon the wall?" again asked the Director.

The small boy promptly replied: "To cover the dirt."—Philadelphia Ledger.

HISTORIC HOUSE IN CAPITAL.

Famous Old Colonial Mansion Is to Be Preserved.

The Octagon House, at New York avenue and Eighteenth street, will soon become the property of the American Institute of Architects. This organization has a five-year lease on the property and as Washington has been made its permanent headquarters, the members have decided to purchase the building. Edward D. Tayloe and Mary Lomax Tayloe of Norfolk, Va., are the owners of the house, and have entered into a contract to sell it to the architects for $30,000. Col. John Tayloe began the erection of the famous old Colonial mansion in 1798, and completed it two years later. It is considered one of the finest specimens of Colonial architecture in the country, and has always been especially admired by architects. Col. John Tayloe used it as his town residence for many years. When the White House was fired by the British, President Madison occupied the Tayloe mansion for a short time, and it was there that he signed the treaty of Ghent. The house has always been owned by members of the Taloe family. It is of red brick trimmed with red sandstone, and was planned by Dr. William Thornton, who designed the Capitol and many other buildings in Washington.—Washington Post.

Ravenous Horde of Fishes.

Prof. C. F. Holder writes: "Several years ago I witnessed a sudden run of dogfish—a small shark—on the New England coast In the morning the men were cod-fishing on the banks, but suddenly the dogfish 'set in.' They came in countless thousands, destroying the fishing, a ravenous horde, fairly filling the water and eating even jelly fishes to satisfy their hunger. No sooner did a bait strike the water than several rushed at it and the boat near me had the sail, which was dragging overboard, torn in pieces by them. The fishermen immediately changed their tackle and began fishing for dogfish for the livers, which were valued at a cent apiece, soon filling their boat. As the fish were hauled in they uttered loud croaks sounding like 'r-o-l-k, r-o-l-k,' and this was heard from scores of snapping mouths in concert. It seemed to require no little effort to produce a sound and it may have been, in all probability was, the accompaniment of a convulsive gasping for breath."

What a Blind Man Saw.

The passing of Chaplain Milburn removes a picturesque figure from Congress. The "blind chaplain," as he was known throughout Washington has made his personality felt on both sides of the Atlantic. An American who was spending a summer wandering idly through London describes his astonishment at entering a chapel in Holloway road and seeing Chaplain Milburn in the pulpit. The sight of the familiar face and figure was a joyful one," said the American, in telling the story. "But I think my greatest surprise was when I listened to the subject of his talk. 'What I Saw in England.' I had been doing England in a half-thorough fashion myself, but it was a revelation to learn what this blind man had 'seen' in England and even the natives were astonished."

A Modern William Tell.

M. Falconnier of the Comedie Francaise, is an impassioned votary of small arms target shooting and, as the result of years of practice under methods of mathematical precision can do anything that is worth doing with a rifle or pistol. His great feat is to shoot an apple from the head of one of his dramatic pupils—a young lady named Mlle. Mira Cetti, at ten, thirteen and twenty yards. Mlle. Cetti is herself a rising artist of the Renaissance, and has absolute faith in her old professor.

Prospects.

A young lady who made some purchases in one of Philadelphia's leading department stores recently, inquired of the clerk whether any reduction was made to ministers.

"Always," was the reply; "are you a minister's wife?"

"Oh, no; I am not married," said the lady, blushing.

"Daughter, then?"

"No."

The clerk looked puzzled.

"I am engaged to a theological student."

GOVERNOR CALLS FOR IDEAS.

Suggestions for Statue to Represent State at 1904 Exposition, Wanted.

Des Moines, Jan. 12.—Governor Cummins is anxious to have suggestions for an allegorical statue representing Iowa to be used at the St Louis exposition. The governor received a letter from ex-Governor Francis of St. Louis, head of the exposition management, giving details as to the figure. According to his letter plans have been made for a colonnade and terrace flanking cascades on Art hill on the exposition grounds. It is proposed to place between the columns of the colonnades allegorical statues representing the twelve states and territories carved out of the Louisiana purchase. Governor Francis asks Governor Cummins to suggest the spirit which in his opinion the statue of Iowa should embody.

The statues will be single figures, fourteen feet high, on pedestals eight feet high. The cost of modeling will be paid by the exposition management, and the most noted sculptors of the country will be employed. Governor Francis says it is hoped each state will have a bronze or marble figure, to be permanent, and to be a monument to coming generations, and that The cost will be about $1,000, including the pedestal, for each figure If the states do not appropriate, then the exposition management will cause temporary plaster figures to be installed.

It is the supposition at the governor's office that if the state should raise an appropriation next winter and cause a suitable statue to be provided, that the state would retain the ownership of it and that it would eventually be brought back to the state capitol. However, what the governor is especially interested in is in securing a suitable figure for Iowa, and he said he hoped that all interested in seeing Iowa hold a high place at the exposition would help in selecting a suitable idea for the figure to represent Iowa.

CANNOT COLLECT MULCT.

Judge McHenry Holds Law To Be Unconstitutional.

Des Moines, Jan. 8.—Judge W. H McHenry of the Polk county district court has declared the law authorizing the assessor to levy the mulct tax against property holders whose properties are used for the sale of intoxicating liquors, to be unconstitutional for the reason that insufficient notice of such assessment is given the property holder. In the case of Wilson vs. McKay, action brought to restrain the county treasurer from entering upon the mulct tax book the quarterly installment of mulct taxes against plaintiff's property, Judge McHenry issued a permanent injunction this morning notice of which was served on the Polk county board of supervisors now in session.

Although there is a large number of such claims in the hands of the board involving several hundred dollars it was decided this morning not to appeal nor to press the claims for other like taxes.

The case in controversy was brought by the plaintiff to enjoin the treasurer from enforcing the collection on the general grounds that the law was unconstitutional in that it did not provide sufficient notice to be served on the property holder and that it was taking private property without the process of law.

The decision of Judge McHenry does not affect the new law and applies to "joints," "holes in the wall," etc. For instance if the assessor levy a quarterly tax against a property without first giving such property owner notice that he intends doing so, the act is unconstitutional and the tax according to the court, cannot be collected.

LIGHT ON PHILLIPS' PAST.

Albert City Murderer Served Ten Years in Michigan Penitentiary.

Sioux City, Jan. 10.—Albert Phillips, the negro, who with Lewis Brooks was sentenced to be hanged for the murder in connection with the Greenville bank robbery, has been identified as a negro who served ten years in Michigan penitentiary for burglary. He was sent up from Eaton county, Michigan, May 2, 1891, under the name of Arthur M. Lawrence, alias Fred Curtis.

Phillips and Brooks are now having the second trial at Storm Lake for the murder. Up to this time Phillips' past has been a deep mystery. He has been reticent to the greatest degree. While confined in the Anamosa penitentiary prior to the decision of the supreme court, which reversed the district court verdict of murder in the first degree, Phillips has attracted a great deal of attention because of his unusual literary ability. Poems of more than ordinary merit have come from his pen.

BANK ROBBERS FOILED.

Attempt to Burglarize Bank of Pisgah Frustrated by Assistant Cashier.

Pisgah, Jan. 8.—At 2:30 yesterday morning robbers had gained entrance to the bank building of the Bank of Pisgah, when the assistant cashier who happened to be sleeping in the building, was awakened. He ran into the banking room with an old revolver in his hand and attempted to fire at the man who was on the inside. The gun missed fire and the burglar escaped to the outside, where a confederate was waiting with horses. They escaped, not, however, before a volley of shots had been sent after them. They are supposed to have learned that an uncommonly large amount of money was in the building for the night.

Pulling of Tooth May Cost Life.

Sioux City, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Helen Friedl is bleeding to death as a result of so insignificant an operation as having a tooth pulled.

Two weeks ago she had one of her molars extracted by a local dentist. The pulling of the tooth was followed by a great hemorrhage of the gums, which was stopped only with great difficulty. These hemorrhages have returned a number of times in the last two weeks, and the loss of blood has so weakened the patient that her life is despaired of. She has almost lost her senses. She can now hear and see only with great difficulty.

THOUSAND ARE IN KEEN DISTRESS

Death and Suffering Little Short of Appalling As Result of Coal Famine.

CHICAGO IN BAD CONDITION

Enormous Increase in Number of Deaths Reported by Authorities—Trainloads of Coal Are Near the City, But Are Held From the Market.

Chicago, Ill., Jan 12.—A severe blizzard and coal famine has brought keen distress to thousands of families in Chicago. Zero weather is likely to continue for several days. The consequences in death and suffering are little short of appalling. The efforts of the state and city authorities and a special grand jury have been ineffective in relieving the fuel shortage, notwithstanding the fact that miles and miles of cars loaded with coal and billed for Chicago line the tracks of several railroads within an hour's haul of the city. Some idea of the situation may be gained from the following bulletin issued yesterday by the health department:

"Fully 1 per cent, or nearly 200,000 residents of Chicago are today suffering from ailments of a severe character caused by privation and exposure resulting from the coal famine. Already these ailments are reflected in the enormous increase of deaths among those at the extremes of life—the young and the aged, in both of whom the powers of vital resistance are at the lowest. Since the first of the year there has been an increase of nearly 20 (19.2) per cent in the number of deaths among those under 5 years of age over the number in the corresponding period of last year, when this death rate was about normal. Among those over 60 years of age the increase is much greater—24 per cent last week over the week previous, and 36.7 per cent over the normal rate of the corresponding period of 1902."

The actual search for evidence of a combine of coal dealers for the purpose of forcing up the price of fuel will be undertaken tomorrow by the special grand jury, which began its task Saturday, under direction of States Attorney Deneen and Attorney Deneen and Attorney General Hamlin. Twenty-five coal men, some the heads of wholesale firms and others chiefs in the councils of corporations operating mines, are under summons to appear and tell what they know of the "ring" which the members of the Illinois Manufacturers' association charge exists.

The grand jury has planned a strenuous campaign. Coal men will be asked to explain just what are the aims and objects of the Illinois Coal Operators' association, and why the long trains of coal cars which are strung upon the railroad tracks just outside the city limits, are not being ordered into the city and emptied without delay.

MAY CALL EXTRA SESSION.

Unless Just Legislation Is Enacted President Will Act.

Washington, D. C. Jan. 12.—Indications point to an extra session of congress, to be called not later than April 1. In only one way may this be avoided; that is by ratification of the Cuban treaty and the passage of adequate trust legislation. This is not speculation, nor rumor. It is the plainly expressed determination of President Roosevelt, uttered in so many words. The president made a statement Saturday to this effect. It was not intended as a threat, but simply following out his duty as chief executive and leader of party. No personal feeling is involved. The party platform declares distinctly for both propositions. In the opinion of the president these pledges mean something. If congress fails to pass these measures before the close of the session the president says ample time will be afforded this summer and spring to devote to these propositions exclusively. There are no "if's" or 'and's" about it. The Cuban treaty must be ratified and strong anti-trust law created, or an extra session will be called.

It is said this programme will have no effect whatever upon the senate. It will stand up and face the music and ignore the apparent consequences. The feeling tonight is that the chance for the ratification of the Cuban treaty at this session is very slim, with trust legislation in the same category.

EUROPEANS DESERT FEZ.

Foreign Consuls Will Follow—Departure of Missionaries Long Contemplated.

London, Jan. 13.—A dispatch to the Daily Express from Tangier, Morocco, says all the Europeans of Fez have now left that place and that the foreign consuls there will follow immediately.

Tangier, Morocco, Jan. 13.—The departure of the five women missionaries, four of whom are English and one American from Fez on January 8 for Tangier, had long been meditated and was not an outcome of new developments.

Many sensational reports are current here of affairs in Fez, but there is little reliable news to be had. It is considered a satisfactory feature, however, that the tribes to the south of Fez are remaining quiet.

Seven Jews have been murdered in the Haina region.

The sultan is reported to be suspicious of the movements of his brother, Mulai Mohammed. His majesty keeps the loyal horsemen from the south around his person instead of sending them against the rebels.

Heavy rains now threaten to interrupt communication with the interior of the country at an interesting moment.

London, Jan. 13.—A dispatch to the Morning Leader from Tangier, dated Saturday, says the sultan has left Fez with his army and is awaiting the rebels at the Zelu river. His uncle Mulai Arafa, has arrived at Tangier and is seeking to raise money for the sultan. The imperial troops are badly armed and unreliable, continues the correspondent, while the rebel soldiers are well organized and better armed.

Robbers Taught a Lesson.

Eagle, Wis., Jan. 8.—As a result of an encounter early yesterday between a posse of citizens and four burglars who had robbed a livery stable, one robber was shot, probably fatally. Two of four were captured, but the other two escaped to the woods. One of the captured men had on his person two bottles of nitro-glycerine and a complete set of burglar tools and two revolvers.

A ROMANCE OF NEW YORK

By AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "Friend Olivia," "I, Thou and the Other One," Etc.

Copyright, 1896, by Dodd, Mead and Company.

There was something so frank and persuasive about the elegant stranger that Joris could not refuse the courtesy she asked for herself and her nephew. And, having yielded, he yielded with entire truth and confidence.

Elder Semple was greatly pleased at his friend's complaisance. He gave Joris full credit for his victory over his national prejudice, and he did his very best to make the concession a pleasant event. In this effort he was greatly assisted by Mrs. Gordon. She set herself to charm Van Heemskirk, as she had set herself to charm Madam Van Heemskirk on her previous visit, and she succeeded so well, that when "Sir Roger de Coverley" was called Joris rose, offered her his hand and to the delight of every one present, led the dance with her.

It was a little triumph for the elder. Indeed he was so interested in listening to the clever way in which "the bonnie woman flattered Van Heemskirk" that he was quite oblivious of the gathering wrath in his son's face, and the watchful gloom in Bram's eyes, as the two men stood together, jealously observant of Capt. Hyde's attentions to Katherine. Without any words spoken on the subject, there was an understood compact between them to guard the girl from any private conversation with him; and yet two men with hearts full of suspicion and jealousy were not a match for one man with a heart full of love. In a moment, in the interchange of their hands in a dance, Katherine clasped tightly a little note, and unobserved hid it behind the rose at her breast. The loving girl thought it no wrong to put it there; she even hoped that some kind of blessing or sanction might come through such sacred keeping, and she went to sleep whispering to herself:

"Happy I am. Me he loves; me he loves; me only he loves; me forever he loves!"

CHAPTER V.

The Beginning of Strife.

"My dear Dick, I am exceedingly concerned to find you in such a taking—moping about a Dutch schoolgirl! Pshaw! I had a much better opinion of you."

"I know I love her beyond everything, and that I am likely so to love her all my life."

"Upon my word, Dick, love may live an age—if you don't marry it."

"Let me make you understand that I wish to marry it."

"Oh, indeed, sir! Then the church door stands open. Go in. I suppose the lady will oblige you so far."

"Pray, dear aunt, give me your advice. What is the first step to be taken?"

"Go and talk with her father. The girl you think worth asking for; but it is very necessary for you to know what fortune goes with her beauty."

"If her father refuses to give her to me—"

"That is not to be thought of. You come of a noble race. You are not far from the heritage of a great title and estate. If you ask for her fortune, you offer far above its equivalent, sir."

"Well, this suspense is intolerable, and not to be borne. I will go and end it. Give me your good wishes."

"I shall be impatient to hear the result."

At Van Heemskirk's store Capt. Hyde asked for the councillor and was taken to his office.

"Your servant, captain. Is there any thing I can oblige you in, sir?"

Joris asked the question because the manner of the young man struck him as uneasy and constrained; and he thought, "Perhaps he has come to borrow money." He was not, therefore astonished when Capt. Hyde answered:

"Sir, you can, indeed, oblige me, and that in a matter of the greatest moment."

"If money it be, captain, at once I may tell you, that I borrow not, and I lend not."

"Sir, it is not money—in particular."

"So?"

"It is your daughter, Katherine."

Then Joris stood up, and looked steadily at the suitor. His large, amiable face had become in a moment hard and stern; and the light in his eyes was like the cold, sharp light that falls from drawn steel.

"My daughter is not for you to name. Sir, it is a wrong to her, if you speak her name. Like to like, that is what I say. Your wife seek, captain, among your own women. My daughter is to another man promised."

"Look you, councillor, that would be monstrous. Your daughter loves me."

Joris turned white to the lips. "It is not the truth," he answered in a slow, husky voice.

"By the sun in heaven, it is truth! Ask her."

"Then a great scoundrel are you, unfit with honest men to talk. Ho! Yes, your sword pull from its scabbard. Strike. To the heart, strike me. Less wicked would be the deed than the thing you have done,"

There was something very impressive in the angry sorrow of Joris. Yet Hyde persevered in his solicitation.

"Do but hear me, sir. I have done nothing contrary to the custom of people in my condition, and I assure you that with all my soul I love your daughter. No man can love her better."

"What say you? How, then, do I love her? I who carried her—mijn witte lammetje—in these arms before yet she could say to me, 'Fader!'" His wrath had been steadily growing, and suddenly striking the desk a ponderous blow with his closed hand, he said with an unmistakable passion, "My daughter you shall not have. God in heaven to himself take her ere such sorrow come to her and me!"

"Sir, you are very uncivil; but to be plain with you, I am determined to marry your daughter if I can compass the matter in any way. It is now, then, open war between us; and so, sir, your servant."

"Stay. To me listen. Not one guilder will I give to my daughter, if—"

"To the devil with your guilders! Dirty money made in dirty traffic—"

"You lie."

"Sir, you take an infamous advantage. You know, that, being Katherine's father, I will not challenge you."

"Christus!" roared Joris, "challenge me one hundred times. A fool I would be to answer you. Life my God gave to me. Well, then, only my God shall from me take it. See you these arms and hands? In them you will be as the child of one year. Ere beyond my reason you move me, go!" and he strode to the door and flung it open with a passion that made every one in the store straighten towards the two men.

White with rage, and with his hand upon his sword-hilt, Capt. Hyde stamped his way through the crowded store to the dusty street. Then it struck him that he had not asked the name of the man to whom Katherine was promised. He swore at himself for the omission. Whether he knew him or not, he was determined to fight him. Now he must see Katherine before her father had any opportunity to give any orders regarding him.

In the meantime Joris was suffering as only such deep natures can suffer. Capt. Hyde's proposal and his positive assertion that Katherine loved him, had fallen upon the father's heart with the force of a blow, and the terror of a shock.

After Hyde's departure, he shut the door of his office, walked to the window, and stood there some minutes, clasping and unclasping his large hands, like a man full of grief and perplexity. Ere long he remembered his friend Semple. This trouble concerned him also, for Capt. Hyde was in a manner his guest; and, if he were informed of the marriage arranged between Katherine and Neil Semple, he would doubtless feel himself bound in honor to retire.

Joris found Semple and in a few short, strong sentences, put the case before him.

"My certie! When girls are auld enough for a lover, they are a match for any gray head. I'm thankfu' man that I wasna' put in charge o' any o' them. I shall hae to speak my mind to Niel, and likewise to Col. Gordon; and you canna put off your duty to your daughter an hour longer. Dear me! To think, Joris, o' a man being able to sit wi' the councillors o' the nation, and yet no match for a lassie o' seventeen!"

As they walked homeward, the elder talked, and Joris pondered, not what was said, but the thoughts and purposes that were slowly forming in his own mind.

When the evening meal was over Joris rose, and laying his hand on Katherine's shoulder said, "There is something to talk about. Sit down, Lysbet; the door shut close, and listen to me."

It was impossible to mistake the stern purpose on her husband's face, and Lysbet silently obeyed the order.

"Katherine, Katrijntje, mijn kind, this afternoon there comes to the store the young man Capt. Hyde. To thy father he said many ill words. To him thou shalt never speak again. Thy promise give to me."

She sat silent, with dropped eyes, and cheeks as red as the pomegranate flower at her breast.

"Mijn kind, speak to me."

Weeping bitterly, she rose and went to her mother, and laid her head upon Lysbet's shoulder.

"Look now, Joris. One must know the 'why' and the 'wherefore.' What mean you? Whish, mijn kindje!"

"This I mean, Lysbet. No more meetings with the Englishman will I have. No love secrets will I bear. Danger is with them; yes, and sin, too.

"Mijn kindje, listen to me thy father. It is for thy happy life here, it is for thy eternal life, I speak to thee. This man for whom thou art weeping is not good for thee. Mijn beste kinje, do I love thee?"

"My father!"

"Do I love thee?"

"Yes, yes."

"Dost thou, then, love me?"

She put her arms round his neck, and laid her cheek against his, and kissed him many times.

"Wilt thou go away and leave me, and leave thy mother, in our old age? Katrijntje, my dear, dear child, what for me, and for thy mother, wilt thou do?"

"Thy wish—if I can."

Then he told her of the provision made for her future. He reminded her of Neil's long affection, and added, "To-morrow, about thy own house, I will take the first step. Near my house it shall be; and at the feast of St. Nicholas thou shalt be married. And money, plenty of money, I will give thee; and all that is proper thy mother and thee shall buy. But no more, no more at all, shalt thou see or speak to that bad man who has so beguiled thee. Wilt thou these things promise me? Me and thy mother?"

"Richard I must see once more. That is what I ask."

"Richard! So far is it? Well, then, I will as easy make it as I can. Once more, and for one hour, thou may see him. But I lay it on thee to tell him the truth, for this and for all other time."

"Now may I go? He is anigh. His boat I hear at the landing;" and she stood up, intent, hastening, with her fair head lifted, and her wet eyes fixed on the distance.

"Well, be it so. Go."

With the words she slipped from the room; and Joris called Baltu to bring him some hot coals, and began to fill his pipe. As the Virginia calmed and soothed him, the sweetness of his nature was at once in the ascendant; and he said, "Lysbet, come then, and talk with me about the child."

She turned the keys in her press slowly, and stood by it with them in her hand. "What has been told thee, Joris, to-day? And who has spoken? Tongues evil and envious, I am sure of that."

"Thou art wrong. The young man to me spoke himself. He said, 'I love your daughter. I want to marry her.'"

"Well, then, he did no wrong. And as for Katrijntje, it is in nature that a young girl should want a lover. It is in nature she should choose the one she likes best. That is what I say."

"Yes, it is in nature the child should want this handsome stranger; but with me thou wilt certainly say, 'He is not fit for thy happiness; he has not the true faith, he gambles, he fights duels, he is a waster, he lives badly, he will take thee far from thy own people and thy own home."

She drew close to him, and laid her arm across his broad shoulders; and he took his pipe from his lips, and turned his face to her. "Kind and wise art thou, my husband; and whatever is thy wish, that is my wish too."

"Right am I, and I know I am right. And I think that Neil Semple will be a very great person. On the judge's bench he will sit down yet."

"A good young man he may be, but he is a very bad lover; that is the truth. If a little less wise he could only be! A young girl likes some foolish talk. Little fond words, very strong they are. Thou thyself said them to me."

"That is right. To Neil I will talk a little. A man must seek a good wife with more heart than he seeks gold. Yes, yes; her price above rubies is."

At the very moment Joris made this remark, the elder was speaking for him. Neil was walking about the terrace, and he joined him.

"You are stepping in a vera majestic way, Neil; what's in your thoughts, I wonder?"

"I have a speech to make to-morrow, sir. My thoughts were on the law, which has a certain majesty of its own."

"You'd better be thinking o' a speech you ought to make to-night, if you care aboot saving yourself wi' Katherine Van Heemskirk. You hae a rival, sir. Capt. Hyde asked Van Heemskirk for his daughter this afternoon, and an earldom in prospect isna a poor bait. Tak' a word o' advice now. You are fond enough to plead for others, go and plead an hour for yourself.' Certie! When I was your age, I was aye noted for my persuading way. Your father, sir, never left a spare corner for a rival."

How Monkeys in India Were Made to Scatter.

A plague of monkeys recently sorely troubled the officials at a station on the Saran railway in northwest India. Trucks full of grain for export were often stored up in the station, and the monkeys came down in large numbers from a neighboring grove to help themselves to the grain, picking holes in the tarpaulin roof of the wagons. The officials were wearied out with keeping watch and scaring away the thieves, who daily grew bolder, till an ingenious guard hit upon a stratagem. For several days sweets and fruits were put on the roofs of the wagons, with the result that the whole of the monkey colony were attracted to the spot and soon became perfectly indifferent to man.

One morning when they were all busily feeding an engine was stealthily attached to the wagons, and suddenly the train moved off. The monkeys were quite scared, and made no attempt to escape, sitting crouched together till the train had gone several miles and stopped at the jungle. Then they wanted no hint to leave. Every monkey leapt down howling and fled into the jungle, whence they have never returned to trouble the railway.—Golden Penny.

Lawyer and Witness.

A certain Mr. H. was a sharp lawyer and invariably retained in criminal cases, where his peculiar abilities were deemed likely to benefit his client, writes a contributor to the Weekly Bouquet. Old Mrs. L., the widow of a small farmer, was remarkable for her plainness in speech and manner, and she was one of the cute sort. The old woman was an important witness for the prosecution in which H. defended the evil-doer. Her testimony bore hard upon the prisoner, and in the cross examination H. endeavered in vain to confuse or irritate her.

At length, turning abruptly to the witness, he exclaimed, "Madam, you have brass enough in your face to make a twelve-quart pail!"

"Yes," replied the witness, "and you have got sass enough in your head to fill it!"

The lawyer had done with that witness.

It Stopped the Gambling.

A good story is told of a certain colonel in connection with an inspection of a crack rifle corps which he commanded.

The inspection passed off satisfactorily; there were no complaints and the regiment was evidently in good order.

"But," said the inspecting general, "I am bound to tell you, colonel, that rumors have reached me of gambling being carried on extensively among your officers."

"That may have been the case, sir," said the colonel, "some months ago; but I can assure you that nothing of the kind is in vogue now, because I've won all the ready money in the regiment, and I would not allow any gambling on credit."

When Baron Haussman went to Constantinople on a visit to Abdul Aziz who was then sultan, he had an interview with the grand vizier, who did not know a word of French. At the beginning of the interview the old long Turkish pipes were brought in, and then Baron Haussman began making a very long speech in French. The grand vizier could not understand a word, but listened most attentively till he noticed that his pipe had gone out, and clapped his hand for a servant to come and relight it. Haussmann, thinking he was applauding, rushed toward him with outstretched hand, intending to shake hands and thank him. The grand vizier, seeing his hand put forth, shook it warmly, and said: "Good-by," under the impression it was Haussmann's intention to leave, and quitted the room.

CONSUMPTION

An ingenious method of milk adulteration is practiced in Athens. The residents have a penchant for goat's milk, and herds of these animals are led along the street by Greek milksellers wearing long blouses with capacious sleeves. Their cry of "Gala! Gala!" brings the housewife to the door, and she prudently demands that the goats shall be milked in her presence. This is done, but the milkman has in one hand the end of a thin tube which runs up his sleeve and connects with an india-rubber receptacle full of water, which is carried under his ample blouse. At each pressure of the fingers on the udder there is a corresponding compression of the water sack, and milk and water flow side by side into the milk pail.

In an article on Christian Science, in the December North American Review, Mark Twain comments on the story of a little Far Western girl, who, when she was flung over a pony's head and landed on a rock pile, saved herself from disaster by remembering to say, "God is All" while she was in the air. "I couldn't have done it," says Twain; "I shouldn't even have thought of it. I should have been too excited. Nothing but Christian Science could have enabled that child to do that calm and thoughtful and judicious thing in those circumstances. She came down on her head, and by all the rules she should have broken it; but the intervention of the formula prevented that, so the only claim resulting was a blackened eye. Monday morning it was still swollen and shut. At school 'it hurt pretty badly—that is, it seemed to.' So 'I was excused, and went down in the basement, and said: 'Now I am depending on mamma instead of God, and I will depend on God instead of mamma.' No doubt this would have answered; but, to make sure, she added Mrs. Eddy to the team, and recited 'the Scientific Statement of Being,' which is one of the principal incantations, I judge. Then 'I felt my eye opening.' Why, it would have opened an oyster. I think it is one of the touchingest things in child history, that plows little rat down cellar pumping away at the Scientific Statement of Being."

CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Senate—Senator Hoar made a notable speech in the senate today on his bill regulating trusts. His utterances were listened to with marked attention. He said that nearly all thoughtful men in this country are agreed that some legislation, state or national, ought to be had for the regulation and control of what are called "trusts" and of large masses of capital accumulated by corporations or artificial persons holding property and conducting business without individual liability. There was, he said, a general feeling of insecurity and alarm about the matter and we were dealing with a real peril and not with a fancy or imaginary danger. He argued that if his bill should become law and prove effective no corporation engaging in the commerce which is within the jurisdiction of congress can keep its condition a secret. The bill, he said, depends for its validity on the constitutional power of congress to regulate international and interstate commerce. Should the bill not prove effectual he contended that it would be easy to extend its operation by imposing a like personal liability on every stockholder. Senator Vest made an attack on protected industries through the operation of the Dingley law. Vest used as a text for his remarks his resolution introduced yesterday, instructing the committee on finance to prepare and report a bill removing the duty on coal. Feeble in the extreme and supporting himself on his desk, he called attention to the condition of distress which had arisen as a result of the shortage in the coal supply. There was breathless silence in the chamber as he spoke, and every senator on the floor turned in his direction in order to catch his words. He said that the question was no longer a personal one, but one of humanity and that we are not on the verge of a crisis, but actually in it. He charged the republican senators with being silent and dumb to the state of affairs having only in mind the party cry "stand pat." He characterized the Dingley tariff act as a "sacred elephant with which nothing was to be done." He sarcastically remarked that if the whole question was one of raising money for the next presidential campaign, that was the end of the discussion.

House.—The house today passed the bill for the creation of a general staff for the army by a vote of 153 to 52. By the terms of the bill it becomes the duty of the general staff to prepare plans for the national defense and for the mobilization of the army in time of war, to investigate and report on all questions affecting the efficiency of the service and to render professional aid to the secretary and to general officers and other superior commanders.

Washington Jan. 7.—Senate.—The senate discussed the bill for the reorganization of the militia and also the statehood bill. Mallory of Florida led the democratic senators in opposition to the section of the militia bill providing for a reserve force of trained men, the contention being that it not only infringed on the rights of the several states, but also increased the standing army by 100,000 men. When the statehood bill came up Beveridge had read a number of resolutions adopted at a recent convention in Oklahoma favoring single statehood with Indian Territory. Quay, who is leading the fight for the admission of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico, criticised the resolutions, saying the people who adopted them had not acted intelligently because the single statehood bill had been withdrawn. He further charged that they did not represent the sentiment of a majority of the people of Oklahoma.

House.—The session of the house lasted a little more than two hours. The senate bill for the redemption of the silver coinage of the Hawaiian islands and its recoinage into United States coin, was passed after an hour's debate.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Senate.—Today the senate again discussed the Vest resolution requesting the finance committee to report a bill removing the duty on anthracite coal, and Aldrich replied to some of the criticisms of Vest, made last Tuesday. Aldrich insisted that the resolution would not accomplish the result sought, and that it infringed the constitutional rights of the house in respect to revenue bills. Aldrich said that a democratic senate voted to put a duty of 40 cents on coal in 1894 and that they favored free coal except on the day when they could have free coal into the tariff bill. Vest in reply said that the 40 cent duty on coal was the result of a "hold-up" by a few democratic senators. To confirm his assertion that Dingley had made the statement that the Dingley rates were placed high in order to negotiate reciprocity treaties, Vest read from a letter addressed to him by the editor of the Philadelphia Bulletin in which the writer declared that Dingley made the statement to one of his Washington correspondents. Hale expressed his disbelief in the statement, and feelingly referred to Dingley's services to his state and country, and paid a high tribute to his character. The Dingley bill, he regarded as a "great, magnificent gift to the American people in the cause of protection and prosperity."

House.—The house today passed the Philippine constabulary bill as it was reported from the committee except for an amendment limiting the number of assistant chiefs to four.

Washington, Jan. 9.—House.—The military appropriation bill was reported. The house then went into committee of the whole to consider private pension bills. One hundred and forty-four bills were passed, none of especial importance. Russell, of Texas, criticised the house for undue haste in the consideration of private pension legislation and precipitated quite a debate. He called attention to the fact that since the civil war 10,000 special bills had been passed by congress, over 1,000 of these in the first session of the present congress. Replying, Lacy called attention to the fact that the cases before congress were cases in which the general pension laws could not give relief. The fact that only 10,000 bills had passed in forty years, he thought, was sufficient proof of the care and discrimination which had been exercised by congress.

EXCITEMENT IN BLACK HILLS.

The Finding of Rich Gold Ore Again Startles the Northwest.

Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 10.—Word reached Deadwood yesterday that the richest vein of gold ore ever found here was just struck in the Gladiator Mining company's property, containing large bunches of coarse gold. The Gladiator, a Des Monies company, is one of the largest and most successful operating in the Black Hills and a keen interest is being taken in this company's further operations, as they had already opened up the largest body of high grade flourine sylvanite ore known to the mining world.

Every old bank where the wild thyme grows pays interest on deposits.

TRAIN OF COAL STOPPED.

Desperate Citizens of Arcola, ..., Appropriate 16 Cars.

St. Louis, Jan. 12.—A special to the Republic from Arcola, Ill., says:

The coal famine, which has paralyzed business here for over a week, is broken. An Illinois Central coal train, consisting of 16 cars, bound for Chicago, stopped here Saturday and was immediately stopped by the citizens.

The Central company was notified that the coal would not be allowed to be moved out of town, and the local agent was offered the money for it. He telegraphed to headquarters and they refused to sell, whereupon the train was immediately confiscated.

Active in the party were the pastors of the Presbyterian and Free Methodist churches, the presidents of the banks and one policeman. Each load was weighed and strict account kept in hopes of making a settlement with the owners.

Great excitement prevailed.

When the train stopped a crowd of several hundred persons were seen about, clamoring for coal. A consultation was held, and S. L. Woodward, proprietor of the electric light plant, tendered the Illinois Central money for the coal on behalf of the people. This was refused. By this time the more desperate had climbed into the cars and were loading their wagons. Colonel J. R. Leggs, president of the First National bank, acted as marshal of the day, and endeavored to keep the wagons in line. Many influential citizens were prominent in the raid.

For some reason the local dealers have been unable to get coal for the last month, and fully one-half of the people in town were out of fuel. This condition made them desperate, and persons of all classes were glad to avail themselves of this opportunity and aided in the confiscation.

COURT HITS BOARD OF TRADE.

Sweeping Decision Sustaining Former Injunction.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The appellate court yesterdaay in a sweeping decision sustained the injunction issued by Justice Chytraus against eight board of trade members, charged with operating a "corner" and sustaining the contention against the "cornering of the market."

The court holds that under the laws of the state dealers cannot be forced to settle trades upon the basis of an artificial value created by the cornering of the market, and that margins deposited in banks or elsewhere are within the jurisdiction of the courts in that they effect the right of the property.

The decision draws a legal distinction between questions touching the disciplinary rights of the board in which the latter has repeatedly been held to be soverign, and questions of property rights, and holds that disputes between members involving finances can, if desired by either party, be submitted to the courts for decision.

The case of White, Thornburn & Co. against the board of trade was the principal suit on which the others were based and which resulted in the securing of an injunction against the board. This firm has sold oats for July delivery. The price advanced and it was claimed by the complainants that the market was cornered and that the settling price insisted upon was fictitious. An injunction was accordingly asked and granted, enjoining the payment of margins deposited in banks. The decision created a furor on the board at the time. It is said there are forty cases pending upon this decision of the appellate court.

MICHIGAN MEN OBJECT.

Are Not Satisfied With the Reciprocity Treaty as Now Arranged.

Washington, Jan. 12.—For three days representatives of the beet sugar industry of Michigan have been in conference in this city not only among thebselves, but also with the Michigan delegation in congress. Senator Burrows, who last spring opposed the Cuban legislation then pending, has been prominent in the conferences.

Senator Burrows had a long interview with President Roosevelt, during which, it is understood, he indicated to him that the Cuban reciprocity treaty now pending in the senate was not satisfactory to the sugar beet interests of his state, and that it was likely to encounter serious opposition unless it could be so amended as to provide that the concessions made to Cuba as to tariff rates should remain in force for five years. After mature consideration of the treaty the Michigan sugar producers had concluded that the treaty was open to objection in that it did not insure stability of tariff rates for any clearly specified period. What the producers confidently desire is stability of rates which would enable them to put additional capital in their industry and develop it further with some assurance of success.

The strong intimation is that unless an amendment can be made to the pending treaty, fixing the rates between this country and Cuba for five years, the Michigan congressional delegation will feel constrained to oppose ratification of the treaty. In this opposition, it is said, the Michigan congressmen will be joined by others representing sugar-producing states.

So far as known the president has not indicated what his attitude might be in regard to the proposition to amend the treaty.

LAST BARRIER REMOVED.

Venezuela Agrees to Terms and Case Will Be Arbitrated.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Confirmation was receeived here last night of the reports from Caracas to the effect that all barriers in the way of a settlement of the claims of Great Britain, Germany and Italy against Venezuela had been removed by the last named country yielding to the demands of the European allies. Minister Bowen, it was learned, would leave Venezuela either Saturday or Sunday and would come direct to the United States on one of our warships.

It is probable that the Dolphin will be used for this purpose. Minister Bowen will be clothed with authority to represent Venezuela as her commissioner for the adjustment of all claims out of hand without reference to The Hague tribunal, or if this be found impracticable, then he is authorized to act for Venezuela in settling all points open to controversy as far as possible, and of drafting the terms on which a final and conclusive arbitration shall be made by the international court at The Hague. The proceedings in which Minister Bowen will participate will take place at Washington, presumably a few days after his arrival in this city. The commissioners on the part of the allies, it is understood, will be their leading diplomatic representatives in Washington.

HEALTHY WOMEN

Praise Pe-ru-na as a Cure for Colds and a Preventive of Catarrh.

MRS. M. J. BRINK

FIRST STAGE OF CATARRH.

A Serious Mistake Which Thousands Are Making.

The first stage of catarrh is what is commonly known as "catching cold." It may be in the head, nose, throat or lungs. Its beginning is sometimes so severe as to cause a chill and considerable fever, or it may be so slight as to not hinder a person from his usual business. In perhaps a majority of cases little or no attention is paid to the first stage of catarrh, and hence it is that nearly one-half of the people have chronic catarrh in some form.

To neglect a cold is to invite chronic catarrh. As soon as any one discovers the first symptoms of catching cold he should at once begin the use of Peruna according to directions on the bottle, and the cold is sure to pass away without leaving any bad effects.

Unless this is done the cold is almost sure to end in the second stage of catarrh, which is making so many lives miserable. If Peruna was taken every time one has a cold or cough, chronic catarrh would be practically an unknown disease.

Miss Elizabeth Uber, No. 57 Bassett street, Albany, N. Y., writes:

"I have always dreaded unsettled weather because of my extreme liability to catch cold, when a catarrhal trouble would quickly develop through my entire system, which it would take weeks to drive away. I am thankful to say that since I have taken PERUNA I do not have any reason to dread this any more. If I have been at all exposed to the damp, wet or cold weather, I take a dose or two of PERUNA and it throws out any hint of sickness from my system."—Miss Elizabeth Uber.

Mrs. M. J. Brink, No. 820 Michigan avenue, St. Joseph, Mich., writes:

"This past winter during the wet and cold weather I caught a sudden and severe cold, which developed a catarrhal condition through my entire system, and so affected my general health that I was completely broken down, and became nervous and hysterical and unfit to supervise my home. My physician prescribed for me, but somehow his medicine did me no good. Reading of PERUNA I decided to try it. After I had taken but three bottles I found myself in fine health."—Mrs. M. J. Brink.

Sibyl A. Hadley, 26 Main street, Huntington, Ind., writes:

"Last winter after getting my feet wet I began to cough, which gradually grew worse until my throat was sore and raw. Ordinary remedies did not help me and cough remedies nauseated me. Reading an advertisement of what PERUNA could do I decided to try a bottle, and you can imagine how glad I felt when it began to relieve me in a very short time. In less than two weeks I was completely cured."—Sibyl A. Hadley.

MISS SARA McGAHAN.

Miss Sarah McGahan, No. 197 Third street, Albany, N. Y., writes:

"A few months ago I suffered with a severe attack of influenza, which nothing seemed to relieve. My hearing became bad, my eyes became irritated and feverish. Nothing seemed right and nothing I ate tasted good. I took PERUNA and within two weeks I was perfectly well."—Sarah McGahan.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be glad to give you his valuable advice gratis.

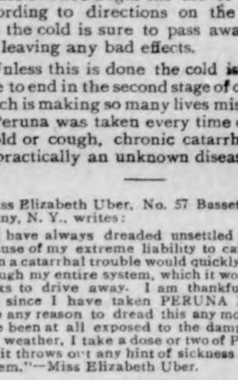
WEAK WOMEN.
CONSTIPATION STARTED YOUR SUFFERING, CURE IT AND YOUR AFFLICTION WILL VANISH.
Mull's Grape Tonic Cures Constipation.



When the bowels move irregularly the entire bodily system must suffer. Constipation more frequently occurs among women and it manifests itself in provoking profuse leucorrhea and other serious female diseases. Regular bowels will result in a complete cure when you use Mull's Grape Tonic. Unlike pills and ordinary cathartics, this remedy is a mild, gentle laxative in addition to being a greater flesh-builder, blood-maker and strength-giver than cod liver oil or any other preparation recommended for that purpose. Mull's Grape Tonic will permanently cure the most obstinate case of constipation, and the numerous afflictions that invariably follow in its wake. No matter if it is piles, liver complaint, kidney disorder, vertigo, palpitation of the heart, diarrhea or the self-poisoning which follows when the undigested food remains in the bowels where it putrefies and empties highly diseased germs into the blood, such as typhoid and malaria, Mull's Grape Tonic will positively cure. Large sample bottle will be sent free to any address on receipt of 10 cents to cover postage, by the Lightning Medicine Co., Rock Island, Ill. Send name of your druggist. All druggists sell Mull's Grape Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

The rural telephone lines are about completed, and about 40 farmers can now talk to one another. These lines can be connected to the local exchange and the patrons can get the markets on short notice.

An exchange says that the experiment of shipping coal by express has proven so satisfactory that some people are thinking of trying the registered mail. It may come to that in time, but first we had better try special delivery stamps.

Gruetzmacher Bros. contemplate building a machine shed on the ground just south of their store. They will begin building as soon as the barn which now stands upon the ground is removed. The size of the new building will be 30x48.

The regulation pounds of sunshine embodied in a jolly little lump of humanity of the masculine gender, took up his abode at the home of Rev. and Mrs Bowman on Wednesday. This is the first born hence there is much rejoicing at the parsonage.

The various papers are publishing lengthy articles on "How to Save Coal." These articles we consider unnecessary, for so long as we have no coal none will be wasted. A good sound editorial on how to get coal would be well received, however.

The local telephone exchange is being installed, and already a large number of phones have put into the different business places. By next week they hope to have this line completed and we hope to be able to give a complete list of those on the line. This is a very worthy enterprise, and deserves liberal patronage.

A surprise party was gotten up on Esther Lau on Tuesday evening, and unlike many such affairs was a genuine surprise. About 8:00 the guests began to gather in, and an evening of rare enjoyment was had. A large number of young people were in attendance, and the evening was whiled away in playing games, etc. During the evening delicious refreshments were served.

To get coal in our town the first of the week was an impossibility. However, W. R. Bloom received a car on Wednesday, and bills for about a dozen more cars have been received by our local dealers, and Klemme will have plenty of coal ere long.

The Chicago Weekly Inter-Ocean is the only weekly newspaper published in Chicago in connection with the great daily papers. It contains a judiciously selected summary of the news of the nation and world, the best stories, home, farm, women's, and other special departments, and fair, patriotic, able editorials, written from a Republican view point. It is by far the best general newspaper of the western states. The regular price for the Weekly Inter Ocean is $1.00 and for the TIES $1.00, but subscriptions will be received at this office for the two papers in combination for one year for only $1.45.

It's All Wrong

Under the caption "The Contest is On," last week's Britt News cries out that the court house proposition which is now before the people of the county is unfair because it petitions the board of supervisors to submit to a vote the proposition whether or not the court house will be relocated at Garner. According to [illegible] this is all wrong. No [illegible] petition is almost an exact reproduction of the Britt petition of four years ago, only the word "Garner" has been substituted for the word "Britt." If the Garner petition is unfair and unjust how about that Britt petition? The people of Britt claim to have $25,000 subscribed but are not willing to put the real "coin" in the hands of the county treasurer as Garner did. There is a vast difference between a subscription list and the real gold dollars you must remember, and Britt will undoubtedly try to float another "straw bond." If Britt really desires to have this matter come to a vote they have had a change of heart within the last two years, for they refused to allow the matter to come to a vote two years ago when Garner proposed that it be submitted. The Garner petition will be signed by 90 per cent of the voters in this township, and will doubtless win in a walk.

One of the most interesting debates of the season was listened to by large and appreciative audience at the literary last week. The question being "Resolved that That Tobacco Has Caused More Misery Than the Novel." The ladies defended the affirmative the men the negative. The decision was unanimous for the negative.

The entertainment at the Gilbert school house last Friday evening was well attended. The program was a regular literary treat which reflected great credit on both the teacher and pupils. The art work was exceptionally fine, and was sold to the highest bidder. Hod Lauhorn acted as auctioneer, and the way the things sold spoke well for Hod's ability as an auctioneer. $25 was cleared after paying all expenses, which is a very creditable showing.

Lecture Course

On Sunday evening J. B. Swartz closed his lecture course here by delivering the Passion Play. The course throughout was very good, and gave general satisfaction. The management came out about even after paying the $100 which they guaranteed. It certainly took some nerve on their part to put up the guarantee and their efforts to give our people high class entertainment is appreciated. The people of our town and surrounding country turned out exwell, consiging the weather, and we doubt if another town of this size would have done as well. Mr. Swartz is at Goodell this week

WAX MINES OF GALICIA.

One of the Most Curious Fields of Industry Imaginable.

Mineral wax—generally known as ozocerite—has taken the place of beeswax in making candles, and is obtained from Utah and California, in America, and from Wales and Galicia and Roumania, in Europe. When found it is a dark, rich brown color, translucent in thin films, but when refined it resembles well-bleached beeswax. The wax mines of eastern Galicia, which a syndicate of American capitalists leased, form one of the most curious fields of industry imaginable. They are at and around Boryslaw, which is also the center of the eastern oil district of that part of Austria.

The wax lies in beds, like clay, at depths of from 350 to 600 feet, and shafts are sunk to the beds. The Boryslaw wax field is only 50 acres in extent, and upon that 1,000 shafts were sunk. Six thousand men live and work on that tract. The owners of the deposits have made immense fortunes from the products, as it is very valuable, fetching fourpence a pound at the pits. The manifold uses to which paraffin has been adapted has given this Galician deposit a very wide utility. It is found in veins 16 inches thick, and is dug out with shovels, and then raised from the shaft with buckets and a windlass.

"DE LANCEY'S ANCIENT PINE."

Interesting Tree Standing in Bronx Park, New York.

There is an interesting pine tree in Bronx park, close to the entrance of the Geographical gardens that is worthy of more honor than is generally accorded it. To few old-timers who remember the locality before it ever became part of New York, this old tree goes by the name of "De Lancey's pine." A poem has been written about it, setting forth the virtues of "De Lancey's ancient pine." The tree is by far the tallest for miles around and although its lower branches have been badly treated, a towering mass of green boughs surmounts the ancient survivor of the days when the old De Lancey family owned a large portion of the estate now in the Bronx Park domain. The old De Lancey house, that was the scene of many gay parties in pre-Revolutionary days, was burned down about thirty years ago. The tall pine is supposed to be close to 150 years old at the least, and its present condition is favorable for at least another century of life.—New York Times.

Humor of Persia's Monarch.

The father of the shah of Persia had more adventures and escapades during his lifetime than had perhaps any other monarch. Once, when traveling through Russia, his train left the rails near Odessa and rolled over an embankment. The shah was found afterward, quite uninjured, under one of the seats. Only two things were wounded—his majesty's dignity and his majesty's spectacles. The shah, at the conclusion of his visit to Russia, sent to the manager of the railway a letter and a small parcel. In the letter he thanked the manager for the trouble he had put himself to in "breaking the monotony of the journey in the way he had done. Would the manager, as a remembrance, accept a small present?" The present was a pair of battered spectacles. The humor was quite Western in character.

Conscription in Europe.

The compulsory enrolment of citizens for military or naval service is unknown in this country as a permanent institution, and twice only in the history of the United States were drafts temporarily resorted to by the government for the purpose of raising and increasing the armies in cases of special urgency, once in 1814 during our war with Great Britain and once on May 3, 1863, when a bill passed both houses calling every able-bodied citizen of military age to enter the federal service, or pay a commutation fee of $300 for exemption, under penalty of being treated as a deserter.

Odd Tavern Signs.

It is probable that not England, but Germany holds the record for out-of-the way tavern signs and fantastic inn names. The most absurd results are usually obtained by the name of some animal joined with a more or less unsuitable object. The "Comfortable Chicken," and the "Cold Frog," both of them in Berlin, are certainly left in the shade by the "Angry Ant," (Ort, in Westphalia,) which sells splendid beer, and the "Stiff Dog" (Berlin.)

Record to Be Proud Of.

The record of Alderman Gilbert Finch, who has just been elected first magistrate of Tunbridge Wells, England, is one of which he may justly be proud. He began life at the age of 7 as a plowboy, nine years afterward he became a gardener's assistant, and then a domestic servant. Gradually working his way up, he afterward started business on his own account, and so Mr. Finch steadily forged ahead until to-day he holds his present proud position.

A Warning Against Dudes.

A Congregational minister of Chicago has warned the young women of a church to beware of the dude, and remain spinster rather than marry one. "Dudes are trifiers," he said recently, in a sermon. "They are simply jumping-jacks. All they know how to do is to throw cigarette smoke into their hollow heads in a useless chase after brains, and to pervert their nostrils into smoke-stacks."

A FARMER ROBBED OF $2,115.

Thieves Steal Trunk From Home of John Collins Near Dysart.

Waterloo, Jan. 15.—The home of John Collins, a wealthy retired farmer at Dysart, was entered by thieves at an early hour yesterday morning and robbed of $2,115. The money was kept concealed in a trunk and the robbers in order to secure the money took the trunk from the house to a neighboring pasture, where it was broken open and rifled. In the trunk were two sacks containing $1,000 in gold each, besides one of $115 in bills. The work is believed to be that of local parties who knew that Collins kept the money in the trunk, as nothing else in the house was disturbed. The family were sleeping in the house at the time.

H. Yordy, with his Waterloo pack of bloodhounds, was called to the scene and the dogs have been put upon the trail. Since the robbers handled all the contents of the trunk the owner of the dogs feels confident of getting a scent that will lead to the capture of the thieves. Collins is about 80 years old and is reputed very wealthy

DICKENSON DENIES SHORTAGE.

Man Alleged to Have Embezzled From Boone Coal Co., Talks.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—W. P. Dickinson, of W. P. Dickinson & Company, who was recently indicted at Independence, Iowa, on complaint of the officials of the Boone Valley Iron and Coal Company, on the charge that he appropriated $6,500 to his own use has gone to Iowa, where he will furnish bonds. Mr. Dickinson made this statement of the case before leaving: "The indictment does not show a shortage of $21,000, but an alleged appropriation of $6,500, all of which I can show has no foundation in fact. the facts are that I do not owe President Browne of the coal company a penny, nor any of his companions, but, on the contrary, they are largely in our debt, and no threat of criminal prosecution will compel us to let go of the few bonds of theirs, which we hold subject to the payment of the claims which we have against them. When the court says that we are wrong, Mr. Browne can have his property and not earlier, unless he settles the claim."

MASKED ROBBERS MISSED $100.

Held Up Restaurant Keeper and Got Only $10.

Ames, Jan 16.—At 4 o'clock yesterday morning a masked robber entered Roll's restaurant, in this city, and with drawn revolver demanded of Hal Roll, who was in charge, the sack of money containing the day's receipts Roll, who had the money upon his person—nearly $100 in all—declared that the day man had taken the money home with him, and that all the cash on hand was what was in the till, about $10. This the robber proceeded to appropriate; also taking with him a valuable 38-caliber revolver which was lying besides the cash drawer.

The robber forced Roll to open the till and count over the money to him. The robber was comically masked with a hideous false face, and there is no clew to his identity. He escaped, and although the alarm was immediately raised, the officers have not effected a capture.

HUBBARD FOR CONGRESS.

Sioux City Man Has Announced His Candidacy.

Sioux City, Jan. 17.—The first move in what promises to be a historic fight for the congressional nomination for congress in the Eleventh district been taken here. State Senator E. H. Hubbard has unequivocally expressed his intention of being a candidate to succeed Congressman Lot Thomas. Senator Hubbard and his friends had acted upon the supposition that the present congressman would not be a candidate. Recent events throughout the district are to the effect that the Storm Lake man would like to have another term.

"I expect to be a candidate next year," said the senator. "I had been given to understand by Thomas' friends that the present congressman would not be a candidate."

BURLINGTON GAZETTE ROBBED.

Newspaper Circulation Men Got Away With $400.

Burlington, Jan. 17.—The grand jury has return indictments against H. K. Roepeke of Akron, O., and C. W. Gray of Philadelphia for larceny and embezzlement. They came to Iowa last April to introduce a newspaper circulation scheme by giving books as premiums. They made a contract with the Evening Gazette, which furnished them the books to deliver to subscribers. After collecting nearly $400 they disappeared the night before they were to make the accounting and have not been heard from since. Efforts will be made to locate them and bring them to Burlington for trial. The men presented to the Gazette letters of recommendation from different prominent book publishers.

BIG FAILURE AT SAC CITY.

C. A. Pratt, Clothier, of That City, Has Disappeared.

Sac City, Jan. 17.—C. A. Pratt, who has been in the clothing business at this place for the last eighteen years, has failed financially and quietly taken his departure, no one knowing where he has gone. But few creditors have put in their appearance yet. Phil Schaner, who but a few days ago signed a note with Pratt for $3,500, took possession of the stock under a chattel mortgage given him to secure said note. Up till within the last few days Mr. Pratt was considered generally well to do. The limited business Mr. Pratt has done within the last few days has hastened his financial end. It is rumored that he frequently dealt on the board of trade also.

CENTERVILLE'S NEW LIBRARY.

Gift of Governor Drake Dedicated With Military Exercises.

Centerville, Jan. 17.—The new free public library building donated to the city of Centerville by former Governor Drake was dedicated yesterday. It cost more than $25,000, and the city in accepting it agreed by popular vote to maintain it perpetually. Governor Cummins made the principal address of the day. More than 500 members of the faculty, students and friends of Drake University of Des Moines were present.

HAPPENINGS IN HAWKEYEDOM

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

ROBBER SHOT BANKER'S SON

Harry Pattee of Perry Dangerously Injured By One of Two Robbers Who Were Trying to Steal Fresh Meat From the Family Residence.

Perry, Jan. 18.—After being threatened all day by an angry but disorganized mob Stephen Crandell, suspected, but not formally accused of shooting Harry Pattee at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, was gotten safely aboard the 7 o'clock train by Sheriff J. N. Haynes, City Marshal L. M. Resser and three deputies last night and taken to the county jail at Adel for safe keeping, and to serve out an unexpired sentence for stealing. A mob of 500 men and boys were at the train at about the same time as the officers and their prisoner, and Crandell's life was freely threatened. There were ropes in the crowd and the desire for a lynching was general, but there was no leader. Yesterday afternoon it was necessary to surround the city jail with members of the local National guard company, who with fixed bayonets held the crowd at bay.

Never in the history of the city has there been so much excitement. It is estimated that 3,000 people were on the streets in the vicinity of the Pattee home when the Huffmier hounds from Knoxville arrived and picked up the trail, which led them to the residence of Crandell. The hounds not only followed the trail twice to Crandell's house, but later they followed a trail from the house to the city jail. Crandell went to the jail yesterday morning and surrendered himself, having been out of the county jail on parole in order to be at home during the confinement of his wife.

The trail followed by the Pattee hounds divided a short distance from the Pattee home, apparently, and while one trailed to Crandell's house the dogs when started on the other, went to the house of one McFarland, who has not been located. McFarland was a partner of Crandell and was convicted with him of larceny. Sheriff Haynes went as far as Dallas Center on the train and returned to search for McFarland.

Harry Pattee was a son of President Pattee, of the First National bank of this city. He was shot down by a robber, who, with a companion, was evidently after a freshly slaughtered hog in the Pattee smokehouse.

Harry Pattee, the victim, is resting easy, although still under the influence of opiates. His condition while critical, is considered hopeful by his physicians.

A little after 1 o'clock Harry and his sister arrived at their home from the dance. They entered the house quietly, so as not to disturb the household and went to their rooms up stairs. Harry had undressed and retired, but had only been in bed a few minutes when he heard a racket in the back yard. In his night clothes he stole quitely down the back stairway, thinking all of the way that something was the matter at the barn or on the back porch.

As soon as Harry opened the kitchen door onto the porch he saw a man. Harry is a plucky little fellow and unarmed and unprepared he grappled with the intruder. There was another man on the porch, who at the time Harry opened the door was on a ladder. Harry was struck a blow and fell to his knees. At that instant the fellow with whom Harry had grappled, being free handed, pulled a revolver, pointing it at Harry, "Now I have you, g— d—— you," and shot.

Only one shot was fired and the fellows ran west and down the alley.

Harry, although shocked and stunned rose from his knees, where he had fallen, and staggered into the kitchen; going to the door to the back stairway, he opened it and called: "Papa, come quick, I am shot." Mr. Pattee had driven to Bayard the day before and was tired and sleeping soundly. Others up stairs heard Harry's call for help and awakened his father, who was down stairs in an instant, where he found the victim leaning against the door frame. He assisted his son to the sitting room and put him on the couch. Mr. Pattee telephoned at once for Drs. Ross and Trout and notified "central" of what had happened and had Geo. Grier, Marshal Resser and Constable Dave Willis called.

The physicians found that the bullet had entered the right breast just below the nipple. At first it bled profusely, but the wound was soon nicely dressed.

Thursday Mr. Pattee butchered two hogs. Friday the meat was cut up, and part of it was on the back porch, some being hung up at the porch roof. The men had taken a ladder that belonged there and were helping themselves to the fresh pork when they were discovered. They had brought a gunny sack with them. This was found, and may furnish a clue. The porch and its surroundings have been roped off and the ladder and pieces of meat were left just as the robbers had left them. This precaution was taken so when daylight came it might furnish a clue.

Adel, Jan. 19.—An effort was made yesterday to secure a confession from Crandell, accused of the shooting of Pattee. Sheriff Haines and C. C. Pugh spent some time in the cell conversing with Crandell. They visitetd him together at first, but later Pugh returned to the jail and spent a half hour with Crandell. Crandell was not disposed to talk of the crime, and it was not until told that word had been received from Perry saying Pattee's condition is critical and that there was talk of a mob coming over from Perry, that Crandell would talk. He said:

"Let them come. They will not hang an innocent man, and I am innocent I knew Pattee only by sight and from what I had heard of him thought a great deal of him. I would not harm him. I was at my father's house when the shooting occurred. My wife was there. I will prove by my father and mother and my wife that I was there from 7 p. m. Friday to 7 a. m. Saturday, when I gave myself up to the officers at the expiratiton of my parole to be sent back to finish my term here for hog stealing."

Crandell denied that he had seen McFarland, the other suspect, on the night of the murder or the day preceding.

Many women in New York find employment and profitable occupation as window dressers. Most of this work, however, is done by men. Some expert and tasteful window dressers get as high as fifty dollars a week.

CORN SCHOOL A SUCCESS.

Canada, Mexico and Many States Represented Among 350 Students.

Ames, Jan. 17.—Fully as great a success has been reached by the corn judging school at the Iowa State college as by the school for the judging of stock. In fact it would seem impossible to exaggerate the merits of the corn judging school as it is unanimously pronounced by the experts here the greatest school for corn judging ever held in the United States. This is true not only in respect to the course of instruction offered, but also as to attendance.

Nearly 350 students are registered in the corn judging school. The majority, of course, are from Iowa, but there are men here from Canada, Mexico, the Shenandoah valley of Virginia, South Dakota, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois and Missouri. A Virginia man, who has been raising corn in the Shenandoah valley for years, says he never dreamed how much there was he didn't know about corn until he came here, and he declares his intention of going back to his own country and revolutionizing the corn growing business Among the many corn raisers from outside of Iowa, is R. S. Hooper, who is foreman of the Vrooman farm near Trenton, Mo. Mr. Hooper is taking the course in corn judging and is going into the subject with enthusiasm. Professor H. M. Cottrell, formerly professor of agriculture in the Kansas State Agricultural college, is manager of the farm of which Mr. Hooper is the foreman. Many of the students are here to enable them to get a better knowledge of how to select their seed corn, and one striking case of this kind is that of a Chicago lawyer, who owns several farms in Kentucky. His purpose in coming here is to enable himself to select the proper varieties and types of corn to send down to his tenants on his property in the blue grass state.

It is difficult to conceive of the importance the work done here is to the state of Iowa. To begin with, corn is the greatest cereal crop of the state, as every Iowan knows, and there are nine and a quarter millions of acres of corn in the state. Five bushels more per acre added to the yield of the Iowa corn field means an addition to the profits of the Iowa farmers of over .$20,000,000 a year With the interest in corn of 300 leading farmers of the state quickened and their knowledge of it extended so as to insure better breeding and cultivation of the great cereal, it is not difficult to see how the yield of the state can be increased by a still greater amount than an average of five bushels per acre.

At the same time, there is still a broader purpose than the improvement of seed corn and the betterment of methods of corn cultivation involved in all this schooling. Professor P. G. Holden, who, as head of the department of agronomy, is in charge of the corn judging school, said today that looking at the matter from the broadest standpoint, the bettering of the citizenship of Iowa was the great object to be obtained. "If we can succeed," he said, "in getting the farmers of Iowa interested in the study of corn and improved methods of agriculture it is impossible to estimate the effect in the way of improvement of the citizenship of the state in thirty years from now."

MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE.

Phillips and Brooks Again Convicted of Marshal Sundblad's Death.

Storm Lake, Jan. 15.—After repeated ballots the jury in the case of the state vs. Albert M. Phillips and Louis Brooks, the Greenville bank robbers, charged with the murder of John Sundland of Albert City, returned a verdict of murder in the first degree and fixed the penalty at life imprisonment. The verdict was not reached until 1:15 this morning, the jury having been out since early in the evening. Intense excitement prevailed about the court house in the closing hours of the case and the attendance of spectators from all parts of the county was great. Hundreds hung about the scene until this morning anxiously awaiting for the jury to reach a decision.

The verdict of the jury settles the question as to the fate of Phillips and Brooks and removes them from all danger of execution. In the original trial the verdict was murder in the first degree and the penalty was fixed at death. The hangings were to have taken place in December at Anamosa penitentiary, but the supreme court reversed the lower court and granted them a new trial.

CAPTAIN RUMPLE NEAR DEATH.

Sends For His Law Partner to Come to His Bedside.

Marengo, Jan. 17.—Judge Hedges, the law partner of Congressman J. N. W. Rumple, was called in haste to Chicago to the bedside of the congressman, who is lying critically ill in St. Luke's hospital. He had been recovering nicely and for a time it was thought he would be able to resume his seat in congress at this session, but he had been gradually getting worse, and the news from Chicago is that he has only a short time to live.

Members of his family have been with him for some time. Court is in session here and the business of the firm is heavy, but Judge Hedges considered the call from his partner so urgent that he dropped everything and went to Chicago during the night. In fact he did not have time to notify some of his clients that action would be delayed. This speedy departure of Captain Rumple's partner is taken to indicate the seriousness of the congressman's condition. It is said that he does not seem to realize the seriousness of his case himself yet, but it is well known to others.

BELLER ARRESTED.

Federal Authorities After Garrison Physician.

Cedar Rapids, Jan. 16.—O. B. Beller, the Garrison physician arrested several day ago, charged with threatening the life of his former fiancee, Della Hill of Vinton, now Mrs. Dr. Park of Fort Morgan, Col., was taken into custody by the federal authorities, charged with violating the postal laws. He will be brought here to night. The charge against Boller embraces the sending of threatening letters over his own signature and employing others to send anonymous letter.

Two Suicides at Ottumwa.

Ottumwa, Jan. 17.—Two suicides have occurred here within twelve hours of each other. Carl Whetzell, a prominent young business man, shot and killed himself with a rifle. No cause for the act was known.

J. D. Brooks, aged 20, a student in the local business college, killed himself because Miss Mollie Hall refused to marry him. Brooks comes of a prominent Ottumwa family.

The Bow of Orange Ribbon

A ROMANCE OF NEW YORK

By AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "Friend Olivia," "I, Thou and the Other One," Etc.

Copyright, 1886, by Dodd, Mead and Company.

Neil was intensely angry, and his dark eyes glowed beneath their dropped lids with a passionate hate. But he left his father with an assumed coldness and calmness.

The sarcastic advice annoyed him, and he wanted time to fully consider his ways. He was no physical coward; he was a fine swordsman, and he felt that it would be a real joy to stand with a drawn rapier between himself and his rival. But what if revenge cost him too much? What if he slew Hyde, and had to leave his love and his home, and his fine business prospects? To win Katherine, and to marry her, in the face of the man whom he felt that he detested; would not that be the best of all "satisfactions?"

He walked about the streets, discussing these points with himself, till the shops all closed, and on the stoops of the houses in Maiden Lane and Liberty street there were merry parties of gossiping belles and beaux. Then he returned to Broadway.

Still debating with himself, he came to a narrow road which ran to the river, along the southern side of Van Heemskirk's house. Coming swiftly up it, as if to detain him, was Capt. Hyde. The two men locked at each other defiantly; and Neil said with a cold, meaning emphasis:

"At your service, sir."

"Mr. Semple, at your service,"—and touching his sword,—"to the very hilt, sir."

"Sir, yours to the same extremity."

"As for the cause, Mr. Semple, here it is;" and he pushed aside his embroidered coat in order to exhibit to Neil the bow of orange ribbon beneath it.

"I will dye it crimson in your blood," said Neil passionately.

"In the meantime, I have the felicity of wearing it;" and with an offensively deep salute, he terminated the interview.

CHAPTER VI.

At the Sword's Point.

Neil's first emotion was not so much one of anger as of exultation. "I shall have him at my sword's point," he kept saying to himself as he turned from Hyde to Van Heemskirk's house.

Katherine sat upon the steps of the stoop. Touching her, to arouse her attention, Neil said, "Come with me down the garden, my love."

She looked at him wonderingly, but rose at his request and gave him her hand.

Then the tender thoughts which had lain so deep in his heart flew to his lips, and he woo'd her with a fervor and nobility as astonising to himself as to Katherine. He reminded her of all the sweet intercourse of their happy lives, and of the fidelity with which he had loved her. "Oh, my Katherine, my sweet Katherine! Who is there that can take you from me?"

"No one will I marry. With my father and my mother I will stay."

"Yes, till you learn to love me as I love you, with the whole soul. You are to be my wife, Katherine?"

"That I have not said."

"Katherine, is it true that Capt. Hyde is wearing a bow of your orange ribbon?"

"Yes. A bow of my St. Nicholas ribbon I gave him."

"Why?"

"Me he loves, and him I love."

"You have more St. Nicholas ribbons? Go and get me one. Get a bow, Katherine, and give it to me. I will wait here for it."

"No, that I will not do. How false, how wicked I would be, if two lovers my colors wore!"

"Well, then, I will cut my bow from Hyde's breast. I will, though I cut his heart out with it."

He turned from her as he said the words, and, without speaking to Joris, passed through the garden gate to his own home.

In the calm of his own chamber, through the silent, solemn hours, when the world was shut out of his life, Neil reviewed his position, but he could find no honorable way out of the predicament. He was quite sensible that his first words to Capt. Hyde that night had been intended to provoke a quarrel, and he knew that he would be expected to redeem them by a formal defiance. However, as the idea became familiar, it became imperative; and at length it was with a fierce satisfaction he opened his desk and without hesitation wrote the decisive words:

"To Capt. Richard Hyde of His Majesty's Service:

"Sir—A person of the character I bear cannot allow the treachery and dishonorable conduct of which you have been guilty to pass without punishment. Convince me that you are more of a gentleman than I have reason to believe, by meeting me to-night as the sun drops in the wood on the Kalchhook Hill. Our seconds can locate the spot; and that you may have no pretense to delay, I send by bearer two swords, of which I give you the privilege to make choice.

"In the interim, at your service,

"Neil Semple."

He had already selected Adrian Beekman as his second, a young man of wealth and good family. Beekman accepted the duty with alacrity, and, indeed, so promptly carried out his principal's instructions, that he found Capt. Hyde still sleeping when he waited upon him. Hyde laughed lightly at "Mr. Semple's impatience of offense," and directed Mr. Beekman to Capt. Earle as his second; leaving the choice of swords and of the ground entirely to his direction.

Lightly as Hyde had taken the challenge, he was really more disinclined to fight than Neil was. In his heart he knew that Semple had a just cause of anger; "but then," he argued, "I would not resign the girl for my life, for I am sensible that life, if she is another's, will be a very tedious thing to me."

All day Neil was busy in making his will and in disposing of his affairs. Hyde felt equally the necessity for some definite arrangement of his business. He owed many debts of honor, and Cohen's bill was yet unsettled. He drank a cup of coffee, wrote several important letters, and then went to Fraunce's, and had a steak and a bottle of wine. During his meal his thoughts wandered between Katherine and the Jew Cohen. After it he went straight to Cohen's store.

It happened to be Saturday, and the shutters were closed, though the door was slightly open, and Cohen was sitting with his granddaughter in the cool shadows of the crowded place. Miriam retreated within the deeper shadows of some curtains of stamped Moorish leather, for she anticipated the immediate departure of the intruder.

She was therefore astonished when her grandfather, after listening to a few sentences, sat down, and entered into a lengthy conversation. When at last they rose, Hyde extended his hand. "Cohen," he said, "few men would have been as generous and, at this hour, as considerate as you. I have judged from tradition, and misjudged you. Whether we meet again or not, we part as friends."

"You have settled all things as a gentleman, captain. May my white hairs say a word to your heart this hour?" Hyde bowed; and he continued, in a voice of sericus benignity: "The words of the Holy One are to be regarded, and not the words of men. Men call that 'honor' which He will call murder. What excuse is there in your lips if you go this night into his presence?

There was no excuse in Hyde's lips, even for his mortal interrogator. He merely bowed again, and slipped through the partially opened door into the busy street. Miriam returned to her place and asked plainly, "What murder is there to be, grandfather?"

"It is a duel between Capt. Hyde and another. It shall be called murder at the last."

"The other, who is he?"

"The young man, Semple. Oh, Miriam, what sin and sorrow thy sex ever bring to those who love it! There are two young lives to be put in death peril for the smile of a woman—a very girl she is."

"Do I know her, grandfather?"

"She passes here often. The daughter of Van Heemskirk—the little fair one, the child."

"Oh, but now I am twice sorry! She has smiled at me often. We have even spoken."

Cohen, with his hands on his staff, and his head in them, sat meditating, perhaps praying; and the hot, silent moments went slowly away. In them, Miriam was coming to a decision which at first alarmed her, but which, as it grew familiar, grew also lawful and kind. A word to Van Heemskirk or to the Elder Semple would be sufficient. Should she not say it?

Perhaps Cohen divined her purpose, and was not unfavorable to it, for he suddenly rose, and, putting on his cap, said, "I am going to see my kinsman John Cohen. At sunset, set wide the door; an hour after sunset I will return."

As soon as he had gone, Miriam wrote to Van Heemskirk these words: "Good Sir—This is a matter of life and death; so then, come at once, and I will tell you. Miriam Cohen."

It was not many minutes before Van Heemskirk's driver passed, leading his loaded wagon; and to him she gave the note.

That day Joris had gone home earlier than usual, and Bram only was in the store. He supposed the strip of paper to refer to a barrel of flour or some other household necessity.

Its actual message was so unusual and unlooked for, that it took him a moment or two to realize the words; then he answered the summons for his father promptly. Miriam proceeded at once to give him such information as she possessed. Bram stood gazing at the beautiful, earnest girl, and felt all the fear and force of her words; but for some moments he could not speak, nor decide on his first step.

"Why do you wait?" pleaded Miriam. "At sunset, I tell you. It is now near it. Oh, no thanks! Do not stop for them, but hasten away at once."

He obeyed like one in a dream. Semple was just leaving business. He put his hand on him, and said, "Elder, no time have you to lose. At sunset, Neil and that d—— English soldier a duel are to fight."

"Eh? Where? Who told you?"

"On the Kelchhook Hill. Stay not for talk."

"Run for your father, Bram. Run, my lad. God help me! God spare the lad!"

At that moment Neil and Hyde were on the fatal spot.

Neil flung off his coat and waistcoat and stood with bared breast on the spot his second indicated. Hyde removed his fine scarlet coat and handed it to Capt. Earle, and would then have taken his sword; but Beekman advanced to remove also his waistcoat. The suspicion implied by this act roused the soldier's indignation, and with his own hands he tore off the richly embroidered satin garment, and by so doing exposed what perhaps some delicate feeling had made him wish to conceal—a bow of orange ribbon which he wore above his heart.

The sight of it to Neil was like oil flung upon flame. He could scarcely restrain himself until the word "go" gave him license to charge Hyde.

Hyde was an excellent swordsman and had fought several duels; but he was quite disconcerted by the deadly reality of Neil's attack. In the second thrust his foot got entangled in a tuft of grass, and, in evading a lunge aimed at his heart, he fell on his right side. Supporting himself, however, on his sword hand, he sprang backwards with great dexterity, and thus escaped the probable death-blow. But, as he was bleeding from a wound in the throat, his second interfered and proposed a reconcilation. Neil angrily refused to listen. He declared "he had not come to enact a farce;" and then, happening to glance at the ribbon on Hyde's breast, he swore furiously "He would make his way through the body of any man who stood between him and his just anger."

Up to this point there had been in Hyde's mind a latent disinclination to slay Neil. After it, he flung away every kind of memory, and the fight was renewed with an almost brutal impetuosity, until there ensued one of those close locks which it was evident nothing but "the key of the body could open." In the frightful wrench which followed, the swords of both men sprang from their hands, flying some four or five yards upward with the force. Both recovered their weapons at the same time, and both, bleeding and exhausted, would have again renewed the fight; but at that moment Van Heemskirk and Semple, with their attendants, reached the spot.

Without hesitation, they threw themselves between the young men. But there was no need for words. Neil fell senseless upon his sword, making in his fall a last desperate effort to reach the ribbon on Hyde's breast; for Hyde had also dropped fainting to the ground, bleeding from at least half a dozen wounds. Then one of Semple's young men, who had probably divined the cause of quarrel, and who felt a sympathy for his young master, made as if he would pick up the fatal bit of orange satin, now dyed crimson in Hyde's blood.

But Joris pushed the rifling hand fiercely away. "To touch it would be the vilest theft," he said. "His own it is. With his life he has bought it."

CHAPTER VII.

At "The King's Arms."

The news of the duel spread with the proverbial rapidity of evil news. Batavius heard the story from many a lip as he went home. He was bitterly indignant at Katherine, and hot with haste and anger when he reached Van Heemskirk's house.

Madam stood with Joanna on the front stoop, looking anxiously down the road.

Just as Dinorah said, "The tea is served, madam," the large figure of Batavius loomed through the gathering grayness; and the women waited for him. He came up the steps without his usual greeting; and his face was so injured and portentous that Joanna, with a little cry, put her arms round his neck. He gently removed them.

"No time is this, Joanna, for embracing. A great disgrace has come to the family; and I, who have always stood up for morality, must bear it too."

PLEASED A CURIO HUNTER.

Tale Shows How Most Collections Are Made Up.

Frank Barnick, the expert cabinet maker who was recently called from New York to Washington to complete the repair work at the White House, tells this story of the credulity of one White House visitor.

"While covering one of the doors of the state dining room with a piece of ordinary leather, a visitor came to me and said: 'Oh, please tell me the history of that leather you are using.'"

"The newness of the hide made me hesitate about declaring it to have been a part of the cargo long years ago of the Mayflower—or even that it came from cattle raised by the immortal Washington. Knowing, however, that it must have an uncommon history to account for the lack of the signs age brings, I replied that as fast as President Roosevelt shot a bear he was having the pelts tanned, and that what I was tacking to the door was the skin from a brute of the Mississippi jungles recently killed.

"I was as much amused as amazed to have her turn relic hunter on the spot and beg earnestly for a scrap of the stuff. She took a piece, her eyes beaming with pleasure, and it no doubt now forms a part of her collection of rare relics."—New York Times.

An Excusable "Bull."

Quite a good bull was made by Sir Thomas Myles, an eminent Irish surgeon, at a recent meeting of the Solicitors' Apprentices' Debating Society, in Dublin. Sir Thomas was speaking of Cecil Rhodes, whom he greatly admired. He pictured the condition of things in South Africa just previous to the Boer war, and asked with emphasis: 'At such a time was England to stand with her arms folded and her hands in her pockets?" He was somewhat disconcerted by the yell of laughter which arose, but after a moment or two joined in the merriment, saying good-humoredly that his apology could be found in the fact that he was an Irishman.

Needed Regulation.

Gen. Andre, the French minister of war, has issued a regulation forbidding all corporal punishment in the French army. The new regulations are aimed particularly at the companies that garrison African posts. These are composed chiefly of soldiers who have been sentenced in ordinary criminal courts before their enlistment. The cruelties practiced by subofficers in these regiments is all but beyond comprehension, and it is no uncommon case to have death result from them. One of the favorite modes of punishment is to smear the offender with fat and then expose him to the mosquitoes.

Wants a Soldier for Archbishop.

Emperor William of Germany has a problem of more than usual moment on his hands just now. His imperial majesty must soon decide whether or not he is empowered to put upon the throne of the ancient archbishopric of Cologne his lifetime friend Col. Gen. Baron von Loe. The grave feature of the question is that if the kaiser follows his strong inclination and proclaims the appointment he must, to a degree at least, do so in defiance of the Holy See at Rome, for it is a matter of common knowledge that the pope is generally opposed to the elevation of soldiers to the mitre and crozier.

When speaking before the House Reed avoided the customary tricks of the spread-eagle stump orator, contented himself with saying what he had to say in his own characteristic drawl, without any oratorical flourishes. Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge came to congress with the reputation of a "silver-tongued orator and used in his speeches in the house all the expedients that Reed spurned. He could not speak for five minutes even on ordinary subjects, without falling into a funeral tone that grated exceedingly on Reed's sensibilities. One day, when Colonel Breckinridge was holding forth in his usual mournful cadances, Reed's attention was caught by the colonel's melancholy tones. Turning to a friend, Reed said in a drawling but solemn tone, "Judge, were you acquainted with the deceased?"

Not long ago, a lady was choosing a winter hat, with the usual uncertainty of mind as to the kind of hat she wanted, or whether, indeed, she wanted a hat at all. After trying nearly every model in the shop she pounced with glee on one that she overlooked. "Here's something pretty!" she said; "why did you not show me this before?" Without waiting for an answer, she appealed to her adjacent friend. "There's something about this, isn't there? Here, look!" The friend distinctly replied, "It makes you look a hundred years. its very dowdy," she said. The lady tried the hat at another angle. "It is rather dowdy," she admitted at this juncture; "perhaps I won't have it after all." A voice from behind made its third attempt to gain a hearing. "If you've quite done with that," it said, very bitterly, "I'd rather like to put it on."

EDITOR IS SHOT DOWN IN STREET

Lieut. Gov. Tillman of South Carolina Shoots Editor of Columbia State.

VICTIM WAS NOT WARNED

When the Men Met Tillman Drew His Revolver and Fired at Close Range—The Wound Is an Ugly One and May Prove Fatal.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16.—A long distance telephone message from Columbia, S. C. says:

While walking home to lunch yesterday Mr. N. G. Gonzales, the editor of the State, the local paper, was met by Lieutenant Governor Tillman and two state senators. Lieutenant Governor Tillman stepped close to Mr. Gonzales and drawing his revolver placed the weapon close to him and fired. Mr. Gonzales staggered but was caught by two men.

The offices of the State are on the same block as the scene of the shooting and it took but a few moments for a great throng to assemble in front of the newspaper.

The excitement on the streets was intense. Mr. Gonzales was taken to the office of the State, where physicians pronounced his wounds very dangerous and probably fatal.

Policeman Boland immediately after the shooting arrested Lieutenant Governor Tillman and took him to the police headquarters, where he was relieved of two pistols—the one with which he shot Mr. Gonzales and a second larger revolver of 38 calibre. From the police station he was taken to the county jail, where he is held. The only attributed cause for the shooting is that during the recent primary election Mr. Gonzales bitterly opposed Lieutenant Governor Tillman in his candidacy for governor.

During the progress of that campaign Mr. Gonzales in his fight to defeat Mr. Tillman, editorially called him a debauchee and blackguard, denounced him as a criminal candidate and a "proven liar."

It was this and other such editorials, it is supposed, that goaded Mr. Tillman to the desperate deed of yesterday. Since the first primary, August 26, 1902, Mr. Gonzales has had nothing to say about Mr. Tillman except to comment upon the result of the primary.

There appears to be no conflict of testimony as to the essential features of the tragedy. Mr. Gonzales was walking home alone from his office to his lunch.

Lieutenant Governor Tillman left the state house just after the senate, over which he presided, had adjourned. He came out of the state house accompanied by Senators Talbord of Beaufort and Brown of Darlington, and was joined on his way up town by Congressman-elect Wyatt Aiken and former Representative Dominick. The meeting with Gonzales was just at the turn of Main and Gervais streets, on the north side of the street. There was no encounter, no fist fight. Tillman, so far as the vidence discloses, simply drew his revolver and fired at Gonzales. Most of those who saw the affair say there was nothing said until after the shooting. One of Tillman's escorts says he thinks Tillman said:

"I received your message," and then fired.

He is not certain of this, but thinks so.

The other companion of Mr. Tillman says he did not hear anything, but he thinks he would have heard any words if they were spoken.

Two or three others say they heard nothing until after the firing of the pistol.

Golzales himself gave an explicit statement of the affair prior to being put under anesthetics. He was very emphatic in saying that he had not sent any message to Tillman at any time and that Tillman said nothing until after he had fired. After he had shot he said something about taking him (Gonzales) at his word. Gonzales took this to mean that Tillman told him that he was settling old issues face to face with him. Gonzales is certain that nothing was said until after the shooting, when he tottered to the street car transfer station, where he leaned. Mr. Tillman was still pointing his pistol at him, whereupon Gonzales said: "Shoot again, you coward." Lieutenant Governor Tillman lowered his pistol and walked away.

There was only one shot fired and that entered the right side between the eighth and ninth ribs and passed through the forepart of the body, coming out just above the free border of the rib. The bullet was picked up on the pavvement.

A few moments after the wounded man had been conveyed to the office of his newspaper half a dozen or more physicians were doing all they could to save his life. He was removed after a time to the Columbia hospital and surgeons performed an operation upon him late this afternoon. The operation was regarded as successful but in the judgment of the physicians the wounded man has only one chance in five to live. His constitution and habits of life, however, are stated to be greatly in his favor.

The wound is an ugly one, the liver and intestines being punctured.

Illinois Congressman Named for Senator by Joint Republican Caucus.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—Congressman A. J. Hopkins of Aurora, was nominated last night by joint republican caucus of the Illinois legislature to succeed Wm. E. Mason in the United States senate. The only other name to come before the caucus was that of Luther Lafflin Mills of Chicago. On motion of State Senator Mueller, who had presented the name of Mr. Mills, the nomination of Congressman Hopkins was afterwards made unanimous. Mr. Hopkins was then represented to the caucus and made a brief speech accepting the nomination.

PRESIDENT SIGNS BILL.

President Expresses Pleasure When He Signs Free Coal Bill.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Representative Wachter of Maryland, chairman of the house committee on enrolled bills, accompanied by Representative Allen of Maine, went to the executive office yesterday with the engrossed and enrolled copy of the free coal bill passed by congress yesterday. President Roosevelt received the committee at once and signed the measure immediately, expressing at the same time his pleasure that congress had acted so promptly.

The death rate of the globe is estimated at 68 per minute, 97,920 per day, or 35,740,800 per year. The birth rate is 70 per minute, 100,800 per day, or 36,792,000 per year, reckoning the year to be 365 days in length.

The blue foxes of the Pribyloff Islands are opposed to promiscuous mating, and each clings to one female partner. An attempt has been made to teach them polygamy, by killing only the males and sparing the females, but it has failed.

The bears in Norway amuse themselves by climbing telegraph poles, and, squatting on the crossbeams, swaying themselves to and fro. In many cases the poles fall. This has necessitated the appointment of watchmen to guard the poles and drive off the bears.

When feeding, the stride of an ostrich is from twenty to twenty-two inches; when walking, but not feeding, twenty-six inches; and when terrified, eleven and one-half to fourteen feet, or at the rate of about twenty-five miles an hour.

At one time there were fifty-three King streets in London; now there are fifteen. It has thirty High streets, eleven St. John's roads, nine St. James' places, five Victoria streets, and three Oxford streets. There were once thirty-three Queen streets; but twenty-two of them have been assigned other names.

A horse with a costly appetite belongs to W. A. Duffy, of Humboldt, Tenn. He hitched the animal to a wheel of his buggy, leaving his coat in the vehicle. On his return the discovery was made that the horse had just finished eating a package of bank notes, amounting to $1,076. The animal had taken them from a pocket of the coat.

A Struggle for Life.

Eagle River, Mo., Jan. 19th.—Maggie E. Decker, a hard-working woman 49 years of age, whose home is here, has just gone through a thrilling battle for her life. Many another would have lain down and died, for for twelve long years she has suffered the most awful pains.

She had Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism, combined with a very distressing stomach trouble. At last she got so bad that she could not sleep, for she ached all over, and was so lame that she could scarcely walk. She spent over a hundred dollars in different medicines, but only to be disappointed, for everything failed to help her.

At last, however, just when she was beginning to despair of ever finding a remedy, she heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and bought six boxes. She says: "Now I can eat well, sleep well, and am feeling splendid. God bless Dodd's Kidney Pills, for they saved my life. My troubles were many, but Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me completely. But for them I surely would have died."

CASE NO. 24,613.—Mr. Joseph Calmes, foreman of the Harter mills, Fostoria, O., says: "I just as ardently recommend Doan's Kidney Pills today, and it is the month of October, 1899, as I did in the summer of 1896, when, after taking a course of the treatment, they cured me of kidney complaint and backache, which was often so acute that I was unable to sleep at night and had difficulty in remaining on my feet all day. I am still free from the lumbago or any annoyance from my kidneys, and unhesitatingly declare that I am only too pleased to re-endorse my opinions of Doan's Kidney Pills."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Calmes will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

PREVENTS SMALLPOX.

Alabastine will not cure smallpox and other contagious diseases, once they have fastened their deadly grip upon their victims. It will do much, however, toward preventing their spread.

It is a well recognized fact that certain wall coatings do much to harbor disease germs and propagate same; that of all coverings wall paper is the most likely to hold the germs of disease for months and years.

There are well authenticated cases where smallpox, scarlet fever and other germs have lain dormant for years, and have attacked persons afterward when the paper was removed.

Kalsomines stuck on the wall with decaying glue are not much better than wall paper with its vegetable paste.

Alabastine is recommended generally by sanitarians, as a coating for walls in any style of work, as it is perfectly sanitary, is in the nature of a disinfectant, presents a perfectly hard surface, is manufactured from a cement base, and does not furnish a lodgment ground for disease germs.

Years ago these matters received but little attention, but modern scientists becoming appalled at the spread of the dread disease, smallpox, and the difficulty in stamping it out, have gone to investigating causes, and unhesitatingly say that improper wall coatings have very much to do with this.

Alabastine is recommended to be used on all infected walls, to destroy germs and to get walls once more in a healthy condition.

It is easier to live up to a good reputation than to live down an old one.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle.

are overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Menard cured after doctors failed to help her.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me after doctors had failed, and I want other girls to know about it. During menstruation I suffered most intense pain low in the abdomen and in my limbs. At other times I had a heavy, depressed feeling which made my work seem twice as hard, and I grew pale and thin. The medicine the doctor gave me did not do me one bit of good, and I was thoroughly discouraged. The doctor wanted me to stop work, but, of course, I could not do that. I finally began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and felt better after taking the first bottle, and after taking six bottles I was entirely cured, and am now in perfect health, and I am so grateful for it."—Miss GEORGIE MENARD, 537 E. 152nd St., New York City.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Auditor Ward, of the Northern Lumber company, was here on Wednesday looking over the company's books. All accounts were found correct, and he went on his way rejoicing, recognizing that in Mr. Palmer they have a trustworthy employe.

Isaac Sweigard, of Garner, had charge of the Bank of Klemme on Thursday while Harvey clerked S. E. Eldred's sale. By the side of Col. Sweigard on the way to the sale proudly sat his coachman, Governor Bloom, with a tight drawn rein on the sorrels, one of which is a bay, who sped away as if on wings When we last seen them, to use the expression of a very dear friend, "they were going the awfullest kind"

Congress acted wisely in removing the duty from coal. This will undoubtedly do much toward bringing the coal barons to time. The duty on anthracite coal has been taken off for an indefinite period of time, while on soft coal the duty has been raised for one year. Roosevelt is a trust smasher, and he will make some of the money-grabbing institutions of this country look like 30 cents if congress and the people stay by him.

Poor Old Britt

The Britt News says that naturally we would favor the relocation of the county seat at Garner because we are formerly of that place. Our prolonged absence from the home of our childhood has weaned us from that beautiful little city on the north, and our position on the court house proposition is based purely upon the merits in the case. Britt says they will put $40,000 where the county will be sure to get it if the county seat is re located there. But where is the money and where do they propose to place their gold? Why not place it in the hands of the county treasurer? The facts of the matter are that Britt wants to make a big showing with but very little to show. The News article goes on to say that we favor Garner to the detriment of Klemme. If the News man can show is one thing wherein Klemme would be benefitted by the court house being located at Britt we would be for Britt first, last and always.

Bailey "advises" us to keep our shirt on. Bailey, for your sake we shall do this, not however, until the county seat is located at Britt lest we should be compelled to wear it for our shroud Another thing Bailey you will please refrain from calling us a "bantam" or you may be made defendant in another $10,000 libel suit. While 'tis true that there is room for us and one more on a six foot walk, and that we can sit quite comfortably in one com non sized chair, yet we object to you dubbing us a "bantam" when we belong with the middle weights. Early next fall Bailey the county records will be moved from the old shell at Concord to the elegant new building at Garner which has been prepared to shelter them and which was built by Garner money and donated to the county in which the title now rests. The people of Garner will undoubtedly extend an invitation to the Britt court house committee to assist in the moving process, and if you do not get too boisterous you may be allowed to stay to the ratification meeting

In Chicago a special grand jury has been in session for nearly two weeks past investigating the coal situation in that city, and to determine if possible the cause of the shortage in the coal supply. Over 50 individuals and corporations have been indicted, for the violation of the anti-trust law, but it now looks as if most of the indicted parties would be let off on promise of good behavior. A number of the indicted coal dealers have appeared before the grand jury asking that they be spared the humiliation of criminal prosecution. You know it would no look well to see a millionaire grazing through the bars and having been placed there for the very trifling offense of having frozen a few thousand of the common herd by having placed the price of coal out of reach of their purses. Let some poor fellow steal a hod of coal from one of them to keep his family from freezing and we warrant that he will not be spared the humility of criminal prosecution.

A Most Liberal Offer.

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper The Iowa Homestead, its Special Farmers' Institute Editions, and The Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our home, and make the price of the four one year for only $1.40. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known throughout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Iowa Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the West; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while The Special Farmer's Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

Henry Lau, of Germantown, transacted business here Thursday last.

A little more snow would be appreciated by the young people who delight in sleigh riding.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Groves wish to thank their many friends who assisted them in their sad bereavement.

Eric Josten, of Germantown, was called here on business last Thursday, and stayed for the social in the evening.

A pleasant family party was held at the home of Paul Quintus Saturday evening. The Ford, Quintus and Coutts families being present and report the best kind of a time.

We are greatly indebted to the young people of Klemme who aided us with their patronage last Thursday evening, and when the opportunity arrives we will return the compliment.

Bert Groesbeck and family are once more comfortably settled in their old home. They left here about a year ago to go out into the wild west, but like everybody else, are glad to return to their first love in the Garden of Eden.

The sociable at the Center school house was well attended and the program was greatly enjoyed by those present. The baskets brought a good price. Maud Braund received a beautiful cake for being the most popular young lady present. About $25.00 was received which will be used to pay for the organ which was purchased for the society.

It is with sorrow and deep regret that we chronicle the death of our little friend, Geneva Grove, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Grove, whose death occurred last Thursday. Her illness was of short duration, her death being caused by heart trouble. All that medical assistance and sympathy could do was of no avail, and her fair young spirit took its flight to the better world where pain and sorrow are no more. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Frontman, pastor of the M. E. church of Garner, and the remains were tenderly laid to rest in the Garner cemetery, followed by the friends and relatives of the bereaved parents. The parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Following is the program for the Germantown Epworth League to be rendered Sunday evening, February 1:

PERJURY WAS SERIOUS.

Cleared of Murder But Got Hard Sentence for Lying.

Des Moines, Jan. 23.—Zenas W. John of West Liberty, who was indicted, tried and acquitted on the charge of murder, must serve ten years for perjury, because he went on the witness stand in his own behalf and lied about his own case that he might be freed of the graver charge. John was in Parton Wright's lunch room at West Liberty, October 1, 1899, when a fight occurred between Ross Wiley and Walter W. Boot, and it was alleged that John shot Boot; but on John's trial he was acquitted. He went on the stand and testified he was not there at all. Others, however, said he was present and on this conflict of evidence John was convicted of perjury and sentenced by Judge Bollinger to ten years in prison. The appeal was largely technical. The strongest point was that the court, instead of completing the jury from the list of talismen, called a special venire. The supreme court says this proceeding is allowable. It was also objected that there was ambiguity as to dates in the indictment, but the supreme court says that the conflicting and misleading date mentioned in the indictment was mere surplusage and might be eliminated without harm. Complaint was also made that matters mentioned in the indictment were not material to the case, but this was without merit. The court admits that the county attorney in presenting the case went almost to the verge of propriety, but committed no prejudicial error. The ten year sentence therefore stands.

WAUKEE'S MID-NIGHT FIRE.

Loss Will Be in the Neighborhood of $9,000.

Waukee, Jan. 22.—Fire of unknown origin did about $9,000 damage here Tuesday night. It is believed that the fire caught from a stove.

The losses are as follows:

Spencer Smith hotel	$3,000
Hotel furnishings	1,000
J. H. Slater, general store	2,000
F. S. McWilliams, store building	1,000
Meat market owned by G. Hutchins	1,000
Kinyon storage shed	500
Total	$8,700

The fire started in the hotel and went westward. It was feared for a time that I. A. Kinyon's big general store would burn, but it was saved by heroic work of the bucket brigade. The town has no means of fighting fire.

Kinyon's storage shed, between the store and the meat market was burned to the ground, but in burning it gave the fire fighters an opportunity to protect the larger building, and it was saved with only slight damage. A number of the residents of the city were overcome by smoke while fighting the fire. The night air was cold and a wind was blowing, making it difficult to fight the fire.

Smith had $1,600 insurance on the hotel. Slater is said to have had $1,500 insurance on his stock of general merchandise with one company, and the exact amount of the balance of the insurance is not known. F. S. McWilliams, who owned the Slater store building, and who lives above the store, had $1,000 insurance on the building and contents outside the store. The meat market was uninsured either as to building or contents.

Waukee's last serious fire was November 29, a year ago, when the north side of the square was wiped out.

MUST SERVE 25 YEARS.

Supreme Court Renders Decision in McKnight Case.

Des Moines, Jan. 22.—Ben McKnight, the Woodbury county wife murderer, will have to serve twenty-five years in the state penitentiary unless the pardoning power of the state is invoked in his behalf, which is unlikely. The supreme court considered his case today and an opinion has been handed down affirming the judgment in Judge Dewey's court, where McKnight was tried.

The crime of which McKnight was accused was of a most revolting nature. He was said to have persistently beaten his wife until he finally inflicted injuries from which she died. The evidence against him was furnished largely by his wife a short time before her death. She told the physicians and attendants who attended her bedside the details of the assaults and these as dying declarations were admitted in evidence.

In the appeal the defense made a strenuous but ineffectual effort to have these dying declarations stricken from the record. The court held that the testimony was competent under the rule laid down in the Phillips and Brooks case and that there was no doubt that at the time the woman made the statements she believed her self to be in the presence of death.

BRITT OFFERS $400,000.

Plans for Securing County Seat of Hancock are Announced.

Mason City, Jan. 26.—The Britt-Garner county seat contest has been fairly launched. That Britt might properly place its offer before the voters, the citizens decided to hold a mammoth reception. Every resident of the county was invited to become the city's guest and fully 1,000 were present. The ladies of the city turned out and feasted them. Speeches were made by Messrs. Senneff, Hammill and Aldrich. Chairman Tom Duff then made the offer that Britt would build a $40,000 court house complete in all appointments, and turn it over to the county free, should the voters elect to make it the county seat. The day was a great one for Britt.

The Iowa Central railroad station at Oakville was broken open and robbed of all its valuables, the burglars also despoiling the home of George H. Seevers. They secured $735 in cash and escaped.

John Desher, who has been under arrest at Marshalltown for obtaining a pony by false pretenses, was found not guilty, and was immediately re-arrested on the charge of adultery.

Charles E. Lamb, marshal of the town of Grundy Center, has filed a suit for $1,000 damages against the County Telegraph and Telephone company, having headquarters in Waterloo. Some weeks ago Lamb came in contact with a live wire, which, he alleges, was left hanging on the streets of the city, and received a severe shock from the highly charged wire.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Jan. 26, 1903.

A remarkable case was passed on by the supreme court in that of Parsons vs. Manser from Warren county, in which the plaintiff's horses were stung to death by defendant's bees and on judgment against Manser for the value of the killed horses the latter appealed. Parsons was a medicine peddler and hitched his team to a post near Manser's farm house. There were two bee hives near and three others in the yard. The horses were stung and becoming frantic overturned some of the bee hives and when found were down and covered with maddened bees. The defendant's daughter tried to cut the horses loose and threw water on the bees but had to flee for her own life. It was contended that since the bee hives were in plain sight of the road Parsons was guilty of contributory negligence in tying his horses near the bees; but the court holds he was entitled to the free use of the road and Manser had no right to harbor dangerous insects there. The contention that as bees are useful and in fact domestic animals and not wild ones, is not considered sufficient to excuse the owner of the bees. The court holds the owner of the bees fully responsible.

Attorney General Mullan has rendered a decision to State Auditor Carroll on the question of soldiers' exemption from taxation. An inquiry had come from Bremer county as to whether the exemption of $800 for all ex-soldiers applies to personal property as well as to real estate. The attorney general points out that the exemption is general and applies to both kinds of property, and that it is the duty of the officials to deduct from the taxable estate of a soldier $800 from the aggregate of both personalty and realty where both are owned by the same person. The exemption does not apply where the soldier has property for over $5,000.

The executive committee of the Iowa State Horticultural society has taken charge of the experiment station for the propogation of new varieties of fruit in Scott county long maintained under the direction of the late N. K. Fluke. The work being done by Mr. Fluke at this station was regarded as so important that the society determined it should not be stopped because of his death. He had been experimenting for the production of seedling apples and other fruits for many years and had been quite successful, but much of the work planned was yet incomplete. It has been arranged that for the present the work will be done under the supervision of Hon. Eugene Secor of Forest City, member of the Iowa house and a former president of the association. This is one of a number of experiment stations in part sustained by the state and under the direction of members of the Horticultural society.

A requisition has been made out in the office of Adjutant General Byers and signed by Governor Cummins for 2,200 Krag-Jorgenson rifles for the Iowa National Guard. This requisition will be forwarded at once to Washington, and it is hoped it will be acted upon at once. Adjutant General Byers is now in Washington, and he has assured Major John T. Hume in his office that the ordinance bureau is prepared to deliver the arms without delay. It is not impossible General Byers will remain in Washington until the requisition is honored. The requisition also calls for bayonets, belts and other accoutrements now in use in the regular service, and for 100,000 rounds of Krag-Jorgenson ammunition. The Springfield rifles and ammunition now on hand will be turned in to the government later. Adjutant General Byers has already succeeded in getting $8,000 of the claims of the state against the federal government on acount of Spanish-American war expenditures allowed. There is still $15,000 coming to Iowa, and a special bill will be introduced in congress to cover these claims.

Governor Cummins has been requested by the committee on ceremonies of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition to send a regiment of Iowa troops to St. Louis to take part in the dedication of the buildings April 30 of this year. If he cannot send a regiment, a smaller body will be acceptable. Quarters and subsistence at St. Louis will be furnished free, but the state will have to bear the cost of transportation and subsistence en route. If the troops go, they will be a part of the military in the line of parade with the president and his escort. Governor Cummins is favorably inclined to the proposition, but his action will depend on the condition of the National Guard fund, which he will investigate. May 30, the governor and his staff will go to Shiloh to the dedication of the Iowa monuments.

There is practically no longer a question that the next general assembly will be asked to make an appropriation of more money for the Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis. Probably $100,000 more will be sought from Iowa. Just how the matter will come up in the general assembly is not known. The members of the Iowa Louisiana purchase exposition commission will undoubtedly not appear in it. They have indicated from the start that their policy would be to cut their garments according to their cloth and make no complaint to the legislature because they were not allowed more funds. But while the commissioners are delicate about stirring up such a movement, there is no doubt they feel the need of an increased appropriation and would be glad to see the assembly allow $50,000 or $100,000 more. The action of the live stock breeders in Newton the past week in adopting resolutions favoring an additional appropriation is good evidence of the disposition in many quarters to have the state add to the $125,000 already appropriated. It is known the commissioners already feel that in view of the large appropriations made by Illinois, Missouri and some other states, Iowa will not be able to make the showing in comparison that she ought to. It is entirely possible that Governor Cummins will take the question up in his message and recommend an additional appropriation to the consideration of the legislature.

Deadlock in the Senate.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The statement is made by Senator Beveridge and reiterated by other senators that the statehood bill will never come to a vote, even if another bill does not pass this session. Senator Quay responds: "I will keep statehood the continuous business of the senate until a vote is taken or an arrangement made for a vote." Senator Dolliver says it looks like a prolonged struggle, with the outcome in doubt.

THAT MILLION-DOLLAR BABY.

Competition Induced by Senator Clark Was Unwise.

It is not unlikely that the offer of $1,000,000 for a male grandchild is the indirect cause of the death of Senator William A. Clark's daughter-in-law. Three couples—two daughters and their husbands and one son and his wife—were led by this extraordinary prize offer into an unwise and strenuous rivalry. The method of Zach Chandler is better. When his daughter became the wife of United States Senator Eugene Hale, the author of the celebrated "blood-letter" agreed to give her a present of $25,000 for each child with which she and her husband should be blessed, an arrangement that proved highly profitable to the newly married couple. The plan involved no sort of competition, no uneasiness, no anxiety on the part of Mrs. Hale, who is now one of the happiest of mothers.—New York Press.

HUSBAND IS TOO MODEST.

Mr. De Bathe Said to Be "Afraid of American Newspapers."

Mrs. Langtry's husband has not accompanied his beautiful and accomplished wife to America. He is a modest and timorous gentleman, who, according to his more aggressive better-half, is "afraid of the American newspapers." Mr. De Bathe's notoriety is not so much the fault of the newspapers as of the fierce light that beats about the throne. It would be impossible to wed so illustrious a woman as Mrs. Langtry without sharing in her advertising successes, and it is a pity that Mrs. Langtry's husband does not appreciate the dignity to which he has attained. One of these days he will become accustomed to these little journalistic attentions and miss them when they are not forthcoming.—Chicago Evening Post.

Thought She Would Go Crazy.

Hulls, Ill., Jan. 26th.—"I couldn't sit longer than five minutes in one place. I was always tired, but could not rest or sleep. I couldn't help crying and feeling that something awful was just about to happen. I thought I would go crazy." In this way does Mrs. A. M. Fysh of this place tell of the illness from which she has just recovered.

Mrs. Fysh's case was remarkable. If she fell asleep she would wake up frightened, her mouth dry and her nerves all worked up. She was lonesome and melancholy even when surrounded by loving friends. Her bones ached. She had to make water four or five times every night. She was constipated. She had a voracious appetite, yet was always hungry between meals. She coughed up a great deal of white phlegm.

She heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and after using them says:

"By the time I had taken five boxes I was a new woman. I can not tell how much good they did for me. Before using Dodd's Kidney Pills life was such a drag to me. Now I can do my work and feel glad that I have work to do. I am completely restored."

Singer Has Great Future.

Gwilym Miles, the famous bass baritone of New York, is a young Welshman, who has already made a great name for himself. He was discovered, it is said, some years ago, working in one of the iron factories of Pittsburg, where by chance he was heard singing. Several people became interested in him and he was taken to New York and placed under some of the best teachers. His voice has developed into a rich bass baritone with a range that is said to be very remarkable, taking tenor notes with wonderful purity, clearness and sweetness. He is very small in stature, but very broad and muscular, with splendid chest development.

Interviewing an Emperor.

In one way Francis Joseph, the Austrian emperor, fulfills the old fairy-book ideal of a sovereign—he is always ready to see and help his subjects in person. Their letters asking for an audience are sent in to the emperor's private secretary. Inquiries are made as to the truth of their contents, and if satisfactory, the writer, of whatever rank he may happen to be, is granted an interview with his sovereign alone. Nothing has done more to endear the emperor to his subjects than these informal audiences, through which countless wrongs have been quickly redressed.

Shakespeare and London.

That Shakespeare was a Londoner is a fact that has been two much ignored. It was here that he spent his literary life and gained the stimulus to his genius, says the London City Press. Close upon 300 years have passed away since he returned to end his days in his midland birthplace; but during the whole of that long period London has never thought of honoring his memory by any adequate memorial—not even by the erection of a public statue, except, of course, that in Westminster Abbey and the poor effigy in Leicester Square.

"I thought Spoonamore was going to marry Miss Garlinghorn, but I see she has let him get away." "Yes; her father didn't appear to be at all anxious for the match, and her mother was a little too anxious. She lost him on account of bad team work."

"Disgrace! The word goes not with our name, Batavius; and what mean you, then? In one word, speak."

"Well, then, Neil Semple and Capt. Hyde have fought a duel. That is what comes of giving way to passion. I never fought a duel. No one should make me. It is a fixed principle with me."

"Poor Neil! His fault, I am sure, it was not."

"Joanna! Neil is nearly dead. If he had been in the right he would not be nearly dead. The Lord does not forsake a person who is in the right way."

In the hall behind them, Katherine stood. The pallor of her face, the hopeless droop of her white shoulders and arms, were visible in its gloomy shadows. Softly as a spirit she walked, as she drew nearer to them.

"And the Englishman? Is he hurt?"

"Killed. He has at least twenty wounds. Till morning he will not live. It was the councilior himself who separated the men."

"My good Joris, it was like him."

For a moment Katherine's consciousness reeled. The roar of the ocean which girds our life round was in her ears, the feeling of chill and collapse at her heart. But with a supreme will she took possession of herself. "Weak I will not be. All I will know. All I will suffer." And with these thoughts she went back to the room and took her place at the table. In a few minutes the rest followed. Batavius had anticipated madam's amazement and shock. He had felt a just satisfaction in the suffering he was bringing to Katherine. But nothing had happened as he expected. The meal, instead of being pleasantly lengthened over such dreadful intelligence, was hurried and silent.

It was some comfort that after it Joanna and he could walk in the garden and talk the affair thoroughly over. Katherine watched them away, and then she fled to her room. And oh, how she wept! She took from their hiding place the few letters her lover had written her, and she mourned over them as women mourn in such extremities. In the full tide of her anguish, Lysbet stood at the door. She heard the inarticulate words of woe, and her heart ached for her child. She had followed her to give her comfort, to weep with her; but she felt that hour that Katherine was no more a child to be soothed with her mother's kiss. She had become a woman, and a woman's sorrow had found her.

It was near ten o'clock when Joris came home. His face was troubled, his clothing disarranged and blood-stained; and Lysbet never remembered to have seen him so completely exhausted. "Bram is with Neil," he said, "he will not be home."

"And thou?"

"I helped them carry—the other. To the 'King's Arms' we took him."

"Live will he?"

"His left lung is pierced through. A bad wound in the throat he has. But then, youth he has, and a great spirit, and hope. I wish not for his death, my God knows."

"Neil, what of him?"

"Unconscious he was when I left him at his home. Does Katherine know?"

"She knows."

"How, then?"

"O Joris, if in her room thou could have heard her crying! My heart for her aches, the sorrowful one!"

"See, then, that this lesson she miss not. It is a hard one, but learn it she must. If thy love would pass it by, think this, for her good it is."

The next morning was the sabbath, and many painful questions suggested themselves to Joris and Lysbet Van Beemskirk. Joris felt that he must not take his seat among the deacons until he had been fully exonerated of all blame of blood-guiltiness by the dominie and his elders and deacons in full kirk session. Madam could hardly endure the thought of the glances that would be thrown at her daughter, and the probable slights she would receive, so Katherine's piteous entreaty was listened to, and she was allowed to remain at home.

The kirk that morning would have been the pillory to her. She was unspeakably grateful for the solitude of the house, for space and silence, in which she could have the relief of unrestrained weeping. About the middle of the morning, she heard Bram's footsteps. Bram had not thought of Katherine's staying from kirk, and when she confronted him, so tear-stained and woe-begone, his heart was full of pity for her. Within the last twenty-four hours he had begun to understand the temptation in which Katherine had been; begun to understand that love never asks, What is thy name? Of what country art thou? Who is thy father?' He felt that so long as he lived he must remember Miriam Cohen as she stood talking to him in the shadowy store And this memory of Miriam made him very pitiful to Katherine.

"Every one is angry at me, Bram, even my father; and Batavius will not sit on the chair at my side; and Joanna says a great disgrace I have made for her. And thou? Wilt thou also scold me? I think I shall die of grief."

"Scold thee, thou little one? That I will not. And those that are angry with thee may be angry with me also."

"Bram! my Bram! my brother! There is one comfort for me,—if I knew that he still lived; if one hope thou could give me!"

"What hope there is, I will go and see, and, if there is good news, I will be glad for thee."

Not half an hour was Bram away; and yet, to the miserable girl, how grief and fear lengthened out the moments! When Bram came back, it was with a word of hope on his lips.

"I have seen," he said, "who dost thou think?—the Jew Cohen. He of all men, he has sat by Capt. Hyde's side all night; and he has dressed the wound the English surgeon declared 'beyond mortal skill.' And he said to me, 'Three times, in the Persian desert, I have cured wounds still worse, and the Holy One hath given me the power of healing; and, if He wills, the young man shall recover.' That is what he said, Katherine."

"Forever I will love the Jew. Though he fail, I will love him. So kind he is, even to those who have not spoken well, nor done well, to him."

At this moment the family returned from the morning service, and Bram rather defiantly drew his sister to his side. Joris was not with them. He had stopped at the "King's Arms" to ask if Capt. Hyde was still alive; for, in spite of everything, the young man's heroic cheerfulness in the agony of the preceding night had deeply touched Joris. No one spoke to Katherine; even her mother was annoyed and humiliated at the social ordeal through which they had just passed, and she thought it only reasonable that the erring girl should be made to share the trial.

As the time went on poor Katherine Van Heemskirk shivered and sickened in the presence of averted eyes and uplifted shoulders, and in that chill atmosphere of disapproval which separated her from the sympathy and confidence of her old friends and acquaintances.

"It is thy punishment," said her mother, "bear it bravely and patiently. In a little while, it will be forgot." But weeks went on, and the wounded men slowly fought death away from their pillows, and Katherine did not recover the place in social estimation which she had lost through the ungovernable tempers of her lovers.

But nothing ill lasts forever; and in three months Neil Semple was in his office again, wan and worn with fever and suffering, and wearing his sword arm in a sling, but still decidedly world-like and life-like. It was evident that public opinion was in a large measure with him, and though in the Middle Kirk the affair was sure to be the subject of a reproof, and of a suspension of its highest privileges, yet it was not difficult to feel the sympathy often given to deeds publicly censured, but privately admired. Joris remarked this spirit with a little astonishment and dissent. He could not find in his heart any excuse for either Neil or Hyde; and, when the elder enlarged with some acerbity upon the requirements of honor among men, Joris offended him by replying:

"Well, then, elder, little I think of that 'honor' which runs not with the laws of God and country."

"Let me tell you, Joris, the 'voice of the people is the voice of God,' in a measure; and you may see with your ain e'en that it mair that acquits Neil o' wrong-doing. Man, Joris! would you punish a fair sword-fight wi' the hangman?"

"A better way there is. In the pillory I would stand these men of honor, who of their own feelings think more than of the law of God. A very quick end that punishment would put to a custom wicked and absurd."

"Weel, Joris, we'll hae no quarrel anent the question. Here comes Neil, and we'll let the question fa' to the ground. There are wiser men than either you or I on baith sides."

Joris nodded gravely, and turned to welcome the young man. More than ever he liked him; for, apart from moral and prudential reasons, it was easy for the father to forgive an unreasonable love for his Katherine. Also, he was now more anxious for a marriage between Neil and his daughter. It was indeed the best thing to fully restore her to the social esteem of her own people; for by making her his wife, Neil would most emphatically exonerate her from all blame in the quarrel. Just this far, and no farther, had Neil's three months' suffering aided his suit,—he had now the full approval of Joris, backed by the weight of this social justification.

But, in spite of these advantages, he was really much farther away from Katherine. She had heard from Bram the story of the challenge and the fight; heard how patiently Hyde had parried Neil's attack rather than return it, until Neil had so passionately refused any satisfaction less than his life; heard, also, how even at the point of death, fainting and falling, Hyde had tried to protect her ribbon at his breast. She never wearied of talking with Bram on the subject; she thought of it all day, dreamed of it all night.

And she knew much more about it than her parents or Joanna supposed. Bram had easily fallen into the habit of calling at Cohen's to ask after his patient. At first he saw Miriam often; and, when he did, life became a heavenly thing to Bram Van Heemskirk. Katherine very soon suspected how matters stood with her brother, and gratitude led her to talk with him about the lovely Jewess.

But for some weeks after the duel she could not bear to leave the house. It was only after both men were known to be recovering, that she ventured to kirk; and her experience there was not one which tempted her to try the streets and the stores. However, no interest is a living interest in a community but politics; and far more important events had now the public attention. During the previous March, the Stamp Act and the Quartering Act had passed both houses of Parliament; and Virginia and Massachusetts, conscious of their dangerous character, had roused the fears of the other Provinces; and a convention of their delegates was appointed to meet during October in New York. It was this important session which drew Neil Semple, with scarcely healed wounds from his chamber. The streets were noisy with hawkers crying the detested Acts, and crowded with groups of stern-looking men discussing them.

It was during this time of excitement that Katherine said one morning, at breakfast, "Bram, wait one minute for me. I am going to Kip's store for my mother."

At the store, Bram left her, and after selecting the goods her mother needed, Katherine was going up Pearl street, when she heard herself called in a familiar and urgent voice. At the same moment a door was flung open; and Mrs. Gordon, running down the few steps, put her hand upon the girl's shoulder.

"Oh, my dear, this is a piece of good fortune past belief! Come into my lodgings. "Oh, indeed you shall! I will have no excuse. Surely you owe Dick and me some reward after the pangs we have suffered for you."

She was leading Katherine into the house as she spoke; and Katherine had not the will, and therefore not the power, to oppose her. She placed the girl by her side on the sofa; she took her hands, and, with a genuine grief and love, told her all that "poor Dick" had suffered and was still suffering for her sake.

Katherine covered her face, and sobbed with a hopelessness and abandon that equally fretted Mrs. Gordon.

"If I could only see Richard,—only see him for one moment!"

"That is exactly what I am going to propose. He will get better when he has seen you. I will call a coach, and we will go at once."

"Alas! Go I dare not. My father and my mother!"

"And Dick,—what of Dick, poor Dick, who is dying for you?" She went to the door and gave the order for a coach. "Your lover, Katherine. Child, have you no heart? Put on your bonnet again. Here also are my veil and cloak. No one will perceive that it is you. It is the part of humanity, I assure you. Do so much for a poor soul who is at the grave's mouth."

While thus alternately urging and persuading Katherine, the coach came, the disguise was assumed, and the two drove rapidly to the "King's Arms." Hyde was lying upon a couch which had been drawn close to the window. He was yet too weak to stand, too weak to endure long the strain of company or books or papers.

He heard his aunt's voice and footfall, and felt, as he always did, a vague pleasure in her advent. Whatever of life came into his chamber of suffering came through her. She brought him daily such intelligences as she thought conducive to his recovery; and it must be acknowledged that it was not always her "humor to be truthful." For Hyde had so craved news of Katherine, that she believed he would die wanting it; and she had therefore fallen, without one conscientious scruple, into the reporter's temptation,—inventing the things which ought to have taken place, and did not.

WHY HE LAUGHS AT DOCTORS.

Representative Livingston of Georgia, Tells Good Story.

Representative Livingstone of Georgia, believes that he got the better of the surgeons this fall and he is congratulating himself accordingly. As a result of his arduous campaign work he became possessed of a very bad throat. It refused to yield to ordinary treatment, so he went to a distinguished surgeon in his part of the country. The surgeon took a glance at the inflamed organ and then got out his knives and prepared for an operation. Mr. Livingstone demurred. After much pleading he was granted twenty-four hours in which to tighten up his nerve for the ordeal. While engaged in the tightening process another patient came along, was stretched out on the operating table and died before the surgeon finished with him. Livingston heard of this and stood off the surgeon on one pretext or another until he was ready to start for Washington. Just before leaving home he came upon an old negro mammy who offered a cure for his throat. She soaked a lump of sugar in turpentine. The dose did all the old mammy claimed for it. "And that," said Representative Livingstone, 'is the reason I laugh every time I see a doctor's sign."

THE EFFECTS OF LIGHTNING.

Completely Strips Bark From Tree—No Trace of Fire.

That much valuable knowledge as to the effects of lightning may be gained by a study of trees that have been struck by it is maintained by many English scientists. A tree which stood for many years on the side of a road a few miles from Wallingford, in England, was struck by lightning during a violent storm a short time ago and utterly destroyed. Mr. Percy E. Spielmann examined it a few hours afterward and found that the bark had been completely stripped off and flung to one side, and that a large branch had also been torn away and splintered. He looked for some token of fire but was unable to find any. He noticed, however, that the inner surface of the bark was marked longitudinally with thin wavy lines, very close set, of which the crests were about a quarter of an inch apart. He took several photographs of the ruined tree and he regards them as most useful, since they show clearly the rending effect of lightning on a fibrous tissue.

Youth and Happiness.

After all, it is open to dispute whether or not people are happy when they are young. Only one boy in town can carry water for the elephant; and he is oppressed by the thought that his father will spring the "detrimental to morals" argument on him just before the big show opens.

Perhaps, to dim it all, there is more pleasure in seeming young when you know that you are not than in being so.

Else why the complexion remedies, wrinkle chasers, and hair retainers, to say nothing of false teeth and other falseness?

Mrs. F. Wright, of Oelwein, Iowa, is another one of million women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A Young New York Lady Tells of a Wonderful Cure:—

"My trouble was with the organs. I am tall, and the doctor said I grew too fast for my strength. I suffered dreadfully from inflammation, doctored continually, but got no relief. I suffered from terrible dragging sensations with the most awful pains down in the side and pains in the back and the most agonizing headache. No one knows what I endured. Often I was sick to the stomach, and a little while I would be too sick to work, for three or four days; I was in a large store, and I suppose standing on my feet all day made me worse. At the suggestion of a friend of my mother's I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it is simply wonderful. I felt better after the first two or three doses; it seemed as though a weight was taken off my shoulders; I continued its use until now I can truthfully say I am entirely cured. I tell girls who are always paying doctor bills without getting any help that they ought to take your medicine. It costs so much less, and it is sure to cure them.—Yours truly, ANNA PRAHL, 174 St. Ann's Ave., New York City." — $5000 forfeit if original of above proving genuineness cannot be produced.

MART WOODS IS SILENCED

Man Implicated in Muscatine Dynamite Plots of 1893 Is Found Dead in Bed—Thought to Have Been Poisoned by Confederates.

Muscatine, Jan. 26.—Death has stopped the mouth of Mart Woods, who recently completed a penitentiary sentence for complicity in dynamiting three homes here the night of May 11, 1893, and evidence is at hand to indicate he was murdered by the men who hired him to fire the dynamite.

Poison is thought to have been the method used. He has made open threats recently to expose the whole plot by which these homes were wrecked at 2 o'clock in the morning by explosions, from which the inmates miraculously escaped death.

The owners of the homes had been prosecuting saloon keepers under the prohibitory law, John Mahin through the Journal, of which he was editor, E. M. Kesinger furnishing money, and N. Rosenburg being prosecuting attorey.

Woods was convicted on the evidence of a negro who swore he was hired to carry dynamite to the Kesinger home, where Woods fired it. He completed his penitentiary sentence last August. Since that time he has been the habitue of certain saloons and several saloon keepers seemed to stand in awe of him.

Besides threatening to expose the plot he let it be known he was preparing a book giving the history of the plot. Friday night he acted queerly, went home and was found dead Saturday by his wife. His appearance indicated he suffered great agony. His wife is hysterical and talks incoherently, but from her fragmentary remarks it is thought she will reveal something sensational when she regains composure.

The remains are in the hands of the coroner, and an investigation will be made. Meantime some parties, presumably acting for the saloon keepers, suspected of being implicated, have attempted to get hold of the manuscript of the unpublished book, but the officers have seized it and will give out nothing as to what it contains, until after a thorough investigation. While Woods was in the penitentiary his wife lived well with no apparent means of support.

SAYS HEIRS ARE SATISFIED.

Richards Not Short With Graves Estate, According to Son-in-Law.

Des Moines, Jan. 26.—Ed. Davis, a son-in-law of W. A. Richards, former deputy United States marshal, who is charged with complicity in the robbery of the Sullivans at Hamilton, claims that Richards is not short in his accounts to the estate of his father-in-law, in spite of the fact the reports filed show over $9,000 received and but $3,300 paid out on order of the court.

Davis is employed by one express companies in Des Moines. He says that Richards has settled with the heirs of the Graves estate. He says that he aided him in the work and drew the checks for him, and that these were cashed through the Citizens' National bank, and that all of the heirs are satisfied. He says there is but one unpaid claim against the estate, that of J. D. C. McFarland, who wants $250 for a monument. He says that Richards told him he intended to pay this, but would not pay it until he had to, giving as an excuse that McFarland had been mean and that he proposed to "make him sweat for his money."

Confirmation of Davis' statement was not obtainable at the bank or from other sources. Attorneys who havve been investigating the case say, however, that the discrepancy is greater than claimed by Davis, and that there is a shortage shown so far of something over $2,000. None of them would admit that they knew of funds deposited by Richards that could be attached to settle the claims.

MAY SOLVE MURDER MYSTERY.

Strange Disappearance of George MacMahon.

Clare, Jan. 24.—In the month of April, 1901, much mystery was caused by the disappearance of George Mac Mahon, a well to do farmer living between Fort Dodge and Clare. For weeks no trace was found of the missing man, relief parties being daily organized from Clare and other points. Several weeks after the disappearance MacMahon's body terribly decomposed was found in a slough not far from where he was last seen alive. When last seen MacMahon was under the influence of liquor and figured in a fight with a neighbor. Suspicion fell on various people but eventually the coroner's jury returned an open verdict. After this long lapse of time developments have occurred which throw some light on the mystery. A neighbor, Pete Soder, was ill-treating his son one day this week when the young man broke away and threatened to have his father arrested for the murder of MacMahon, declaring that the elder Soder murdered him with a neck yoke. Soder became alarmed at the threats of his son and has left the country. All efforts to locate him have failed.

BLACK HILLS GOLD STRIKE.

Report of Iowa Company's Rich Find is Corroborated.

Des Moines, Jan. 23.—The rich strike of gold recently reported as having been made by the Gladiator Mining Company of Des Moines, has been corroborated by several interested parties who have visited the mines and invested heavily in Gladiator stock at 50 cents per share.

The company is arranging to take a car load of stockholders and investors to their mines in the Black Hills for the purpose of investigating and arranging for the completion of treatment plants.

Bank Robbers at Fort Dodge.

Fort Dodge, Jan. 24.—A daring attempt to crack the safe of the bank of Vincent early yesterday morning was thwarted by the appearance on the scene of three young men returning from a party. The robbers fled, leaving a can of dynamite and a bottle of nitroglycerine behind them. One of the doors was blown off and another had almost given way. The safe contained $2,400. The sheriff is taking measures to apprehend the robbers.

RICHARDS NOW IN MEXICO.

Such Is the Conclusion Reached by Sheriff Bybee of Marion County.

Des Moines, Jan. 22.—Sheriff Bybee of Marion county wants former Deputy United States Marshal Richards. Sheriff Bybee said yesterday: "I am not looking for W. A. Richards in this country. If we get him it will be through the state department at Washington. Richards has gone to Mexico. He bought a ticket in Omaha for El Paso the Friday following the robbery. I think that has been pretty thoroughly established. By this time he is undoubtedly well into the interior of the southern republic. I do not know just where he is, but we propose to try to locate him."

It was said yesterday that one of the reasons Richards was asked to resign his commission as a deputy marshal was because a kit of safe blower's tools was found in his office. It had been known for two years that Richards had kept company with a bad gang in Des Moines and that some of his apparently closest friends were Pete Yoark, John West, Bill Burgoyne a man named Miggins, and others who have records as safe blowers and term servers. It was supposed he was using them as "stool pigeons" in his detective work, but since his disappearance well informed officers have said that they were not surprised at the indications of his connection with the Hamilton robbery. Suspicion was first directed to him when John West was on trial in Story county on a charge of attempting a jail delivery. West was known as "Joplin Red" and has served terms in Missouri and Illinois for safe blowing. One of his confederates was jailed at Nevada for an attempted robbery. West tried to pass him tools and nitro-glycerine to aid him in breaking jail. He was caught in the act and placed on trial. Richards went to Nevada and after testifying that he was a deputy United States marshal, testified to the good reputation of West. That was too much for local officers and they have not worked with him since.

B. F. PARKER INDICTED.

Grand Jury Accuses Him of Maintaining Liquor Nuisances.

Des Moines, Jan. 24.—Justice Duncan's anti-wine room crusade resulted in the returning of nine indictments yesterday. B. F. Parker, wholesale liquor dealer and the proprietor of thirty saloons, was indicted on three separate counts, charging him with keeping and maintaining liquor nuisances.

The place where it is charged the nuisances exist are at the southwest corner of East Second and Grand avenue, at the southeast corner of East Second and Walnut, and at the northeast corner of East First and Court. All are places which were raided by the police after hours and in each of the raids Justice Duncan participated. Charges were made that wine rooms are conducted in connection with each of the places, and the evidence shows that in each of the raids liquors were seized in the wine rooms. The court fixed Parker's bail bond at $500 in each case. He was notified that he was indicted and puromised to appear and furnish bonds this morning.

William Hayes and S. Judd, attaches of the place at East Second and Grand, and Charles Gritton and Gerard Embody, attaches of the place at East Second and Walnut streets, and W. B. Adams, an attache of the place at East First and Court avenue, were each indicted on the same charge. A second indictment was returned against Charles Gritton, alleging that he was concerned in the operating of the place at East First and Court avenue also. Bonds in each of these cases were fixed at $500 each.

CLOSE LEE COUNTY SALOONS.

Frank M. Ballinger Brings Injunction Suits Against All.

Keokuk, Jan. 22.—To close every saloon in Lee county is the plan adopted by Frank Ballinger, one of this city's attorneys. Yesterday the first of his injunction suits came up in the superior court and was heard by Judge Parsons.

Ballinger has filed seven injunction suits so far against prominent saloonkeepers in Keokuk, and has stated that he will file similar suits against every saloon in Lee county. There are fifty saloons in Keokuk and an equal number at Fort Madison and the other cities in the county, making about 100 in all.

Ballinger's motive is said to be one of revenge on the newly appointed Deputy County Attorney, who recently had the grand jury indict him for embezzlement, a charge which the former county attorney would not take up. Ballinger was found not guilty, the court throwing out the case, as there was nothing in it.

Ballinger has a reputation as a criminal lawyer. His start was a peculiar one. Several years ago John Graham, one of the sharewdest gold brick men in the country, was arrested here for attempting to swindle a Missouri banker. Graham was in the police station and asked for a lawyer. Ballinger, then recently admitted to the bar, happened to be passing by the station, and an officer called him in.

The Graham case decided his future. Ballinger defended the prisoner and thereby won a reputation.

DES MOINES AHEAD.

Largest Business Training School In West Located at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Jan. 24.—The Capital City Commercial college of Des Moines has made a remarkable record. It is probably not known to all our readers that the greatest commercial college of the West is located in the capital city. To those unacquainted with the facts it would be a revelation to visit this large institution, which now occupies three entire floors of the magnificent Y. M. C. A. building. President McCauley informed the writer that nearly 800 students have been enrolled in the day and evening school since September 1, 1902, upwards of 700 being enrolled in the day school. The attendance at the day school is now about 500. It is an interesting scene to witness so large a number of bright, energetic young men and women busily engaged in the various departments of the work of this popular school.

The Capital City Commercial College is an institution of which Des Moines people are justly proud. Young people contemplating entering business life will do well to acquaint themselves with the work of the 4C's and get a catalogue.

Insane Over Responsibility.

Fort Dodge, Jan. 22.—Her mind unbalanced because of the responsibility of the care of an estate left by her husband, Mrs. Oscar Martin, living on a farm near Dayton, left home, went to the near-by home of her brother, Axel Earst, and hanged herself in the hog chute. Her body was discovered by Earst. A note written by Mrs. Martin leaves the seven small children in the care of her brother.

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP. RELEASED BY PE-RU-NA.

Congressman Geo. H. White's Case. A Noted Sculptress Cured.

The world of medicine recognizes Grip as epidemic catarrh.-- Medical Talk.

LA GRIPPE is epidemic catarrh. It spares no class or nationality. The cultured and the ignorant, the aristocrat and the pauper, the masses and the classes are alike subject to la grippe. None are exempt—all are liable.

Have you the grip? Or, rather, has the grip got you? Grip is well named. The original French term, la grippe, has been shortened by the busy American to read "grip." Without intending to do so a new word has been coined that exactly describes the case. As if some hideous giant with awful GRIP had clutched us in its fatal clasp. Men, women, children, whole towns and cities are caught in the baneful grip of a terrible monster.

Pe-ru-na for Grip.

Mrs. Theophile Schmitt, wife of the Ex-Secretary of the German Consulate, writes the following letter from 3417 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.:

"I suffered this winter with a severe attack of la grippe. After using three bottles of Peruna I found the grip had disappeared."—Mrs. T. Schmitt.

Mrs. Celeste Covell writes from 219 N. avenue, Aurora, Ill.:

"Only those who have suffered with la grippe and been cured can appreciate how grateful I feel that such a splendid medicine as Peruna has been placed at the door of every suffering person."—Mrs. C. Covell.

Noted Sculptress Cured of Grip.

Mrs. M. C. Cooper, of the Royal Academy of Arts, of London, England, now residing in Washington, D. C., is one of the greatest living sculptors and painters of the world. She says:

"I take pleasure in recommending Peruna for catarrh and la grippe. I have suffered for months, and after the use of one bottle of Peruna I am entirely well."—Mrs. M. C. Cooper.

D. L. Wallace, a charter member of the International Barber's Union, writes from 15 Western avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.:

"Following a severe attack of la grippe I seemed to be affected badly all over.

"One of my customers who was greatly helped by Peruna advised me to try it, and I procured a bottle the same day. Now my head is clear, my nerves are steady, I enjoy food and rest well. Peruna has been worth a dollar a dose to me."—D. L. Wallace.

Lieutenant Clarice Hunt, of the Salt Lake City Barracks of the Salvation Army, writes from Ogden, Utah:

"Two months ago I was suffering with so severe a cold that I could hardly speak.

"Our captain advised me to try Peruna and procured a bottle for me, and truly it worked wonders. Within two weeks I was entirely well."—Clarice Hunt.

Congressman White's Letter.

Tarboro, N. C.

Gentlemen:—I am more than satisfied with Peruna and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."—George H. White, Member of Congress.

Mrs. T. W. Collins, Treasurer Independent Order of Good Templars, of Everett, Wash., writes:

"After having a severe attack of la grippe I continued in a feeble condition even after the doctors called me cured. My blood seemed poisoned. Peruna cured me."—Mrs. T. W. Collins.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Constipation Cured

Those who have used salts, castor oil, and the many home and manufactured purgatives, know that in such treatment there is no possibility of a cure from constipation. These remedies are at most physics and do absolutely no good. In fact they frequently provoke piles fistula, female disorders and many cases of appendicitis are traceable to their use. Soon the ordinary doses of these physics fail to have any effect upon the bowels.

There never was a case of temporary or obstinate constipation that would not cure. First, Mull's Grape Tonic is unlike any other treatment for constipation. It is the greatest and most positive laxative known. But that isn't what cures. It is the tonic properties of the grape and other fruits that strengthens the worn-out muscles of the intestinal tract. Mull's Grape Tonic builds flesh makes strength and creates rich, red blood. Mull's Grape Tonic is the finest thing ever known for constipation. It is guaranteed to cure you. Large sample bottle sent free to any address on receipt of 10 cents for postage by Lightning Medicine Co., Rock Island, Ill. Send your druggist's name. A LETTER

A letter from our old friend, A. M. Keily, the scenic artist of Garner, locates him at Fresno, Cal., right in the center of the land of sunshine and flowers. The letter was not intended for publication, but feeling that some of our readers might be interested we append a portion of it. He says that almost every day dawns foggy, but as the sun comes up the day clears.

"I am not at all sorry that I came, as I have seen a great many things of interest. I had a very nice time at both Denver and Salt Lake City where I stopped during my trip. Fresno is a good town of 20,000 inhabitants, something on the wide-open plan. The saloons never close so I've been told, however, I cannot speak from experience. This is the greatest wine country in the world. I saw a tank the other day that holds 96,000 gallons of wine.

There is a large China town here in Fresno. About 5,000 inhabitants. I attended a Chinese funeral the other day. It was something interesting. Went through China town one night was in several opium dives and saw them "hit the pipe." I do not know how long I shall stay here, but may decide to remain here for some time. Like this town very much. Bought $3.00 worth of theatre tickets to-day, to see Frederick Ward and Louis Jones in "The Tempest."

He concludes by saying that everybody has a "big mit" and bleed you at each opportunity.'

HYGIENIC SCHEME WENT W...

Mr. Shivers' Morning Plunge f... What He Anticipated.

"They say that the reaction ... afterglow of cold morning baths ... an infallible cure for neuralgia," ... Mr. Shivers.

"Cold water right out of the t... cried Mrs. Shivers.

"Certainly," replied her other ...

"O-o-oh, I couldn't," shuddered ... Shivers.

Mr. Shivers smiled a superior ...

"It is not one freeing plunge, ... gradual immersion, while you ... count six. Like this: One, and ... put in one foot. Two, you put ... other. Three, you sink on one ... Four, you sink on both. Five, ... plunge in your arms. Six, you ... merse your body. Yes, I shall ... tainl try it on Christmas morning

Slowly and reluctantly at the ... pointed time, Mr. Shivers crept ... his warm bed, silently casting a ... of reproach upon his smiling spouse ... and into the bathroom, and after ... time she heard him say:

"O-o-onne! Ouch! Oh!" "T... Ow, ow, ow, ow!" "Th-th-th-th-e ... followed by a blood-curdling yell and ... a tremendous splash.

Then there was a succession of agonized yells, and what Mrs. Shivers first took for a streak of lightning flashed out of the bathroom, plunged into bed, and rolled itself tightly in the covers.

"Why, Jeremiah?" gasped Mrs. Shivers.

Mr. Shivers simply glared and shivered.

"Woman," he roared, when he had controlled his chattering teeth, "did you put the lump of soap in the bottom of the bath on purpose?"

TURKEY WITH THREE BIG LEGS

Bought by Boarding House Keeper It Proved a Disappointment.

In a coop of turkeys received by a commission man yesterday was one which had three legs. The whole number are visible between the slats of the coop, the extra one standing at a slight angle from the two others, but perfect in form down to the toe nails.

The keeper of a small boarding house expressed a desire to purchase the turkey on account of the extra leg, and said he would like to have a whole coop of them, and would like them to have four legs, if possible.

When asked why he desired so many legs on turkeys, he said he always liked the leg of a turkey, and he had three boarders, and when there was turkey for dinner he always asked them what part they preferred, and all three of them always wanted a drumstick.

Of course, only two of them could be suited, and he never got a drumstick. The last time all three of the boarders asked for a leg off one bird he lost his temper, and said he guessed they must think he was carving a centipede.

After buying the three-legged turkey he found that the extra leg grew out of another one at the knee joint, and would be gone when the fowl was put on the table, and so after all the turkey had only two legs and a half.—Portland Oregonian.

Cow Kisses Woman in Court.

As a sequel to disputed ownership of a Jersey cow claimed by Mrs. Emma Houghman of Omaha, Police Judge King of South Omaha has bound over Charles Epstine for trial in the district court on the charge of theft.

Epstine had no proof of ownership other than his word. Mrs. Houghman asked that the cow be brought into court. The Court consented. As soon as the sleek looking Jersey appeared Mrs. Houghton called it by an endearing name and the cow walked up to her and kissed her. Three times the experiment was tried, and the cow each time rubbed her nose against Mrs. Houghton's face. Mrs. Houghman explained that she had taught the cow to do this. Justice of Peace P. C. Caldwell gave possession to Mrs. Houghman.

The First-Born.

Young Father—I am amazed, shocked, my dear, to hear you say you intend to give the baby some paregoric. Don't you know paregoric is opium, and opium stunts the growth, enfeebles the constitution, weakens the brain, destroys the nerves, and produces rickets, marasmus, consumption, insanity and death?

Young Mother—Horrors! I never heard a word about that. I won't give the little ducky darling a drop—no, indeed. But something must be done to stop his yelling. You carry him a while.

Father (after an hour's steady stamping with the squalling infant)—Where in thunder is that paregoric?

The Nestor of Engineers.

Charles H. Haswell, whose "Engineers' and Mechanics' Pocket-book" is known to engineers all over the world, is in his ninety-fourth year, but a hale fellow yet. By way of accounting for his remarkable mental and physical condition he says: "I take a great deal of exercise. I never drink ice water or touch condiments and I use stimulants only in very moderate quantities. After a hard struggle I gave up smoking three years ago. It's for the heart, you know." At their convention in 1897 the Institute of Naval Architects of Great Britain gave Mr. Haswell the title he has worn ever since—"the Nestor of engineers."

HAPPENINGS IN HAWKEYEDOM

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

CONGRESSMAN RUMPLE DIES

Passed Away at St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago, Where He Had Been Under Treatment for Throat Trouble of Many Months' Standing.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Captain J. N. W. Rumple, member of congress from the Second district of Iowa, died Saturday morning at St. Luke's hospital from an affection of the throat. He had been in Chicago for several months taking treatment, and a month ago went to the hospital. His home was in Marengo, Iowa, where he was a member of the law firm of Rumple & Hedges.

Captain Rumple was 61 years old and had been a member of congress for one term. He was born at Fostoria, Ohio, and went to Iowa when a boy. He attended the public schools and afterward entered Western college at Toledo, Iowa, and subsequently the State University of Iowa at Iowa City. He was a student of the normal department of the latter institution. Before coming to Iowa he had studied at Ashland academy.

While a student at the University of Iowa, in August, 1861, he enlisted in Company H of the Second Iowa cavalry, and remained in the service until October, 1865. He entered as a private and was mustered out as a captain. He participated in the battles of Island No. 10, New Madison, siege of Corinth, Sheridan's battle of Rienzi, charge at Farmington, Iuka, Corinth, Grierson's raid, Tupelo, in front of Hood's advance on Nashville, Franklin, Columbia, etc.

After peace was declared Captain Rumple entered the law office of the Hon. H. H. Martin at Marengo, Iowa. He was admitted to the bar in February, 1867, and was engaged in the active practice of his profession up to the time he entered congress, two years ago next March.

Captain Rumple was a member of the state senate at the adjourned session of the Fourteenth general assembly, and was also in the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth general assemblies.

Captain Rumple was a member of the state board of regents of the Iowa State university and spent a great deal of his time in promoting the educational interests of his state.

Last summer his condition became so serious that it was necessary for him to come to Chicago for treatment. On his arrival here he was examined and pronounced incurable. At the time of his death his wife and daughter were at his bedside.

SENSATIONAL CASE AT AN END.

Miss Myrtle Daugherty of Davenport Wanted $10,000.

Davenport, Jan. 31.—One of the most sensational damage suits which have been tried in the district court of Scott county has just come to a close, the jury reporting in favor of the defendants. Miss Myrtle Daugherty, one of the young society women of Davenport, claimed damages for injuries sustained as the result of a fall through a trap door in the floor of the Sweet & Minnehan shoe store. The defendants claimed that Miss Daugherty contributed to bring about the accident and that her injuries were not permanent.

The court room was crowded with prominent society young men and ladies during the hearing of the testimony. When the lawyers got personal and asked the fair plaintiff, who herself too the stand, some questions about her health she became hysterical and a carriage had to be called to take her home. The physical examination ordered by the physicians was unexpected by her and caused a sensation. The claim was for $10,000. The jury awarded a verdict for the defendants.

ARRESTED A BAD MAN.

Suspicious Character at Gilbert Showed Fight.

Ames, Jan. 29.—Constable Chris Johnson of Gilbert, and a posse of men armed with Winchester rifles and shot guns arrived in Ames having in custody a raw-boned, broad-shouldered, sandy-moustached man charged with having stolen an overcoat from the Morgan house at Gilbert station. The prisoner was turned over to Marshal Rickets who handcuffed him and took him to the county jail at Nevada.

The man had been in and around the hotel at Gilbert and when Chris Larson missed his overcoat he suspected the stranger. The latter denied the theft and accused the hotel porter, saying that the latter had hidden it under a stairway. The coat could not be found and a warrant was at once issued for the accused. When Constable Johnson attempted to serve it the man resisted arrest by pulling out a big revolver. When Johnson summoned aid the man was gone, and a chase lasting most of the day followed.

IOWAN'S DEAD IN WRECK.

Collision of Stock Trains Kills Three and Seriously Hurts Four.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Three persons were killed, four seriously injured and eight slightly hurt in a rear end collision between stock trains on the Chicago & Northwestern railway near La Fox, Ill. Dead: Chas. K. Coe of Woodbine, Ia., imprisoned in the debris and roasted to death; B. Blaine of Vail, Ia., pinned down by wreckage and burned, died an hour later in the station at La Fox; J. Peterson of Battlecreek, Ia., badly burned and died before medical aid arrived. Seriously injured: H. Johnstone, Clinton, Ia.; William Kochsims, Schlesswig, Ia.; Evers Neilson, Schlesswig, Ia.

The trains came together in a dense fog. The killed and injured were for the most part stockmen in the charge of stock on the way from Chicago to the east.

Groom Three Weeks Elopes.

Mason City, Jan. 30.—William Scoles, a groom of three weeks, has eloped with a young and pretty steno grapher of this city. The first marriage is said to have been not to the liking of the young man. Scoles is a barber.

CATTLE DYING OF BRONCHITIS.

Peculiar Form of Disease Causing Loss of Stock in Southern Iowa.

Des Moines, Jan. 30.—Dr. P. O. Koto, of Forest City, state veterinarian, who is in the city for a day or two, says there is considerable sickness among cattle in southern Iowa, due to a peculiar form of bronchitis known as bronchitis verminis. The malady is supposed to be caused by the presence in the bronchial regions of a small, thread-like parasite.

The disease has been quite severe and has caused serious losses of cattle in many ections. Yearlings seem to be the most liable to affection. In some herds, twelve to fifteen animals have been lost. Dr. Koto considers the disease is less serious now than it was a few week ago.

The causes of the diseases are thought to be local. No cases have so far appeared in the northern part of the state. The treatment that is best is rather conjectural, though injections of turpentine into the trachea are believed by some to be effective. Chief reliance, however, seems to be placed on changes in pastures and other local conditions of the herds into which the disease has entered.

A few cases of rabies are reported, though the number of them is few compared with the number reported last summer.

HIS ONLY CHANCE FOR LIFE.

Miner Undergoes a Peculiar Operation at Ft. Dodge.

Ft. Dodge, Jan. 30.—Juel Johnson, the miner who was injured by a fall of coal some time ago in the mines of the Pleasant Valley Coal company, was given his only chance for life by an operation just performed. The back bone was exposed and the broken arches of the bone which were pressing upon the spinal cord removed. A discovery which was made causes the situation to appear more serious. It was found that the spinal cord had been cut through by the pressure of the bone, and was merely held together by the membranes. For this reason, in spite of the fact that the pressure upon the cord has been entirely relieved, and that the patient went through the operation well, little hope can be extended for the patient as the nerves of the spinal cord are exceptionally slow to renew themselves.

FREIGHT TRAIN'S HARD LUCK.

Killed Three Horses, Five Cattle and Injured Brakeman.

Cedar Falls, Feb. 2.—Unusual bad luck seemed to follow the freight train on the Rock Island which killed one of the horses on the dray team of George W. Clark. It seems that in running fifteen miles the train met no less than four mishaps. The train was running south, and just before reaching Norris junction, a few miles north of Cedar Falls, it struck and killed two horses. At Norris the brakeman, C. W. Severson, was thrown or fell from the top of a car and was severely injured. Between Norris and Cedar Falls the engine plowed through a bunch of cattle, and five were slain, and at Cedar Falls the Clark dray team was struck. The train crew is looking for the hoodoo which pursued them on that trip.

SHORTAGE IS $214,391.

Sensational Disclosures in Report on Oto Bank.

Sioux City, Jan. 30.—Sensational disclosures are made in the report of George F. Sparks, as expert accountant, who examined the books of Cutting & Willett, of the Oto bank, under orders of the trustee in bankruptcy, which report shows the enormous sum of $214,391.22 not accounted for on the books of the bank. Of this sum, however, it is reported that $52,563.11 is accounted for on the cash blotter, but not credited to any accounts in the books. The shortage heretofore reported by the bank, as shown by the bank, was $34,833.65.

TWO SYRIANS SUFFOCATED.

Peddlers Found Dead in Burlington Hotel, With Gas Jets Open.

Burlington, Feb. 2.—Two Syrians who arrived here a day or so ago and put up at the Burlington house, were found dead in bed yesterday morning, having been suffocated by gas. It is believed they blew out the gas. They had been in the country but a short time and were selling fancy goods over the country. They went by the name of Melcome. Four companions who slept in an adjoining room escaped by having their window open.

Assets of Oto Bank Ordered Sold.

Sioux City, Jan. 31.—Before C. L. Jerry, referee in bankruptcy, yesterday, the assets of the bank of Oto, Woodbury county, were ordered sold. As nearly as can be ascertained they amounted to $8,687.18. The liabilities, as reported by an expert accountant, are $214,391.22, of which $161,820.11 is unaccounted for. The owners of the bank, Cutting and Willett, admit they speculated in grain. It is not expected creditors will get over 12½ cents on the dollar.

A Suit Is For Loss of a Leg.

Sioux City, Jan. 30.—Mrs. H. Volkmar, from near Battle Creek, asks the county for $12,000 damages for the loss of a leg. The supervisors will contest the claim. Mrs. Volkmar was injured by being backed off the end of a bridge over an embankment. The horse which she was driving became frightened and the accident resulted. Her leg was broken and had to be amputated.

Mrs. Gallaugher Ill.

Muscatine, Feb. 2.—Mrs. James Gallaugher, whose trial for perjury in the case where she was accused of the murder of her husband at River Junction, is reported to be lying dangerously ill at the home of her uncle George W. Colwell at Lone Tree. She is suffering from pleurisy and has physicians in constant attention.

Company Was Deep in Debt.

Davenport, Jan. 30.—Debts aggregating $150,000 have been unearthed against the defunct contracting firm, J. E. Nason of Minneapolis, president of the company, has notes out for over $100,000. He seems to be about the whole company. Most of this worthless paper is scattered throughout the Iowa banks.

Prefers Noose to Children.

Ottumwa, Jan. 31.—Despondent over the care of her children, Mrs. Elvira Ellis, a widow residing at Hiteman, attempted to hang herself. She was adjudged insane and taken to Mt. Pleasant.

Found a 39-Grain Pearl.

Lansing, Jan. 31.—Frank Cormack, a "clammer," found a 39-grain pearl of beatiful color. The pearl was found in 200 pounds of shells which he had "forked" through the ice.

George E. Roberts Reappointed.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Among the nominations sent to the senate yesterday by the president was that of George E. Roberts of Iowa to be director of the mint.

Now, here was the real Katherine. Her very presence, her smiles, her tears, her words, would be a consolation so far beyond all hope, that the girl by her side seemed a kind of miracle to her.

She was far more than a miracle to Hyde. As the door opened, he slowly turned his head. When he saw who was really there, he uttered a low cry of joy,—a cry pitiful in its shrill weakness. In a moment Katherine was close to his side. She kissed his hands and face, and whispered on his lips the sweetest words of love and fidelity. Hyde was in a rapture. He lay still, speechless, motionless, watching and listening to her.

Hyde could speak little, but there was no need of speech. Had he not nearly died for her? Was not his very helplessness a plea beyond the power of words. And so quickly, so quickly, went the happy moments! Ere Katherine had half said, "I love thee," Mrs. Gordon reminded her that it was near the noon.

"Then we must part, my Katherine, for a little. When will you come again?"

This was a painful question, because Katherine felt, that, however she might excuse herself for the unforeseen stress of pity that all unaware had hurried her into this interview, she knew she could not find the same apology for one deliberate and prearranged.

"Only once more," Hyde pleaded. "I had, my Katherine, so many things to say to you. In my joy, I forgot all. Come but once more. Upon my honor, I promise to ask Katherine Van Heemskirk only this once. To-morrow? 'No.' Two days hence, then?"

"Two days hence I will come again. Then no more."

He smiled at her, and put out his hands; and she knelt again by his side, and kissed her "farewell" on his lips. And, as she put on again her cloak and veil, he drew a small volume towards him, and with trembling hands tore out of it a scrap of paper, and gave it to her.

Under the lilac hedge that night she read it, read it over and over,—the bit of paper made almost warm and sentient by Phoedria's tender petition to his beloved:

"When you are in company with that other man, behave as if you were absent; but continue to love me by day and by night; want me, dream of me, expect me, think of me, wish for me, delight in me, be wholly with me: in short, be my very soul, as I am yours."

CHAPTER VIII.

"The Silver Link, the Silken Tie."

If Katherine had lived at this day, she would probably have spent the time between her promise and its fulfilment in self-analysis and introspective reasoning with her own conscience. But the women of a century ago were not tossed with winds of various opinions, or made foolishly subtile by arguments about principles which ought never to be associated with dissent. A few strong, plain dictates had been set before Katherine as the law of her daily life; and she knew, beyond all controversy, when she disobeyed them.

In her own heart, she called the sin she had determined to commit by its most unequivocal name. "I shall make happy Richard; but my father I shall deceive and disobey, and against my own soul there will be the lie." This was the positon she admitted, but every woman is Eve in some hour of her life. The law of trutn and wisdom may be in her ears, but the apple of delight hangs within her reach; and, with a full understanding of the consequences of disobedience, she takes the forbidden pleasure.

There are women who prefer secrecy to honest, and sin to truthfulness; but Katherine was not one of them. If it had been possible to see her lover honorably, she would have much preferred it, but she knew well the storm of reproach and disapproval which would answer any such request; and her thoughts were all bent toward devising some plan which would enable her to leave home early on that morning which she had promised her lover.

But all her little arrangements failed; and it was almost at the last hour of the evening previous, that circumstances offered her a reasonable excuse. It came through Batavius, who returned home later than usual, bringing with him a great many patterns of damask and figured cloth and stamped leather. At once he announced his intention of staying at home the next morning in order to have Joanna's aid in selecting the coverings for their new chairs, and counting up their cost. He had taken the strips out of his pocket with an air of importance and complaisance; and Katherine, glancing from them to her mother, thought she perceived a fleeting shadow of a feeling very much akin to her own contempt of the man's pronounced self-satisfaction. So when supper was over, and the house duties done, she determined to speak to her. Joris was at a town meeting, and Lysbet did not interfere with the lovers. Katherine found her standing at an open window, looking thoughtfully into the autumn garden.

"Mijn moeder."

"Mijn kind."

"Let me go away with Bram in the morning. Batavius I cannot bear. About every chair cover he will call in the whole house. Moeder, you know how it will be. To-morrow I cannot bear him. Very near quarrelling have we been for a week."

"I know, Katherine, I know. Leave, then, with Bram, and go first to Margaret Pitt's, and ask her if the new winter fashions will arrive from London this month. And look now, Katherine, peace is the best thing; and to his own house Batavius will go in a few weeks."

"Mijn Moeder, sad and troubled are thy looks. What is thy sorrow?"

"For thee my heart aches often—mine and thy good father's, too. Dost thou not suffer? Can thy mother be blind? Nothing hast thou eaten lately. Joanna says thou art restless all the night long. Thou art so changed then, that wert ever such a happy little one. Hard is thy mother's lot. The dear children I nursed on my breast, they go here and they go there, with this strange one and that strange one. Last night, ere to our sleep we went, thy father read to me some words of the loving, mother-like Jacob. They are true words. Every good mother has said them, at the grave or at the bridal, "If I am bereaved of my children, I am bereaved."

There was a sad pathos in the homely old words as they dropped slowly from Lysbet's lips. Many a year afterward Katherine remembered the hour and the words, especially in the gray glooms of late October evenings.

The next morning was one of perfect beauty, and Katherine awoke with a feeling of joyful expectation. She paid a very short visit to the mantuamaker, and then went to Mrs. Gordon's.

A coach was in waiting, and in a few minutes they stood together at Hyde's door. There was a sound of voices within; and, when they entered, Katherine saw, with a pang of disappointment, a fine, soldierly looking man in full uniform sitting by Richard's side. But Richard appeared to be in no way annoyed by his company. He was looking much better, and wore a chamber gown of maroon satin, with deep laces showing at the wrists and bosom.

With an air that plainly said, "This is the maiden for whom I have fought and suffered; is she not worthy of my devotion?" he introduced her to his friend, Capt. Earle. But, even as they spoke, Earle joined Mrs. Gordon, at a call from her; and Katherine noticed that a door near which they stood was open, and that they went into the room to which it led, and that other voices then blended with theirs. But these things were as nothing. She was with her lover, alone for a moment with him; and Richard had never before seemed to her half so dear or half so fascinating.

"My Katharine," he said, "I have one tormenting thought. Night and day it consumes me like a fever. I hear that Neil Semple is well. They will make you marry him, my darling."

"No; that they can never do."

"But I suffer in the fear. I suffer a thousand deaths. If you were only my wife, Katherine!"

"Oh, my love, my love!"

"See how I tremble, Katherine. Life scarcely cares to inhabit a body so weak. If you refuse me I will let it go. If you refuse me, I shall know that in your heart you expect to marry Neil Semple—the savage who has made me suffer unspeakable agonies."

"Never will I marry him, Richard, never, never. My word is true. You only I will marry."

"Then now, now, Katherine. Here is the ring. Here is the special license from the governor; my aunt has made him to understand all. The clergyman and the witnesses are waiting. Now, Katherine? Now, now!"

She rose, and stood white and trembling by his side—speechless, also. To her father and her mother her thoughts fled in a kind of loving terror. But how could she resist the pleading of one whom she so tenderly loved, and to whom, in her maiden simplicity, she imagined herself to be so deeply bounden? And when Richard ceased to speak, and only besought her with the unanswerable pathos of his evident suffering for her sake, she felt the argument to be irresistible.

"Well, my Katherine, will you pity me so far?"

"All you ask, my loved one, I will grant."

"Angel of goodness! Now?"

"At your wish, Richard."

He took her hand in a passion of joy and gratitude, and touched a small bell. Immediately there was a sudden silence, and then a sudden movement in the adjoining room. The next moment a clergyman in canonical dress came toward them. By his side was Col. Gordon, and Mrs. Gordon and Capt. Earle followed. The ceremony was full of solemnity, and of that deepest joy which dims the eyes with tears, even while it wreathes the lips with smiles. During it, Katherine knelt by Richard's side; and every eye was fixed upon him, for he was almost fainting with the fatigue of his emotions; and it was with fast receding consciousness that he whispered rapturously at its close, "My wife, my wife!"

Throughout the sleep of exhaustion which followed, she sat watching him. The band of gold about her finger fascinated her. She was now really Richard's wife; and the first sensation of such a mighty change was, in her pure soul, one of infinite and reverent love. When Richard awoke, he was refreshed and supremely happy.

The coach was waiting; and, without delay, Katherine returned with Mrs. Gordon to her lodgings, and then home.

As time went on, without being watched, Katherine felt herself to be under a certain amount of restraint. If she proposed a walk into the city, Joanna or madam was sure to have the same desire. She was not forbidden to visit Mrs. Gordon, but events were so arranged as to make the visit almost impossible; and only once, during the month after her marriage, had she had an interview with here husband. For even Hyde's impatience had recognized the absolute necessity of circumspection.

The marriage license had been obtained from the governor, but extraordinary influence had been used to procure it. Katherine was under age, and yet subject to her father's authority. In spite of book and priest and ring, he could retain his child for at least three years; and three years, Hyde—in talking with his aunt—called "an eternity of doubt and despair." Fortunately Joanna's wedding-day was drawing near, and it absorbed what attention the general public had for the Van Heemskirk family. For it was a certain thing, developing into feasting and dancing; and it quite put out of consideration suspicions which resulted in nothing, when people examined them in the clear atmosphere of Katherine's home.

In the middle of the afternoon of the day before the marriage, there was the loud rat-tat-tat of the brass knocker, announcing a visitor. It was Mrs. Gordon, and she nooded and laughed in a triumphant way that very quickly brought Katherine to her side. "My dear, I kiss you. You are the top beauty of my whole acquaintance." Then, in a whisper, "Richard sends his devotion. And put your hand in my muff; there is a letter. And pray give me joy; I have just secured an invitation. I asked the councillor and madam point blank for it. Faith, I think I am a little of a favorite with them! How is the young Bruce? My dear, if you don't make him suffer, I shall never forgive you. Alternate doses of hope and despair, that would be my prescription."

Katherine shook her head.

"On my wedding day, as I left Richard, this he said to me, 'My honor, Katherine, is now in your keeping.' By the lifting of one eyelash, I will not stain it."

"My dear, you are perfectly charming. You always convince me that I am a better woman than I imagine myself. I shall go straight to Dick, and tell him how exactly proper you are. Really, you have more perfections than any one woman has a right to."

"To-morrow, if I have a letter ready, you will take it?"

"I will run the risk, child. Now, adieu. Return to your evergreens and ribbons." And so, lightly humming Katherine's favorite song, she left the busy house.

Before daylight the next morning, Batavius had every one at his post. The ceremony was to be performed in the Middle Kirk, and he took care that Joanna kept neither Dominie de Ronde nor himself waiting.

Katherine looked for Mrs. Gordon in vain; she was not in the kirk, and she did not arrive until the festival dinner was nearly over. Batavius was then considerably under the excitement of his fine position and fine fare. He sat by the side of his bride, at the right hand of Joris; and Katherine assisted her mother at the other end of the table.

DINERS WHO BECAME NOTED.

Milner, Schreiner and Steyn Guests at Inner Temple, London, Years Ago.

Some twenty years ago there used to dine at the Inner Temple, London, three young men whose careers in life were destined by fate to cross in a very remarkable manner. At that time these three young embryo lawyers were comparatively unknown to each other; their names were Milner, Schreiner and Steyn. The position of each of these young law students is now too well established to need much comment. Milner now rules the Transvaal colony, Schreiner is the former premier of Cape Colony and Steyn the former president ot the Orange River Colony. Their names are familiar to everyone in the civilized world, but their work is by no means over; indeed, in the present position of affairs it seems likely that their names will be much before the public for some time to come in connection with some movement or other.

Sails for Skaters.

Considering the number of persons in this country that indulge in skating, it is somewhat of a surprise to see how few of them have ever used a skate sail, or in fact have ever heard of such a thing. However, in the last few years this sport has become better known, and it is not an uncommon sight to see dashing hither and thither among the dark forms of the skaters, the glistening sails of the skate sailors.

To the onlooker it seems at the first glance that the sailor must certainly lose his balance and topple over, so sharply does he lean backward against his sail; but so strong is the force of the wind exerted against it that this expected fall is seldom a reality. When it does happen the unfortunate is usually a novice.

There are but few requisites for the enjoyment of this pastime. First and of the most importance is a pair of sharp skates. A few yards of cotton cloth and some small poles furnish the rest of the material. From these any person can with a little care fashion a sail that will furnish him with many a happy hour.—Country Life in America.

Saves Money in Vines.

Instead of blowing down coal in mines by means of dynamite an Englishman intends to make use of a hydraulic cartridge, which is said to obviate the wasteful shattering of the fuel. The cartridge is 20 inches in length. Orifices along its sides admit of the application of a pressure of some three tons per square inch. The total pressure is about sixty tons. When inserted in a hole the cartridge is coupled up with a small hand pump. It is said that in a few minutes after the apparatus has been at work the coal breaks up and falls in great blocks. About one and one-half pints of water are used in the operation. One colliery proprietor who has adopted the invention for use in three mines computes that each cartridge saves $75 per week.

STORIETTES.

The other night an Irishman accosted a gentleman on the street with a request for the time. The gentleman, suspecting that Pat wished to snatch his watch, gave him a stinging rap on the nose, with the remark: "It has just struck one." "Be jabers," retorted Pat, "Oi'm glad Oi didn't ax yees an hour ago!"

It is related that a certain prominent politician recently left his umbrella in the stand at his hotel in Washington, D. C., with the following inscription attached to it: "This umbrella belongs to a man who can deal a blow of two hundred and fifty pounds weight. I shall be back in ten minutes." On returning to seek his property, he found in its place a card thus inscribed: "This card was left by a man who can run twelve miles an hour. I shall not be back."

During an engagement in the Transvaal war, General De Wet was amused by a Jew who came up to a burgher who was lying behind a stone on a piece of ground where bowlders were scarce. "Sell me that stone for half-a-crown," whined the Jew. "Get out!" the Boer cried; "I want it myself." "I will give you fifteen shillings," insisted the Jew. De Wet adds that although the Boer had never before possessed anything that had risen in value with such surprising rapidity, at that moment he was anything but ready to drive a bargain with the Jew, and without any hesitation he positively declined to do business.

Balzac was once asked by a French publisher to write an article on the Rue Richelieu. He named his terms, which today would not seem excessive, but the publisher considered them outrageous, whereupon Balzac replied: "If I am to describe the Rue Richelieu in a way worthy of the street and of myself, I must know it thoroughly, and must not upon any account fail to investigate all that specially characterizes it. I shall have to commence by lunching at the Cafe Cardinal, then I must buy gum and a cravat pin at the two shops next door to each other. After that I must go to the tailor's at the corner of the Rue St. Marc——" "Oh, don't go any further than that," interrupted the publisher in alarm; "you would come to the Indian shop next, and things there are a fabulous price."

In the days when the House was Democratic and Carlisle was in the Speaker's chair, it is related that once Representative Cox, of New York, was pushing a bill and trying to cut off debate. "Uncle Joe" Cannon was anxious to have his word, and he appealed for a show. He declared that he wanted only a few minutes. "Well," said Cox grimly, "will the gentleman from Illinois put his hands in his pockets?" "Uncle Joe" complied, wonderingly. "Now," said Cox, "I will give way to the gentleman for just so long a time as he keeps his hands there." Off went "Uncle Joe," soft and mild as you please, his hands crowded into his pockets and hanging on for dear life. That lasted for three sentences, but with the fourth the right arm swung out and far aloft in frantic gesture. Bang went the Speaker's gavel. "The gentleman's time has expired," shouted Mr. Carlisle, and "Uncle Joe" sat down abruptly.

Apropos of the recent death of his daughter, Mrs. Jessie Fremont, a characteristic anecdote is revived of Senator Benton, of Missouri, showing his tenderness and devotion to his invalid wife. It seems that during her later years her mind became impaired by a paralytic stroke, but she never failed to recognize her husband, and was fond of being near him. Once, when her distinguished husband was entertaining a foreign prince in the drawingroom, Mrs. Benton came to the door, in a state of undress, and stood gazing at her husband The attention of the company being attracted in her direction, Benton turned to see what the attraction was. On perceiving his poor wife, he immediately rose, went to her, took her tenderly by the hand, and, leading her into the room, said: "My dear, Prince So-and-So; prince, Mrs. Benton, sir." Then affectionately placing a hassock for her by the side of his chair he resumed his seat, and, leaving one of his hands in hers for her to toy with, he went on with the conversation. The prince was quick to take in the situation, and adapted himself to the occasion with consummate tact, while all the Missourians were deeply affected.

Few Old Men Can Say This.

Lakefield, Minn., Feb. 2d.—Wm. E. Gentry of this place makes the following statement:

"For over forty years I suffered with misery in my back and at times I could not pass water without great pain and a burning sensation. I have had to make water as often as sixteen times during one night—just a little at a time. I tried many kinds of kidney medicines, but all without any good result, till at last I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills, and my pains are all gone."

"I took six boxes and I am cured completely. I am 77 years of age and I feel better now than I have for over fifty years and I attribute it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have made some remarkable cures in this part of the state, and many old men and women are praising them highly as a cure for lame back, kidney and bladder troubles.

While many people have been cured of chronic catarrh by a single bottle of Peruna, yet, as a rule, when the catarrh becomes thoroughly fixed more than one bottle is necessary to complete a cure. Peruna has cured cases innumerable of catarrh of twenty years' standing. It is the best, if not the only internal remedy for chronic catarrh in existence.

But prevention is far better than cure. Every person subject to catching cold should take Peruna at once at the slightest symptom of cold or sore throat at this season of the year and thus prevent what is almost certain to end in chronic catarrh.

ROSCUM CASE REVERSED.

Supreme Court Says Newspaper Testimony Was Admitted.

Des Moines, Jan. 31.—The supreme court reversed the judgment of Judge Smith's court in Des Moines county in the case of the state against David Roscum, who had been indicted for malicious mischief. The case is of importance because the reversal is made on grounds that are comparatively new in this state.

Roscum was accused of having taken thirty-six peach and five apple trees from the farm of a neighbor named Anderson. There was little evidence against him except the fact that he was alleged to be a person of bad character and had been seen hanging around the premises a short time before the trees were taken.

During the course of the trial the prosecuting attorney repeatedly attempted to have introduced evidence which the supreme court says "could scarcely have been offered by any lawyer in the belief that it was admissable." This evidence tended to show that Roscum had stolen geese from a neighbor and had engaged in other acts of petty knavery. Later in the trial Roscum was asked in his cross-examination whether or not he had stolen plums from another neighbor. He denied this and evidence was introduced to impeach his testimony.

The court holds that the admission of the latter evidence was error and that the repeated asking of inadmissable questions to show that the accused was guilty of a separate offense had the effect of injuring Roscum in the eyes of the jury. It is laid down as a general principle that the introduction of evidence tending to show the accused has been guilty of crimes other than that of which he is accused is error.

BYERS RETURNS FROM EAST.

New Military Bill Pleases Adjutant General.

Des Moines, Jan. 31.—Adjutant General Byers has returned from Washington, where he has been looking after the intrests of the Iowa National Guard in legislation. He is well satisfied that the Iowa claims for money expended in equipping the volunteers for the war against Spain will all be met this winter, a part of the claims through the auditing department and a part by direct appropriation. He is immensely pleased with the passage of the Dick bill for making the national guards of the various states a part of the regular establishment and creating of the guard a definite reserve for war purpose in connection with the army. Before leaving Washington he called on the chief of the ordnance department and ascertained that the bureau is ready to do its part in supplying the guardsmen with guns and equipment. The chief of the bureau stated that he has already shipped 30,000 stands of arms to the Rock Island arsenal and from these will be supplied the regiments of the guards in this part of the country. General Byers believes the effect of the new idea in consolidating the regulars and the guards will be to greatly benefit the guards. Nothing was done in the matter of deciding what number of guardsmen will go to Fort Riley to go into camp with the regulars next summer.

POSTOFFICE AT DAYTON ROBBED

Safe Blown Open and Contents Taken by Professionals.

Dayton, Jan. 30.—A gang of burglars blew up the safe in the postoffice at this place at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The night watchman heard the noise in the postoffice and ran to the notel, where he aroused the landlord. The landlord took his shotgun and the two men started for the postoffice. Several shots were fired at the robbers. The safe had been dynamited and torn to pieces and the postoffice building is badly wrecked. There is no clue to the identity of the robbers. It is believed that at least a half dozen men were implicated in the raid.

When the landlord and the marshal started for the postoffice building armed with revolvers and a shotgun, they met a sentry who had been posted a half block from the postoffice. The sentry fired into them and then made a quick escape. It is believed that the robbers had sentries on either side of the postoffice in Main street.

The postmistress, Kate Warren, had placed all the money and stamps in the bank, except about $20, which was taken in after banking hours and which was secured by the robbers.

WANTS CHANGE OF VENUE.

Mrs. Gallaugher's Attorneys Will File Affidavits of Prejudice.

Iowa City, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Ellen Gallaugher will probably be tried for perjury in another county than Johnson, where she was tried and acquitted of the murder of her husband. Her attorneys will soon file an affidavit of prejudice in Johnson county and ask the court to transfer the trial to another county. Newspaper clippings and articles will be introduced into court with the affidavit, showing that the minds of the people of Johnson county have been so poisoned against Mrs. Gallaugher that she cannot have a fair trial here.

The people of the southern part of the county, where Mrs. Gallaugher lived with her husband before his murder last June, are much incensed against her on account of what they believe to be the miscarriage of justice by which she was acquitted, and hope to have her sent to the penitentiary for perjury committed by her while on the witness stand in her own behalf.

The trial of Mrs. Gallaugher, unless removed to another county, will take place early in February.

Davenport Profits in Court.

Davenport, Jan. 31.—The city of Davenport has won in the United States district court, the famous Allen paving case, thereby securing judgment for about $20,000. The controversy was over refusal of the Allens, property owners, to paying assessments amounting to about $15,000. The district and supreme courts decided in favor of the property holders and the case was carried to the federal court, where the state courts were reversed.

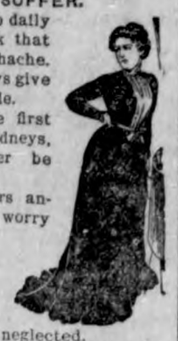
Flees From Peril to Death.

Sioux City, Jan. 31.—While fleeing across Floyd river to escape from two men who were following her, Mrs. Sarah F. Owen, a Syrian peddler, fell through the ice and was drowned. Her screams brought assistance, but it was too late. Her peddler's pack was recovered. The police are investigating. The body has not been recovered.

Struck Head on a Rock.

Sioux City, Jan. 31.—Will McGowan, foreman of a carpenter gang at work on the Omaha shops here, fell eighteen feet, striking his head on a rock. He sustained a severe fracture of the skull and may die. A thousand pound structure fell over him. A projection struck on the ground, miraculously saving him from being chushed.

WOMEN SUFFER.



Hard to attend to daily duties with a back that aches like the toothache.

A woman's kidneys give her constant trouble.

Backache is the first warning of sick kidneys, and should never be neglected.

Urinary disorders annoy, embarrass and worry womankind.

Dangerous diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease are sure to follow if the kidneys are neglected.

Read how to cure the kidneys and keep them well.

Mrs. James Beck of 314 West Whitesboro street, Rome, N. Y., says: "I was troubled with my kidneys for eight or nine years; had much pain in my back; as time went on I could hardly endure it; I could not stand except for a few moments at a time; I grew weak and exhausted; I could not even do light housework, let alone washing and ironing; I could not stoop or bend; my head ached severely; I was in pain from my head down to my heels; centering in the kidneys it was a heavy, steady, sickening ache; I could not rest nights, and got up mornings weak and tired. I thought I was about done for, when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for kidney complaints, and got them at Broughton & Graves' drug store. Within a week after commencing their use I began to improve, and from that time on rapidly grew better. I used five boxes in all and was cured. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many others, and my case ought to convince the most skeptical sufferer to give them a fair trial."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine, which cured Mrs. James Beck, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price, 50 cents per box.

Character lives in a man, reputation outside of him.—J. G. Holland.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Don't wait until your sufferings have driven you to despair, with your nerves all shattered and your courage gone.

Help and happiness surely awaits you if you accept Mrs. Pinkham's advice. Disease makes women nervous, irritable, and easily annoyed by children and household duties; such women need the counsel and help of a woman who understands the peculiar troubles of her sex; that woman is Mrs. Pinkham, who with her famous medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have restored more sick and discouraged women to health and happiness than any other one person. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. Write today, do not wait.

Will not the volumes of letters from women who have been made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince others of the virtues of this great medicine?

When a medicine has been successful in more than a million cases, is it justice to yourself to say, without trying it, "I do not believe it would help me?"

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. If you have some derangement of the feminine organism try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will surely help you.

Mrs. Emilie Seering, 174 St. Ann's Ave., New York City, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—If women who are always blue and depressed and nervous would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would find it the medicine they need to bring them to a more cheerful frame of mind. I was terribly worried and downcast, and was thin and bloodless. My back ached all the time, no matter how hard I tried to forget it or change my position to ease it, and the pain at the base of my brain was so bad that I sometimes thought that I would grow crazy; I had the blues so much and was always so depressed I could not seem to shake them off; half of the time I did not seem to have the courage to do my work; everything seemed to go wrong with me, and I was always worrying and fearing the worst. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After the first few doses a load seemed lifted from my shoulders, I felt better in every way. The blues left me and my head stopped aching; before long my back was better too, and I looked younger and stronger. I took six bottles in all, and it is with thankfulness that I acknowledge that my present good health is due to the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letter and signature of above testimonial, which will prove its absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere of all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only.

"Pat" Schuldt's sale is to be February 10th. He advertises everything that is usually found on a well equipped farm. He and his family expect to go to California about the 25th inst. Los Angeles will be their future home if that country suits them.

Aug. Schuldt's big sale is to February 13th. He has rented his farm for a term of three years, and he and his family will start on an eight months trip through the west about February 25th. We hope to see them locate in Klemme upon their return.

G. I. Schaper, F. C. Griewe and Wm. Bredlow are each booked for an address at the Farmers Institute at Garner, February 11th and 12th. These gentlemen are among the best farmers of this locality, being well versed in all matters pertaining to the farm and their remarks will undoubtedly be of much value to their hearers.

The dance on Friday night was very well attended considering the short notice upon which it was gotten up, and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. The evening was a very pleasant one and had they more time to advertise it, a much larger crowd would have been in attendance. H. W. Schoper and Otto Frei handled the violins while Miss Freda Frei presided at the organ. The music was very good and demonstrated that in Klemme we have some rare musical talent, which with practice would be second to none. On the whole it was a success and at a late hour all betook themselves to their homes feeling that they had had a splendid time. The next dance will be February 26th. The Ainsworth orchestra, of Mason City, will furnish the music.

The supper which was served by the Ladies Aid society of the M. E. church, on Friday evening was a grand success. From a financial standpoint it excelled the ladies anticipations, and about $25.00 has been added to the treasury as a result of their efforts. In the line of edibles everything that one could desire was there, and put up to suit the most epicurean in taste. The ladies of the M. E. church have again demonstrated that they are experts in the culinary art, and enough food was left to feed many more had they attended This over-supply denotes generosity on the part of the donors, not absence of appetite on the part of those who attended. We have heard many flattering comments regarding the spread, and, for our stomach's sake, we wish such suppers would occur more often.

Don't you know that paregoric, is opiom, and opiom stunts the growth, enfeebles the constitution, weakens the brain, destroys the nerves and produces rickets, marasmus, consumption, insanity and death?

The Chicago Weekly Inter-Ocean is the only weekly newspaper published in Chicago in connection with the great daily papers. It contains a judiciously selected summary of the news of the nation and world, the best stories, home, farm, women's, and other special departments, and fair, patriotic, able editorials, written from a Republican view point. It is by far the best general newspaper of the western states. The regular price for the Weekly Inter Ocean is $1.00 and for the TIES $1.00 but subscriptions will be received at this office for the two papers in combination for one year for only $1.45.

A Most Liberal Offer.

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper The Iowa Homestead, its Special Farmers' Institute Editions, and The Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our home, and make the price of the four one year for only $1.40. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known thruout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Iowa Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the West; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while The Special Farmer's Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

Married at the Congregational parsonage at Garner on last Thursday morning, Rev. Meyer officiating, Mr Alvin Liscum and Miss Olive Braund Soon after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Liscum took the train for Hampton to spend their honeymoon with friends and relatives. Mr. Liscum is one of our successful tillers of the soil, and a young man of exemplary habits. The bride is the beautiful and highly accomplished daughter of Mrs. Helen Braund, and is always numbered with the cream of society, and the groom is to be congratulated upon the prize he has won. This worthy young couple will be at home to their many friends after March 1st. Your scribe joins with the TIMES readers in wishing them a long and prosperous journey o'er life's seas.

On Thursday last Mr. Elvin Liscombe and Miss Olive Braund two of Ell township's best young people were united in marriage. The ceremony took place at Garner and was witnessed by but a few of the relatives of the contracting parties. The groom is a prosperous farmer and is a steady and industrious young man. His bride is well known to most of the people of this locality, and is much admired by all for her true womanhood. They left the same day for a short wedding trip, and upon their return will take up housekeeping on a farm in Ell township. The TIMES extends, congratulations. May they live long, prosper and be happy.

Fare Ye Well

On Thursday evening, February 5, 1903, about 70 of the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Schuldt and family gathered at their home in German township. Thirteen or more families were represented, and a very enjoyable time was had.

G. A. Radke was present with his grammephone—the superiority of which instrument is a well established fact in this community. He rendered some very choice selections with the same after which the crowd was called to order and a few announcements were made by Mr. Pavy.

A brief talk was given by G. I. Scraper commenting upon Mr. and Mrs. Schuldt's living in this locality for many years and their intended trip to California, the land of eternal flowers, as well as everlasting snow. He concluned by presenting Mr. and Mrs. Schuldt with two set of silver tea spoons, considering the same to be a very appropriate token of remembrance, inasmuch as their proper use will recall to their memory their friends and neighbors more than one thousand times a year.

Following this refreshments were served consisting of ice cream and cake in abundance.

All had a very enjoyable time, some returning home at a late hour Thursday night, and others remaining until an early hour Friday morning.

The Schuldts' enjoy the good will of this community, and may long life and happiness be their lot. Should it be God's will that we shall not meet them again here upon earth, let us sincerely trust that we meet them on the eternal shore where sorrow and disappointment are no more. All honor is due to the managers of the affair, for its success.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuldt herewith express their sincere thanks to their friends for the good will shown as well as for the well-selected gift.

"God be with you till we meet again." NEIGHBORS.

Brookfield, a highly esteemed actor on the London stage, says: "I remember a piece which we produced at the Comedy Theatre, written by a popular author, and very strongly cast, which amused us all so much that we could hardly rehearse it. Charles Hawtrey used every now and then warn us: 'Now don't speak too soon on that; there's certain to be a big laugh, and we don't want them to miss the next line.' We rehearsed for six weeks. On the first night nothing went wrong—but the piece. There was not one laugh nor one round of applause from start to finish. We took off the comedy in ten days, during which we rehearsed as a stop gap a conventional three-act farce with no literary pretensions. I think it ran for a year."

An Important Discovery.

Granton, Okla., Feb. 9th.—After ten years E. H. Gosney of Granton has at last found a cure for Kidney Trouble. Mr. Gosney suffered very severely with Kidney Complaint and some ten years ago made up his mind to find a cure if one was to be had.

He has tried and tried and experimented with every kidney medicine he could hear of. Although he was always disappointed he kept on trying till at last his perseverance was rewarded and he found a complete cure.

He is a well man to-day and explains it as follows:

"Everything failed to cure me and I was growing worse and worse till I tried a new remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills and I had not taken many of them before I knew that I had at last found the right thing. I am entirely cured and I cannot say too much for Dodd's Kidney Pills."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address

A ROMANCE OF NEW YORK

By AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "Friend Olivia," "I, Thou and the Other One," Etc.

Copyright, 1886, by Dodd, Mead and Company.

"Come, friends and neighbors," said Joris cheerily, "I will sing you a song; and every one knows the tune to it, and every one has heard their vaders and their moeders sing it—sometimes, perhaps, on the great dikes of Vaderland, and sometimes in their sweet homes that the great Hendrick Hudson found out for them. Now, then, all, a song for

MOEDER HOLLAND.

We have taken our land from the sea.
Its fields are all yellow with grain,
Its meadows are green on the lea—
And now shall we give it to Spain?
No, no, no, no!

We have planted the faith that is pure,
That faith to the end we'll maintain;
For the word and the truth must endure.
Shall we bow to the pope and to Spain?
No, no, no, no!

Our ships are on every sea,
Our honor has never a stain,
Our law and our commerce are free:
Are we slaves for the tyrant of Spain?
No, no, no, no!

Then, sons of Batavia, the spade—
The spade and the pike and the main,
And the heart and the hand and the blade.
Is there mercy for merciless Spain?
No, no, no, no!

By this time the enthusiasm was wonderful. The short, quick denials came hotter and louder at every verse; and it was easy to understand how these large, slow men, once kindled to white heat, were both irresistible and unconquerable. Every eye was turned to Joris, who stood in his massive, manly beauty a very conspicuous figure. His face was full of feeling and purpose, his large blue eyes limpid and shining; and as the tumult of applause gradually ceased, he said:

"My friends and neighbors, no poet am I; but always wrongs burn in the heart until plain prose can not utter them. Listen to me. If we wrung the Great Charter and the right of self-taxation from Mary in A. D. 1477; if in A. D. 1572 we taught Alva, by force of arms, how dear to us was our maxim 'No taxation without representation,'

Shall we give up our long-cherished right?
Make the blood of our fathers in vain?
Do we fear any tyrant to fight?
Shall we hold out our hands for the chain?
No, no, no, no!

Even the women had caught fire at this allusion to the injustice of the Stamp Act and Quartering Acts, then hanging over the liberties of the Province; and Mrs. Gordon looked curiously and not unkindly at the latent rebels. "England will have foemen worthy of her steel, if she turns these good friends into enemies," she reflected.

The emotion was too intense to be prolonged; and Joris instantly pushed back his chair, and said, "Now, then, friends, for the dance. Myself I think not too old to take out the bride."

Neil Semple, who had looked like a man in a dream during the singing, went eagerly to Katherine as soon as Joris spoke of dancing. "He felt strong enough," he said, "to tread a measure in the bride's dance, and he hoped she would so far honor him."

"No, I will not, Neil. I will not take your hands. Often I have told you that."

"Just for to-night, forgive me, Katherine."

"I am sorry that all must end so; I cannot dance any more with you;" and then she affected to hear her mother calling, and left him standing among the jocund crowd, hopeless and distraught with grief.

CHAPTER IX.

Katherine's Decision.

Joanna's wedding occurred at the beginning of the winter and the winter festivities. But amid all the dining and dancing and skating there was a political anxiety and excitement that leavened strongly every social and domestic event. The first Colonial Congress had passed the three resolutions which proved to be the key note of resistance and of liberty. Joris had emphatically indorsed its action. The odious Stamp Act was to be met by the refusal of American merchants either to import English goods, or to sell them upon commission, until it was repealed. Homespun became fashionable. The government kept its hand upon the sword. The people were divided into two parties, bitterly antagonistic to each other. The "Sons of Liberty" were keeping guard over the pole which symbolized their determination; The British soldiery were swaggering and insulting and openly insulting patriots on the streets, and the "New York Gazette" in flaming articles was stimulating to the utmost the spirit of resistance to tyranny.

Still in spite of this lime trouble and in spite of the national anxiety, the winter months went with a delightsome peace and regularity in the Van Heemskirk household. Neil Semple ceased to visit Katherine after Joanna's wedding. There was no quarrel and no interruption to the kindness that had so long existed between the families, but Neil never again offered her his hand; and such conversation as they had was constrained, and of the most conventional character.

As Hyde grew stronger he spent his hours in writing long letters to his wife. He told her every trivial event he commented on all he told him, and her letters revealed to him a soul so pure, so true, so loving, that he vowed "he fell in love with her afresh every day of his life."

One exquisite morning in May Katherine stood at an open window looking over the garden and the river, and the green hills and meadows across the stream. Her heart was full of hope. Richard's recovery was so far advanced that he had taken several rides in the middle of the day. Always he had passed the Van Heemskirks' house and always Katherine had been waiting to rain down upon his uplifted face the influence of her most bewitching beauty and her tenderest smiles.

As she happily mused, some one called her mother from the front hall. On fine mornings it was customary to leave the door standing open; and the visitor advanced to the foot of the stairs and called once more, "Lysbet Van Heemskirk! Is there naebody in to bid me welcome?" Then Katherine knew it was Madam Semple; and she ran to her mother's room and begged her to go down and receive the caller. For in these days Katherine dreaded Madam Semple a little. Very naturally, the mother blamed her for Neil's suffering and loss of time and prestige; and she found it hard to forgive also her positive rejection of his suit.

And towards Neil, Joris had a secret feeling of resentment. He had taken no pains to woo Katherine until some one else wanted her. It was universally conceded that he had been the first to draw his sword, and thus indulge his own temper at the expense of their child's good name and happiness. So, below the smiles and kind words of a long friendship, there was bitterness. If there had not been Janet Semple would hardly have paid that morning visit; for before Lysbet was half way down the stairs, Katherine heard her call out:

"Here's a bonnie come of. But it is what a' folks expected. 'The Dauntless' sailed the morn, and Capt. Earl wi' a contingent for the West Indies station. And who wi' him, guess you, but Capt. Hyde, and no less? They say he has a furlough in his pocket for a twelve-month; more like it's a clean total dismissal. The gude Len it ought to be."

So much Katherine heard, then her mother shut the door of the sitting room. A great fear made her turn faint and sick. Were her father's words true? The suspicion once entertained, she remembered several little things which strengthened it. Her heart failed her; she uttered a low cry of pain, and tottered to a chair like one wounded.

It was then ten o'clock. She thought the noon hour would never come. Eagerly she watched for Bram and her father; for any certainty would be better than such cruel fear and suspense. And, if Richard had really gone the fact would be known to them. Bram came first. For once she felt impatient of his political enthusiasm. How could she care about liberty poles and impressed fishermen with such a real terror at her heart? Joris was tenderly explicit. He said to her at once: "'The Dauntless' sailed this morning. Oh, my little one, sorry I am for thee!"

"Is he gone?" Very low and slow were the words; and Joris only answered, "Yes."

Without any further question or remark, she went away. They were amazed at her calmness. And for some minutes after she had locked the door of her room, she stood still in the middle of the floor, more like one that has forgotten something, and is trying to remember, than a woman who has received a blow upon her heart. No tears came to her eyes. She did not think of weeping or reproaching, or lamenting. The only questions she asked herself were: "How am I to get life over? Will such suffering kill me very soon?"

About two o'clock Lysbet went to Katherine. The girl opened her door at once to her. There was nothing to be said, no hope to offer. The mother did not attempt to say one word of comfort, or hope, or excuse. She only took the child in her arms, and wept for her.

"I loved him so much, moeder."

"Thou could not help it. Handsome and gallant and gay he was."

"And he did love me. A woman knows when she is loved."

"Yes, I am sure he loved thee."

"He has gone? Really gone?"

"No doubt is there of it. Stay in thy room, and have thy grief out with thyself."

"No; I will come to my work. Every day will not be the same. I shall look no more for any joy; but my duty I will do."

They went downstairs together. The clean linen, the stockings that required mending, lay upon the table. Katherine sat down to the task. Resolutely, but almost unconsciously, she put her needle through and through. Her suffering was pitiful; this little one who a few months ago would have wept for a cut finger, now silently battling with the bitterest agony that can come to a loving woman—the sense of cruel, unexpected, unmerited desertion. So for an hour, an hour of speechless sorrow, they sat. The atmosphere was becoming intolerable, like that of a nightmare; and Lysbet was feeling that she must speak and move, and so dissipate it, when there was a loud knock at the front door.

Katherine trembled all over. "To-day I cannot bear it, mother. No one can I see. I will go upstairs."

Ere the words were finished, Mrs. Gordon's voice was audible. She came into the room laughing, with the smell of fresh violets and the feeling of the brisk wind around her. "Dear madam," she cried, "I entreat you for a favor. I am going to take the air this afternoon; be so good as to let Katherine come with me. For I must tell you that the colonel has orders for Boston, and I may see my charming friend no more after to-day."

"Katherine, what say you? Will you go?"

"Please, mijn moeder."

"Make great haste, then." For Lysbet was pleased with the offer, and fearful that Joris might arrive, and refuse to let his daughter accept it. She hoped that Katherine would receive some comforting message.

"Stay not long," she whispered, "for your father's sake. There is no good, more trouble to give him."

"Well, my dear, you look like a ghost. Have you not one smile for a woman so completely in your interest? I promised Dick this morning that I would be sure to get word to you"

"I thought Richard had gone."

"And you were breaking your heart that is easy to be seen. He has gone, but he will come back to-night at eight o'clock. No matter what happens, be at the riverside. Do not fail Dick; he is taking his life in his hand to see you."

"I thought he had gone—gone, without a word."

"Faith you are not complimentary! I flatter myself that our Dick is a gentleman. I do, indeed. And, as he is yet perfectly in his senses, you might have trusted him."

"When will Richard return?"

"Indeed, I think you will have to answer for his resolves. But he will speak for himself; and, in faith, I told him that he had come to a point where I would be no longer responsible for his actions. I am thankful to own that I have some conscience left."

The ride was not a very pleasant one. Katherine could not help feeling that Mrs. Gordon was distrait and inconsistent; and, towards its close, she became very silent. Yet she kissed her kindly, and drawing her closely for a last word, said, "Do not forget to wear your wadded cloak and hood. You may have to take the water; for the councillor is very suspicious, let me tell you. Remember what I say—the wadded cloak and hood; and good-by, my dear."

"Shall I see you soon?"

"When we may meet again, I do not pretend to say; till then, I am entirely yours; and so again good-by."

The ride had not occupied an hour; but, when Katherine got home, Lysbet was making tea. "A cup will be good for you, mijn kind." And she smiled tenderly in the face that had been so white in its woeful anguish, but on which there was now the gleam of hope. And she perceived that Katherine had received some message; she even divined that there might be some appointment to keep; and she determined not to be too wise and prudent, but to trust Katherine for this evening with her own destiny.

That night there was a meeting at the town hall and Joris left the house soon after his tea.

For an hour or more Katherine sat in the broad light of the window, folding and unfolding the pieces of white linen, sewing a stitch or two here, and putting on a button or tape there. Madam passed quietly to and fro about her home duties, sometimes stopping to say a few words to her daughter. When Lysbet was ready to do so, she began to lay into the deep drawers of the presses the table-linen which Katherine had so neatly and carefully examined. Over a pile of fine damask napkins she stood, with a perplexed, annoyed face; and Katherine, detecting it, at once understood the cause.

BOTH HOOKED SAME FISH.

And the Incident Caused Bad Feeling Between Anglers.

Funny things happen in bass fishing. Toward the close of the season William Hammeyer of Winneconne, Wis., was fishing from a boat with his friend, G. B. Hamilton of Peru, Ind. They were on Fox Lake and fishing was not good, which made them eager.

Hammeyer got a strike, fastened his fish and began to reel in strongly, determined to land his catch without loss of time. Hamilton got a strike and did the same thing. They had been an hour without a bite and had no leisure or inclination to watch one another. The first fish after an hour's casting is apt to get on the nerves.

When the bass was close to the boat Hammeyer discovered that he was bringing in his friend's line and said:

"We're tangled! Let out a little line till I get this fish in."

Hamilton discovered the tangle at the same time and said the same thing. They glared at each other and reeled furiously.

With a jerk that ought to have loosened all of its scales a pound bass came out of the water. Hammeyer's weedless hook was fastened in one side of its jaw, Hamilton's was fastened in the other. They lifted the bass in and looked at one another. They agreed without words to call it a partnership fish.

Both men had cast at the same instant, and their baits had struck the water close together. Reeling in the baits had come within a couple of inches of each other. The fish either struck both baits at once or it struck one of them, felt the pain from the hook, slung its head to one side and got the other hook.

YOUNG WIFE IS SARCASTIC.

Husband's Healthfulness Made a Subject of Comment.

Charlie Younghusband had been caught in rather a confused account of his whereabouts the night previous. His wife accepted the statement without comment, but all the next day his conscience troubled him, and in order to square himself he stopped on his way home and bought a copy of Crawford's latest book. After dinner they sat down in the library and he commenced its perusal aloud. As he proceeded he felt himself growing more solid. As last he encountered this passage:

"If the girl loved her mother, and she really did, it was largely because her mother was so perfectly truthful. Cynical people called her perfectly honest, and said that her veracity would have amounted to a disease of the mind if she had possessed any; but that since she did not, it was probably a form of degeneration, because all perfectly healthy human beings lied naturally."

"Jardon the interruption, Charlie, but how thankful you should be that you have always possessed such magnificent robust health."

Zeal Outrunning Discretion.

All the villagers of Sakuragawa, in Otaken, were engaged in disinfecting the house of a cholera case when they were stopped by a village official, says the Tokyo (Japan) Times. He said that the people themselves must be disinfected and poured strong carbolic acid upon them. The acid burned badly twelve persons. They had to be taken to a hospital, and are bitterly accusing the official for his carelessness.

SISTERS OF CHARITY

CATARRH, COUGHS, COLDS AND GRIP

SISTER BEATRIX.

A letter recently received by Dr. Hartman from Sister Beatrix, 410 W. 30th St., New York, reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—"I cannot say too much in praise of Peruna. Eight bottles of it cured me of catarrh of the lungs of four years standing, and I would not have been without it for anything. It helped several Sisters of Charity and colds and I have yet to find one case of catarrh that it does not cure.

SISTER BEATRIX.

Interesting Letters from Catholic Institutions.

THE SISTERS GOOD WORK.

In every country of the civilized world the Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the charges committed to their care, but they also minister to their bodily needs. With so many children to take care of and to protect from climate and disease, these wise and prudent sisters have found Peruna a never-failing safeguard.

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters from all over the United States. A recommend recently received from a Catholic institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—"The young girl who used the Peruna was suffering from la grippe, catarrh, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after taking a few bottles of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured."—Sister Superior, Charity.

This young girl was under the care of the Sisters of Charity and used Peruna for catarrh of the throat, with good results, as the above letter testifies.

From a Catholic institution in central Ohio comes the following recommend from the Sister Superior.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Constipation Makes Bad Blood.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC CURES CONSTIPATION

Constipation is the rotting and decaying of undigested food in the alimentary canal. Disease germs arise from this festering mass, which find their way into the blood. The blood becomes impure and shortly the entire system gives way to the unhealthy condition.

You cannot cure a case like this by taking pills or other common cathartics. A laxative will not do. A blood medicine is ineffective. Mull's Grape Tonic is a gentle and mild laxative in addition to being a blood-making and strength-giving tonic which immediately builds up the wasted body and makes rich, red blood that carries its health-giving strength to every tissue at every heart beat.

Mull's Grape Tonic is made of pure crushed fruit juices and is sold under a positive guarantee.

Doctors prescribe it. All druggists sell it at 50 cents a bottle.

How an abscess in the Fallopian Tubes of Mrs. Hollinger was removed without a surgical operation.

"I had an abscess in my side in the fallopian tube (the fallopian tube is a connection of the ovaries). I suffered untold misery and was so weak I could scarcely get around. The sharp burning pains low down in my side were terrible. My physician said there was no help for me unless I would go to the hospital and be operated on. I thought before that I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which, fortunately, I did, and it has made me a stout, healthy woman. My advice to all women who suffer with any kind of female trouble is to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once."—MRS. IRA S. 28 AUGUST LAU.

With the exception of Tuesday of last week the weather thus far in February has been ideal. That one day is a bad scar on the face of the month, however.

George Kluckhohn, wife and daughter, Lola, were called to Garner Tuesday to be in attendance on the bedside of George Washburn who is quite seriously ill.

J. H. Hartfelter shipped three cars of cattle to Chicago on Sunday morning. Mr. Hartfelter is one of our heaviest feeders and has splendid luck in this business.

Mrs. Brisco returned to her home at Greene the latter part of last week after having spent a week here. Miss Ione Bartholomew accompanied her as far as Garner.

George Gruetzmacher was at Waterloo last week and has made his selection of buggies at the Waterloo Carriage factory which Gruetzmacher will handle in the future.

The Pitonka Topic has passed its fourth millstone, and is among the best papers published in northern Iowa. Under the management of Lee O. Wolfe the Topic has fast forged to the front.

Cole Younger, the Missouri bandit, has been pardoned from the Minnesota state penitentiary but he will not be permitted to go on the stage. This provision of the pardon is not received very kindly by certain Chicago and New York capitalists who have spent a considerable money in getting ready the melodrama, "Younger Brothers, Bank Robbers," in which he was to star.

It is claimed that the lost art of manufacturing Damascus steel has been discovered by an Iowa genius. If this proves true the discoverer will certainly be on easy street the balance of his days

A political war is being waged in Winnebago county. The Forest City Republican seems to be standing alone in the struggle, snd seeks to condemn Hon. G. S. Gilbertson for some imaginary wrong.

Revival meetings are to commence in the English Methodist church about March 1st. D. D. Renedict, one of the most successful evangelists in this country, will assist Rev. Bowman with the meetings.

The Britt News scores Mr. Stilson, of Corwith, unmercifully because he favors Garner in the county seat fight, and proposes to defeat him in his candidacy for representative on that account. Such abuse as the News hurls at Mr. Stilson's head never defeated anybody.

The Iowa-Minnesota Land company, of Litchfield, Minn., has Minnesota and North Dakota land for sale and to trade for merchandise. Have you anything to trade? Call on or write

Rev. Christopher Schuldt, at one time presiding elder of this district for the German M. E. church, was in our city the latter part of last week, and delivered a very able discourse at the German Methodist church on Sunday evening He is now president of the Star Medicine compony, of Charles City.

Wm. Lau is having a machine shed 32x48 built on his farm. The very best is none too good for Mr. Lau, and in adding this improvement to his splendid farm he is certainly spending money that will return to him twofold, for nothing is more of a moneysaver than good shelter for machinery. J. H Queal & Co. sold the bill.

Nearly four cars of 18 inch tile arrived the latter part of last week consigned to John Schwichtenberg and Lou Wendel. These tile will be used in draining their farms, and in making now useless land tillable Money spent in tiling is certainly well expended, and this idea of tiling is gaining favor among our more progressive farmers each year.

Lawrence Larson returned on Tuesday from Kanawha, where he had been installing a furnace in the elegant new house which is being built by F. L. Bush. This house is said to be one of the finest in Kanawha, and if occupied by the young lady whom we have in mind, 'tis none too good. This evidence of prosperity on F. L's part is hailed with joy by his many acquaintances here.

The Tabard Inn Library association, of Philadelphia, contemplate putting in a library here providing a sufficient number become interested in the project. The plan is to put in a circulating library and only the latest book will be kept. A life membership will be sold for $5.00, or an annual membership for $1.50. This will afford a splendid opportunity to read all the latest books. The plan is a good one, and we hope that the association secures a sufficient number of members to warrant their putting in a library here.

Britt has at last made a proposition to the people of the county but so far as we have been able to find out, have not said what they intended to do they have $40,000 subscribed but thus far have not found any banker who is doing a loose enough business to advance them any money on it. They have tried to get the notes of some of those who have subscribed, but as the conditions of the list are "pay when the court house is re-located at Britt," they are experiencing no little difficulty in this, and besides a large number of these notes would not be bankable

The Chicago Weekly Inter Ocean is the only weekly newspaper published in Chicago in connection with the great daily papers. It contains a judiciously selected summary of the news of the nation and world, the best stories, home, farm, women's, and other special departments, and fair, patriotic, able editorials, written from a Republican view point. It is by far the best general newspaper of the western states. The regular price for the Weekly Inter Ocean is $1.00 and for the TIES $1.00, but subscriptions will be received at this office for the two papers in combination for one year for only $1.45.

A Most Liberal Offer.

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper The Iowa Homestead, its Special Farmers' Institute Editions, and The Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our home, and make the price of the four one year for only $1.40. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known thruout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Iowa Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the West; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while The Special Farmer's Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies, and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes. Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Charley and Willie Gilbert visited at Chapin last week and while there purchased two good horses.

L. C. Whittaker, of Goodell, was around here last week supplying the needy ones with Ward's popular remedies.

A great many of our citizens attended the Farmers Institute at Garner last week, and they report the best kind of treatment from the Garner people and surely they will not forget this when they vote on the location of the county seat.

The entertainment and social at the Haskens' school house was well attended and a good program was well rendered. Col. Ed Haskens Garner's veteran auctioneer had charge of the sale of the baskets. Thirty dollars was received for the library.

The debaters at the literary last week were greeted with a large and appreciative audience and both sides produced good argument. The judges decided for the affirmative. The question for the debate next week is: "Can intemperance be diminished by legal enactment?" The Klemme boys have the negative and we have the affirmative.

On Tuesday Feb. 17th 1903 little Miss Lola Kluckhohn arrived at the dignity of six years of age and in order to properly observe the occasion invited in a number of her little friends. The little folks were royally entertained at the Kluckhohn home between the hours of 2:00 and 4:00 and games that delight and cheer the child heart were indulged in. Dainty refreshments were served and the children went home feeling that Little Lola on all occasions was an excellent little hostess and particularly so when assisted by the other members of the Kluckhohn family.

STORIETTES.

Sir Richard Powell, the eminent English physician, is noted for his frankness in speaking his mind without regard to the social position of his patient. Once, when he was called to prescribe for the Duchess of Manchester, he ordered her to disrobe. "But, Sir Richard, I haven't my maid here," she said; to which the baronet retorted: "Madame, I have no intention of examining your maid."

Frederic I. Crowset, in his volume, "Musicians' Wit, Humor and Anecdote," says that when the famous Strauss first visited America, musical women went wild over him, and toward the end of the season the "king of waltz music" was showered with application for hair. In due course of time the locks were distributed—many hundred of them, too, each one accompanied by the compliments of the composer. Sufficient hair was sent out to make Strauss look as though he had been sandpapered, yet when he left this country his locks were as abundant as ever. But when his beautiful black retriever (Strauss was a great dog fancier) took its departure, the animal looked like a shorn poodle.

A story is going the rounds of a youthful minister who, when he preached his first funeral sermon over a woman in a small Maine town, praised her so highly that the poor bereaved husband, sitting there listening, could not recognize her by the description. Finally, in a glowing peroration he pictured God and the archangels and the angels and all the hosts of the redeemed joyously forming a parade to welcome to heaven this "one of the very best of all women." The patient husband, who had never been able to rule his own household, could stand it no longer, and, leaping up, interrupted the preacher with a beckoning hand, gasping out: "No, no, elder; not quite that! She was only 'bout middlin'."

A newly married couple recently sauntered leisurely around Statuary Hall in the Capitol at Washington, D. C., trying hard to appear unconscious. Stopping on one of the echo stones to gaze at a new statue, they were spied by two youthful pages looking for a joke. One of the pages hurried to another echo stone, and in a whisper asked: "When did you get married?" The couple looked at each other, and then all around the hall, but could discern no one. The bride blushed, and the young man looked miserable. Presently again came the mysterious question: "When did you get married?" Awe stricken and looking extremely foolish, they fled from the hall, to the intense amusement of the mischievous pages.

Senator Hoar relates this anecdote of his friend, the Rev. Joseph Erskine, of Edinburgh: "At one time in his life, Mr. Erskine lost handkerchief after handkerchief. He found, on investigation, that it was on Sunday these losses occurred, and, accordingly, one Sabbath morning Mrs. Erskine sewed his handkerchief in the tail pocket of his coat. 'Noo,' said she, 'noo lat us see what will happen.' Mr. Erskine, with the sewed handkerchief, passed down the aisle of the church that morning as usual to ascend to the pulpit, but as he sailed by the amen corner he felt a gentle tug behind, a delicate nibble among his coattails. Thereupon he turned on the disappointed old woman in the corner, and said, with a triumphant smile: 'No' the day, honest wuman, no' the day.'"

In his "Recollections," Aubrey de Vere tells of an Irishman he met in Switzerland, with whom patriotism was so truly a mania that every word in praise of the scenery about him seemed a distinct aspersion on the land of his birth. "What can you compare here?" he demanded, "with the mountains of Wicklow?" "Perhaps," said a traveler, "one might name the mountains of the Mont Blanc range." "Oh," he replied, scornfully, "they're out of all reason! I am after walking along the Chamouni Valley for three days, and I only saw four of those mountains. Sure, in Wicklow I'd have counted as many as eight of them in three hours!" "Have you seen this wonderful waterfall within half a mile of us?" "I have not seen it, and I am not going to see it. Didn't I see the O'Sullivan Cascade at Killarney? Down it comes from such a height that you don't know where it comes from. Down it plunges, thundering and bellowing, sometimes black as ink, and sometimes white as milk, dashing itself against the right-hand rocks and smashing itself against the left-hand rocks. What is your Handeck Fall compared to that?" "Some persons would say," was the reply, "that the waterfall here is about ten times as high and six times as broad." "Ah, then," said he, with an added note of scorn, "then the O'Sullivan Cascade is not big enough for you. And tell me this now: Couldn't you take a magnifying glass to it?"

Nervous Old Lady—"I hope your horse is quiet, cabman. What's she laying back her ears like that for—look!" Cabby (complacently)—"Oh, that's only her feminine curiosity, mum. She likes to hear where she's a-goin' to!"

Scenes on City Ponds During Cold Weather

From the Portly Father of a Family to the Mischief-Making Small Boy, All the Skaters Are Bent on Having the Best Time Possible.

AS A RESULT of the recent cold snap it seemed as if all New York, with and without skates, flocked to the pond in Central Park, says the New York Sun. Included among the spectators were all kinds and conditions of people. Babies in arms were there as well as old men who swapped reminiscences with gusto and seemed to enjoy the fun as much as anybody.

A noticeable contingent of those who visited the pond without skates consisted of pet dogs. For the most part they behaved with the calmness peculiar to the New York dog under any and all circumstances. Most of them went on the ice.

One, a collie, trudged sedately along beside his mistress who, although she wore no skates, made a tour of the pond over and over again and insisted on taking her constitutional in the very thick of the skaters. Another dog, a big English bull, was less complacent. His mistress was on skates. But she didn't stay on them very long.

As she took the ice airily and gracefully bystanders were highly entertained to see that in one hand she grasped the leader of the bulldog and in the other the fist of a four-year-old youngster dressed all in white. The chubby legs of the four-year-old did their part valiantly and could have made a pretty good showing too, had it not been that mamma's companion on the other side concluded that the pace was altogether too slow for him, even if he didn't have skates, and so proceeded to haul his mistress along like a ship under full sail. When last seen the trio were making at top speed for a pavilion, and as the impatient bulldog passed the circumspect collie on the way there he winked his off eye.

Almost every chair was in use. The lake was dotted with the chairs. In one case pater familias somewhat heavy and portly, was pushing his wife along in one, and at his side skated a rosy young daughter. In another, a very young Benedict, with a meek cast of features, sped loyally along behind his better half who was seated in a chair holding the baby, the latter going through its first experience on a skating pond with every appearance of satisfaction.

Some of the chair's beneficiaries, though, are beginners, who, failing to secure the support of some self-sacrificing friend, cheerfully pay down twenty-five cents for the privilege of having something, anything, to cling to at a desperate moment.

Without question the skater who enjoys himself most is the small boy. So far he has been on hand morning, noon and night and if the absentee roll of the public schools is not been swelled of late, then appearances are not to be trusted.

The small boy's specialty is speed rather than fancy stunts. His forte is to charge through the densest group of skaters like a cannon ball at the most unexpected moments, thereby calling down maledictions in showers on his head, instead of striving to gain the admiration of the public by the more intricate evolutions of skill indulged in by his elders.

As a means to the praiseworthy end, his skates this year are longer than ever—almost as long as his legs in fact—and some nervous people are suggesting the advisability of having these very long skates suppressed.

"How is the skating to-day, sonny?" was asked of a youngster of twelve who was busy unstrapping a pair of skates about eighteen inches long.

"Fine," he exclaimed, with emphasis, and he grinned when he said it.

His record, it seems, for less than one hour's skating was to lay low a middle-aged man of athletic build, and two young girls and almost to capsize a chair containing two small children. After the last exploit he was put off by a policeman. But he was back again the next day.

A rumor went the rounds early last week that skating policemen were to be a feature of all the parks from this time on, Central Park not excepted. Therefore, many visitors to the lake when the ball went up, were surprised to find all the blue coats in attendance walking stolidly around on their feet much as usual. One woman could not hide her disappointment.

"I understood," said she, addressing a policeman, "that all you policemen on duty at the lake were to wear skates."

"Well, Miss," was the reply, "I have heard nothing about it. I don't think many of us know how to skate," and he looked down dubiously at his own somewhat substantial proportions.

An added source of satisfaction to night skaters was moonlight which from 10 to 11, at least, changed the place into something like fairyland and then kindly lighted the skaters home. The sentimental ones were in ecstacies.

"Charlie and I went skating last night," confided one young woman to another on their way down town the next morning, "and before I got home

"Bosh."

It is related that a general officer of the British army in Soudan, who was inspecting a post on the line of communications, duly arrived one day at a little hut, which represented the headquarters of the army, in some wind-swept hole. He entered, and, looking round, espied an office table and two trays, one full of papers. Interested, he read the label attached to each. The empty one was ticketed "Business" and the other "Bosh." "Excellent officer," purred the visitor "thoroughly understands his work." But when he went further and proceeded to examine the papers in the "bosh" tray his feelings may be better imagined than described on finding the documents consisted exclusively of his own voluminous orders and memoranda.

Secrets of Plant Life.

Plants have developed almost as many dodges for perpetuating their existence as animals, only we don't so easily recognize them. Every seed, bulb or tuber is not merely a reservoir of material for the plant that is to grow out of it, but also a mass of fuel for supplying heat necessary to the sprouting seedlet. More than this. If you look at the early spring buds and flowers you will notice that those which are likely to be exposed to frost, such as catkins or willow and hazel, are well protected by a thick covering of soft material.

WESTERN CANADA AROUSING GREAT INTEREST.

The Wonderful Yields of Wheat Attracting Thousands.

Until the last five or six years but little attention was given to that vast area of grain-producing land lying north of the 49th parallel, and immediately adjoining the northern boundaries of Minnesota and Dakota.

The Canadians themselves were aware of the wealth that lay there, but being unable to fully occupy it, they have asked the Americans to assist them in converting the land from its virgin state to one that will largely supplement the grain-producing area of the North American continent and the response has been most liberal.

During the year 1901 upwards of 20,000 from the United States went over to Canada, being induced to settle there by the reports that reached them of the success of those who had preceded them during the previous years. This 20,000 was increased to 30,000 during the year 1902, and it is fully expected that there will be fully 50,000 during the present year. The work of the immigration branch of the Canadian government is not now being directed towards giving information as to the advantages of settlement in Canada as it is to extending an invitation to the Americans to follow those who have gone.

Those who have charge of the work point with considerable pride to the success of those who have been induced to take advantage of the offer of 160 acres of land free in Canada, and have no cause to hesitate in continuing the invitation. Many of those interested say there are no more free homesteads to be had in Canada, but the writer has most positive assurance from the Canadian government that there are thousands of such homesteads to be had, and in one of the districts now being opened up fully as good as the best, and it is probably the best.

The Canadian government has established agencies at St. Paul, Minn.; Omaha, Neb.; Kansas City, Mo.; Chicago, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Wausau, Wis.; Detroit, Sault Ste. Marie and Marquette, Mich.; Toledo, Ohio; Watertown, S. Dakota; Grand Forks, N. Dakota, and Great Falls, Mont., and the suggestion is made that by addressing any of these, who are authorized agents of the government, it will be to the advantage of the reader, who will be given the fullest and most authentic information regarding the results of mixed farming, dairying, ranching, and grain raising, and also supply information as to freight and passenger rates, etc.

BEAUTY AND PURITY

Ancient and Modern Ideas on the Subject of Time and Disease the Effacing Agents of Beauty. What Has Science Done to Restore the Lily and the Rose?

Socrates called beauty a short-lived tyranny, Plato a privilege of nature, Theocritus a delightful prejudice, Theophrastus a silent cheat, Carneades a solitary kingdom, Homer a glorious gift of nature, Ovid a favor of the gods. Aristotle affirmed that beauty was better than all the letters of recommendation in the world, and yet none of these distinguished authorities has left us even a hint of how beauty is to be perpetuated, or the ravages of age and disease defied. Time soon blends the lily and the rose into the pallor of age, disease dots the fair face with cutaneous disfigurations and crimsons the Roman nose with unsightly flushes, moth, if not rust, corrupts the glory of eyes, teeth, and lips yet beautiful by defacing the complexion, and fills the sensitive soul with agony unspeakable.

If such be the unhappy condition of one afflicted with slight skin blemishes, what must be the feelings of those in whom torturing humors have for years run riot, covering the skin with scales and sores and charging the blood with poisonous elements to become a part of the system until death? It is vain to attempt to portray such suffering. Death in many cases might be considered a blessing. The blood and fluids seem to be impregnated with a fiery element which, when discharged through the pores upon the surface of the body, inflames and burns until, in his efforts for relief, the patient tears the skin with his nails, and not until the blood flows does sufficient relief come to cause him to desist.

Thus do complexional defects merge into torturing disease, and piqued vanity give place to real suffering. A little wart on the nose or cheek grows to the all-devouring lupus, a patch of tetter on the palm of the hand or on the limbs suddenly envelops the body in its fiery embrace, a bruise on the leg expands into a gnawing ulcer, which reaches out its fangs to the sufferer's heart in every paroxysm of pain, a small kernel in the neck multiplies into a dozen, which eat away the vitality, great pearl-like scales grow from little rash-like inflammations in such abundance as to pass credulity; and so on may we depict the sufferings to which poor human nature is subject, all of which involve great mental distress because of personal disfigurations.

If there were not another external disease known, eczema alone would be a sufficient infliction on mankind. It pervades all classes, and descends impartially through generations. While some are constantly enveloped in it, others have it confined to small patches in the ears, on the scalp, on the breast, on the palms of the hands, on the limbs, etc., but everywhere its distinctive feature is a small watery blister, which discharges an acrid fluid, causing heat, inflammation, and intense itching. Ring-worm, tetter, scalled head, dandruff, belong to this scaly and itching order of diseases. Psoriasis, our modern leprosy, with its mother-of-pearl scale, situated on a reddened base, which bleeds upon the removal of the scale, is to be dreaded and avoided, as of old. Impetigo, barber's itch, erysipelas, and a score of minor disorders make up in part the catalogue of external diseases of the skin. Thus far we have made no allusion to those afflictions which are manifestly impurities of the blood, viz.: swelling of the glands of the throat, ulcers on the neck and limbs, tumors, abscesses, and mercurial poisons, with loss of hair, because the whole list can be comprehended in the one word scrofula.

It is in the treatment of torturing, disfiguring humors and affections of the skin, scalp, and blood, with loss of hair, that the Cuticura remedies have achieved their greatest success. Original in composition, scientifically compounded, absolutely pure, unchangeable in any climate, always ready, and agreeable to the most delicate and sensitive, they present to young and old the most successful curative of modern times. This will be considered strong language by those acquainted with the character and obstinacy of blood and skin humors but it is justified by innumerable successes where all the remedies and methods in vogue have failed to cure, and, in many cases, to relieve, even.

The Cuticura treatment is at once agreeable, speedy, economical, and comprehensive. Bathe the affected parts freely with hot water and Cuticura soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment to allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, if necessary, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. This treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning, and scaly humors, and points to a speedy, permanent, and economical cure of torturing, disfiguring humors, eczemas, rashes and inflammations, from infancy to age, when all other remedies and the best physicians fail. The remedies consisting the Cuticura system will bear an individual scrutiny of their remarkable properties.

Cuticura Soap contains in a modified form the medicinal properties of Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, the purest and sweetest of emollients, combined with the most delicate and refreshing of flower odors. It purifies and invigorates the pores of the skin, and imparts activity to the oil glands and tubes, thus furnishing an outlet for unwholesome matter, which if retained would cause pimples, blackheads, rashes, oily, mothy skin, and other complexional disfigurations, as well as scalp affections and irritations, falling hair, and baby rashes. In subtle and continuous action on these lubricators of the skin keeps them transparent, soft, flexible, and healthy. Hence its constant use, assisted by occasional use of Cuticura Ointment, realizes the fairest complexion, the softest, whitest hands, and the most luxuriant, glossy hair within the domain of the most advanced scientific knowledge to supply.

Cuticura Ointment is the most successful external curative for torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, in all of which a single anointing with Cuticura, preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed in the severest cases by a full dose of Cuticura Resolvent, is sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning, and scaly humors, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure when all other remedies fail. It is especially so in the treatment of infants and children, cleansing, soothing, and healing the most distressing of infantile humors, and preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, and hair.

Cuticura Ointment possesses, at the same time, the charm of satisfying the simple wants of the toilet of all ages, in caring for the skin, scalp, hair, and hands far more effectively, agreeably, and economically than the most expensive of toilet emollients, while free from every ingredient of doubtful or dangerous character. "One Night Treatment of the Blood" or "Single Treatment of the Skin" for use after athletics, cycling, golfing, riding, sparring, or any sport, in connection with the use of Cuticura Soap, is sufficient evidence of the fact.

Of all remedies for the purification of the blood and circulating fluids, from approaches in specific medical science, Cuticura Resolvent. It neutralizes and resolves away (hence its name) all poisons, inherited, and other humors of the blood, which give rise to sores, ulcers of the glands, pains in the bones, torturing, disfiguring eruptions of the skin and scalp, with loss of hair.

Cuticura Resolvent extends its purifying influence by means of the circulation to the surface of the skin, allaying irritation, inflammation, itching, and burning, and soothing and healing. Hence its success in the treatment of distressing humors of the skin, scalp, and blood, with loss of hair, which have to be permanently cured by external remedies alone.

The grandest testimonial that can be offered Cuticura remedies is their world-wide sale, due to the press of recommendations of those who have used them. It is difficult to realize the mighty growth of the business transacted under this name. From a small beginning in the simplest form, against prejudice and opposition, against powerful hosts, countless rivals, and trade indifference, Cuticura remedies have become the greatest curatives of modern time, and, in fact, of all time, for nowhere in the history of medicine is to be found another approaching them in popularity and sale. In every land and with every people they have met with the same reception. The product of the earth are the only fitting symbols of growth. They have conquered the world.

To the test of popular judgment all things mundane must finally come. The civilized world has rendered its verdict in favor of Cuticura.

An Ideal Woman's Medicine.

So says Mrs. Josie Irwin, of 325 So. College St., Nashville, Tenn., of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never during the lifetime of this wonderful medicine has the demand for it been so great as it is to-day.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, and throughout the length and breadth of this great continent come the glad tidings of woman's sufferings relieved by it, and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women saying that it will and positively does cure the worst forms of female complaints.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women who are puzzled about their health to write her at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Such correspondence is seen by women only, and no charge is made.

POULTRY

Winter Eggs.

From Farmers' Review: The most successful winter poultry house I ever saw was a big open straw cattle shed. The shed had been covered from the stacker of a thrashing machine. The roof, north side and ends were several feet of straw and chaff. Some 30 head of cattle were in the shed and yard nights and running in the corn stalks daytime; besides there was a hog trough in the yard, where the shoats got their daily slops of bran, shorts and waste vegetables. I was a boy at home with Dad and Ma at the time. My father believed in being liberal with salt, the cattle had their salt box and all the slop of the swine was seasoned with salt. I remember that an argument was up as to whether the fowls would get too much salt at the hog troughs.

Up over head in this shed were a variety of poles and brush that served to hold up the straw. Flock after flock of the early hatches took up their roosting place in the cattle shed and by cold weather the regular hen house was almost entirely deserted. Some 150 hens, mostly early pullets were roosting in the cattle shed by December 1st, and the daily output of eggs was from five to eight dozen, and it continued all winter. When the weather got colder, and stormy days came, the cattle were fed in racks, clover and timothy and millet hay, corn fodder, etc. The cattle were continually working down some of the straw shed, and finally the shoats went to sleeping in the litter. That old straw shed seemed to be a home for most everything that could get into it. Even the flocks of quails made daily visits and worked with the hens in and around the yard and shed. I do not remember of a single ailing fowl all winter and when spring came, they were bright and ready to hunt in the nearby grove and orchard.

At the time, I looked at all these things as a "matter of course," but since I have grown older and read and listened to up-to-date methods, scientific ventilation, jim crack feeds and sanitary poultry houses, my mind wanders back to the old straw shed, its simplicity and its success. I have firmly made up my mind that lots of up-to-date poultry theories are more theoretical than practical and that if it were possible for all poultry raisers to have an old straw shed, chicken doctors and remedies would not be so popular as they are.

I am a firm believer in lots of litter for the fowls to work in, also a variety of feeds and unlimited pure air. Still more, I believe fowls should have plenty of salt and water. Stop and think of it. An egg is nearly 80 per cent water; the hens must have water in abundance and unlimited exercise in pure air. Yes, salt will kill fowls and it will kill stock, too, but it will kill nothing if it has been managed carefuly. Sunshine and pure air was made for fowls as well as other life, and while it is so cheap, why be stingy with it? Straw, chaff, leaves or other kinds of litter is enjoyed by hens just as much as a pond of water is by ducks. The water may not do the ducks any particular good, but keeps the hens warm and healthy and the litter absorbs moisture and keeps the ground or floor under it warm. In building poultry houses, we should study the hens more and ourselves less.—M. M. Johnson.

Mysteries of Incubation.

To the novice there are no mysteries about incubators. He has read a few things about them, and the way seems plain. A man who had had nothing to do with incubators was telling the writer of this how easy it was to manage them, saying he proposed to try one before long—"it would be so interesting." His remark elicited the inquiry: "Did you ever try one?" to which he replied, "Oh, no, but it is easy enough." The man who has run incubators knows that it is not "easy enough" sometimes. The old hen is adjusted somewhat automatically; she seems not to mind temperatures or supplies of moisture, and in due time brings off her hatch. But with the incubator it is different. It must be studied. The cheerful amateur soon finds that there are mysteries about it he has to learn or try to learn. He has been told that certain locations, as in the cellar, are the best places for the incubator. He tries it and fails to get a good batch. He then puts his incubator in some place he had been warned against and succeeds. Why? Then the temperature. He has been told to keep his incubator at 102 or 103 degrees. He tries to do so. But in a short time he finds that there is a great variety of temperature in the incubator, the temperature of the eggs being one thing and over the eggs another. He begins to wonder where his standard of temperature is to be. He is given full instructions on how to use the regulator, and follows directions beautifully and successfully generally, but now and then it does not seem to give proper results and his eggs get too hot or too cold. Why? The question of moisture claims some of his attention, and he begins to read up on the matter. Then he discovers that poultry-raisers have had all kinds of experiences with that thing they call moisture. After a year or two, the amateur discovers that there are mysteries connected with incubation, and he gets ready to investigate in earnest.

"And now," asked the teacher, at the end of a long description of the brain, "where is the seat of memory? Can any of you tell me?" "Yessum," replied Johnny Brighteyes; "in the little finger, where you tie a string around it to make you recollect!"

New Cure for Lame Back.

Rutledge, Minn., Feb. 16th.—Mr. E. C. Getchell of this place relates a happy experience which will be read with interest by all those who have a similar trouble.

It appears that last winter Mr. Getchell was seized with a lameness and soreness in his back which grew worse and worse till at last it became very bad and made it very difficult for him to get about at all.

After a time he heard of a new remedy for backache which some of his friends and neighbors said had cured them, and he determined to try it. The name of the remedy is Dodd's Kidney Pills and Mr. Getchell has proven that it is a sure cure. He says:

"I used two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills according to directions, and my lame back was entirely cured and I am all O. K. again. Dodd's Kidney Pills are as good as represented."

This remedy is very popular here, and has worked some remarkable cures of Backache and Kidney Trouble.

A VENERABLE PASTOR CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

Pe-ru-na is a Catarrhal Tonic Especially Adapted to the Declining Powers of Old Age.

The Oldest Man in America Attributes His Long Life and Good Health to Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Isaac Brock, of McLennan county, Texas, has attained the great age of 114 years. He is an ardent friend of Peruna and speaks of it in the following terms. Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments due directly to the effects of the climate.

"I RELY UPON PE-RU-NA FOR ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES."

"For 114 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhoea. I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases. For the last ten or fifteen years I have been reading Dr. Hartman's books and have learned from them one thing in particular: That these affections are the same and that they are properly called catarrh.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my stand-by for many years and I attribute my good health and my extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine. I believe it to be especially valuable to old people, although I have no doubt it is just as good for the young."—Isaac Brock.

A New Man at 79.

Major Frank O'Mahoney, West Side, Hannibal, Mo., writes:

"I am professionally a newspaper correspondent, now 79 years old. I have watched the growing power of the Peruna plant from its incipiency in the little log cabin, through its gradations of success up to its present establishment in Columbus, Ohio, and I conclude that merit brings its full reward.

"Up to a few years ago I felt no need to test its medicinal potency, but lately when my system needed it, your Peruna relieved me of many catarrhal troubles. Some two years ago I weighed 210 pounds, but fell away down to 168 pounds, and besides loss of flesh I was subject to stomach troubles, indigestion, loss of appetite, insomnia, night sweats, and a foreboding of getting my entire system out of order. During some months I gave Peruna a fair trial, and it rejuvenated my whole system. I feel thankful therefore, for although 79 years old I feel like a young man."—Major Frank O'Mahoney.

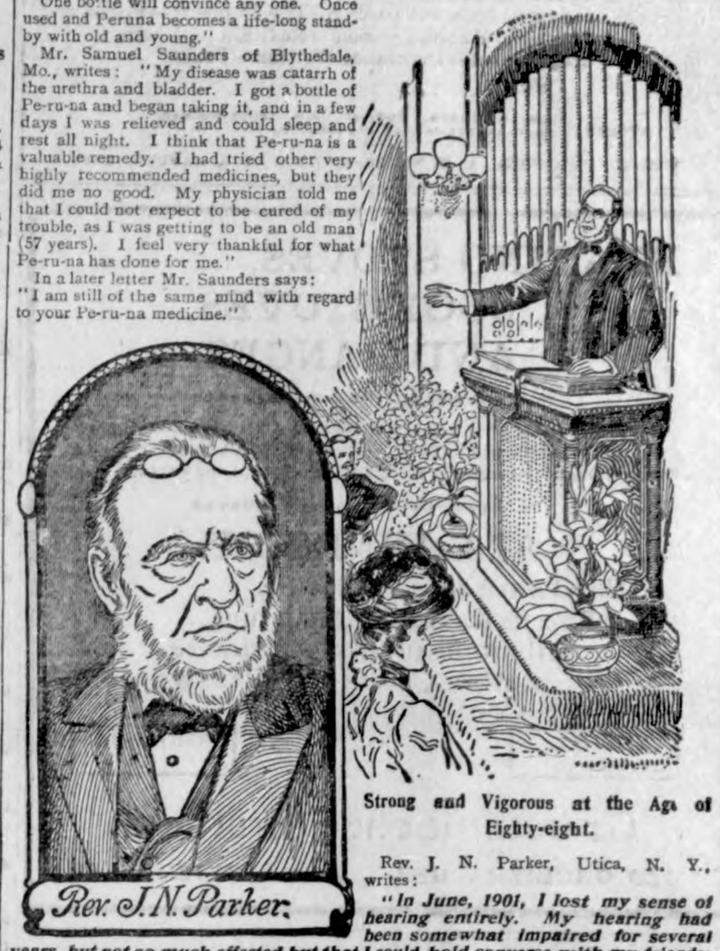
In old age the mucous membrane become thickened and partly lose their function. This leads to partial loss of hearing, smell and taste, as well as digestive disturbances.

Peruna corrects all this by its specific operation on all the mucous membranes of the body.

One bottle will convince any one. Once used and Peruna becomes a life-long standby with old and young."

Mr. Samuel Saunders of Blythedale, Mo., writes: "My disease was catarrh of the urethra and bladder. I got a bottle of Pe-ru-na and began taking it, and in a few days I was relieved and could sleep and rest all night. I think that Pe-ru-na is a valuable remedy. I had tried other very highly recommended medicines, but they did me no good. My physician told me that I could not expect to be cured of my trouble, as I was getting to be an old man (57 years). I feel very thankful for what Pe-ru-na has done for me."

In a later letter Mr. Saunders says: "I am still of the same mind with regard to your Pe-ru-na medicine."



Strong and Vigorous at the Age of Eighty-eight.

Rev. J. N. Parker, Utica, N. Y., writes:

"In June, 1901, I lost my sense of hearing entirely. My hearing had been somewhat impaired for several years, but not so much effected but that I could hold converse with my friends; but in June, 1901, my sense of hearing left me so that I could hear no sound whatever. I was also troubled with severe rheumatic pains in my limbs. I commenced taking Peruna and now my hearing is restored as good as it was prior to June, 1901. My rheumatic pains are all gone. I cannot speak too highly of Peruna, and now when 88 years old can say it has invigorated my whole system. I cannot but think, dear Doctor, that you must feel very thankful to the all loving Father that you have been permitted to live, and by your skill be such a blessing as you have been to suffering humanity."—Rev. J. N. Parker.

Mrs. F. E. Little, Tolona, Ill., writes: "I can recommend Peruna as a good medicine for chronic catarrh of the stomach and bowels. I have been roubled severely with it for over a year, and also a cough. Now my cough is all gone, and all the distressing symptoms of catarrh of the stomach and bowels have disappeared. I will recommend it to all as a rare remedy. I am so well I am contemplating a trip to Yellow Stone Park this coming season. How is that for one 71 years old?"

A TRAVELER AT SEVENTY-ONE YEARS OF AGE.

In a later letter she says: "I am only too thankful to you for your kind advice and for the good health that I am enjoying wholly from the use of your Peruna. Have been out to the Yellow Stone National Park and many other places of the west, and shall always thank you for your generosity."—Mrs. F. E. Little.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Chas. Suckow has accepted a position in the grocery department of E L. Tiede's store at Belmond. If he likes his position he and his estimable wife may remove to that place. We would be very sorry to have them move, but should they decide to move may they be successful and pleased with their home.

On Tuesday our mother, Mrs. Tierney, of Garner, and our nephew, "Ted" Tierney, of Evansville, Wis., came down from the county seat and will spend some time visiting at the home of the TIMES family Our nephew is much larger than his uncle after whom he has the honor of being named, but we are of the opinion that we are the best man for we know we used to be.

A gang of surveyors for the Rock Island road passed through here on Friday. We do not know what the company intends doing. It may be that that they contemplate putting in a double track, but we rather think that they are trying to find out if the road bed is not in such shape that the agents could take care of the section while they are resting. They are great on curtailing expenses.

Henry Gruetzmacher and wife of Waterloo, who have visited here for the past week left on Tuesday for their home. Mr. Gruetzmacher is now busily engaged with his duties as president of the Waterloo Carriage factory, and reports that his company is doing a flourishing business. This company has one of the finest catalogues that we have ever seen, and is certainly a work of art. The rigs which they turn out, are designed especially for this company, and their rigs are very nobby lookers.

Did it ever occur to you what the result would be should a fire start in our town? This is a matter of no little importance which has been brought to our attention, and should receive the serious consideration of every property holder in our little city. Our hook and ladder, pump and chemical are all that could be desired so far as they go, our fire company is second to none, but what would be the result if a well to which the pump would be attached should play out? In private wells the supply of water is generally limited, and do you not think that it would be a very good plan to levy a small tax and put down a well that would be equal to any and all occasions?

A Progressive Company.

Attention will be called in these columns from time to time to the substantial growth of the American Life Insurance company of Des Moines. The last annual report showed the company to be on a firm financial basis, every dollar of liability being protected by eleven dollars and eighty-nine cents of admitted assets, and the deposit of first mortgages with the State of Iowa was five times greater than the entire liability of the company. The showing of surplus more than justified the estimates of the company for the proportion of the premium paying periods the contracts had been in force

There was no unpaid claims at the close of last year, and during the present year all claims have been paid in full promptly. Entering this year under such favorable auspices it is not surprising that the business of the company has been more than doubled since January 1st.

The American Life is a splendid example of a steady conservative increase of business from year to year. It shows what a well managed Iowa company can achieve in the field of competition which was never fiercer than now. It demonstrates that Iowa people are disposed to stand by Iowa institutions and accord them that measure of confidence merited by a successful and honorable record. The American Life today stands high in popular esteem and thoroughly entrenched in the confidence of its patrons. Its financial standing is unquestioned, and its integrity is above reproach. Its management is composed of well known business and professional men, whose names are synonyms of uprightness and square dealing.

The success of the American Life is in large measure due to the wisdom shown in formulating its policy contracts. The company has aimed not only to elect the best and most popular policy forms, but to include the best of everything in its contracts.

There is written each year an average of $400,000 of old line life insurance to each county in the state.

There is collected each year by old line life insurance companies an average of $54,800 in premiums to a county, or $5,425,200 in the state. Much of this money goes out of the state never to return, while the money paid to the American Life Insurance company remains at home enriching each community where it is loaned on first mortgages on Iowa farms. helping to improve the farms and thereby advancing the price of the land in each and every section where such improvements are made. Thus it will be very plain to every resident of Iowa who takes insurance to see where his or her interest lies. Our advice to people who live in Iowa is to keep the money at home. The American Life Insurance company have been doing a fine business in this vicinity in the last two weeks and have written some of our best citizens and farmers.

The Chicago Weekly Inter-Ocean is the only weekly newspaper published in Chicago in connection with the great daily papers. It contains a judiciously selected summary of the news of the nation and world, the best stories, home, farm, women's, and other special departments, and fair, patriotic, able editorials, written from a Republican view point. It is by far the best general newspaper of the western states. The regular price for the Weekly Inter Ocean is $1.00 and for the TIES $1.00, but subscriptions will be received at this office for the two papers in combination for one year for only $1.45.

A Most Liberal Offer.

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper The Iowa Homestead, its Special Farmers' Institute Editions, and The Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our home, and make the price of the four one year for only $1.40. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known thruout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Iowa Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the West; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while The Special Farmer's Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies, and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes. Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. A. Kelly, of Garner took in the sights here on Wednesday.

Remember that Gruetzmacher Brothers sell the Owen Fanning-mills.

Messer. W. Greiman and M. Kelly went to Chicago with stock Thursday morning.

Chas Gruetzmacher has been after his interests in the vicinity of Hayfield several days of this week.

C. A. Bucklin has resigned his position as agent for the Rock Island at this place, to accept a position in a bank at Hills, Minn. Mr. Bucklin's stay among us was of rather short duration but has made many friends during that time. He is a gentleman mindful only of his own affairs and has done his work for the company here faithfully and well. By the removal of Mr. Bucklin Mr. Chrisman has been made a widower, he informs us that ere long he shall again launch out on the matrimonial seas and this time with one of the fairer sex.

Ere this Aug. Schaper and family are settled in their new home at Pearl City, Ill. Mrs. Schaper left on Monday for that place and Mr. Schaper and son left the fore part of the week with their goods. For the past few years Mr. Schaper has not enjoyed the best of health so sold his large farm here and purchased a smaller one in Illinois and intends taking life easier in the future. In the removal of this family Klemme and vicinity loses some splendid citizens and we regret very much their departure. May the change prove beneficial to Mr. Schaper's health and may they like their new home. Pearl City has good reason to rejoice while Klemme mourns.

The bachelors club entertained a few of their friends Thursday evening after the literary.

Ira Robbins usual happy face has a far away look which only his nearest friends can account for.

Charley Ax is moving onto the Wm Marshall place but who will be Mrs. Ax, deponent sayeth not.

Every voter should turn out and help elect a good man for school director as this is an important office. The best is none too good.

Our Literary closed last Thursday evening for the season the judges decided that intemperance can be diminished by legal enactments.

A very pleasant social evening was spent at the beautiful farm home of Paul Quintus last Friday evening. Ice cream and cake were served.

John Stork and Ernest Henschen two of our successful farmers of Banker St. are moving to Garner and will take life easier and give their children a better education.

SALEM, IND., Feb. 5, 1903.—"I received the trial package of Doan's Kidney Pills and I must confess they did me wonderful good. It seems strange to say that I had tried several kinds of kidney medicines without doing me any good. I had backache, pain in my bladder and scalding urine, and the sample package sent me stopped it all in a few days, and with the package I am now using from our drug store I expect to be cured permanently. It is wonderful, but sure and certain the medicine does its work. I was in constant misery until I commenced the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."—CHAS. R. COOK, P. O. Box 90, Salem, Washington Co., Ill.

SOUTH BARTONVILLE, ILL., Feb. 3, 1906.—"I received the trial package of Doan's Kidney's Pills and have bought several boxes of my druggist. They have done me much good. I was hardly able to do any work until I began taking them; now I can work all day and my back does not get the least bit tired." BIRD GRAY.

PROSPERITY IN CANADA.

The Farmer in Western Canada Achieves Wonderful Success.

One of the first things that the man who wishes to change his residence endeavors to find out is where he can go and succeed. It need be a matter of little doubt or indecision now. During the past four or five years the development of Western Canada has been so rapid, and the conditions of life there so widely known, that upwards of 100,000 Americans have taken up their homes there, and the experience of these people is that they are thoroughly satisfied with their choice of home.

The methods of farming there are similar to those adopted in the United States, but the operations are simpler, the yield of grain greater and the profits more satisfactory. Ranching is carried on with lots of success. Mixed farming is always profitable, while the results in grain-raising are as certain as splendid soil, excellent climate and lots of sunlight can give.

The yields of——, but nothing is as satisfactory as the experience of the farmer himself, and extracts are selected from one.

A good, intelligent farmer named Mears, John Mears to be exact, left Cavalier county, North Dakota, two years ago and followed the thousands who had already gone to Canada. He had twenty-five years' experience in Minnesota, in buying grain, including flax, but in all his experience he never saw a district so well suited to the growth of flax as Western Canada. The financial results of Mr. Mears' operations in a single season are as follows: Wheat, 3,000 bushels, 1 hard, at 57½c, $1,785; 2,680 bushels 1 Northern, at 54c, $1,457.20; Oats, 1,750 bushels, at 35c, $612.50; Speltz, 154 bushels, at 75c, $115.50; Flax, 324 bushels, at $2, $628. Total, $4,598.20, a return of more than $4,500 from a little over 250 acres, an average of $18 per acre, is surely testimony sufficiently strong to satisfy the most incredulous as to the money to be made out of the soil of the Canadian West. It is to facts like these arguments expressible and demonstrable in dollars and cents—that the steady northward movement of American farmers is due. Mr. Mears is settled near Arcola, Assa.

A number of Americans who have chosen Western Canada as a home had the idea that a man enjoyed less freedom in Canada, but they soon found their mistake, and say the laws of Canada are the most liberal in the world, and such as prevent the litigation which breeds so much bad feeling between people in the United States and costs them so dear in lawyers' fees.

The government has established agencies at St. Paul, Minn.; Omaha, Neb.; Kansas City, Mo.; Chicago, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Wausau, Wis.; Detroit, Sault Ste. Marie and Marquette, Mich.; Toledo, Ohio; Watertown, S. Dakota; Grand Forks, N. Dakota, and Great Falls, Mont., and the suggestion is made that by addressing any of these, who are authorized agents of the government, it will be to the advantage of the reader, who will be given the fullest and most authentic information regarding the results of mixed farming, dairying, ranching and grain-raising, and also supply information as to freight and passenger rates, etc.

Trustworthy statisticians declare that there are 250,000,000 Mohammedans in the world. The Christian population is put at 447,000,000, but the increase of Islam is more rapid than that of the combined Christian denominations.

Fifty mutes, representatives of various deaf and dumb societies, recently held a conference in Chartiers, France. The chairman called the assemblage to order by pretending to ring a bell and speeches were made in the deaf and dumb alphabet.

Myer—"In olden time it is said that it was possible for a man to render himself invisible." Gyer—"Pshaw, that's not at all remarkable. Men in this country are doing it every day. Myer—You don't tell me! How do they manage it?" Gyer—"By marrying famous women."

"Now," said Mrs. Biggleson's cousin at breakfast on the morning after her arrival, "don't make company of me. I want to be treated just as if I were one of the family." "All right, replied Mr. Biggleson, helping himself to the tender part of the steak, "we'll try to make you feel right at home."

"One smile makes a flirtation. One flirtation makes one kiss. One kiss makes several more. Several kisses make an engagement. One engagement makes two fools. Two fools make one marriage. One marriage makes a mother-in-law. One mother-in-law makes a red hot time."

"My dear sir," wrote the editor to the persistent young author, "in order to simplify matters somewhat, we are inclosing a bunch of our declined with thanks' notices. If you will put one of these in an envelope with your manuscript, and mail it to yourself, it will make it easier for all of us, and you will be saving something in postage as well."

Richard Harding Davis makes no pretense of being a pianist, but he does play the guitar and sing well. Having composed a musical setting to Kipling's "Danny Deever," with that instrument, he picked it out, quite in the secrecy of his home, on the piano. The accompaniment to his voice consisted of a few chords which, from frequent repetitions, he fixed in his memory. One night Mr. Davis was at an evening party of musical people, many of them celebrated composers. As a joke, some one asked him to play one of his own compositions. To every one's surprise, he consented, and boldly went to the piano, where he eyed the keys in a puzzled way. Turning to Paderewski, he said: "I can't find the starting note. I composed my tune on a Steinway, and this is a Weber. Where would the note that is under the W on a Steinway be on a Weber?"

Just in Time.

Broadland, So. Dak., Feb. 23d.—Beadle county has never been so worked up as during the last few weeks. Every one is talking of the wonderful case of G. W. Gray of Broadland, the particulars of which are best told in the following statement which Mr Gray has just published:

"I was dying. I had given up all hope. I was prostrate and as helpless as a little babe. I had been ailing with Kidney Trouble for many years, and it finally turned to Bright's Disease. All medicine had failed and I was in despair.

"I ordered one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and this first box helped me out of bed. I continued the treatment till now I am a strong, well man. I praise God for the day when I decided to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Everybody expected that Mr. Gray would die and his remarkable recovery is regarded as little short of a miracle by all who know how very low he was. Dodd's Kidney Pills are certainly a wonderful remedy.

KINGS ARE CAST OUT.

Monarchs of Europe and Africa Who Have Been Deposed—Blood-Thirsty Careers of Savage Black Rulers Brought to an End.

POTENTATES in captivity! It sounds like an extract from an advertisement of one of the "greatest shows on earth"—like something akin to the wild men of Borneo—"only living specimen ever in captivity," etc. But it is an actual fact. That is, there are kings in captivity—half a dozen of them, counting all colors.

When one thinks of monarchs in that state one goes back a few ages and pictures the ancient Asiatic kings in captivity with their eyes put out, their ears cut off, and other evidences of a conquered condition prominent on their persons.

These captive kings of modern times have fallen in with more humane treatment. Two are mad. The others are Africans, and they have been bad—would be bad again if they had the opportunity. One of the mad rulers in Murad, the ex-sultan of Turkey.

Murad was at the head of the Turkish government for a few days twenty-five years ago. He was deposed on account of his madness. Instead of getting the short shift which usually falls to the lot of a Turkish ruler and cannot hold down his throne, Murad was confined to the gorgeous palace of Tshiragan, in Constantinople. He is practically dead. He is so closely guarded that even idle curiosity concerning him arouses the suspicion of the spies of Abdul Hamid.

The other is King Otto of Bavaria. He is confined at Castle Furstenried, while his kingdom is ruled by a prince regent. He never had been dethroned. He was just put in prison, and the people were satisfied without any further formalities. Once a year a government commission, consisting of the highest dignitaries in the kingdom, waits on the mad monarch and "congratulates him on his glorious reign." This takes place on the anniversary of his birthday.

Those two mad kings are the only white rulers in captivity, but the number of black ones who have been deprived of their subjects and their liberty at the same time for the general good of the world at large is a good deal larger. First in importance there is Prempeh, the bloodthirsty ex-king of Ashanti. The paternal British government walked into his kingdom and separated him from his subjects, who were only too willing to undergo the separation. If the British had not come soon there would not have been a great many subjects. Prempeh is now in close but comfortable captivity at Seychelles.

Mad King Otto.

For years Prempeh's reign was one of bloodshed. Hundreds of captives were sacrificed annually at Kumasi, his capital, and surrounding countries were ravaged to secure victims. His own subjects helped out in this capacity when a crop could not be found elsewhere.

It is asserted that Prempeh once started out to paint Kumasi red; and the material he used was the blood of his victims. He was a shinging mark for vengeance and it came finally in the shape of a British military expedition, which marched into his country and conquered it. The British lost heavily, among the dead being Prince Henry of Battenberg, who succumbed to the deadly climate. The Ashanti ruler was clutched and humiliated. He was then sent to Seychelles for confinement with his family and some of his attendants. The sights which were disclosed in Kumasi when the expedition entered the town were such as made the white soldiers sick. No British nerves were strong enough to stand for more than one look at the "place of death" within that town.

KING PEMPEH AND HIS COURT.

Three other black rulers are companions of Prempeh at Seychelles. One is Mwanga, the ex-king of Uganda, who possesses a record only second to that of the Ashanti ruler. By a curious irony of fate, one of the other captives, now his companion, is Kabaregga, once king of Unyoro, who, when both were ruling, was his greatest enemy. If any one or all of these three great lonely they can step across the road and have a friendly chat with Asibi, the deposed king of Kokufu, a province of Ashanti. This ruler shared the downfall of Prempeh and went into captivity with them. It is a family party of kings that the paternal British government has gathered into harmless seclusion at Seychelles for the benefit of mankind in general and black mankind in particular.

Ex-Sultan Murad.

WEST USES GOOD ENGLISH.

Only Part of the Country That Gives "R" Its Value.

That which the rest of the country accepts as the standard of correct pronunciation, though seldom attaining it characterizes the speech of the majority of the people of the West. The West is the only section that does not badly misuse R.

It is perhaps incorrect to say the East and South misuse R. They hardly use it at all. In the East and many parts of the South R is, in effect, an auxiliary vowel except at the beginning of words. It merely lengthens the preceding vowel. Occasionally it receives a distinct vowel sound, that of Italian A.

In many parts of the South it is not heard at all. While the Georgian says "bofoah," his Alabama neighbors say "befo'," deposing R from its position as a vowel, or vowel modifier.

In the West, R is sounded with an approximation of correctness. Yet even the Westerners do not give it its full value, as do the Irish and Scotch. Their strong enunciation of the letter sounds harsh to us, yet the letter is intended to be pronounced and its use differentiates words liable to be confused by the ear.

The Anglo-Saxon seems to be doing his best to depose R. Were it not for the influence of the Irish and Scotch, R would not be little more than a written letter, as silent as initial H to Spanish.—Leslie's Weekly.

Helpless Ducks in Borax Lakes.

In Death valley, where the Pacific Coast Borax company has made huge lakes for the crystallization of borates from the waters of the surrounding marsh, the Piutes catch numbers of ducks in a peculiar and highly interesting manner. On cold nights the ducks flying over alight in these vats, which look like any other ponds. The borax in the water crystallizes quickly, and if any of the ducks are at all quiet they find themselves quite weighted down with crystals in the morning. They can then neither dive nor swim, and fall an easy prey to the ever hungry Piute, the demands of whose stomach overcome his natural hatred of water. I have known of one such night netting sixteen ducks, most of which were big, fat mallards whose weight added to the binding crystals, held them down, where the lighter teal escaped.—Los Angeles Times.

Pretty Hard Task.

Senator Perkins of California, who spent years of his early life at sea, tells of a stowaway being found in the hold of the vessel. The lad was made cabin boy to the captain, who took quite a fancy to him. When the ship made her first stop the captain gave the lad $20 and sent him ashore for some vegetables. The boy told a groceryman what he had come for and the storekeeper, pointing to a barrel of dried peas, said: "Them's vegetables." The boy invested the $20 and on rowing out to the ship, which was anchored in the bay, was hailed by the captain: "Have you brought the vegetables?" "Yes, sir," said the lad, not very confidently. "Look alive, then, and hand them up one at a time."

Sue Municipality of Paris.

One result of the underground railway lines already in operation in the city of Paris is that several omnibus and tramway lines have been given up for want of traffic, and that the companies have instituted an action against the municipality for allowing the breaking up of a monopoly for which they pay a considerable sum.

Figures That Stagger.

The nearest star, whose distances astronomers think they know, is Alpha Centaur, and it is distant from us four light years—that is to say, its light, is four years in reaching us, although traveling at 186,000 miles a second. This estimate places it 252,000 times as far away as the sun.

Constipation Will Undermine Your Health.

Mull's Grape Tonic Cures Constipation.

When the sewer of a city becomes stopped up, the refuse backs into the streets where it decays and rots, spreading disease-creating germs throughout the entire city. An epidemic of sickness follows. It is the same way when the bowels fail to work. The undigested food backs into the system and there it rots and decays. From this festering mass the blood saps up all the disease germs, and at every heart beat carries them to every tissue, just as the water works of a city forces impure water into every house. The only way to cure a condition like this is to cure the constipation. Pills and the ordinary cathartics will do no good.

is a crushed fruit tonic-laxative
which permanently cures the affliction. The tonic properties contained in the grape go into every afflicted tissue and creates strength and health. It will quickly restore lost flesh and make rich, red blood. As a laxative its action is immediate and positive, gentle and natural. Mull's Grape Tonic is guaranteed or money back.

ENGINE RUNS WILD AFTER A COLLISION

Locomotive Travels 100 Feet on the Ties, Then Mounts the Rails and Is Finally Stalled.

Belvidere, Ill., Feb. 23.—An incoming passenger train from Janesville on the Chicago and Northwestern road collided with a switch engine in the local yards, partially demolishing both engines. The passengers escaped with bruises and Fireman Aichison was bruised and injured iternally.

The switch engine was cut loose from the tender and ran wild through the yards. After running over 100 feet on the ties the engine mounted the main line of the Northern Illinois branch and left the city, running south.

A train dispatcher in Chicago wired the agent at Herbert to run the wild engine into the ditch, as it endangered incoming trains and also trains on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Illinois Central, which cross the Northwestern south of this city. Half an hour later the escaped engine was caught stalled on a hill three miles south of the city.

LADY ON EDITORIAL STAFF OF LEADING RELIGIOUS WEEKLY

Sends the Following Grand Testimonial to the Merits of Cuticura Remedies in the Treatment of Humours of the Blood, Skin and Scalp.

"I wish to give my testimony to the efficiency of the Cuticura Remedies in what seems to me two somewhat remarkable cases. I had a number of skin tumours—small ones—on my arms which had never given me serious trouble; but about two years ago one came on my throat. At first it was only about as large as a pinhead, but, as it was in a position where my collar, if not just right, would irritate it, it soon became very sensitive and began to grow rapidly. Last spring it was as large, if not larger, than a bean. A little unusual irritation of my collar started it to swelling, and in a day or two it was as large as half an orange. I was very much alarmed, and was at a loss to determine whether it was a carbuncle or a malignant tumor.

"My friends tried to persuade me to consult my physician; but dreading that he would insist on using the knife, I would not consent to go. Instead I got a small bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I took the former according to directions, and spread a thick layer of the Ointment on a linen cloth and placed it on the swelling. On renewing it I would bathe my neck in very warm water and Cuticura Soap. In a few days the Cuticura Ointment had drawn the swelling to a head, when it broke. Every morning it was opened with a large sterilized needle, squeezed and bathed, and fresh Ointment put on. Pus and blood, and a yellow, cheesy, tumorous matter came out. In about three or four weeks' time this treatment completely eliminated boil and tumor. The soreness that had extended down into my chest was all gone, and my neck now seems to be perfectly well.

"About five or six years ago my sister had a similar experience. She had two large lumps come under her right arm, the result of a sprain. They grew rapidly, and our physician wanted to cut them out. I would not listen to it, and she tried the Cuticura Remedies (as I did a few months ago) with magical effect. In six weeks' time the lumps had entirely disappeared, and have never returned.

"I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies, and I believe they might be as efficacious in similar cases with other people, and thus save much suffering, and perhaps life. I have derived so much benefit from the use of them myself that I am constantly advising others to use them. Recently I recommended them to an office boy for his father, who was disabled with salt rheum. The man's feet were swollen to an enormous size, and he had not worked for six weeks. Two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment worked a perfect cure. You never saw a more grateful man in your life.

"I am very much interested in another case where I have recommended Cuticura just now. My housemaid's mother has a goitre which had reached a very dangerous point. The doctors told her that nothing could be done; that she could live only two or three weeks, and that she would die of strangulation. She was confined to her bed, and was unable to speak, when her daughter, at my suggestion, tried the effect of the Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. Strange to say, she was very shortly relieved of the most distressing symptoms. The swelling seemed to be exteriorized, and she is now able to be around her house, and can talk as well as ever.

"It seems to me that I have pretty good grounds for believing that Cuticura Remedies will prove successful in the most distressing forms of blood and skin humours, and if you wish to use my testimonial as herein indicated, I am willing that you should do so, with the further privilege of revealing my name and address to such persons as may wish to substantiate the above statements by personal letter to me."

Chicago, Nov. 12, 1902.

They will go to housekeeping on the farm 5½ miles east of town.

The Times extends congratulations. May they live long to enjoy the happiness which is sure to come from such a union.

The following we received from our old friend, A. M. Kelly. It may interest you.

Dear Friend.—Your letter of recent date received, glad to hear from you.

I left Fresno the 4th and went to San Francisco. I had a very nice time there as there are so many places of interest to see. I was out to the Cliff House, you have no doubt seen pictures of it and the seal rocks. The pictures give one a very good idea of the Cliff House and the rocks but you miss the roar of the ocean. One can spend a day there and find something of interest to keep them looking at all the time. The Cliff House is a large hotel built on the rocks overlooking the ocean, the seal rocks are covered with seal that keep up a continual barking, then there is the museum to visit containing relics collected from all parts of the world, the bath houses are immense affairs where one can have salt water baths. Above the Cliff House is Sutre Heights, a beautiful park, the private property of a Mr. Sutre, but open to the public, it is a very beautiful place full of beautiful statuary, trees and flowers, from here one has a fine view of the ocean.

I visited the U. S. mint and saw them making five dollar gold pieces I saw a pile of them that amounted to $500,000. Anyone can visit the mint any working day. They also have a very interesting collection of coins collected from all parts of the world. Golden Gate park took up a half day of my time, this is a very nice place, the trees and flowers look beautiful. I was out to the military reservation one day and heard a concert by the 3rd Infantry band. Part of the Pacific Squadron were anchored in the bay. The New York, Boston, Marblehead and the Ranger. It was my pleasure to visit the New York, and through the courtesy of Trantwain the chief yoeman. I was shown all over the boat, it was a very interesting thing for me to see a man of war and naturally we all are more or less interested in the N. Y. as she was the boat that didn't get there at the battle of Santiago. There was a change of admirals a few days before I visited the N. Y. Rear Admiral Glass is now in command of the Pacific Squadron. They passed here Wednesday on their way to Honduras to take care of Uncle Sam's interests. One can find plenty of places in San Francisco to spend a great deal of time. There is China town, the wharf and bay, excursion boats make daily trips around the bay, also tourist cars run all ove. the city.

I came to Santa Cruz Monday and have been spending a few days at "Ranche Enello" owned by Russ Allred formerly of Garner. Had a delightful time. Their ranch is four miles from Santa Cruz and about one thousand feet higher than the city. A fine location overlooking the ocean and bay of Montevey. They raise all kinds of frum. Russ is getting to be quite a farmer. He and Mrs. A. are feeling much improved in health and like the country very well.

The last few days have been quite cold and windy, last night we had a killing frost, froze ice, they tell me it was the the coldest snap in seve. years.

I leave here this afternoon by boat for Los Angeles the city of sunshine, so they say. Hope to hear from you there. Yours truly,

A. M. KELLY,
Los Angeles Cal.

STOCK FEEDING TEST.

Expxeriment Commenced in State College Husbabndry Department.

Ames, March 2.—The first experiment in feeding live stock for this year has been started by the animal husbandry department of the Iowa Agricultural colege, on the Brookmont farm at Odebolt, under the personal supervision of Prof. W. J. Kennedy, head of the department, who just returned from that place. This experiment called the "the acclimation test," is the first of its kind undertaken anywhere, its purpose being to determine whether southern cattle will thrive in northern climates as well as northern and western cattle when fed on the same rations and under similar conditions. The animals, 100 in number, divided into two lots, fifty head of southern and fifty head of western, were weighed, which will be used as the starting weight and compared with similar results obtained every two weeks during the entire feeding period. Short bulletins will be issued from time to time, showing the progress of the test.

The second experiment will commence March 15. Over 400 head of cattle will be used in this test, the object of which is to secure reliable data pertaining to the value of the by-products of corn, flaxseed, cottonseed, glucose, and dried blood, when fed in conjunction with corn and roughage. A large amount of meals of flaxseed, cottonseed, etc., has been donated to the station by various large companies manufacturing the same throughout the country.

To the great surprise of the department the stock food companies have made no donations of their products to the station this year for experimental purposes, and thus condimental food will not be represented in these tests. A large number of requests from those companies all over the country were received last year asking that their particular brand be admitted in the tests to determine its relative feeding value with that of corn. It is surmised that the unfavorable reports in the final results published in Bulletin No. 66 last summer, is the cause of their withdrawal this year, as the official report was that a ration of any of the various brands of stock food fed in conjunction with corn and roughage returned a net profit of several dolars less per steer on the average than a ration of corn and roughage when fed alone; while flaxseed, gluten meals, etc., returned a larger net profit per steer.

A departure in the experiment from last year is the division of the cattle into larger lots, each group consisting of fifty animals, to twenty last year. The object of this increase is to overcome the individual influence of the animal on the results.

A fine new set of yards and sheds has just been completed on the Odebolt station by A. E. Cook, proprietor of the Brookmont farms, to accommodate the 500 head of cattle to be used this year, which is double the number of last, and the largest ever used anywhere in this line of work, and it is believed that better and more accurate results will be obtained this year though these improvments in the buildings on the farm and methods of conducting the work.

LAVALLEUR JURY DISAGREES.

Majority Were For Acquittal of Accused Woman After First Ballot.

Newton, March 2.—The jury in the Lavalleur murder case after being out just twenty-seven hours, were called into court by Judge Preston and announced that they were unable to arrive at a verdict. The jury was then charged. It is learned by talking with different members of the body the first ballot taken by the jury after they retired to their room, stood six for acquittal and six for conviction. After a short debate on the evidence a second ballot changed one juror over to the side of the defense, making the jury stand 7 to 5. The third and all succeeding ballots, of which a large number were taken, resulted 8 for acquittal to 4 for conviction. Only one change was made after this result had been reached when one of the jurors who had been voting for acquittal of Mrs. Lavalleur turned over and cast their balot for conviction. The change was made in the hope that it would lead one or more of the four holding out for conviction to repay the compliment, and possibiby make the jury united in freeing the woman.

STRONG CASE AGAINST WALKER.

Witness Says She Saw Him Strike Finkelstein.

Des Moines, Feb. 27.—The state sprung its promised sensation in the Walker murder trial yesterday when it put Ada Hazlewood upon the stand and the woman testified to seeing Walker and a smaller man whom she could not identify hiding in the alley on East Walnut street, between Sixth and Seventh streets, where Isaac Finkelstein was killed; to passing Finkelstein within a few feet of the mouth of the aley, to hearing a heavy blow and hearing Finkelstein gasp "Oh," and then turning around in time to see Finkelstein fall to the ground, stricken down by the death blow. The Hazelwood will prove the star witness of the state. The defense consumed almost an hour in a severe cross-examination of the woman and in an attempt to impeach her testimony. Ada told a straightforward story, however, and did not alter it in any main point despite the severe cross-examination of Mr. Mulvaney for the defense.

IMPORTANT ARREST IS MADE.

Thought to Be Clue to Bold Robberies Committed.

Waterloo, March 2.—Sheriff Law arrested Joseph Raphael, who is suspected of being connected with three robberies in the same block in this city within the past few weeks. After his arrest a search warrant was issued and a portion of the stolen property found at his residence. Some of the property was identified as that stolen in the Loomer robbery last week, which was one of the boldest ever committed in the city. The officers think they now have a clue to the parties who committed all three of the robberies. The property recovered consisted of jewelry and wearing apparel, a portion of which is still unidentified.

Killed by an Explosion.

Stockport, Feb. 28.—Anton Niece and his son, George, were killed instantly at Keosauqua by the explosion of the boiler at the grist mill. The roof of the building was blown off, and it is a total wreck. The explosion was so severe as to shake the entire town, and parts of the engine were blown across the river, fully half a COUNCIL AFTER RAILROADS.

Wants Full Real Estate Valuation by Assessors.

Des Moines, Feb. 28.—It has recently become known to the executive council that the railroads have agents working in nearly every county in the state ascertaining the number of real estate transfers that have taken place during the past year and the exact consideration that passed in each instance.

The reason assigned for this by the members of the executive council is that the railroads are afraid that the council in acting as a board of equalization will again attempt to increase the valuation of their properties They hope through their agents to secure data that will show that the assessors of the state are returning valuations of about 16 instead of 25 per cent, and with this as a basis will protest against any other effort to make them pay more taxes than they now are.

At the meeting of the state board of equalization last year the attorneys for the railroads of the state made a strenuous effort to prevent the placing of an increased valuation on their systems. This effort was partially successful, although the council raised the valuation about $4,000,000, "just for luck," as the secretary of the council said yesterday

This year the railroads realize that if they are to prevent a large increase they must convince the state board that they are being done an injustice if the assessors of the state follow out their usual practice and return valuations of about 16 per cent the railroads will be successful or will at least be able to make a showing that will warrant them in appealing to the courts. The executive council is aware that if a low valuation is returned this year they will be unable to get anything more out of the railroads in the way of taxes, hence the recent inauguration of a campaign calculated to imbue the assessors with a full sense of their duty. It is given out cold by the executive council that if any of the assessors are found violating the law in returning low real estate valuations they will get the full benefit of the Iowa statutes which give the state a civil remedy against assessors who "will fully and negligently" fail to perform their full duty.

MUST RENEW BONDS YEARLY.

Important Ruling as to Saloonkeepers Made by Judge Given.

Des Moines, Feb. 26.—A point developed in the trial of the state against B. F. Parker and was passed on by Judge Given that will be of interest to those engaged in the liquor business in the state.

The testimony showed that Parker had procured the bond filed with his consent from an indemnity company and that the year for which he had paid the tax expired in September last. The bond was not renewed until January. The state maintained there had not been compliance with the mulct law, inasmuch as there had been no bond for the period between September and January. The defense claimed, and offered testimony to show there had been a bond, the contention being that the bond ran indefinitely, or as long as a saloon was conducted by the parties named in the bond upon the premises it described. There was evidence to the effect Parker placed his bond business in the hands of the local agent of one of the bond companies and depended upon him to make renewals, and that it was the oversight of the agent that resulted in the filing of the bond. But the principal contention was that in as long as the first bond was in force there was no occasion for a renewal that the law had been complied with.

Judge Given instructed the jury that the law contemplates the filing of a new bond the first day of each year and the payment of the mulct tax upon the first day of each quarter He said that failure to do this does away with the protection afforded by the law, and that the sales of liquors become violations of the old Clark law. It was ascertained yesterday that a great many saloonkeepers in Des Moines fail to renew their bonds from year to year, figuring that a bond continues until revoked by those signing it. It was also stated that it has been the common practice in the state to do this.

FRANK BAIRD GUILTY.

Convicted at Knoxville of Robbery of P. Sullivan on New Year's Eve.

Knoxville, Feb. 26.—Frank Baird charged with robbing P. Sullivan of $2,000 on New Year's eve, went to his doom yesterday, dumb and unmoved The trial finished without his testimony and the jury was out but a short time, returning to court to announce a verdict of "guilty as charged."

The defense did not put on any testimony, depending for its showing, apparently, on the cross-examination of witnesses. The fact that Baird did not go on the stand was sufficient to create almost as much of a sensation as he was expected to create if he had gone on.

His silence is regarded as quite remarkable and convinces the people of the absolute truth of the story told by the Sullivans of the robbery. This was developed on the trial of Baird to be about as given in the newspapers heretofore—two men committing the robbery within the house while the third held the team in the road; the escape of the three, the wounding of Baird and his capture, and the disappearance of the other two.

Baird will be sentenced Saturday morning. There is no reason to doubt that he will receive the limit, despite the disfigurement which he suffered on account of the gun shot wound inflicted by Sullivan.

ROGERS GOT FOUR YEARS.

Man Who Shot William Work is Sentenced to Penitentiary.

Manchester, Feb. 27.—Judge F. C. Platt sentenced Richard Rogers to four years, and Oliver Leibbe to eight years in the Anamosa penitentiary. Rogers is a blacksmith, who, on January 2 of this year, shot Wm. Work of this city in the arm, while under the influence of liquor, and after having indulged in a pugilistic encounter in which he was the aggressor. Leibe was found guilty of the charge of rape in the district court last week. Both prisoners were taken to Anamosa by Sheriff Fishel.

Woman Brutally Assaulted.

Sioux City, Feb. 28.—Stepping outside of her house, Mrs. Carrie Johnson was assaulted by an unknown man and beaten brutally over the head with some blunt instrument and left unconscious. She accuses her husband, O. F. Johnson, from whom she has been separated and has had him arrested.

And it was during this hour of trial to Miriam, that Joris was talking to Lysbet of her. It did him good to put his fears into words, for Lysbet's assurances were comfortable; and as it had been a day full of feeling, he was weary and went earlier to his room than usual. On the contrary, Lysbet was very wakeful. She carried her sewing to the candle and sat down to think.

In the midst of her reflections, Bram returned. She had not expected him so early, but the sound of his feet was pleasant. He came in slowly, and, after some pottering, irritating delays, he pushed his father's chair back from the light and with a heavy sigh sat down in it.

"Why sigh you so heavy, Bram? Every sigh still lower sinks the heart."

"A light heart I shall never have again, mother. For me there is no hope. So quiet and shy was my love."

"Oh, indeed! Of all the coquettes, the quiet, shy ones are the worst."

"No coquette is Miriam Cohen. My love life is at an end, mother."

"When began it, Bram?"

"It was at the time of the duel. I loved her from the first moment. O mother, mother!"

"Does she not love you?"

"I think so; many sweet hours we have had together. My heart was full of hope."

"Well, then, my son, be not easy to lose thy heart. Try once more."

"Useless it would be. Miriam is not one of those who say 'no' and then 'yes.'"

"Nearly two years you have known her. That was long to keep you in hope and doubt. I think she is a coquette."

"You know her not, mother. Very few words of love have I dared to say. We have been friends. I feared to lose all by asking too much."

"Then, why did you ask her tonight? It would have been better had your father spoken first to Mr. Cohen."

"I did not ask Miriam to-night. She spared me all she could. This is what she said to me, 'Bram, dear Bram, I fear that you begin to love me, because I think of you very often. And my grandfather has just told me that I am promised to Judah Belasco of London. In the summer he will come here and I shall marry him.'"

"What said you then?"

"Oh, I scarce know! But I told her how dearly I loved her and I asked her to be my wife."

"And she said what to thee?"

"'My father I must obey. Though he told me to slay myself, I must obey him. By the God of Israel, I have promised it often.'"

"She is a good girl. I wish that you had won her, Bram." And Lysbet put down her work and went to her son's side; and with a great sob Bram laid his head against her breast.

"As one whom his mother comforteth!" Oh, tender and wonderful consolation! It is the mother that turns the bitter waters of life into wine. Bram talked his sorrow over to his mother's love and pity and sympathy; and when she parted with him, long after the midnight, she said cheerfully, "Thou hast a brave soul, mijn zoon, mijn Bram; and this trouble is not all for thy loss and grief. A sweet memory will this beautiful Miriam be as long as thou livest; and to have loved well a good woman, will make thee always a better man for it."

CHAPTER XII.

London Life.

The trusting, generous letter which Joris had written to his son-in-law arrived a few days before Hyde's departure for London.

Hyde knew well the importance of Katherine's fortune. It enabled him to face his relatives and friends on a very much better footing than he had anticipated. So he was no longer averse to meeting his former companions; even to them, a rich wife would excuse matrimony.

His first social visit was paid to his maternal grandmother, the dowager Lady Capel. He found her in the most careless dishabille, wigless and unpainted, and rolled up comfortably in an old wadded morning gown that had seen years of snuffy service. But she had outlived her vanity. Hyde had chosen the very hour in which she had nothing whatever to amuse her, and he was a very welcome interruption. And, upon the whole, she liked her

So she heard the rattle of Hyde's sword and the clatter of his feet on the polished stairs, with a good deal of satisfaction. "I have him here and I shall do my best to keep him here," she thought. "Why should a proper young fellow like Dick bury himself alive in the fens for a Dutch woman? In short, she has had enough, and too much, of him. His grandmother has a prior claim, I hope, and then Arabella Suffolk will help me. I foresee mischief and amusement. Well Dick, you rascal, so you have had to leave America! I expected it. Oh, sir, I have heard all about you from Adelaide! You are not to be trusted, either among men or women. And pray where is the wife you made such a fracas about? Is she in London with you?"

"No, madam; she preferred to remain at Hyde, and I have no happiness beyond her desire."

"Here's flame! Here's constancy! And you have been married a whole year! I am struck with admiration."

"A whole year—a year of divine happiness, I assue you."

"Lord, sir! You will be the laughing stock of the town if you talk in such fashion. They will have you in the playhouses. Pray let us forget our domestic joys a little. You can make a good figure in the world; and as your cousin, Arabella Suffolk is staying with me, you will be the properest gallant for her when Sir Thomas is at the House. Here comes Arabella, and I am anxious you should make a figure in her eyes."

Arabella came in very quietly, but she seemed to take possession of the room as she entered it. She had a bright, piquant face, a tall, graceful form, and that air of high fashion which is perhaps quite as captivating.

Arabella made Hyde a pretty, mocking courtesy, and he could not help looking with some interest at the woman who might have been his wife.

Katherine was ignored in the conversation that followed, and Hyde did not feel any desire to bring even her name into such a mocking, jeering, perfectly heartless conversation. He was content to laugh and let the hour go past in flim-flams of criticism and persiflage.

A couple of hours passed; and then it became evident, from the pawing and snorting outside, that his horse's patience was quite exhausted. Hyde went away in an excitement of hope and gay anticipations. A momentary glance upward showed him Lady Capel and Lady Suffolk at the window, watching him; the withered old woman in her soiled wrappings, the youthful beauty in all the bravery of her white and gold poudesoy. He made them a salute, and then, in a clamor of clattering hoofs, he dashed through the square.

During the next six months society made an idol of Capt. Hyde, and, if he was not at Lady Arabella's feet, he was certainly very constantly at her side.

Hyde loved his wife, loved her tenderly and constantly; he felt himself to be a better man whenever he thought of her and his little son, and he thought of them very frequently; and yet his eyes, his actions, the tones of his voice daily led his cousin, Lady Suffolk, to imagine herself the empress of his heart and life. Unfortunately, his military duties were only on very rare occasions any restraint to him. His days were mainly spent in dangling after Lady Suffolk and other fair dames. And it must be remembered that the English women of that day were such as England may well hope never to see again. In the higher classes they married for money or position, and gave themselves up to intrigue. They drank deeply; they played high; they very seldom went to church, for Sunday was the fashionable day for all kinds of frivolity and amusement. And as the men of any generation are just what the women make them, England never had sons so profligate, so profane and drunken. The clubs, especially Brooke's, were the nightly scenes of indescribable orgies. Gambling was their serious occupation; duels were of constant occurrence.

Such a life could not be lived except at frightful and generally ruinous expense. Hyde was soon embarrassed. Towards Christmas bills began to pour in, creditors became importunate, and, for the first time in his life, creditors really troubled him. The income from Hyde Manor had never been more than was required for the expenses of the place; and the interest on Katherine's money had gone, though he could not tell how. He was destitute of ready cash, and he foresaw that he would have to borrow some from Lady Capel or some other accommodating friend.

He returned to barracks one Sunday afternoon, and was moodily thinking over these things, when his orderly brought him a letter which had arrived during his absence. It was from Katherine. His face flushed with delight as he read it, so sweet and tender and pure was the neat epistle. "She wants to see me. Oh, the dear one! Not more than I want to see her. Fool, villain, that I am; I will go to her. Katherine! Kate! My dear little Kate!" So he ejaculated as he paced his narrow quarters, and tried to arrange his plans for a Christmas visit of his wife and child.

He had determined to ask Lady Capel for a hundred pounds; and he thought it would be the best plan to make his request when she was surrounded by company, and under the pleasureable excitement of a [illegible] rubber. And if the circumstances proved adverse, then he could [illegible] fortune in the hours of her retirement.

The mansion in Berkeley [illegible] was brilliantly lighted when [illegible] approached it. Sunday night [illegible] Capel's great card night, [illegible] rooms were full of tables surrounded by powdered and painted beauties intent upon the game and the gold. The odor of musk was everywhere, and the sound of the tapping of gold fans, and the sharp, technical calls of the gamesters, and the hollow laughter of hollow hearts.

Not very hopefully he approached Lady Capel. She had been unfortunate all the evening and was not amiable.

"Dick, I am angry at you. I have a mind to banish you for a month."

"I am going to Norfolk for two weeks, madam."

"That will do. It is a worse punishment than I should have given you, Norfolk! There is only one word between it and the plantations. Give me your arm, Dick; I shall play no more until my luck turns. Losing cards are dull company."

"I am very sorry that you have been losing. I came to ask for the loan of a hundred pounds, grandmother."

"No, sir, I will not lend you a hundred pounds; nor am I in the humor to do anything else you desire."

"I make my apology for the request. I ought to have asked Katherine."

"No, sir, you ought not to have asked Katherine. You ought to take what you want. Jack Capel took every shilling of my fortune and neither said, 'by your leave,' nor 'thank you.' Did the Dutchman tie the bag too close?"

"Councillor Van Heemskirk left it open, in my honor. When I am scoundrel enough to touch it, I shall not come and see you at all, grandmother."

"Upon my word, a very pretty compliment! Well, sir, I'll pay you a hundred pounds for it. When do you start?"

"To-morrow morning."

"Make it afternoon, and take care of me as far as your aunt Julia's. And I daresay you want money to-night. Here are the keys of my desk. In the right hand drawer are some rouleaus of fifty pounds each. Take two."

The weather, as Lady Capel said, was "so very Decemberish" that the roads were passably good, being frozen dry and hard, and on the evening of the third day Hyde came in sight of his home. His heart warmed to the lonely place; and the few lights in its windows beckoned him far more pleasantly than the brilliant illuminations of Vauxhall or Almacks, or even the cold splendors of royal receptions. He had given Katherine no warning of his visit. He wanted to see with his own eyes, and hear with his own ears, the glad tokens of her happy wonder.

The kitchen fire threw great lustres across the brick-paved yard; and the blinds in Katherine's parlor were undrawn, and its fire and candle light shone on the freshly laid tea table, and the dark walls gleaming with bunches of holly and mistletoe. But she was not there. He only glanced inside the room and then, with a smile on his face, went swiftly upstairs. He had noticed the light in the upper windows, and he knew where he would find his wife. Before he reached the nursery he heard Katherine's voice. The door was a little open, and he could see every part of the charming domestic scene within the room. A middle-aged woman was quietly putting to rights the sweet disorder incident to the undressing of the baby. Katherine had played with it until they were both a little flushed and weary and she was softly singing to the drowsy child at her breast.

Over and over, softer and slower, went the melody. It was evident that the boy was asleep and that Katherine was going to lay him in his cradle. He watched her do it; watched her gently tuck in the cover and stand for a moment to look down at the child. Then with a face full of love she turned away, smiling, and quite unconsciously came toward him on tiptoes. With his face beaming, with his arms opened, he entered; but with such a sympathetic understanding of the sweet need of silence and restraint, that there was no alarm, no outcry, no fuss or amazement. Only a whispered "Katherine," and the swift rapture of meeting hearts and lips.

HAD BUT ONE DRAWBACK.

Apart From That He Thought Vermont a Paradise.

A number of members gathered about the seat of Representative Foster of Vermont yesterday were discussing cold weather in the New England and other northern states. Mr. Foster declared that Vermont has sleighing more weeks in the year than any other state of the Union, and to prove this assertion related the following story:

Hank White, a noted minstrel in his time, who probably was the original "end man," was a native of Vermont. One of his jokes used to run something like this:

"So you come from Vermont?" the middle man would ask.

"Yes, I am proud to say that I was born and raised in the good old state of Vermont," White would answer.

"You make pretty good maple sugar up in Vermont."

"Yes; our maple sugar is the sweetest on earth."

"Have some pretty good horses up there, too."

"The Morgan horses bred in Vermont, are not excelled anywhere in the world."

"Pretty girls, eh?"

"Vermont has the prettiest girls in America."

"Well, Vermont must be pretty much of a state," the middle-man would say, in conclusion.

"It's the greatest state in the Union," was White's answer. "There is just one thing about it I don't like. For about six weeks in midsummer, when the snow melts off, we have to drag around on wheels."—Washington Post.

Sensible Action of New York's Finest Prevented a Bride Suddenly Stopped.

[illegible] of D. Vebne[illegible] years ago I was dining with [illegible] of wealthy Westerners in New [illegible] City," said Mr. Benjamin T. Leslie, of Montana, to a Washington Post reporter. "Among them were Marcus Daly, Charlie Broadwater, ex-Gov. Hauser, Hon. Tom Carter, Senator W. A. Clark, John W. Mackay, "Lucky" Baldwin and E. E. Bonner.

"It seems that no two of them were stopping at the same hotel, and each had a grievance against the hostelry where he put up. One said he meant to quit the Fifth Avenue; another inveighed against the Waldorf; a third thought that Delmonico's was terribly overrated, and so on. Not one had a good word to say of any of the taverns or eating houses of Gotham, and there was special criticism of the food.

"Finally, after there was a little lull in the choruses of adverse criticism, old man Bonner burst into a loud laugh. When asked the cause of his merriment, Bonner said: 'I've been listening to you fellows talk, and I tell you frankly, you give me a pain. To hear such as you run down these swell establishments in New York is enough to make the angels weep. Why, it hasn't been [illegible] many years since I've seen every [illegible]00 of you squatted on the grass of the [illegible]airie, eating beans out of a frying [illegible] with your fingers.' STORIETTES.

It is said that during the civil war, Wendell Phillips was spending a day at a hotel in Springfield, Mass., when a "copperhead" guest entered into a conversation with him, not knowing who he was. After violently anathematizing all Abolitionists, and especially Mr. Phillips, the gentleman added: "And by the way, I see that Wendell Phillips' name is on the hotel register." "Yes," said the latter, with an air of utter unconcern; "I wrote it there."

When Sidney Lee delivered his first lecture in the Lowell Institute course, he spoke of those Americans who went to England and achieved distinction there and thus obtained a place in his "National Dictionary of English Biography." He referred to the residence of Count Rumford in Rumford, N. H., afterward called Concord, which, the lecturer said with warmth, is a name known to the learned throughout the world. This palpable confusing of the Concord, N. H., with Concord, Mass., was too much for the gravity of the audience, and their amusement increased when some realized that the chief literary renown of Concord, N. H., comes at the present time from "Mother" Eddy!

Mrs. Bowen, wife of Herbert W. Bowen, United States minister to Venezuela, who is acting as Venezuela's commissioner, was, before she was married, a Galveston girl. Their wedding took place in Caracas, and soon afterward, it is said, a revolutionary army and a government army met by chance on a mountain behind the United States legation, which is located in the environs of Caracas. When the Mausers began to pop and the flash of the rifles showed red on the verdant hillside, Mrs. Bowen rushed out to the piazza, where Mr. Bowen, long before inured to warfare of the calibre continuously served up in Venezuela, was unconsciously puffing a cigar. "Why, what is the matter?" she asked and glanced apprehensively toward the sound of firing. "Oh, only a battle," Mr. Bowen replied. "But are we not in danger?" Mr. Bowen assured her of the mild nature of the battles, and although it was the first time she had been "under fire," she returned complacently to her needlework and never after allowed the scares about Venezuelan "wars" and "battles" to perturb her.

THOUSANDS OF AMERICANS FOR WESTERN CANADA.

"There will be thousands of Americans coming up here in the spring," was the remark made by a farmer from the vicinity of Langdon, North Dakota, when he arrived in Winnipeg, Manitoba, the capital of Western Canada, a few days since. He was the advance guard of a large body who are following him, and he has already invested in several farming sections for himself and others and purposes to take up his permanent abode in this country. He went on to say: "Hundreds are coming from my district alone. I know this to be a fact for many of them are neighbors of mine. The chief topic of conversation with the farmers is the coming immigration in the spring.

"The impression general in the part of Dakota where I live that farmers can get from 10 to 15 cents more a bushel for wheat on the American side of the line than on the Canadian has not prevented people from turning their eyes to Canada as a place to live in. They know they can get land in this country which is every bit as fertile as that in Dakota at about one-quarter the price. It is safe to say that the exodus from Dakota into Canada this year will exceed the expectations of all Canadians."

WALKER IS FOUND GUILTY

Colored Man at Des Moines Found Guilty of Manslaughter for Killing of Finkelstein—Jury at First Stood Nine for Murder in the First Degree.

Des Moines, March 2.—The jury in the trial of James Walker, colored, for the murder of Isaac Finkelstein, returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter.

When the verdict was read the defendant watched the judge with an eager expression, but there was no trace of emotion on his face. Those sitting near him at the time could detect his heavy breathing and his general nervous condition, but not a single word escaped his lips. When court adjourned, his brother grasped his hand and his attorneys came up to talk with him, but he had nothing to say and was led away to resume his old place in the county jail.

The penalty for the crime of manslaughter is imprisonment in the penitentiary for a period not exceeding eight years and a fine not exceeding $1,000. The defendant has five days to move for a new trial and prepare for judgment.

After the jury had been discharged it was ascertained that Walker had a very narrow escape from conviction for a more serious offense. Nine of the jurors balloted for murder in the first degree from the first and so expressed themselves, two voted for acquittal and one voted for second degree. The balloting continued in this way from the time the jury went out Friday at 3 p. m. until yesterday morning. Yesterday morning the first degree advocates commenced going over with the one second degree man until ten were voting for second degree and two for acquittal. Just before 9 a. m. the jurors, with the exception of two were voting for second degree with an occasional vote for manslaughter, the two continuing to vote for acquittal. It was not until 6 p. m. that a verdict was reached.

IMPORTANT MULCT DECISIONS.

Judge Hobson of Decorah Gives Additional Interpretation of Law.

Decorah, March 2.—In the district court in this city Judge Hobson made two important rulings relative to the mulct saloons of Iowa, and held that a mulct saloon cannot be operated without the written consent of persons owning property within fifty feet of the building where the saloon is being conducted, notwithstanding the building has been partitioned so as to place the room actually used for saloon purposes more than fifty feet away. In another case from Ossian the court held that a street fair or carnival commonly held through the various towns of the state, where agricultural products are offered for premiums, are "Agricultural Fairs" within the meaning of the mulct law, whether they are incorporated or not, and that saloons cannot be open on such days within one-half mile of the place where any such fair is being held. Joseph Spillman was accordingly fined $200 and costs for contempt of court in keeping his saloon open during the Ossian street fair. A review of this case in the supreme court is expected. H. J. Jennish and his two bartenders were arraigned for a contempt of court before the court by the anti-saloon league on the complaint of his sister-in-law for selling liquor to her husband in defiance of her orders. A fine of $1,000.00 and costs was imposed on Jennish and a fine of $200 and costs on each of his bartenders, and the building closed by order of the court. The total fines and costs aggregated $1,670, of which $1,430 was at once paid by the defendants.

HOSSACK JURY DISAGREES.

Stood Nine for Conviction and Three for Acquittal From the Start.

Winterset, Feb. 28.—The jury in the Hossack murder case, after being out 30 hours, at 9 o'clock last evening reported that they were unable to agree, and they were called into court and discharged. It is stated that almost from the first, after the jury was sent out with the case, at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, it stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal. During all the long hours there were heated arguments and efforts of those on each side to change the minds of the jurymen who could not agree with them. The three men who were for acquittal of the accused woman could not be turned, and vowed they would stay there always before they would vote for conviction.

This action of the jury throws the case back practically to where it started, and unless something unusual and unforeseen occurs it will have to be brought up and tried over again.

It is stated the sentiment of the people of Winterset was largely in favor of acquittal, and the assertion is made that this sentiment prevailed to a considerable extent among even those who believed the evidence as given pointed to the guilt of Mrs. Hossack. They argued that there were extenuating circumstances brought out by the life which the woman and her husband had led. The age of Mrs. Hossack also brought considerable sympathy to her, as well as did the loyalty for their mother displayed by her children.

HAPPY AND HEALTHY.

A BEAUTIFUL CANADIAN GIRL SAVED FROM CATARRH OF THE LUNGS BY PE-RU-NA.

MISS FLORENCE KENAH.

Miss Florence E. Kenah, 434 Maria street, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"A few months ago I caught a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and remained there so persistently that I became alarmed. I took medicine without benefit, until my digestive organs became upset, and my head and back began to ache severely and frequently.

"I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had little faith I felt so sick that I was ready to try anything. It brought me blessed relief at once, and I felt that I had the right medicine at last. Within three weeks I was completely restored and have enjoyed perfect health since.

"I now have the greatest faith in Peruna." F. E. KENAH.

WOMEN should beware of contracting catarrh. The cold wind and rain, slush and mud of winter are especially conducive to catarrhal derangements. Few women escape.

Upon the first symptoms of catching cold, Peruna should be taken. It fortifies the system against colds and catarrh.

The following letter gives one young woman's experience with Peruna:

Miss Rose Gerbing is a popular society woman of Crown Point, Ind., and she writes the following:

"Recently I took a long drive in the country, and being too thinly clad I caught a bad cold which settled on my lungs, and which I could not seem to shake off. I had heard a great deal of Peruna for colds and catarrh and I bought a bottle to try. I am pleased that I did, for it brought speedy relief. It only took about two bottles, and I considered this money well spent.

"You have a firm friend in me, and I not only advise its use to my friends, but have purchased several bottles to give to those without the means to buy, and have noticed without exception that it has brought about a speedy cure wherever it has been used."—Miss Rose Gerbing.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

OLIVE-FOOD

4 FEEDS COST 1 CENT. — "THE FOOD THAT TELLS." — 4 FEEDS COST 1 CENT.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST FLESH AND MILK PRODUCER.

A DIGESTIVE FOOD	MAKES YOUR STOCK DO WELL. LOOK WELL. SELL WELL.

20 Feeds Makes one Pound.

FOR CATTLE, HORSES, HOGS AND SHEEP.

A GROWING FOOD	A FLESH PRODUCER	A STOCK CONDITIONER

The opportunity you have been waiting for has arrived. Progress and improvement are the watchwords of the twentieth century, and the old style of selling stock foods through traveling agents at an enormous expense, should give way to the more modern plan of being sold by the mail order method at a less expense.

Did you ever stop to think what makes the ordinary stock foods cost what they do to you? If not, we will try to explain. Agents selling stock foods to the farmers direct, through the country with a team, receive a commission of 33 to 50 per cent on all sales, and in addition to this there are other expenses, such as salary to block salesmen, state managers, and the cost of large lithographs, issued by some stock food people. All this expense is added to the cost of the food which the farmer is expected to pay. It causes an expense of $75.00 to $80.00 per ton to sell stock food by the old methods.

When an agent tries to interest you in stock foods you have to take his word in regard to the merits of the food. Why is not the word of a responsible firm, in writing, much better than the verbal contract generally made with a traveling agent. By dealing direct with us you will save this expense that is added to the cost of the food that is purchased through canvassers. By cutting down this expense we are able to give you a food the quality of which is much superior to the ordinary run of stock foods which, if sold under the old methods, could not be sold at anywhere near the price we are now offering it to you for mail orders.

OLIVE-FOOD is superior and entirely different to the ordinary run of stock foods, and is guaranteed to be free from Antimony, Nux-Vomica, Saltpeter, Copperas and all other injurious ingredients that are so often used.

WE WILL GIVE $1,000.00 IN GOLD to any chemist in the United States who can find any trace of the above articles in Olive-Food. Write for circulars.

That Olive-Food is superior to all other foods now on the market our testimonials will show. Write for folders, testimonials, etc., etc. (Buy direct from the manufacturer.)

In feeding Olive-Food to hogs we guarantee to remove worms, thus preventing three-fourths of the diseases of swine.

Olive-Food is a flesh producer and stock conditioner, and by its use 10 to 20 per cent more flesh will be put on the animal, putting him in a much more prime condition without increasing the amount of corn and other feed you are now using and at the same time promote a healthy growth.

As to our responsibility we refer you to any bank in the United States, to Bradstreet or Dunn agencies.

Now here is where we are going to save you the expense of the traveling agent, the block salesman, the state manager and the cost of lithographs. For all orders received by mail, we will deliver Olive-Food, prepaid, to your nearest railroad station, at the following prices. (Money saved by buying from the manufacturer.)

50 Pound Drums,		7c Per Pound.
100	"	6½c	"
500	" Lots	6c	"
1000	"	5½c	"
2000	"	5c	"

WE PAY THE FREIGHT AND GUARANTEE OLIVE-FOOD.

THE BEST STOCK FOOD MADE IN THE WORLD AND AT THE LOWEST PRICE. ORDER TO-DAY. 3 PER CENT OFF FOR CASH.

And if your order is accompanied with an acceptable bank reference as to your financial standing, we will ship you any amount of food, at the above prices, on 60 days' time without interest. When cash accompanies the order a discount of 3 per cent will be allowed off the above prices. In neighborhoods where three or four parties are feeding stock, it would pay some one to get up a club and order in ton lots and then divide it among the parties that have clubbed together. In this way you will be buying food at the lowest possible price. Ask for our guarantee on our printed folder and we believe you will be convinced that you run no risk in buying Olive-Food by mail. Our guarantee is better than a guarantee given you by traveling agents. Ours is in writing while their's is merely a conversation.

The many friends of Mrs. Froling and family regret very much their removal from our town. They moved to Belmond on Monday and will make that place their future home. We look for them to visit their old home often, and am sure they will always be welcome.

Everybody was on the move on Monday and of course we had our position in the ranks. We are now quite comfortably settled in the Mrs. Froling house in the south part of town The task of getting settled was not nearly so great as is usually the case, for Mrs. Froling left the house as clean as a pin.

Miss Hulda Gruetzmacher met with what might have proven a very serious accident on Tuesday. The fire in the stove in the postoffice was getting quite low, and in order to start it up quickly she poured in some kerosene The gas which formed caused an explosion and Miss Hulda was in the midst of it. Her left hand and arm was quite badly burned caused by the lace on her dress being ignited. Miss Gruetzmacher can consider herself fortunate that it is no worse. Of course this will be her last experience with kerosene.

The third grade honor. When I am season was pulled through to touch I shall day evening last A very small crowd was present to enjoy the occasion but those who did attend report having had a splendid time. Ainsworth orchestra of Mason City furnished the music and of course it was simply grand. This event deserved a more liberal patronage. Financially the affair was not a success. Another ball will be held March 17th.

The Special Evangelistic meetings at the English M. E. church are attracting large crowds. Evangelist Benedict is certainly one of the most able speakers we have ever heard and no doubt much good will result from his labors here. Both the evangelist and the pastor, Rev. Bowman, are well pleased with the manner in which the meetings are starting, and are looking forward to a great revival in Klemme.

In this issue we print the Mayor's Election Proclamation. The election will take place March 30th. Other than the election of a mayor, treasurer, clerk and three councilmen the people will be asked to vote a franchise to Koerner Bros. & Co. The proposition: "Shall we levy a five mill tax for water works and fire protection" will also come up for consideration. On this proposition we would advise you to think twice before making a cross on the negative side, for should a fire get under headway here it would be an absolute impossibility to check it with our present water supply. The additional tax will not be noticed by anybody and will reduce the insurance rate on your property more than the tax will amount to Think this matter over carefully and we are sure you will go to the polls and vote for the five mill levy.

We understand that there has been a slight combat between the Western Electric Telephone Co. and the private line of Mr. Sheffield of Belmond, over the prospect of putting in a local telephone in Meservey and surrounding vicinity. The business men of Meservey attempted to have the farmers of that locality erect a telephone line at their own expense and connect with the Western Electric Telephone Co. The farmers could not see the profit in this, their ire began to predominate and they took the liberty to have a representative of the private line expound the beauties of a local telephone. A representative of the W. E. T. Co. was there and also expounded his called for explanation. The result is that the farmers will have the independent line or nothing, and Meservey will have to come to their bidding or be a very strong loser in the way of trade.

An Announcement.

I wish to announce to my many friends and patrons of Klemme and vicinity that I have taken my son, Will. in partnership and will continue an enlarged business under the firm name of H. Hanisch & Son. Will has been a tailor for ten years and has worked in several city shops and I wish that my customers will give him the same confidence that I have received in my 13 years stay in Garner. TO WORKING GIRLS

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE

Every working girl who is not well is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice; it is freely given, and has restored thousands to health.

Miss Paine's Experience.

"I want to thank you for what you have done for me, and recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all girls whose work keeps them standing on their feet in the store. The doctor said I must stop work; he did not seem to realize that a girl cannot afford to stop working. My back ached, my appetite was poor, I could not sleep, and menstruation was scanty and very painful. One day when suffering I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and found that it helped me. I continued its use, and soon found that my menstrual periods were free from pain and natural; everyone is surprised at the change in me, and I am well, and cannot be too grateful for what you have done for me."—MISS JANET PAINE, 530 West 125th St., New York City.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

HOUSEWIVES HEADACHES

You don't know why you suffer from headache and you are apt to believe you have some dire female trouble, but its dollars to doughnuts that you are wrong. Women are prone to put off the duties of Nature to attend to the duties of the home and when they do get time to go, the feeling has passed.

Constipation results and then the awful racking headache. Take a spoonful of every night before going to bed. Keep it up for a few weeks.

A. F. Klopf, of Troy, Ohio, miller at Hayner's Distillery, writes under date of June 10, 1901: "My wife and self suffered off and on for three or four years with Constipation and Sick Headache, and we received almost instant relief by taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The use of several bottles restored our digestive organs to normal condition, and although we are free from any gastric trouble, we do not consider being without a bottle for a minute."

WIT AND WISDOM.

Happiness is the musical comedy of the soul.

No man is worth a woman's tear,
Nor woman worth a man's career.

A woman is sometimes like an oyster—the toughest part is the heart.

Are the Daughters of the Revolution the mothers of thei—r Evolution?

Before a girl marries she thinks the man a demigod, after marriage she don't.

Some people always seem as if they had been subjected to a soft finish patent process.

A woman who divides her affection between a pug and a dude had better stick to the pug.

A man who thinks he is marrying a meek little angel often runs afoul of a hysterical, exacting woman.

There is no place like home, as the fellow who seeks its slumbrous shade festooned with a jag often finds out.

A woman who marries expecting to enjoy a continuous love feast often finds herself on the mourner's bench.

What is the use of a few millions if your nerves are on a perpetual strike and your digestion won't work?

People who have made fools of themselves all their lives try to look very wise when too old for further folly.

When two people marry and one wants to manage, the other refuses to be managed, then the divorce lawyer attends to the case.

Perhaps some clouds have a silver lining, and I guess they'll keep on lining. There don't seem to be any chance to peel it out.—Kate Thyson Marr.

WITH THE SAGES.

Wisdom teaches us to do, as well as talk, and to make our words and actions all of a color.—Seneca.

He who learns the rules of wisdom without conforming to them in his life is like a man who plows in his field but does not sow.—Saadi.

The reason why so few marriages are happy is because young ladies spend their time in making nets, not in making cages.—Jonathan Swift.

Excessive grief, like excessive joy, being violent in nature, is of short duration. The human heart is incapable of remaining long in an extreme.—Victor Hugo.

It has been well said that no man ever sank under the burden of the day. It is when to-morrow's burden is added to the burden of to-day that the weight is more than a man can bear.—George MacDonald.

It is while you are patiently toiling at the little tasks of life the meaning and shape of the great whole of life dawns upon you. It is while you are resisting little temptations that you are growing stronger.—Phillips Brooks.

The law of nature is, that a certain quantity of work is necessary to produce a certain quantity of good of any kind whatever. If you want knowledge, you must toil for it; if food, you must toil for it; and if pleasure, you must toil for it.—Ruskin.

PERSONAL.

New Hampshire has six living governors—Sawyer, Goodell, Tuttle, Smith, Rawlins and Jordan.

Sir George Reid, president of the Royal Scottish academy for the last ten years, is about to retire.

Gilbert Parker is so little satisfied with his early literary work that he has withdrawn it entirely from sale.

Baron Nathaniel Rothschild, now ill in Vienna, is in his sixty-seventh year, and one of the wealthiest of his family.

Delegate Rodey of New Mexico is astonished to find that so many easterners regard his territory as a foreign country.

M. Yturbide, an eccentric millionaire living at Monte Carlo, lives in darkened rooms, with the heat at Turkish bath temperature.

J. J. Hill has enriched some of his faithful Great Northern employes by presenting them with valuable leases. One of these leases is worth $500,000.

Senator John P. Jones of Nevada, about to close thirty years of service in the United States senate, is one of five members of the upper house not a native of this country.

Mrs. Leland Stanford has inspected the Gould memorial library in New York with a view of using it as a model for the library to be erected at Stanford university, California.

Esthetic people may denounce the new two-cent stamp all they will, but the sticking quality of the mucilage on it is the thing by which 70,000,000 of freemen will chiefly judge it.

Kipling's latest effort is so different that we suspect he must have got angled up with a rather large consignment of the grip.

The visiting Japanese noble should have his fears put at rest. Oriental titles are not yet up to par in the matrimonial market.

IN WOMAN'S INTEREST

Latest Opera Coat.

This opera coat is of white lace over chiffon and silk, striped with ermine. The high collar is of lace, ermine lined, and the full sleeves have lace and ermine cuffs.

Chic Red Hats.

To lighten the gray of dull winter days comes the gay winter chapeau. The charic red hats first seen in the shops and then on the heads of the wearers later on are of a variety of millinery skill and device, in spite of the fact that they are all of much the same hue. The prevailing shape is flat, as in most of the hats in highest vogue this season.

Flowers are the main material in their make-up, and of these the scarlet geranium is seen in great number. Velvet, meline and chiffon of a like shade of scarlet are the accompanying materials for many of these turbans and toques.

Another variety of the red hat is that composed of "turned autumn leaves," delicately fastened. Cobwebby meline is generally used in the make-up with this style of trimming, and the general effect is most witching.

Handsome Reception Dress.

The reception dress illustrated is of Havana brown etamine, with the yokes of bodice and skirt heavily embroidered in different shades of browns, yellows and greens. The same dull shades were used in the hat.

Spring Dress Fabrics.

Hairy and rough fabrics are among the early spring dress goods that have already been placed upon the counters. These will later be made into walking and traveling suits. Scotch goods of all kinds will also be much worn. Bourette effects are to be seen in different weaves, and these will, later on, be transformed into street dresses. Mohairs are likely to be in great demand for the late spring weeks, and they are now offered to the feminine world in great variety.

For indoor wear, for either evening or afternoon, crepe de chine still holds its own, and its popularity will continue on into the summer. Nun's veiling in all colors and shades will be made into spring dresses, and albatross is another revival that bids for great popularity.

Checks, plaids and stripes are about equally divided in the early showing, and there is likely to be a sharp contest for supremacy. Black and white effects still hold the attention of the designers, and so the plaids, checks and stripes are mainly in these colors.

Gray for Rosy Skins.

By all means have a gray waist. Touch it up with color if needs be. Gray is not always becoming. It is out of the question for a sallow complexion, but where it can be worn it seems the ideal tint for displaying a rose-and-white or "magnolia" complexion. The Quakeress coquettes discovered this ages ago, and pretty ones nowadays are unwilling to lay aside dove gray and drab for a less harmonious background for their carnation cheeks. Gray pongee is expensive and hard to get; gray taffeta and crepe de chine make charming dinner blouses and every modish woman has one included in her winter wardrobe.

Informal Talks

Bell sleeves appear on some of the smart new jackets.

Bright colored hats of velvet or beaver are considered the smart thing to wear with black gowns.

Some exquisite imported louisine waists are finished with high empire sashes.

Lace collars seen in almost every shape, save the sailor, this season.

Ribbon rosettes with jet buckles in the center make a pretty trimming for spring hats.

The up-to-date opera wrap is fitted with inside pockets for glasses, fan and perfume bottle.

Among the latest novelties are wide satin ribbons brocaded with big velvet flowers. Yellow Cluny lace and ermine make a lovely combination.

The chinchilla chiffon is the novelty of the hour. Nothing can surpass the beauty of this material in its soft mixtures of gray and white, having quite the length and color of the fur itself.

An imported blouse shows a certain elegance that is not usually characteristic of cloth blouses. It is of ruby colored cloth, is trimmed with bands of white, embroidered in gold and edged with fine pipings of black velvet.

Unique Jewelry.

To be bizarre seems to be the thought of the makers of all jeweled ornamentation for feminine kind at the present moment. Much of the jewelry affected by the fashionables is of the coppery tint that was the mode nearly a century ago, and it is particularly effective when the stones used are either pearls or amethysts.

While these decorations are often feminine in construction, yet a masculine feeling is in much of the jewelry worn by maids and matrons, and this tendency is especially shown in the finger rings that they wear.

Diamonds set in silver and worn between two gold rings are often seen. Cymric designs in gold and silver, with a touch of color in them, are being used as pendants for the neck, as brooches, bracelets, even buttons, and their beauty is often enhanced by the introduction of opals, pearls and turquoises.

Beruffled Petticoats.

With the clinging teagown especial attention must be given to the petticoat, if milady really desires an artistic appearance. From the waist to the knees this should be cut fairly tight, with a little fullness at the back. The flounce from the knees to the hem should be as full as possible, and of fairly stiff silk. This flounce may be as much befrilled and beruffled as the fair wearer desires, the more furbelows the better.

If the petticoat is to be made of remnants several different kinds of silk may be used. The flounce may be different from the yoke, and the ruffles on it may be entirely different from it. A hem or piping at the edge of the flounce may also be of a different color and quality.

Antique Lace Blouses.

All over lace blouses are very pretty, made of an antique insertion. These are made over white taffeta or liberty silk, and the insertion is put together with narrow beading. Usually in these blouses two patterns of lace are used, one being broader than the other. The wide insertion is used in the middle of the front, and on either side of the back, the fastening being here. The narrow lace is used on the sides and for the collar.

Flower Hats for Spring.

Flower hats are always the conspicuous features of early spring millinery; but this year prophets are foretelling a veritable riot of flowers in hatdom, and the early showing seems to bear out the prophecy.

Red is always a striking note among the early season hats. It is gay enough to hint at springtime, yet warm enough not to be out of place when wintry winds still blow. So there are shoals of red hats, poppy hats, geranium hats, fruit hats, fuchsia hats. The fuchsia is a newcomer and bids fair to be a favorite

Three Inexpensive Materials.

Challis, nun's veiling and albatross are three pretty and inexpensive materials that make up just as effectively many times as more costly stuffs of three or four times their value.

Strappings and Trimmings.

Plaids, as trimmings, are much seen and are to be had in velvet and panne, as well as silk and wool. Shot silks are again in vogue for strappings and trimmings.

Borax dissolved in a little water and added to cold starch will prevent the starch from adhering to the iron, helps to stiffen the linen, and makes it glossy.

HANDSOME FROCK OF PURPLE VELVET.

This frock of pansy purple velvet exhibits a new idea in the design, which is appliqued by hand on the velvet. The way of doing this is a secret, but careful examination leads to the belief that the velvet is steamed where the design is to be used, then while it is still moist hot irons on which the design is cut in very high relief are put on it under pressure in such a way that the design only (not the surface of the iron) touches the velvet. When after some hours under the press the stuff is removed the design is stamped upon it and seems to have a particularly delicate sheen. The revers of this coat were of l.

STORIETTES.

A gentleman who was discussing with the late Dr. Parker the problem of a future existence exclaimed. "The fact is, sir, I am an annihilationist. I believe that when I die that will be the end of me." "Thank God for that," Dr. Parker replied, as he showed his companion the door.

In his reminiscences of George Washington, Dr. Edward Everett Hale tells of the general's anger at Monmouth, when he met General Lee. Washington asked Lee why such a column was retiring, and Lee said that the American troops would not stand the British bayonets. Washington replied: "You d—n poltroon, you have never tried them!"

In his recent book on "China and the Chinese," Dr. Giles tells of a very stingy Chinaman who took a paltry sum of money to an artist—payment is always exacted in advance—and asked him to paint his portrait. The artist at once complied with the request, but when the portrait was finished nothing was visible save the back of the sitter's head. "What does this mean?" cried the sitter, indignantly. "Well," replied the artist, "I thought a man who paid so little as you paid wouldn't care to show his face."

Henry Ward Beecher was amused when he went into a Bowery restaurant on one occasion and heard the waiter give such orders to the cook as "Ham and——," "Sinkers and cow," etc. "Watch me faze that waiter with an order which I believe he won't abbreviate," remarked Beecher at length as the waiter approached. Then he said: "Give us poached eggs on toast for two, with the yolkes broken." But the waiter, who was equal to the emergency, walked to the end of the room and yelled: "Adam and Eve on a raft. Wreck 'em." It is related that Dr. Beecher nearly fainted.

Charles H. E. Brookfield says he was in Stevenson's company at the moment when the germ of the idea of "Dr Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" was conceived. Stevenson was inveighing against a man with whom he had done business and with whose methods he was dissatisfied. The man's name was Samuel Creggan, or something like it. "He is a man who trades on the Samuel," Stevenson declared in his rather finnicky, musical Scot's voice. "He receives you with Samuel's smile on his face; with the gesture of Samuel he invites you into a chair; with Samuel's eyes cast down in self-deprecation, he tells you how well satisfied his clients have always been with his dealings; but every now and then you catch a glimpse of the Creggan peeping out like a white ferret. Creggan's the real man; Samuel's only superficial."

It is related that during the time that the force bill was before the house of representatives, a number of years ago, the galleries were fairly clustered with black men, whose interest in the measure was intense. One afternoon, while the extremely acrid discussion of the bill was at its height, an aged, ministerial-looking darkey found a front seat in one gallery. A seat-mate was a negro youth who had a black bottle with him. It was not long before the young darkey nudged the old one, and offered him a swig from the bottle. The aged darkey took a long draw from the bottle, and smacked his lips over it, and for an hour or so the occupants of the correspondents' gallery, which was directly opposite, watched the younger negro leading the older one into temptation. The ministerial-looking black man took perhaps half a dozen drinks out of his seat-mate's black bottle in the course of the hour, and by that time he seemed considerably excited. A representative from Massachusetts was making a strenuous speech in defense of the voting rights of the negroes of the southern states. At the end of one of his most eloquent periods, the old black man suddenly stood up, leaned over the rail, pointed a long, black finger at the Massachusetts representative, and shouted: 'An' dat's all right! Preach de Word, man—preach it!" A roar of laughter swept the chamber, and the discomfited New Englander did not resume his speech until the enthusiastic old darkey had been led out of the gallery by a doorkeeper.

He Went West and Prospered.

Freeland, Kan., March 9th.—One of the most prosperous farmers in Harper County is Mr. N. H. Mead. Some thirty-four years ago he left his home near Clarence, N. Y., and came to Kansas. Here he has thrived splendidly, and last year harvested over one hundred and forty acres of wheat alone.

But everything has not gone well with Mr. Mead, for his health has not been good for the last few years. He has suffered a great deal with Kidney and Bladder Trouble and could get nothing to stop it. Lately, however, he has improved a great deal, and he says that he has none of the old symptoms left and is feeling splendid again. He used Dodd's Kidney Pills and this remedy seemed to work wonders in his case. He says himself:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have made me well. They are all right and a reliable remedy for Kidney Trouble. They helped me right from the start, giving me great relief, and finally cured me."

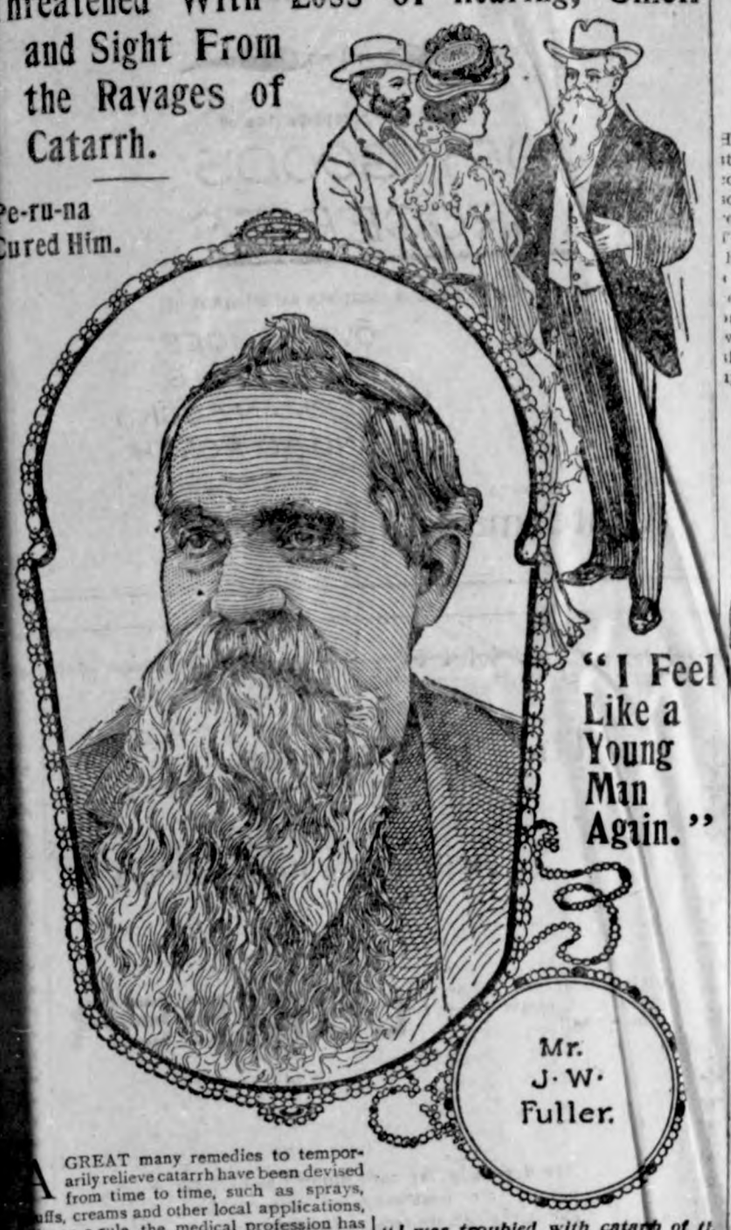
PRESIDENT FULLER OF THE JEWELERS' ASSOCIATION

Threatened With Loss of Hearing, Smell and Sight From the Ravages of Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Cured Him.



Mr. J. W. Fuller.

"I Feel Like a Young Man Again."

A GREAT many remedies to temporarily relieve catarrh have been devised from time to time, such as sprays, puffs, creams and other local applications, but, as a rule, the medical profession has little or no enthusiasm in the treatment of catarrh.

It is generally pronounced by them to be incurable.

It therefore created a great sensation in medical circles when Dr. Hartman announced that he had devised a compound which would cure catarrh permanently. The remedy was named Peruna and in a short time became known to thousands of catarrh sufferers north, south, east and west. Letters testifying to the fact that Peruna was a radical cure for catarrh began to pour in from all directions.

Thousands of such letters are on file in the office of The Peruna Medicine Co.

Rev. E. Stubenvoll, Pella, Wis., writes: "I feel obliged to extend you my personal thanks for my complete restoration. All through the winter I suffered from throat and lung trouble, but recovered my entire health by the use of your excellent remedy, Peruna."

The following letter from a prominent gentleman of Los Angeles, is a case in point: Mr. J. W. Fuller, President of the Jewelers' Association of Los Angeles, Cal., has been in business in that city for seventeen years out of the forty-five that he has been engaged in business. Concerning his experience with Peruna he says:

"I was troubled with catarrh of the head for many years. It affected my sense of smell, hearing and sight. I spent lots of money with doctors and the use of local applications to relieve me but to no purpose, until my attention was called to the wonderful effects of Peruna.

"I must say that I met with most surprising and satisfactory results. Peruna took hold of the complaint and drove it entirely out of my system.

"Although well along toward the allotted span of man's life I am pleased as a child over the results, and feel like a young man again."—W. Fuller.

Such letters as the above are not used for publication except by the written permission of the writer.

A pamphlet filled with such letters will be sent to any address free. This book should be read by all who doubt the curability of catarrh.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

HORTICULTURE

Destroying Two Common Orchard Scales.

At the last meeting of the Illinois Horticultural Society, S. A. Forbes, state entomologist, said: The two common orchard scales—the scurfy scale and the oyster-shell—have been regarded as difficult insects to destroy. They winter in the egg, each scale on the tree in winter having beneath it a collection of these eggs,—maroon-red for the scurfy scale and yellowish or whitish for the oyster-shell,—which were laid there by the female in fall, she afterwards perishing and drying up beneath the scale, which continues as a protection for the eggs. These insects are two-brooded in our latitude, the first hatching early in May and the second mostly in July. We have no practical means of killing the eggs. Indeed, insects' eggs can rarely if ever be destroyed by chemical applications which will not injure the tree. These scales are more susceptible to insecticides while very young than at any other time, and consequently applications intended to destroy them directly may best be made during the first week or two of May, or in more northerly latitudes, late in May and early in June. Used at the time they must, of course, be hateless to foliage and fruit—a fact which limits us practically for these insects to applications of kerosene mixtures of low percentage. An ordinary kerosene emulsion diluted to contain ten per cent of the oil is the mixture usually recommended. There is very good reason to believe, however, that the California wash of lime, salt, and sulphur, applied in late winter, will effect this purpose even more certainly although more slowly.

Scurfy scale: a, twig infested with female scales; b, twig with male scales; c, female scale; d, male scale—much enlarged.

Growth Habit of a Tree.

Prof. L. S. Goff: In the first place, we have the root system which absorbs water from the ground and brings this water together at the base of the trunk and transmits it to the trunk. The roots have an absorptive system of their own and their nature is to draw in water with more or less vigor. Then when the water is taken to the trunk, the fibers of the trunk tend to lift the water by capillarity, and the buds above are not only expending the water above, but they are filled with protoplasm which has an affinity for water, and so we have a force that draws the water from the roots into the top. It is a principle well known in physics that when water passes through a tube it will pass with more force through a straight tube than it will through a crooked tube, and that every bend we make in the tube would reduce the force to that extent. It follows that the buds of an apple tree, or any other tree, that are in the most direct communication with the axis of growth, with the trunk, are the ones that will receive the most water. Every time the branch grows, that branch does not receive quite as much water as the branch before it turns, and if that branch subdivides, the secondary branch receives less than the primary branch, and so on, the more it branches the less water it receives, the less vigor it has and the less grows; it is this principle that determines the form of the tree. You see as the tree tends to grow up the terminal buds receive more water than any other buds, because they are in the most direct line with the force of water; every branch that diverges somewhat in vigor. By the time when the tree attains a height of that the distance from the trunk so great that it over balances that the terminal buds are in communication with the axis with vigor, the uppermost branches will dominate, and after a time the tree will come to an equilibrium, the terminal will grow just as much as the lateral shoots, and we will have a full grown, developed tree.

Edward, New Madrid county, Missouri, prices of poultry and poultry products have been higher this year in this neighborhood than I ever knew them before. They have been very low. I do not think it has cost as much to feed poultry this year as it did last, as the expenses show a decrease in cost of feed of about 15 per cent. I buy in large lots, however, which makes the cost quite a bit. My feed cost me about 60 cents per 100 pounds. This feed consists of corn, wheat, green bone, meat scraps, corn meal, and millet. The price for poultry is as follows: Hens, 8c per pound; young stock, 5 to 5 pounds, 10c per pound; old roosters, no sale.

WEAK WOMEN.

CONSTIPATION STARTED YOUR SUFFERING, CURE IT AND YOUR AFFLICTION WILL VANISH.

Mull's Grape Tonic Cures Constipation.

When the bowels move irregularly the entire bodily system must suffer. Constipation more frequently occurs among women and it manifests itself in provoking profuse leucorrhea and other serious female diseases. Regular bowels will result in a complete cure when you use Mull's Grape Tonic. Unlike pills and ordinary cathartics, this remedy is a mild, gentle laxative in addition to being a greater flesh-builder, blood-maker and strength-giver than cod liver oil or any other preparation recommended for that purpose. Mull's Grape Tonic will permanently cure the most obstinate case of constipation, and the numerous afflictions that invariably follow in its wake. No matter if it is piles, liver complaint, kidney disorder, vertigo, palpitation of the heart, diarrhea or the self-poisoning which follows when the undigested food remains in the bowels where it putrefies and empties highly diseased germs into the blood, such as typhoid and malaria, Mull's Grape Tonic will positively cure. Large sample bottle will be sent free to any address on receipt of 10 cents to cover postage, by the Lightning Medicine Co., Rock Island, Ill. Send name of your druggist. All druggists sell Mull's Grape Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

Auditor Ward, of Forest City was perusing the books of the Northern Lumber Co. on Tuesday. The smile on his face when he departed indicated that he was entirely satisfied.

Garner says that on counting up, Britt lacked $10,000 of having enough money to make out the $40,000. No brothers, it was $10,000 too much.—Tribune.

So it is, but where is it?

The probabilities are that the Waldorf hotel at Forest City will not be torn down but will be used for a Lutheran academy. This would certainly be a great boom for Forest City.

Chri Blummer loaded his goods onto the cars on Monday last and departed for his future home at Beltrami, Minn., the same day. His many friends are loath to see him leave here.

Contractor J. P. Larson has completed the out buildings on the F. Griewe farm. As is always the case when Mr. Larson is employed the buildings are put up in a workmanlike manner.

A letter from Noah Shaw locates him at Hays, Ill. Noah is evidently prospering, and not being selfish, is desirous of seeing others prosper, so sent on a couple of years subscription to the TIMES, which we pass to his credit with thanks.

At the school election Monday the two old directors, N. L. Palmer and John Gruetzmacher were re elected. In re-electing these gentleman our people acted wisely as they have served in this capacity faithfully. The school house tax also carried.

According to the Dows Advocate gold has been found four miles east of Dows. A sample of the dirt was sent to an assayer, at Deadwood who claims that the dirt pays $3.40 fine gold to the ton. Who knows, we may have a Klondyke close at hand.

G. W. Kluckhohn, Fred Henschen and Frank Kluckhohn left on Sunday evening for St. Paul. George went in to select his spring and summer goods, Frank, to familirize himself with wholesale buying and Fred Henschen to see the sights. They expect to be gone the greater part of the week. You may expect to see a fine line of spring and summer goods at Kluckhohn's shortly.

An exchange says that the American soldiers are the best paid, best fed and best housed of any soldiers in the world. It may be truthfully said that either on account of this good treatment or from some other cause, they are the best soldiers in the world, too.

A number of the little folks of our town were invited to the Haskins home on Thursday last to help Little Lela, celebrate her 6th birthday. The children all had an enjoyable time and their only regret is that Little Lela's birthdays do not occur more often.

There was a very spirited contest for school director in sub-district number 3, last week, in which Wm. Lau carried off the laurels. Some very pretty points of law were brought out at this election. The voting was very close, there being but two votes difference.

John Hartfelder's sale on Tuesday was a boomer. The stock which he offered for sale bringing splendid prices. Some of his horses bringing as high as $150.00. Choice horse flesh is good property these days and John fully understands how to raise the choicest in the land

During the last days of this month the weighing of the mails will take place in order that Uncle Sam may strike an average upon which to base the railroads compensation for carrying them. You may expect to receive all kinds of mail during this period as the mail carriers will see to it that the amount of mail weighed will not fall short of the ordinary run.

City politics will soon begin to warm up we presume. In many towns throughout our land, mass meetings are held and out of candidate for each office is selected, thus keeping politics and factional fights out of our municipal government. A spirited contest for city officers does not tend to create harmany which is very essential to the general welfare of any town, but leaves a sore spot that heals very slowly.

It now looks as if all of Garner's people are to be saved among the chosen ones and one or more of them may be called upon to answer to the charge of murder. About a week ago Andrew Griesmer was found in a barn in that town in an unconscious condition, badly bruised and beaten. He died from the effects of his injuries on Sunday, and the hands of the law will be laid upon the guilty parties can they be found. Andrew was a quiet, inoffensive fellow and no motive for so foul an act has been learned by us.

Braund-Frei.

On Wednesday evening last, at the English M. E. parsonage, H. E. Bowman, officiating, occurred the marriage of Mr. John H. Braund and Miss Freda Frei. The groom was attended by his brother, Edmund while a like service for the bride was performed by her sister, Jennie. None but the nearest relatives of the contracting parties witnessed this happy union. After the ceremony a reception was given at the home which had been made by the groom. The evening was pleasantly whiled away in many ways. Delicious refreshments were served, games were played, and indulged in, and everything passed smoothly.

VOLUME VIII. NUMBER 34. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, MARCH 19 1903 $1 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Our Creamery.

We desire to call the attention our readers to the fact that e Klemme Creamery Co. has mpleted its 12th year of busi- ss in our little city and are w well along in another year hich gives promise to even bet- r results than previous years. uring all these years the Klem- e creamery has stood the test d the financiers who safely ided the company's affairs over e hard times of a few years past owed rare tact. The com- ny has always paid more for eam than competing creamer- s and we are glad to learn that ter paying these top prices ey yet have a surplus on hand on which they can conduct e business, should their fu- re be less bright. As any of you know who have een customers of this institu- on you have been dealt with irly and squarely and they rtainly merit your continued atronage. Those of you who ave not been patrons of the ompany we advise you to ask our neighbors regarding the reamery, compare the results hich have been attained by oth selling cream and churning at home and we think you will very soon decide to sell your cream. This company needs the undivided support of this farming community and as it is to your interest, why hold back.

Thanks to the efficiency of Buttermaker Haskins the Klemme Creamery company's product sells well to the top of the city markets where it is sold. The outlook for the future is bright and a large number of farmers have recently joined the ranks. The management is certainly to be congratulated upon the manner in which they have conducted the business, and as the creamery is a great benefit to our town and farming community in a financial way, we should be as unit for its furtherance and success.

Peoples' Caucus.

Quite a large crowd was in attendance at the Peoples' Caucus on Monday evening. Everything passed off smoothly and no particular rustle was made for any office by any one. The caucus resulted in placing in nomination the following ticket: For Mayor, E. P. Dow; Clerk, J. E. Tierney; Assessor, E. W. Fuller Councilmen for full term, Geo. Nisson and Wm. Koerner; Councilman to fill vacancy, J. P. Larson. We are too modest to say that the entire ticket if elected will serve faithfully, but leaving aside the office of clerk, the balance of the ticket is a good one.

It's for You to Decide.

On Tuesday of last week three of Britt's bankers filled thei. little grips with the coin of the realm and hied themselves to Concord to have a photograph of this money taken. You may ask what for? For the sole purpose of deceiving the voters of our county and obtaining signatures to their petition. It is true that they brought the money to Garner, it is al o true that they returned every dollar of this same money to Britt, and left with the county treasurer certificates of deposit, upon the backs of which appear numerous conditions. They also brought a bond for the treasurer but did not consider it of sufficient importance to get his signature to this bond. No record of this $40,000 donation appears in any of the books in the treasurer's office, and the board of supervisors have absolutely nothing whatever to do with the purchase of the site for the court house should it be relocated at Britt, nor would they have the superintending of the building of such court house. If Britt meant to donate to the county $40.000 for to build a court house, why did they not appear before the county board who adjourned only a few days before their visit to Garner, and deposit their money with them. That is the way Garner done and if Britt ever intended to toat squarely in this matter they would have done the same. Voters will you take a sure thing and vote for the court house at Garner or will you flock to a possibility and sign the Britt petition. It is for you to decide and we do not believe that the man who is looking for the most desirable location for the county seat, where the greatest number of tax payers can reach most conveniently, for town with the best railroad facilities, will hesitate in being for Garner, first, last and always. Britt's intentions in this matter may be all right but they are certainty acting very strangely.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

Two mail pouches containing letters to points on the Rock Island between Vinton and Sioux Falls were stolen from the trucks at the union station at Cedar Rapids a few nights ago. Thousands of letters, all rifled, were found in a slough half a mile north of town. Everything of value had been stolen.

When the passenger train on the Minneapolis and St. Louis from the north arrived in Humboldt a few days ago the body of a Mr. Himes of Gilmore City was taken off the train. He had passed away on the train before it reached Humboldt. He was a middle aged man and had been taken suddenly sick on the train, heart failure being the cause.

Louis Thompson, colored, yard man for the Clifton hotel, Cedar Rapids, who was terribly burned in the fire on the morning of February 20, and who has since been at St. Luke's hospital, is dead, making the seventh victim of the terrible holocaust. Fears are entertained because of the condition of B. F. Taylor of Davenport, who is still very low at St. Luke's hospital.

Jacob Brum, a pioneer, committed suicide at Iowa City in the most remarkable method known in the history of the county. He loaded a gun barrel with powder, one cartridge and an iron file four inches long. The gun had no butt. Brum placed the barrel in the stove, kneeled down and awaited the explosion. The file and the bullet were driven clear through his body, cutting the blood vessels leading from the heart. The file penetrated an adjacent door. He was temporarily insane, brooding over the loss of one eye. He was about 65 years old and leaves a large family.

Sheriff Stewart, Ed Parker and Stod Wick of Shelby county went to Polk township and nabbed the fighting insane man, Arthur Sherlock. He did not know Parker and Wick, who dressed as farmers and made him a proposition to purchase his cattle. Watching their chance the young men overpowered the insane man and put irons on him. He struggled so hard that he broke the first ones put on him. A revolver was found on his person. After the man was taken he laughed about the matter, saying that he had suspected the boys, but that his suspicions were a little too late. Sherlock has been at large on his place for some time, heavily armed and anxious to put cold lead into the sheriff and his deputy, whom he knew. He was taken to Clarinda.

Hon. Eugene Criss, one of the first settlers in northwest Iowa and one of the most widely known men in the whole region in pioneer days, died at Sac City a few nights ago and was found dead in bed. He had been in failing health for several years, but was feeling better and announced that he was going into the timber the next day to give some directions about work he wanted done. Hence his death was a surprise to his friends. Judge Criss came from Wisconsin in a peddler's wagon in 1855, and being struck with the beauty of the place, decided to stop at Sac City and help build up a town. On a town site laid out the previous year by John F. Duncombe, and called Austin, he built the first house, which became the stopping place for travelers between Fort Dodge and Sioux City. He was a fur trader with the Indians, and hauled his furs to Keokuk, exchanging them for goods for his frontier store. In the early days in the country he was county judge, county supervisor and representative in the general assembly.

Twenty passengers on a chair car on the Illinois Central flyer, running between Sioux City and Fort Dodge, had a narrow escape at Pomeroy a few nights ago. The car in which they were riding was thrown from the rails by a broken switch point and was tossed fifteen feet from the track, lighting on its side in a bed of soft mud. It is believed that the softness of the ground was all that saved the passengers, who, though severely jarred and shaken up, escaped without serious injuries. The chair car and sleeper left the rails, but the sleeper was not upset and the injuries were confined to passengers in the chair car. The injured: Miss Ella Watson, Fort Dodge, head cut; Mrs. A. H. Peterson, Fort Dodge, back sprained and bruised; unidentified woman, Rockford, Ill., head cut; W. D. Hunt, St. Louis, hand cut and bruised; J. T. Perry, New York, back cut. The flyer was bound for Fort Dodge and pulled into Pomeroy at 11 o'clock. When running at a rate of forty-five miles per hour, the train struck the switch at which the accident occurred. The first cars passed safely, but the rear trucks of the chair car left the rails, and the sleeper followed it. The chair car was thrown at right angles and was hurled violently from the track. Instantly all was commotion inside the car. The passengers, wakened suddenly from their sleep, were hurled in all directions and the air was filled with broken glass and splinters. Fortunately the lights were extinguished as the car went over, and there was no danger from fire. The passengers crawled out through the doors and broken windows, scratched and bleeding from cuts and bruised and shaken up, but for the most part unhurt.

Mrs. Anton Tefer, aged 40 years, of Bertram, a farmer's wife, died in a cowshed during confinement. She was the mother of ten children. Investigation shows a fearful condition in the family. Death was caused by neglect. There is no evidence of foul play.

Blaine Van Vlite, a student of the Iowa State college, lost both legs in trying to board a rapidly moving freight train on the C. & N. W. railroad, near the college grounds. The surgeons who attended him say he will die. Van Vlite's home is in Traer.

The Indianola school board held a special meeting a few days ago and decided to close the public schools for two weeks owing to the epidemic of scarlet fever which prevails in that city. The disease has been the cause of many people keeping their children out of school for the past two months. There are at present over thirty cases of the fever reported. Strict quarantine is being kept of all victims.

Too proud to beg and without employment or other means of subsistence, O. W. Mitchell in two days walked from Valley Junction to Dayton, a distance of sixty-five miles. After walking two days and part of two nights he fell in with some companions who gave him a drink of whisky. His physical condition was such from the hardship he had just undergone that the liquor went to his head and stayed there. When the marshal at Dayton went out into the country to arrest him Mitchell was pitching hay with an imaginary pitchfork.

An interesting point has been raised at Iowa Falls as to whether one man can hold the office of assessor in his home town and act as a member of the board of supervisors at the same time. It is the opinion of many that while there may not be an explicit prohibition of such a thing by the statutes, yet the fact that the two offices are more or less allied, appears to bar one man from holding the two at the same time. It is maintained that the assessor fixes his own salary while acting as a member of the board of supervisors and acting in the latter capacity passes on and approves his own bond. While acting as a member of the county board of review he passes on his assessments as town assessor, so that it seems incompatible that the same man should act in both capacities at one and the same time.

In the district court at Iowa City a few days ago Attorneys Holbert & Holbert filed a petition asking for a new trial in the case of Sarah Ellen Gallaugher, wherein the defendant was charged with having sworn falsely in her trial for murder. The reasons are given by virtue of which defendant claims she is entitled to a rehearing. The principal clause of the motion is the statement that the court erred in accepting the testimony of Charles Holada. It will be remembered that the verdict of the jury in the recent case was that Mrs. Gallaugher had perjured herself when she said that she had not been guilty of improper relations with Holada, and on the other charges of the indictment she was acquitted. This indicates that the testimony of Holada must have been given considerable weight. It is set out in the motion that the court misinstructed the jury as to the credibility of Holada, and also misdirected the twelve men as to the corroborative testimony required to substantiate the convict's story. It is also stated that the court erred in admitting the testimony of Detective L. A. Clearman and others. Mr. Holbert closes his petition by the statement that his client has not been given a fair and impartial trial.

Considerable of a mystery has existed over the origin of the fire of February 10th at Corydon, which destroyed $15,000 worth of property in that place, and also over several other burglaries which have occurred lately in Corydon. Recently the matter was partially cleared up by the confession of Elijah Thomas, a 16-year-old boy, that he set fire to the Rea stable, where it originated, but he stoutly insisted that he alone was engaged in the crime. This was not believed by the officers, who were firmly of the opinion that others were connected with him, and a close watch was kept over his associates. Young Thomas claimed to have had his conscience awakened by listening to a sermon the night before at the M. E. church by Miss Gleason, an evangelist, who is holding meetings there, from the text in Galatians, "Whatsoever a man sow, that shall he reap," and it is possible this is so to a certain extent, although it is an opinion that he was largely prompted by a morbid desire for notoriety, being an inveterate "yellow literature" reader. Later he supplemented his former confession by another, giving the names of his associates, who were the parties suspected, viz: Hazen Rolf, aged about 21, an ex-reform school pupil, and John Jones, a shady character, raised at Linnville. And not only does he concern them in the fire of February 10th, but in the three burglaries which occurred some time since, as well as in plots to burn several other places, among them being the Corydon lumber yard and Abernethy's barn and the court house.

BLANCHARD LAW IS ATTACKED

Des Moines, March 13.—A bill attacking the Blanchard anti-compact law and asking the United States circuit court to declare the statute unconstitutional, was filed by eleven insurance companies in the federal court yesterday.

The law is alleged by the insurance companies in contravention of the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution, to section 10 of article 1 of the constitution of the United States, and to section 6, article 1, of the bill of rights of the constitution of Iowa.

The fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution is that declaration which provides that states shall not pass laws denying persons the equal protection of their laws or deprive them of property without due process of law, etc. It is on the basis of this constitutional right that the Nebraska anti-compact law, almost identical with the Iowa statute, was declared unconstitutional by Judge McPherson recently. It is on this ground that the insurance men place the most reliance in the fight they have begun in this state. The Iowa case will be heard before Judge McPherson, probably.

The Iowa constitutional provision on which the insurance men rely is that which provides that all laws of a general nature shall have a uniform operation. It was on this section of the state constitution that the insurance concerns relied in the proceedings in the federal court in Dubuque, before Judge Shiras, a few years ago, begun, to have declared unconstitutional the statute requiring foreign insurance companies to pay more taxes than the domestic and local companies; the court held that the state had the right to collect license fees.

The second federal constitutional provision which is cited by the insurance men is that relating to the inhibition upon states not to pass laws impairing the obligation of contracts.

Carr, Hewitt, Parker & Wright and James C. Davis are the attorneys for the insurance companies, and the former filed the bill with Clerk E. R. Mason of the United States circuit cocurt yesterday. The suit is brought in the name of eleven insurance companies against the auditor of state. It prays the court to declare the law unconstitutional and to issue an injunction restraining the auditor from enforcing the penalties provided in the law for violation.

Taylor Connell, a well known real estate and insurance agent of Dubuque, had killed himself a few days ago. He was sitting in a saloon and suddenly drew a revolver and fired a bullet through his head. He was a member of one of the oldest families in the city.

G. W. and Ella Smith of Gilman, out on bonds for contempt of court, in selling intoxicating liquors and convicted at the October term, were turned over to the authorities and placed in jail at Marshalltown. Mrs. Smith learned her husband was intimate with a woman at Silver City and delivered him to the authorities. The attorney for their bond company thought best to place both in jail. The matter grew out of the sale of liquor in Gilman.

The robbers who took two sacks of mail from the Union station in Cedar Rapids on February 8 and went through all the letters have succeeded in cashing one of the drafts. It had been mailed from Waterloo to Cashier McElhenny of the bank at Goldfield. It was for $3,200, and was cashed at the Continental National bank at Chicago and sent to Goldfield for collection. Then it was discovered that the signature of Mr. McElhenny had been forged.

A Des Moines dispatch says: There is no longer any doubt as to the intention of the state in regard to Harry Levich. Evidence of a conspiracy to murder Isaac Finkelstein is being presented to the grand jury and an indictment is expected sometime this term. Though going about it in a quiet way it is known the police officcers and detectives who claim to have knowledge of such a conspiracy, have been before the grand jury laying the foundation for a true bill. The state realizes the impossibility of holding Levich for murder, but relies on its ability to prove conspiracy. The decision of Judge Given will go a long way to prove this against Walker's co-defendant. It is claimed by the state that it does not have to prove Harry Levich connected with the crime any more than it did Walker. It is claimed that if a conspiracy can be shown as in the Walker case, Levich is liable to punishment just the same as the colored man.

The executive committee of the state bankers' association is in favor of having the association make a standing offer of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of any bank robber in Iowa. The members of the committee believe that if this standing reward is offered and it is generally known among officers of the state that there is such a reward it will be an incentive to quick action on their part when there is a bank robbery, instead of the delays and indifference so often manifested. The committee will recommend to the association meeting at Davenport that this standing reward be offered. The committee will also recommend the increase of the defense or protective fund by $2,000. It is also proposed that the group districts be rearranged and a larger number be made, probably fifteen or twenty instead of ten as now, and thus that the group meetings be smaller but more convenient to members.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, March 16, 1903.

A report of C. J. Erickson, treasurer of the Scandinavian relief committee, shows that the work of soliciting funds for this relief work has now been taken up in every part of the state by members of the committee and by many others who are interested in the matter. To date he has received over $2,000 from various sources. The contributions come from all parts of the state. Where members of the committee have been able to get out into their districts and do personal work the contributions have come freely. It is anticipated that in the next few weeks the funds will be increased rapidly.

The exposition committee of the sate library association has been given full authority to prepare the library exhibit for Iowa at the St. Louis exposition. The plan is to have an exhibit showing the various library buildings in the state and models of libraries of different values, pictures of many of the best libraries and statistical information.

Wireless telegraphy will be demonstrated for the audiences at Chautauqua assembly this year. The management has secured Dr. James E. Woodland, who will lecture on the evenings of July 13 and 14, one lecture being on "Zero" and including a demonstration of liquid air, and the other being on wireless telegraphy with a demonstration of the modern miracle. Dr. Woodland is engaged in delivering scientific lectures, which are illustrated and demonstrated to his hearers. In the lecture on Marconi's great discovery, he will give his audience at Chautauqua an optical demonstration of how the thing is done, with instruments which he will have with him, actually performing the feat on a small scale that is now being performed daily from the coast of America to the coast of England.

The executive council has decided to send out a letter to the county auditors of the state asking for official lists of real estate transfers in their respective counties for the last half of 1902, together with the sale values and the equalized valuations of the transferred property. This step is along the same line as the action of the council a short time ago in getting the addresses of the assessors of the state. The object of that step was to take up with the assessors if found necessary the matter of making the assessment in accord with the statute. Now the council desires the most accurate and complete data obtainable on the subject of real estate values as indicated by the county records. Having this, it will not be dependent on any of the data which the railroad companies may furnish at the time of the fixing of the railroad assessment. It is the idea of the council to obtain at once the statements from the auditors as to the sales of property and sale values. Obviously, the equalized valuations on the same pieces of property cannot be obtained until the local boards of review hold their sessions. The data on sale values will be tabulated as soon as it reaches the hands of the secretary of the council.

Accompanying the announcement that the Mt. Ayr men who incorporated the Des Moines, Mt. Ayr & Southern Electric Railway company with a view to building a line from Des Moines to Omaha, had sold to an Omaha syndicate, comes the news that the new owners of the project propose to put surveyors into the field at once. Townships through which the road will run will be asked to vote taxes, and Mt. Ayr people, at least, believe that the project is a go. The first survey will bef rom Creston by way of Arispe and Tingley to Mt. Ayr. Eventually the line will be extended from Mt. Ayr to Des Moines and from Creston to Omaha. Such is the present form of the project. The coal discovery at Tingley has greatly improved the situation as to the electric line, in the opinion of the people along the right of way of the projected road. Coal has been discovered at or near Tingley, and people there have subscribed funds to prospect the coal fields thoroughly.

The Odd Fellows of Fort Des Moines lodge have been offered $60,000 for their property on Locust street between Sixth avenue and Seventh street, and are looking about with a view to securing options on other locations before negotiating further with Mr. D. S. Chamberlain, who is trying to secure the property in order to include upon it the hotel improvement which he has projected for Mr. W. L. Brown. It is thought that if the negotiations between Mr. Chamberlain and the Odd Fellows lodge can be brought to a successful culmination within a short time the new fire proof hotel will cover the entire quarter of a block facing Seventh and Locust, while the Aberdeen quarters already have been secured by Mr. Brown. Work on the razing of the State Insurance company's building on Fourth street has progressed rapidly in the last week and the third floor walls and the other floors are now down. The remainder of the work will be done this week, whereupon the construction of the new hotel will be started.

The Bow of Orange Ribbon

A ROMANCE OF NEW YORK

By AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "Friend Olivia," "I, Thou and the Other One," Etc.

"I will give it to him again. With my own hands I will give it to him once more. Oh, Richard, my lover, my husband! Now I will hasten to see thee."

She reached London the next night and, weary and terrified, drove at once to the small hostlery where Hyde lay.

"Katherine!" he cried; and his voice was as weak and as tearful as that of a troubled child.

"Here come I, my dear one."

"Oh, how you love me, Katherine!"

She took from her bosom the St. Nicholas ribbon. "I give it to thee again. At the first time I loved thee; now, my husband, ten thousand times more I love thee. As I went through the papers, I found it."

And between their clasped hands it lay—the bit of orange ribbon that had handseled all their happiness.

"It is the promise of everything I can give thee, my loved one," whispered Katherine.

"It is the luck of Richard Hyde. Dearest wife, thou hast given me my life back again."

CHAPTER XV.

Turning Westward.

It was a hot August afternoon, and Hyde sat at an open window at Hyde Manor. He was pale and wasted from his long sickness, but there was speculation and purpose in his face, and he had evidently cast away the mental apathy of the invalid. As he sat thus, a servant entered and said a few words which made him turn with a glad, expectant manner to the open door; and, as he did so, a man of near sixty years of age passed through it—a handsome, lordly looking man, who had that striking personal resemblance to Hyde which affectionate brothers often have to one another.

"Faith, William, you are welcome home! How delighted I am to see you!"

"'Tis twelve years since we met, Dick. And Hyde Manor is a miracle. I expected to find it mouldy and mossy. On the contrary it is a place of perfect beauty."

"And it is all my Katherine's doing. She is my angel. I am unworthy of her goodness and beauty."

"Why, then, Dick, I may as well tell you that I have also found a treasure past belief of the same kind. In fact, Dick, I am married, and have two sons."

There was a moment's profound silence, and an inexplicable shadow passed rapidly over Hyde's face; but it was fleeting as a thought, and, ere the pause became strained and painful, he turned to his brother and said, "I am glad, William. With all my heart, I am glad."

"I was married very quietly, and have been in Italy ever since. I was told that you had left the army."

"That is exactly true. When I heard that Lord Percy's regiment was designed for America, and against the Americans, I put it out of the king's power to send me on such a business."

"Indeed, I think the Americans have been ill-used, and I find the town in a great commotion upon the matter. The people of New York have burned effigies of Lord North and Gov. Hutchinson, and the new troops were no sooner landed than five hundred of them deserted in a body."

Hyde's white face was crimson with excitement, and his eyes glowed like stars as he listened. "That was like New York; and, faith, if I had been there, I would have helped them!"

"Why not go there? I owe you much for the hope, of which my happiness has robbed you. I will take Hyde Manor at its highest price; I will add to it fifty thousand pounds indemnity for the loss of the succession. You may buy land enough for a duchy there, and found in the New World a new line of the old family. Dick, my dear brother, out of real love and honor, I speak these words."

"Indeed, William, I am very sensible of your kindness, and I will consider well your proposition. I think, indeed, that my Katherine will be in a transport of delight to return to her native land."

Almost with the words she entered, clothed in a white India muslin, with carnations at her breast. The earl bowed low, and then kissed her cheeks and led her to a chair, which he placed between Hyde and himself.

Katherine was predisposed to emigration, but yet she dearly loved the home she had made so beautiful. During Hyde's convalescence, also, other plans had become very hopeful and pleasant, and they could not be cast aside without some reluctance.

It was on a cold, stormy afternoon when the fens were white with snow. Hyde sat by the big wood fire, re-reading a letter from Joris Van Heemskirk, which also inclosed a copy of Josiah Quincy's speech on the Boston Port Bill. Katherine had a piece of worsted work in her hands.

It was at this moment Lettice came in with a bundle of newspapers. "They be brought by Sir Thomas Swaffham's man, sir, with Sir Thomas' compliments, there being news he thinks you would like to read, sir."

Hyde opened the papers with eager curiosity and read the news from America.

"I must draw my sword again, Katherine," he said, as his hand impulsively went to his left side. "I thought I had done with it forever; but, by St. George, I'll draw it in this quarrel!"

"The American quarrel, Richard?"

"No other could so move me. Every good man and true wishes them well. Are you willing?"

"Only to be with you, only to please you, Richard. I have no other happiness."

"Then it is settled. The earl buys Hyde as it stands; we have nothing except our personal effects to pack. Write to-night to your father. Tell him that we are coming in two weeks to cast our lot with America."

When Joris Van Heemskirk received this letter he was very much excited by its contents.

He was sitting in the calm evening, with unloosened buckles, in a cloud of fragrant tobacco, talking of these things. Then he put on his hat and walked down his garden. He was standing on the river bank, and the meadows over it were green and fair to see, and the fresh wind blew into his soul a thought of its own untrammeled liberty. He looked up and down the river, and lifted his face to the clear sky, and said aloud, "Beautiful land! To be thy children we should not deserve, if one inch of thy soil we yielded to a tyrant. Truly a vaderland to me and to mine thou hast been. Truly do I love thee."

Then, with his mind made up, he went into the house.

In a few minutes Elder Semple came in. He looked exceedingly worried, and, although Joris and he avoided politics by a kind of tacit agreement, he could not keep to kirk and commercial matters, but constantly returned to one subject—a vessel lying at Murray's wharf, which had sold her cargo of molasses and rum to the "Committee of Safety."

Joris let the elder drift from one grievance to another, and he was just in the middle of a sentence containing the opinion of Sears and Willet, when Bram's entrance arrested it. He walked straight to the side of Joris:

"Father, we have closed his majesty's custom house forever."

"We! Who, then, Bram?"

"The Committee of Safety and the Sons of Liberty."

Semple rose to his feet, trembling with passion. "Let me tell you, then, Bram, you are a parcel o' rogues and rebels; and, if I were his majesty, I'd gibbet the last ane o' you."

"Patience, elder. Sit down, I'll speak"——

"No, councillor, I'll no sit down until I ken what kind o' men I'm sitting wi'. Oot wi' your maist secret thoughts. Wha are you for?"

"For the people and for freedom, am I," said Joris, calmly rising to his feet. "Too long have we borne injustice. Bram, my son, I am your comrade in this quarrel." He spoke with fervent, but not rapid speech, and with a firm, round voice, full of magical sympathies.

"I'll hear nae mair o' such folly. Gie me my bonnet and plaid, madam, and I'll be going. I hope the morn will bring you a measure o' commonsense." He was at the door as he spoke; but, ere he passed it, he lifted his bonnet above his head and said, "God save the king! God save his gracious majesty, George of England!"

Joris turned to his son. To shut up the king's customs was an overt act of treason. Bram, then, had fully committed himself, and, following out his own thoughts, he asked abruptly, "What will come of it, Bram?"

"War will come, and liberty—a great commonwealth, a great country."

In the meantime Semple, fuming and ejaculating, was making his way slowly home. However, before he had gone very far, he was overtaken by his son Neil, now a very staid and stately gentleman, holding under the government a high legal position in the investigation of the disputed New Hampshire grants.

He listened respectfully to his father's animadversions on the folly of the Van Heemskirks; but he was thinking mainly of the first news told him—the early return of Katherine. He was conscious that he still loved Katherine, and that he still hated Hyde. So Neil was somber and silent. His father was uncertain as to his views, and he did not want to force or hurry a decision.

Next morning, when the elder reached the store, the clerks and porters were all standing together talking. He knew quite well what topic they were discussing with such eager movements and excited speech. But they dispersed to their work at the sight of his sour, stern face, and he did not intend to open a fresh dispute by any question.

Apprentices and clerks then showed a great deal of deference to their masters, and Elder Semple demanded the full measure due to him. Something however, in the carriage, in the faces, in the very tones of his servants voices, offended him; and he soon discovered that various small duties had been neglected.

"Listen to me, iads," he said angrily "I'll have nae politics mixed up wi' my exports and imports. Neither king nor Congress has aught to do wi' my business; and if there is among you ane o' them fools that ca' themselves the 'Sons o 'Liberty,' I'll pay him whatever I owe him now, and he can gang to Madam Liberty for his future wage."

He was standing on the step of his high counting desk as he spoke, and he peered over the little wooden railing at the men scattered about with pens or hammers or goods in their hands. There was a moment's silence then a middle-aged man quietly laid down the tools with which he was closing a box, and walked up to the desk. The next moment, every one in the place had followed him. Semple was amazed and angry, but he made no sign of either emotion. He counted to the most accurate fraction every one's due, and let them go without one word of remonstrance.

But, as soon as he was alone, he felt the full bitterness of their desertion, and he could not keep the tears out of his eyes as he looked at their empty places.

At this juncture Neil entered the store. "Here's a bonnie pass, Neil; every man has left the store. I may as weel put up the shutters."

"There are other men to be hired."

"They were maistly a' auld standbys, auld married men that ought to have had mair sense."

"The married men are the troublemakers; the women have hatched and nursed this rebellion. If they would only spin their webs, and mind their knitting!"

"But they willna, Neil, and they never would. If there's a pot o' rebellion brewing between the twa poles, women will be dabbling in it. They have aye been against lawfu' authority. The restraints o' paradise was tyranny to them. And they get worse and worse; it isna ane apple would do them the noo; they'd strip the tree, my lad, to its vera topmost branch."

"You ought to know, father. I have small and sad experience with them."

"Sae, I hope you'll stand by my side. We twa can keep the house thegither. If we are a' right, the government will whistle by a woman's talk."

"Did you not say Katherine was coming back?"

"I did that. See there, again. Hyde has dropped his uniform, and sold a' that he has, and is coming to fight in a quarrel that's nane o' his. Heard you ever such foolishness? But it is Katherine's doing; there's little doot o' that."

"He's turned rebel, then?"

"Ay has he. That's what women do. Politics and rebellion is the same thing to them."

"Well, father, I shall not turn rebel."

"Oh, Neil, you take a load off my heart by thae words!"

"I have nothing against the king, and I could not be Hyde's comrade."

Won the Old Man.

"Sir," he said to her father, "this is a practical world. The spirit of commercialism cannot be throttled by the tender bonds of sentiment. Perhaps you have noticed this?"

"I cannot say I have," replied the stern parent "but that needn't detain you."

"Of course not," said the youth with an affable smile. "What I was about to say is that while I am sitting up courting your daughter I feel that it would be no more than fair to offer to pay for the gas I assist in consuming."

"Good," said the old man. "And how about the coal? Do you expect me to throw that in?"

"Certainly not," cried the youth. "I'll gladly throw in the coal. Bless you, I worked my way through college tending a furnace."

And the old man smiled approvingly.

The real difference between men is energy. A strong will, a settled purpose, an invincible determination, can accomplish almost anything; and in this lies the distinction between great men and little men.—Fuller.

The Ills of Women Act upon the Nerves like a Firebrand.

The relation of woman's nerves and generative organs is very close; consequently nine tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," sleeplessness, and nervous irritability of women arise from some derangement of the organism which makes her a woman. Herein we prove conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will quickly relieve all this trouble.

Details of a Severe Case Cured in Eau Claire, Wis.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: —I have been ailing from female trouble for the past five years. About a month ago I was taken with nervous prostration, accompanied at certain times before menstruation with fearful headaches. I read one of your books, and finding many testimonials of the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, experienced by lady sufferers, I commenced its use and am happy to state that after using a few bottles I feel like a new woman, aches and pains all gone.

"I am recommending your medicine to many of my friends, and I assure you that you have my hearty thanks for your valuable preparation which has done so much good. I trust all suffering women will use your Vegetable Compound."—MRS. MINNIE TIETZ, 620 First Ave., Eau Claire, Wis. (May 28, 1901).

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it soothes, strengthens, heals and tones up the delicate female organism. It is a positive cure for all kinds of female complaints; that bearing down feeling, backache, displacement of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, and is invaluable during the change of life, all of which may help to cause nervous prostration.

Read what Mrs. Day says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: —I will write you a few lines to let you know of the benefit I have received from taking your remedies. I suffered for a long time with nervous prostration, backache, sick headache, painful menstruation, pain in the stomach after eating, and constipation. I often thought I would lose my mind. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was soon feeling like a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly. It does all that it is recommended to do, and more.

"I hope that every one who suffers as I did will give Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies a trial."—MRS. MARIE DAY, Eleanora, Pa. (March 25, 1901.)

Free Medical Advice to Women.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women to write to her for advice. You need not be afraid to tell her the things you could not explain to the doctor—your letter will be seen only by women and is absolutely confidential. Mrs. Pinkham's vast experience with such troubles enables her to tell you just what is best for you, and she will charge you nothing for her advice.

Another Case of Nervous Prostration Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: —Allow me to express to you the benefit I have derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I started to take it I was on the verge of nervous prostration. Could not sleep nights, and I suffered dreadfully from indigeston and headache. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful medicine, and began its use, which immediately restored my health.

"I can heartily recommend it to all suffering women."—MRS. BERTHA E. DEIRKINS, 25½ Lapidge St., San Francisco, Cal. (May 21, 1901.)

Postmasters hereafter will not be permitted to rent boxes to minors without the written consent of their parents. The order was made by the postoffice department to correct an abuse growing out of the fact that minor girls rent boxes and open correspondence with outside parties and in that way keep it secret from their parents. This is a good ruling and will doubtless put a stop to much flirtation. When a girl has a correspondence she is ashamed for her mother to know she is treading on quicksand that may engulf her.—Ex.

Rockaby baby your mamma's a terror; she's run three conventions, declared for three fellows, she's great on a straddle, way up on the vote, so hushaby baby, your papa's the 'goat.' The American and English Encyclopedia of Law defines a gift as "a voluntary transfer of a thing without consideration" On another page it says:

"An agreement to give without consideration or for the consideration of love and affection only, transfers no title to the property and does not give a right to sue or compel a completion of the agreement. For this reason a promissory note intended purely as a gift by the maker cannot be enforced."

Britt's donation is not in the county's hands nor can the county board compel the county treasurer to account for it. The title to the court house and site at Garner rests in the county now, remember.

The State Savings Bank has been organized into a National Bank. The affairs of the State Bank will be continued and assumed by the First National Bank. There will be no change in the management. J. J. Suckow and family moved to Garner on Thursday last. We are informed that the cause of their leaving Klemme is the fact that no place to live was available. Some capitalist could realize good interest on his money if he would invest some of it in dwellings built to rent in Klemme.

Come to the concert.

A large number of cars of live stock has been shipped from this point to the Chicago market this week. Were it not for Klemme half the people of Chicago would be "on the pork" for meat. Among the shippers from here were Bloom and Lau each two cars of hogs, John Hartfelder two cars of cattle, while Joe Johnson, A. Bartz, Fred Haupt, M. Palmby and R. M. Cameron, each had a car load on the market.

We received a postal from A. J. Schuldt written from Los Angeles, Cal., the latter part of last week. The party experienced some little difficulty in getting through to the sunny land as Mr. Schuldt writes they were five days in getting through from Kansas City to El Paso, and did not get to Los Angeles until March 6th. They were nearly nine days on the road. A letter addressed to them at Station B. Los Angeles, Cal. will reach them so says the postal.

An Attempt to Expand.

This week the TIMES comes to your address enlarged. The paper has been changed from a 7-column folio to a 5-column quarto (8 pages) which gives us a considerable more space, and we believe we can make a better looking paper by making this change. Tho you may think the change is being made slowly, yet we intend and are daily trying to give the people of Klemme and surrounding country a better paper. We appreciate your patronage and respectfully ask that you continue the same. We have talked with a number of our business men regarding their buying more space and thereby helping us and themselves at the same time, and they have responded quite liberally but there are many more whom we have yet to see and hope that you to will aid us in a financial way. Study your advertising carefully and then go at it systematically and you will soon find that the amount you expend annually for advertising returns to you ten fold. It costs us more to get out this paper and naturally we need this additional patronage. Help us to make the TIMES a better paper.

We expect to add a considerable new material to our plant this spring and will be in even better shape to give you neat and up-to-date job work.

PRESIDENT ASKS TYNER TO RESIGN

The Latter is Assistant Attorney General to Postoffice Department.

DUE TO "GET-RICH-QUICKS"

A Relative of a Cabinet Officer and a United States Senator Are Also Said to Be Involved—President Orders an Investigation.

Washington, March 16.—President Roosevelt has demanded the resignation of Gen. James N. Tyner, assistant attorney general to the potoffice department. Gen. Tyner is an Indiana man who has served in that capacity for nearly forty years. For a number of years he has been paralyzed and not active in the conduct of his office. The president is of the opinion that had Gen. Tyner been a stronger man certain alleged scandals in connection with the "get-rich-quick" concerns would have never occurred. It is thought to be the opening movement in what is thought to be the biggest administration scandal that has shocked the country for many years. It is said to involve officials of great prominence, together with a United States senator and a relative of a member of the cabinet. The story in brief is that the president has been told that certain officials have been using their positions to extort money from illegal "get-rich-quick" concerns that have been permitted to flourish and that in this way they have been aided by others who do not hold government positions but whose prominence in public affairs and relations with powers that be, enabled them to be of valuable assistance.

Some days ago information was given President Roosevelt by a friend that Attorney Campbell of Cincinnati, and New York, had information of these matters. The president at once summoned Attorney Campbell who laid before him a story involving charges of bribery and extortion. These charges, however, did not reflect on Tyner.

The story that Campbell told was to the effect that the Arnold "get-rich-quick" concern with Ryan and perhaps others engaged in similar ventures, had paid to certain officials of the government large lump sums of money and weekly amounts for protection in the conduct of their business and that they were enabled to carry this on for a long time. Arnold and Ryan were said to have each paid $25,000 down and $2,000 a week for a considerable period. "If you will investigate the matter," Col. Campbell told the president, "you will strike pay dirt."

The investigation of the charge is still in progress. It is in the hands of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow. His instruction are to probe deep and report to the president. Gen. Bristow refuses to discuss the charges. The rumor here is that the United States senator and the alleged cabinet officer acted as attorneys or in some similar capacity for the "get-rich-quick" people, but definite information as to the part they played is lacking.

GERMANY WILL RETALIATE.

Will Demand of U. S. and Cuba Privileges Identical to Cuban Treaty.

Berlin, March 16.—Germany as soon as the reciprocity treaty between Cuba and the United States is ratified, will ask both the Cuban and United States governments for identical privileges. It is also intimated that other governments intend to request the same treatment. While annoyed at the prospect of the United States having lower tariffs in Cuba than that of Germany, no one supposes that even a collective protest on the part of the continental countries would cause either the United States or Cuba to proceed. But Germany's position is to be defined clearly, so that the United States cannot complain when Germany gives other countries preferential treatment. The policy is give and take. The most favored nation theory is really abandoned.

Special conventions are to be drawn up to fit different situations. This principle seems to be accepted by Russia, Austria and Italy and the trade policies are to rest upon the reciprocity idea. What is the subject of some concern here is that should the Cuban treaty be accepted and found to work well similar treaties may be arranged by the Unted States with Mexico, Brazil and Argentine, ultimately resulting in the United States obtaining a monopoly of all the South and Central American markets.

FAIRBANKS AGAINST ROOSEVELT.

Richmond, Va., March 16.—Prominent republicans just back from Washington claim that Senator Fairbanks will announce his candidacy for president in a few days and attempt to capture southern delegates.

C. M. Bernard, a republican of influence in North Carolina, has returned to work for Fairbanks against Roosevelt.

Col. J. Browning, one of the strongest republicans in southwest Virginia, has been in conference with Senator Fairbanks in Washington and comes home to start his boom in Virginia.

Senator Fairbanks, it is said, will spend largely on newspapers for his boom and where they do not exist literature will be establishhed.

VENEZUELA RAISES BLOCKADE

Washington Receives the News With Evidence of Relief.

Caracas, March 14.—The blockade of the mouth of the Orinoco and of the ports of Guanta and Carupano, recently proclaimed by the Venezuelan government, has been raised.

Washington, March 14.—The action taken by the Venezuelan government in raising the blockade was received here with great relief, for although there were no outward symptoms of trouble, it is now known that the enforcement of the decree probably would have resulted in serious friction, perhaps involving a renewal of hostilities, British interests next to our own being predominant in the Orinoco section. The British ambassador here was the first to move after the announcement of the blockade decree. The United States government practically had decided to recognize the blockade of the Orinoco to make it effective, particularly if these ships were supplemented in their work by certain shore batteries in command of positions. But the British government was not disposed to recognize the blockade, as it would work particular hardship to the British colonies in Trinidad and Guiana, which already are in straightened financial conditions. The Venezuelan government was given to understand that if the blockade was persisted in Great Britain would recognize the belligerency of the rebels in Venezuela, and moreover, applying the laws of neutrality strictly, would close all British ports to Venezuelan warships, allowing them only the small privilege of putting in in time of stress for a very limited period. Even during the enforcement of the blockade last March the British government never went to this length and the threat dismayed President Castro. If the rebels were to be recognized as belligerents their cause would be strengthened immensely, for they might charter privateers and be put in a position to borrow money and conduct war on a larger and it may be successful scale.

CZAR TOLERATES ALL RELIGIONS

Important Russian Decree Has Been Issued.

St. Petersburg, March 13.—The czar has issued a decree providing for freedom of religion throughout his dominions, establishing to some degree local self-government and many other concession to the village laws.

After referring to the efforts of his predecessors, particularly his father, to add to the welfare of the Russian people, the czar announced his decision to grant freedom of religion to all his subjects who profess non-orthodox creeds and to improve the conditions of village life and those of the local nobility and peasantry.

Among the measures outlined by the czar for the attainment of these ends is reform of the rural laws, which is to be effected with the advance of persons who possess the confidence of the people. The system of administration in the various divisions and districts is to be examined by representatives of the different localities concerned with the view of effecting the necessary amendments.

Measures are also to be taken to relieve the peasantry of the burdens of forced labor.

The decree, which was issued in commemoration of the anniversary of the birthday of Alexander III., is considered to be the most significant act of state since the emancipation of the serfs. The public hails it as the proclamation of a new era, opening up bright prospects of the early improvement of Russian internal administration.

COL. HENDERSON'S PLANS.

Will Accept Employment With Large Corporation.

Washington, March 13.—Former Speaker Henderson, by his withdrawal from the Dubuque law firm with which he was for so many years connected, has given the people of Iowa to understand that he intends to remove from the state. Thus far he has said nothing as to what he intends to do, or where he intends to go, but the general impression is that he will associate himself with a large corporation in New York City, and become in a measure identified with the trusts. He has not practiced law for twenty years or longer, and just what sort of legal service he could render one of these big corporations is not known. But that he is to be given a position which will make him independent for the remainder of his days is very probable. For the present the ex-speaker is resting. He will go with his family to the Pacific coast, returning to Iowa in the late spring, when some formal statement of his intentions will undoubtedly be made.

AGAINST ARBITRATION PLAN.

President of Labor Federations Against Compulsion.

Albany, N. Y., March 13.—President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, appeared before the senate committee on judiciary yesterday to oppose Senator Lewis' bill providing for so-called compulsory arbitration of labor difficulties between public service utilities and their employes. Mr. Gompers said:

"If you enact this principle into the legislature of this state, and make labor compulsory even while waiting for the decision of a tribunal, or in accordance with the award of that tribunal, you will simply make outlaws of peaceful law-abiding citizens. If you outlaw strikes you will simply give place to the harsher measures. You cannot legislate out of existence the right of men to combine and to quit work if need be, for the betterment of their condition."

The Grip Leaves Thousands in its Path
Weak, Nervous, Dyspeptic, Catarrh Wrecks.

"For Grip and the after effects like debility, nervousness, dyspepsia and other catarrhal conditions resulting from the Grip, in the entire Materia Medica I have found no remedy that equals Peruna for prompt action."—Dr. S. B. Hartman, President The Hartman Sanitarium

From N. Y. Journal. "During the recent Grip epidemic, claiming a million victims or more, the efficiency of Peruna in quickly relieving this malady and its after effects has been the talk of the continent."

LIKE A DEMON grip has crossed our country, leaving behind scores of physical wrecks.

Victims of catarrh of the head, catarrh of the throat, catarrh of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the kidneys, catarrh of the pelvic organs, are to be counted by hundreds of thousands. Grip is epidemic catarrh, and sows the seed of chronic catarrh within the system.

This is so true that few grip sufferers are able to make a complete recovery until they have used Peruna.

Never in the history of medicine has a remedy received such unqualified and universal eulogies as Peruna.

A New York Alderman's Experience.

Hon. Joseph A. Flinn, alderman Fifth District, writes from 104 Christopher street, New York City, as follows:

"When a pestilence overtakes our people we take precaution as a nation to preserve the citizens against the dread disease.

"La grippe has entered thousands of our homes this fall, and I noticed that the people who used Peruna were quickly restored, while those who depended on doctor's prescriptions, spent weeks in recovering, leaving them weak and emaciated.

"I had a slight attack of la grippe and at once took Peruna, which drove the disease out of my system in a few days and did not hinder me from pursuing my daily work.

"I should like to see our Board of Health give it official recognition and have it used generally among our poor sick people in Greater New York."—Joseph A. Flinn.

D. L. Wallace, a charter member of the International Barber's Union, writes from 15 Western avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.:

"Following a severe attack of la grippe I seemed to be affected badly all over. I suffered with a severe backache, indigestion and numerous ills, so I could neither eat nor sleep, and I thought I would give up my work, which I could not afford to do.

"One of my customers who was greatly helped by Peruna advised me to try it, and I procured a bottle the same day. I used it faithfully and felt a marked improvement. During the next two months I took five bottles, and then felt splendid. Now my head is clear, my nerves steady, I enjoy food, and rest well. Peruna has been worth a dollar a dose to me."—D. L. Wallace.

Mr. O. H. Perry, Atchison, Kansas, writes:

"Again, after repeated trials of your medicines, Peruna and Manalin, I give this as my expression of the wonderful results of your very valuable medicine in its effects in my case after repeated trials.

"First, it cured me of chronic bronchitis of fifteen years' standing, by using two bottles of Peruna in January, 1894, and no return of it.

"After I was cured of bronchitis I had la grippe every winter for several winters. But, through the use of Peruna, it got gradually weaker in its severity, until it dwindled down to a mere stupor for two or three days. Now the stupor does not trouble me any more."—O. H. Perry.

A Congressman's Experience.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and cattarh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully,
George H. White.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Mrs. Allie Jackson, of Farmer City, Ill., writes: "My seven months old baby was troubled a great deal with his stomach and bowels. I had tried numerous remedies with no good results, until the baby lost much flesh, and was in poor health. A friend recommended Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I procured a 50c bottle at the drug store and gave the contents to the baby according to directions, after which there was a decided improvement in his condition. Have been giving him Syrup Pepsin for about a month, with very satisfactory results, his stomach and bowels being in good healthy condition and his former weight regained."

you have a hard time?" "Yes," said the Irishman; "an awful time. The other eleven wanted to acquit yer."

When a colored waiter, dubbed "Snowball," accidentally spilled some soup on a southern representative whom he was serving, the wrath of the congressman knew no bounds. After a long scolding, the infuriated southerner roared: "Snowball, you have scalded a man who may yet be president of the United States." Snowball's face relaxed, and two gleaming rows of ivories came into prominence. "Lawd, mistah," said he, "when you gets to be president I reckon I'll be Gawd."

A story is told of a pastor of a small New England town who went to New York and returned to his home with the idea that he had seen about all there was to see. When he was asked by one of his trusted friends if he had studied the gambling dens and gambled himself, he hesitatingly confessed that he had. 'Where?" queried his astonished friend. "Well, you see it was this way. I went down to the Bowery and found one of them gamblin' machines. And, would you believe it, I just stood there and risked pennies in that machine till the gum wouldn't come any more."

The appointment of Vice-Admiral Lord Charles Beresford to the command of the English Channel squadron has brought to light a new anecdote. It appears that he consulted Sir Frederick Treves, whom King Edward considers the best doctor in the world. "Tell me the symptoms," said Treves. As the admiral enumerated them the doctor became more and more interested. "Excellent, charming, splendid," cried Sir Frederick, as the symptoms were unfolded to him, and when the list was completed, said: "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you. You have the rarest case of the century. You are the dlucky dog that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

When he returned from his first boxing bout in Portland, Ore., James J. Corbett, the ex-champion pugilist, was asked by his father: "How did it turn out?" Being advised that the fight was a financial failure, he advised the youthful pugilist to remain at home in the future. "Remember, me lad," he said, "there's an old proverb and a true one, 'A rolling stone gathers no moss.'" Six months later Corbett boxed Kilrain in New Orleans, and when he came home his father again approached him. This time he replied that he had made a lot of money, and paid him fifty dollars he had borrowed on a previous occasion. "Well, me boy," said "Pop" Corbett, "remember there's an old proverb and a true one, 'It's the roving bee that gets the noney.'"

It is related that a prisoner, arrested for murder, bribed an Irishman on the jury with one hundred dollars to hang out for a verdict of manslaughter. The jury were out a long time, and finally came in with a verdict of manslaughter. The man rushed up to the Irish juror, and said: "I'm obliged to you, my friend. Did

He Means It.

New Berlin, Ill., March 16th.—Mr. Frank Newton of this place speaks very earnestly and emphatically when asked by any of his many friends the reason for the very noticeable improvement in his health.

For a long time—over two years—he has been suffering a great deal with pains in his back and an all-over feeling of illness and weakness. His appetite failed him and he grew gradually weaker and weaker till he was very much run down.

A friend recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills and Mr. Newton began to take two at a dose, three times a day In a very short time he noticed an improvement; the pains left his back and he could eat better. He kept on improving and now he says:

"Yes, indeed! I am a different man and Dodd's Kidney Pills did it all. I cannot tell you how much better I feel I am a new man and Dodd's Kidney Pills deserve all the credit."

Every hour comes with some little fagot of God's will fastened upon its back.—Faber.

JURY PLACES WOMAN'S VALUE AT $300 A POUND

Awards Damages of $9,000 for Loss of Avoirdupois Through Accident.

St. Louis, Mo., March 16.—For a loss of thirty pounds in weight a St Louis special jury has awarded Miss Alice Latson $9,000 in a verdict against the St. Louis Transit company. The loss of weight, as Miss Latson convinced the jurors, was caused by injuries which she received in a collision between a transit car and a buggy in which she was riding. Loss of avoirdupois is not the only loss sustained by the plaintiff in the suit, for Miss Latson's testimony showed that she earned an average of $170 a month as manager of the St. Louis branch of a Chicago mail-order house. Photographs of Miss Latson, taken two years ago, were submitted to prove her statement that she had lost the thirty pounds, and a glance at these was sufficient to convince the most skeptical juror that her statement was the truth.

EIGHT ARE DROWNED IN MINE

Four Known to Be Dead and Four Missing in Michigan Accident.

Iron Mountain, Mich., March 16.—Four men are known to have lost their lives and four others are missing as the result of a rush of water which flooded the mine level in which they were working. The accident occurred in the fourth level of the Millie mine and was caused by the men working through the wall of their level into another level, an old working, which had been flooded, the water sweeping through the break and drowning the men like rats in a trap. Twelve miners were at work, but four managed to escape.

WILL NOT REDUCE RAIL RATES

Report That Illinois Railroads Will Resist Commissioners' Order.

Springfield, Ill., March 16.—It is stated in railroad circles that the railroads will not make the reduction of 25 per cent in freight rates ordered by the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners and will apply to the courts for an injunction restraining the commission from putting the reduced rates into effect. The railroads contend that the margin of profit would be wiped out if the rates were reduced 25 per cent. That it is the freight business and not the passenger business which pays the dividends.

NEW TOWN WILL NOT BE BUILT

Chicago Capitalists Relinquish Plans at Winthrop Harbor, Wis.

Kenosha, Wis., March 16.—Chicago capitalists and real estate promoters who planned to build a city at Winthrop Harbor, south of Kenosha, met their Waterloo when a judgment was granted by which Mrs. Caroline Roth of Chicago will secure possession of all the property owned by the Winthrop Harbor and Dock Company in Wisconsin. The judgment amounted to $5,459. Other creditors will stampede into the courts to collect claims overdue.

CONTESTS HER FATHER'S WILL

Daughter of Decedent Says She Was Not Fairly Treated.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 16.—A contest was filed in the probate court against the admission to probate of the will of Henry H. Hayden. The contest is on behalf of his daughter Avis Hayden, who has been adjudged insane. The contestant alleges that the estate amounts to $400,000; that the daughter, Avis, was bequeathed only $250, and that the testator, Mr Hayden, was of unsound mind and was unduly influenced.

Three Miners Are Killed.

Dwight, Ill., March 16.—Three men were killed by an explosion in a mine at Cardiff, which State Mine Inspector Hector McAllister of Streator had inspected the day before and declared to be safe. The mine had been on fire for several days and was shut down on account of a broken engine. Twelve men also were injured.

For American Sovereignty.

Miners Will Strike.

Thurman, W. Va., March 16.—A general strike of all the miners in this field, 10,000, will be called inside of sixty days. Representatives are also at work in the Kanawha field, but the work of organization there progresses slowly.

ALL TIRED OUT.

The weary, worn-out, all-tired feelings come to everybody who taxes the kidneys.

When the kidneys are overworked they fail to perform the duties nature has provided for them to do.

When the kidneys fail, dangerous disease quickly follows; urinary disorders, diabetes, dropsy, rheumatism, Bright's disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney and bladder ills. Read the following case:

Veteran Joshua Heller of 706 South Walnut street, Urbana, Ill., says: "In the fall of 1899 after getting Doan's Kidney Pills at Cunningham Bros.' drug store in Champaign and taking a course of treatment I told the readers of the paper that they had relieved me of kidney trouble, disposed of a lame back with pain across my loins and beneath the shoulder blades. During the interval which had elapsed I have had occasion to report to Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed warnings of attack. On each and every occasion the results obtained were just as satisfactory as when the pills were first brought to my notice. I just as emphatically endorse the preparation to-day as I did over two years ago."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Heller will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Medical advice free; strictly confidential. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

One of the essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a fund of information as to right living and the best methods of promoting health and happiness. With proper knowledge, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and are of not less value than the using of the most wholesome foods and the selecting of the best medicinal agents when needed. With the well-informed, medicinal agents are used only when nature needs assistance and while the importance of cleansing the system effectually, when bilious or constipated, has long been known, yet until within recent years it was necessary to resort to oils, salts, extracts of roots, barks and other cathartics which were found to be objectionable and to call for constantly increased quantities.

Then physicians having learned that the most excellent laxative and carminative principles were to be found in certain plants, principally in the leaves, the California Fig Syrup Co. discovered a method of obtaining such principles in their purest condition and of presenting them with pleasant and refreshing liquids in the form most acceptable to the system and the remedy became known as—Syrup of Figs—as figs were used, with the plants, in making it, because of their agreeable taste.

This excellent remedy is now rapidly coming into universal use as the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetens the system effectually without disturbing the natural functions and without unpleasant after effects and its use may be discontinued when it is no longer required.

All who would enjoy good health and its blessings should remember that it is the one remedy which physicians and parents well-informed approve and recommend and use and which they and their little ones alike enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all reliable druggists, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, in original packages only, having the name of the remedy—Syrup of Figs—and the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

The Britt Petition

On Monday and Tuesday F. B. Rogers and Wm. Werner, of Britt, were circulating a petition for the re-location of the county seat at Britt, in Klemme. By presenting a the court house question in various ways they succeeded in getting quite a few voters. They have a number of different ways in going about this matter and use their judgment, which really seems to be good, as to which argument to advance to each individual. They first size up their man and then go about it systematically and that's no josh. We happened to be an eye witness to their meeting with one tiller of the soil. They are much interested in the welfare of our farmers. Mr. Werner in his smooth oily way, accosted this farmer thusly: Werner— "I see you have some potatoes in your wagon. What do you get for potatoes?"

Farmer—"Sixty cents per bushel."

W—"That's good. Wish you got a $1.60, but will you sign this petition? It's a meaningless little concern, all we want is a chance." This ungrateful farmer even after Werner had wished for him such abundant success, refused to sign his petition.

There is a great deal of difference in these two men. Roger's is rather a noisy gentleman put up on the curb-stone orator plan. He is great on jestures, and in case you cross him in any of his statements his arms while in the act of jesturing are apt to come uncomfortably close to your face He is of a very nervous temperment.

Mr. Werner is altogether different. He is very quiet and agreeable. If you say to Werner black is white, Werner will say: yes, that's right, but won't you sign my petition. Take the pair together they are certainly a good team for Werner can pour oil on the troubled waters which Rogers has caused to foam. were they to circulate their petition here now a much smaller per cent of our voters would sign it.

Postmaster John Gruetzmacher has received from the McKinley National Memorial Association a limited supply of the Certificates which have been prepared for destribution to contributors to the monument fund as souvenirs of their participation in that great enterprise. The certificate is a beautiful work of art on which is given an excellent reproduction of Mrs. McKinley's favorite likeness of her husband, together with a picture of the McKinley home in Canton and of the white House, the wording below the illusnrations is as sollows: "This certifies that ..... has contributed to the fund for the erection of the national memorial at Canton, Ohio, in honor of William Mckinley." The workmanship and artistic effects are of the very highest order, the great house of Tiffany & Co,. New York, being the designers and manufacturers. The supply in the hands of Postmaster Gruetzmacher is a portion of the first edition of the certificates and is sent here to enable those who have not as yet contributed, to do so. Parties who have already identified themselves with the movement will recieve souvenirs direct from the office of the Association or through local committees.

A Most Libera Offer.

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper The Iowa Homestead, its Special Farmers' Institute Editions, and The Poultry Farmer. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known thruout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Iowa Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the West; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while The Special Farmer's Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

The Ministerial association of Davenport, which includes the pastors of all Davenport churches, has decided upon a uniform action regarding the remarriage of divorced people. The ministers will refuse to perform the ceremony for any person considered the offending party in a divorce suit. The action of the association is hastened by the alarming increase of divorce cases on the court dockets and the laxity of laws in permitting indiscriminate marriages.

While trying to ford Waterman creek, near Sutherland, Delbert Bidwell and F. Gleason were drowned. The exact facts concerning the drowning are difficult to obtain, owing to the excitement, but as near as can be ascertained, are as follows: Mr. Gleason, an elderly gentleman, Delbert Bidwell, Oscar Bidwell and Clap Jordan started out rather early to attend a sale several miles in the country, from Sutherland. They occupied a double carriage with the top and side curtains all in place, as the morning was rainy; in fact there had been heavy rain during the night, causing the Waterman creek to be a rushing torrent. The unfortunate men did not understand the depth and character of the stream, and in attempting to ford the same, the carriage was overturned and all borne rapidly down the stream, Mr. Gleason and Delbert Bidwell to their death.

The reception tendered ex-Speaker Henderson upon his return to Dubuque from Washington was a grand ovation. He was escorted from the Hotel Julien to the Grand opera house, which was filled to overflowing, many being unable to gain admittance. The meeting was presided over by Colonel W. H. Torbert and addresses of welcome were delivered by Judge O'Donnell, the Rev. Frank B. Smith, Charles McClain and others. When Colonel Henderson arose to speak he was overcome with emotion. He spoke in feeling terms of his relations to the people of Iowa, to the Third congressional district, and to the city of Dubuque, which for twenty years had stood by him so loyally. He said that whatever place or position he might in future be called to fill, his heart would ever be with Dubuque and when his earthly career was closed his final rest would be in a little lot in the beautiful cemetery that crowns its hills. He spoke feelingly of his wife as the good angel and anchor by which he had always been guided. The welcome was entirely non-partisan.

Postmaster George Metzger of Davenport was a few days ago removed from office by Special Examiner Stewart of the postoffice department, according to telegraph instructions he had received to make a change in the Davenport postmastership at once. The action taken follows closely upon an investigation of the accounts of the local postoffice at the close of which Special Examiner John Mahin announced that Mr. Metzger was square with Uncle Sam. It was understood that Mr. Metzger with the aid of friends made a deposit of $5,500 at the bank where the funds were kept just before the statement that there was no shortage was made. Mr. Metzger's bondsmen notified the government that they wished to be relieved from responsibility on his account, and this brought Special Examiner Stewart to Davenport with instructions to make an immediate change and appoint in Mr. Metzger's stead some man satisfactory to the bondsmen. The bondsmen met and agreed upon Captain Lon Bryson, who was at once appointed to serve as temporary postmaster. There are three and a half years of Mr. Metzger's term remaining, and it is believed that Captain Bryson will serve the term.

Prof. W. J. Kennedy, head of the animal husbandry department of the Iowa Agricultural college, has completed final arrangements for the mammoth cattle feeding experiments to be conducted this year on the Cook farms, Odebolt. Three distinct experiments are now being conducted. The first, an acclimation test to determine the climatic influences, if any, on southern cattle when brought to northern states as feeders, was started March 1. The second and third experiments were commenced on the 20th under the direction of Prof. Marshall, assistant teacher in animal husbandry department. The cattle for the three experiments, numbering 500, have been carefully selected and divided by Profs. Kennedy and Marshall into ten lots of fifty animals each. The second experiment contains three lots of fifty head each to be fed on different amounts of grain. The light ration lot not to be fed over sixteen pounds of grain per day per steer when on full feed, the medium ration lot not to exceed twenty pounds of grain per day per steer when on full feed. At the conclusion of the test the relative cost of feed per 100 pounds grain, average daily gain, and other interesting data will be deducted. The third experiment contains five lots of fifty head each. This test will be the continuation of the work commenced last year except that none of the lots will be fed any stock foods, as the manufacturers of the same would not enter this year's test on the same ground that they did last year, and those complied with by the manufacturers of the other foods which are being fed this year.

Since Waterloo has discovered that the drinking water is impure and the citizens have expressed a desire to own their own plant, the Waterlooans have been figuring on tapping the springs at Cedar Falls. They have for some years had their eyes on the springs, which furnish the best water in the state to the city of Cedar Falls. Engineers have looked over the property and think there is water enough for both cities, but for fear there would not be enough Cedar Falls will fight with vigor the attempt to tap the springs.

He left numerorus bills about town, among them being sums of money he borrowed from his friends just before leaving. He was prominent in Odd Fellow work.

The state board of control has let the contract for the new work at the state industrial school for boys at Eldora. This includes a workshop and a school house. The workshop is a three-story building 38 by 90 feet. Both buildings are to be faced with pressed brick. The school house will be a handsome structure, with a central hall and eight large rooms, for each and every one of which is to be light on two sides. The contract was let to F. White of Eldora, for $25,000 for the two buildings, which is well within the appropriation. The work at Davenport, Mt. Pleasant and Glenwood has all been let; and the work will begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

Harry Pattee, who was shot by a burglar at Perry on the night of January 16, is in a precarious condition, and the chances for his recovery are very slight. For several weeks he lingered between life and death, and then it was thought that he was improving until a few days ago, when he was taken with a severe coughing spell and had slight hemorrhages. Dr. Trout, the family physician, decided that an operation was necessary and a few days ago, assisted by Dr. Schooler of Des Moines, the operation was performed. The patient aroused from the anesthetic and was able to recognize members of his family. The operation consisted in opening the wound made by the pistol shot and removing a quantity of pus. The bullet was found, but it was not considered expedient to remove it.

The department of geology and mining engineering of the Iowa State college has been engaged in the study of Iowa clays during the past three years and finds that everyone of the ninety-nine counties in the state contains clay suitable for the manufacture of clay products. In 1901 the state ranked eighth in total clay production. Ninety-three counties marketed clay wares valued at $2,737,825, consisting chiefly of common building brick and drain tile, constituting 2.48 per cent of the production of the entire country, which amounted to $110,211,587. In the cheaper clay wares, building brick, drain tile, hollow block and burnt clay ballast, she produced 4.45 per cent of a production of about $51,000,000 in those lines. Of the remaining $59,000,000 worth of higher grade clay goods she produced less than two-thirds of 1 per cent.

Captain Hiram Evans of Seymour was instantly killed a few days ago by an east bound Rock Island freight train. Captain Evans, who was in the 84th year of his age and hard of hearing, was coming to town on an errand and was struck as he was crossing the tracks near the Wayne hotel, almost on the public square. The side of his head was crushed in, the left leg broken and the foot torn off. Captain Evans was one of the prominent and wealthy men of Wayne county. He was one of the pioneers of the county and was the father of six children, among the number being H. R. Evans of Corydon, a former member of the Iowa legislature and at present a member of the state board of regents. Captain Evans was a native of Pennsylvania and was married there on January 12, 1842. Their sixtieth wedding anniversary was celebrated in Seymour January 12, 1902. Mr. Evans was captain of Company K in the civil war. His wealth is estimated at more than $100,000 and was principally in Wayne county land and banking stock. He was vice president of the Farmers' and Drovers' State bank of Seymour and a stockholder in the Corydon and Promise City bank.

RICHARDS SURRENDERS.

Files a Bond With the Clerk of Courts At Knoxville.

Des Moines, March 21.—W. A. Richards, former deputy United States marshal for the southern district of Iowa, spent Friday in Des Moines and left this morning for Knoxville, where he will appear before the clerk of the district court and give bonds for his appearance at the April term of court, which will be presided over by Judge Nichols of Perry.

He is under indictment by the grand jury of Marion county on two charges—larceny from a building in the night time and breaking and entering a building in the night time, both of which charges grew out of the Sullivan robbery in January of this year at Hamilton. Shortly after this occurrence Richards left Iowa, going to Mexico, from which place he returned a few weeks ago and since then he has been for the greater part of the time in Lincoln and Omaha, although he has been in Iowa a part of the time and Ottumwa was one of the places that he visited.

He arrived in Des Moines yesterday on the 9 o'clock train and at once went to the office of United States Marshal George M. Christian. With Richards appeared W. C. Mentzer of Knoxville, the attorney that Richards has engaged to defend him.

Richards and his friends remained in conference in the office for some time and then he went to secure signers to his bonds, which had been fixed by the court at $2,500 for one of the charges and $1,500 for the other.

The ex-deputy marshal has many friends in the city and it was not long before he returned with the bonds signed by the following people: Keeley R. Madden of Bridgewater, Adair county, who is one of the leading farmers of that part of that community; Edward H. Hunter of the Iowa State bank; George M. Christain, United States marshal for the southern district of Iowa; E. R. Mason, clerk of the United States circuit court, and A. U. Quint of the Bankers' Casualty company.

During the afternoon Mr. Richards rang up Sheriff Bybee, of Marion county, and told him that he would be down in the morning, and would appear before the clerk of the courts and present his bond for appearance at the April term of court. In reply the sheriff said that this was all right, and that they would be awaiting him in the morning.

After this matter is fixed up Mr. Richards will return to Des Moines during the day, and from here he will probably go to his home in Creston.

"I am guilty of no crime," said Richards yesterday, "and I am perfectly willing to go before the court in Knoxville next month and prove my innocence. I had nothing to do with the Sullivan robbery, and it was only my kind heartedness there that got me into trouble. When I went home from there and learned that I was wanted for complicity in the crime I lost my head and went to Omaha, where I purchased a ticket for Mexico. I soon came to believe that there was no reason for me to remain away, so I came back to this country again, and for the greater part of the time have been in Nebraska in different places, although I have no hesitation in saying that I was in Iowa, and that among the places that I have visited were Ottumwa, Creston and some other places in the southwestern part of the state. Since then, however, I went back to Omaha, and there I have been until I came to Des Moines today."

The jury in the embezzlement case against Willis F. Dickinson, on trial at Independence, returned a verdict of "not guilty." A great sensation was created in Goldfield, a town north of Webster City, a few days ago, when a minister was made the victim of a shower of bad eggs. The preacher in question had gone to Goldfield from Ames. He expected to secure damaging evidence against I. C. Welty, formerly superintendent of the Goldfield schools, and defeat him for county superintendent of Story county for which position he is now running. The minister, however, found the greater portion of the people were warm friends of Mr. Welty. The people finding out his purpose escorted the reverend gentleman to the depot. It is said that the minister may cause wholesale arrests.

At Council Bluffs a few days ago Leon Loser and Ed Moore were pronounced guilty of the charge of conspiracy to defraud by cheating by false pretenses. Loser and Moore were connected with the famous foot race swindles at Webb City, Mo., and are said at different times to have defrauded half a dozen Council Bluffs parties out of sums ranging from $4,000 to $8,000. Loser had been known as something of a foot racer over the west for a number of years. He is a nephew of Abraham Slimmer, the Waverly philanthropist, and a cousin of Ben I. Salinger, a prominent attorney and politician at Carroll. Mr. Salinger was the principal attorney for the defense. Moore is a local character and has been connected with the gambling fraternity here for a number of years. Their attorney will ask for a new trial and that being refused an appeal to the supreme court will be taken.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Des Moines, March 23, 1903.

The trustees of Des Moines college have made a satisfactory settlement with the estate of the late J. V. Hinchman of Glenwood and will receive $23,000 to be used for any purpose. This means that the $30,000 indebtedness can be wiped out at once. It makes available $15,000 from the Baptist Educational society and opens the way to attaining the $100,000 mark as a permanent endowment.

The new amphitheater now being constructed at Ingersoll park has been tendered by the street car company to the Commercial Exchange for the use of the public on the occasion of President Roosevelt's visit to Des Moines. Five thousand people can be accommodated under cover and the seating capacity can be extended to 20,000. The first car of lumber to be used in the construction of the new "loop-the-loop without the loop" at Ingersoll has arrived, and construction is to begin at once. The structure will cost $18,000, and will be one of the finest amusement attractions in the west.

Albert W. Swalm, formerly of Oskaloosa, but for ten years in charge of United States affairs in Montevideo, Uruguay, has been appointed consul at Southampton, England. The nomination has been confirmed by the senate. The new position carries about the same salary as his present one, but is regarded as much more desirable in every way. Swalm wil return to the United States as soon as he can get affairs in shape and return to Iowa, going to England next fall.

There is in Des Moines a painting which the owner claims is a genuine Rubens, and which is valued at $100,000. It is a picture of Christ, and on the back of the canvas is the seal of the great master. The colors are perfect and Mr. Joseph Lehner, who owns it, insists that it is well authenticated. He expects, as soon as possible, to remove the painting to New York or some other large city, and there dispose of it at auction. The painting has been in Des Moines for thirty-nine years. A small circle of the friends of Mr. Lehner have seen it, but the public generally and art lovers in particular, have not seen it. Since recent publicity about the picture, hundreds have called to see it, but Mr. Lehner has it in concealment, because of litigation which is pending. Three months ago the painting was exhibited in the royal gallery at Berlin, Germany. It was insured and sent over the water, and back to Des Moines accompanied by a letter from the director of the gallery, thanking Mr. Lehner for sending the picture. He pronounced it a genuine Rubens. The emperor, himself, viewed it.

James Callanan has given the Methodist Hospital association $30,000, and work on the new $50,000 building will be begun immediately. Its completion will depend on the fund of $10,000 to be raised within the city of Des Moines. Architects are now drawing plans for the new hospital, and a committee of the association will go to Chicago the coming week to inspect modern hospitals there with reference to the arrangement of the wards and equipment.

Governor Cummins has selected Col. W. G. Dows of Cedar Rapids, commander of the Fifty-third regiment, and Col. W. B. Humphreys of Sioux City, commanding officer of the Fifty-sixth regiment to act as aids to Adjutant General Corbin at the time of the dedication of the buildings of the St. Louis exposition April 30. Col. Dows has accepted the honor and Col. Humphreys will doubtless do so. The names will be forwarded to General Corbin, by whom the formal appointments will be made. Some time ago it was announced that General Corbin had been selected as grand marshal of the dedication parade and in a letter to the governor he asked that two officers be named to serve on his staff.

The Hocking Coal Company, with stock and property amounting to over a million dollars in value, has just been formed in Iowa, and will furnish the coal to the Iowa Central and Minneapolis & St. Louis railroads, which presumably are backed by the Illinois Central. This is one of the largest coal deals ever consummated in the state and as a result the vast supply of coal that is needed for the Illinois Central and the other two roads mentioned will come from the fields of Iowa instead of Illinois as heretofore. The new company secures control of the mines, machinery and other property of the White Breast Fuel company, at Hilton, Monroe county, located five miles southeast of Albia, and also the mines and other property located at Hocking, two miles south of Albia. The transfer of this property is to be made the first of next month and will then be placed under the management of Berry Rebrecent. The deed will be filed in Monroe county. The company has already filed articles of incorporation. This property will comprise one of the biggest mining interests in the state and the output of the mines when they are worked to their full capacity will be something enormous. The mines at Hocking have a capacity of 1,500 tons a day, mine run, yielding 1,200 tons of lump coal, while those at Hilton yield about 1,200 tons per day, netting 1,000 tons slack. This will give a daily output of something like 2,200 tons of screened coal, one of the largest outputs of any individual company in the state.

MINERS GAIN A BIG VICTORY

Coal Commission's Unanimous Report Grants Most of Their Demands.

WAGES INCREASED 10 PER CENT

Does Not Pass on Recognition of Union, But Declares Against Discrimination—Discusses Lawlessness and Exonerates Larger Class of Miners.

Washington, March 23.—The report of the commission appointed by the president last October to investigate the anthracite coal strike was made public Saturday. The report is dated March 18 and is signed by all the members of the commission who are Judge George Gray of Delaware, Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright and Brigadier General John M. Wilson, both of this city; Bishop John L. Spalding of Illinois, Edgar E. Clark of Iowa, Thomas H. Watkins of Pennsylvania and Edward D. Parker of this city.

The report is to be illustrated and it will be accompanied by the testimony taken by the commission, but thus far only the report proper has been printed.

This alone covers eighty-seven pages of printed matter.

In brief, the commission grants a general increase of wages amounting in some instances to ten per cent; some decrease of time; the settlement of all disputes by arbitration; fixing a minimum scale wage and a sliding scale; provides against discrimination of persons by either the mine owners or the miners on account of membership or non-membership in a labor union and provides that the awards made shall continue in force until March 31, 1906.

The commission discussed to some extent the matter of recognition or non-recognition of the miners' union, but declined to make any award on this measure.

The commission report more than once their incapacity to make an award on the demands of the miners for a recognition of their union, because, they say, the union is not a party to the submission. Attention is called to the fact that Mr. Mitchell appeared before the commission as a representative of the anthracite coal mine workers, and not in his official capacity. They also called attention to the fact that the agreement to arbitrate was reached between the operators and coal miners' convention.

The commissioners say that "trades unionism" is rapidly becoming a matter of business. If the energy of the employer is directed to discouragement and repression of the union he need not be surprised if the more radical ones are the ones most frequently heard. They express the opinion that differences can best be settled by consultation by the employer with a "committee chosen by the employes," but they add that in order to be entitled to such recognition the labor organization must give the same recognition to the rights of the employer and of others which it demands for itself and for its members."

They add: "The union must not undertake to assume, or to interfere with the management of the business of the employer." They also announce as untenable the contention that "a majority of the employes of an industry, by voluntarily associating themselves in a union acquire authority over those who do not associate themselves."

The findings of the commission include the following:

In order that the basis may be laid for the successful working of the sliding scale provided herein, it is also adjudged and awarded: That all coal operating companies file at once with the United States commissioner of labor a certified statement of the rates of compensation paid in each occupation known to their companies, as they existed April 1, 1902.

No person shall be refused employment or in any way be discriminated against, on account of membership or or non-membership in any labor organizations and there shall be no discrimination against interference with any employe who is not a member of any labor organization by members of such organizaaion.

The commission also makes a number of recommendations which may be summarized as follows:

The discontinuance of the system of employing the "coal and iron police" because this force is believed to have an irritating effect and a resort to the regularly constituted peace authorities in case of necessity.

A stricter enforcement of the laws in relation to the employment of children.

That the state and federal governments should provide machinery for the making of a compulsory investigation which this commission has made.

The commission express the opinion that with a few modifications the federal act of October, 1888, authorizing a commission to settle the controversies between railroad corporations and other common carriers could be made the basis of a law for arbitration in the anthracite coal mining business. The commission, however, takes a decided position against compulsory arbitration.

They also refer to the hazardous nature of anthracite coal mining and give an estimate of the losses occasioned by the strike. The losses they estimate as follows: As to mine owners, $46,000,000; to the mine employes in wages, $25,000,000; to the transportation companies, $28,000,000.

The following sliding scale of wages shall become effective April 1, 1903, and shall affect all miners and mine owners included in the awards of the commission.

The wages fixed in the awards shall be the basis of and the minimum under the sliding scale:

For each increase of five cents in the average price of white ash coal of sizes above pea coal, sold at or near New York, between Perth Amboy and Edge Water, and reported to the bureau of anthracite coal statistics, above $4.50 per ton f. o. b., the employes shall have an increase of one per cent in this compensation, which shall continue until a change in the average production of said coal works or increase of said additional compensation shall in no case be less than that fixed by the award. That is, when the price of said coal reaches $4.55 per ton, the compensation will be increased one per cent, to continue until the price falls below $4.50 per ton, when the one per cent increase will cease or until the price reaches $4.60 per ton, when an additional one per cent will be added and so on.

MITCHELL IS SATISFIED.

President of Mine Workers' Union Pleased With Decision.

Detroit, Mich., March 21.—"The decision of the anthracite coal strike commission is on the whole a decided victory for the miners, and I am pleased with it," said President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of American, in an interview with an Associated Press representative. "The anthracite miners of Pennsylvania have reason to be much pleased with the commission's awards, and I am sure that they are," he said.

In reply to a question as to whether the miners were given as much as had been hoped for, Mr. Mitchell answered after an instant's deliberation:

"I do not care to say."

"The most important feature of the awards," he continued, " is, of course, the increase of ten per cent given the miners. This will result in an annual increase in the wages of 148,000 anthracite miners of Pennsylvania of $6,000,000. The sliding scale provided for by the commission is very satisfactory, in as much as a minimum of $4.50 per ton is fixed. With white ash coal at $5.50 per ton at tide water, the increase provided in the sliding scale will be equivalent to 20 per cent more on the miner's wages."

President Mitchell was not disappointed because the commission had not recognized the union formally, saying that the decision and the awards in themselves were recognition of the influence of the United Mine Workers.

The officials of the Des Moines Short Line are of the opinion that the train service of the road will be opened from Iowa Falls to Des Moines within the next six weeks. The company has been delayed in making this connection on account of the terminal company in Des Moines failing to complete its track to connect with the Short Line's main track at the city limits. A force of men are at work on the road bed between Cambridge, to which point trains are now running daily, and Des Moines, so that the completion of the terminal track will admit of regular traffic between Iowa Falls and Des Moines.

Rev. Ellis Skinner a retired minister, his wife and sister-in-law, Mrs. Melissa Knapp, were the victims of a railway crossing accident at Waterloo on the 22nd, in which Mrs. Knapp was instantly killed and Mr. and Mrs. Skinner were slightly injured. The trio were approaching a street crossing in a blinding snow storm, just as a Chicago, Great Western passenger train was passing. The horse was quickly turned aside to avoid the train, but the buggy striking a flagman's hut, the occupants were thrown directly into the moving engine. Mrs. Knapp was run over by the entire train, both legs being cut off, and her skull fractured. Mrs. Knapp's home was at Schoolcroft, Mich., and she had been visiting relatives in Waterloo. Rev. Skinner, who was driving, is an aged man and very deaf, which possibly accounts for the accident. Mrs. Knapp was about 60 years of age.

Getting rid of $500 in a single night is the fast record made by G. A. Raffenbury of Des Moines, whose mother lives there now, and who is under arrest at Sioux City, charged with embezzlement. Reffenbury was taken back to Sioux City a few days ago by Chief Davenport from Chicago, where this $500 was spent in fast and riotous living. With him was Camile Poling, an inmate of a Sioux City resort, who assisted Reffenbury in "doing the town." Reffenbury stole a whole laundry. He had been placed in charge of a Yankton laundry by L. M. Woodward, for whom he sold the concern. Instead of handing over the money he came to Sioux City and taking the Poling girl with him went to Chicago. He was there just one day when arrested by the Sioux City chief, who went after him. Of $850 he took with him he had just $350 left. He explained that the money had been spent in seeing the town. He didn't remember much about details. He did remember expenditures that amounted to $25 and then his memory became confused in the collection of champagne and other things of expense. He was formerly connected with a Des Moines laundry.

Help For Working Women

The suffering and pain endured by many working women is almost beyond belief.

How distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livlihood, or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching! She is so tired she can hardly drag about, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is quickly traced to some derangement of the female organism.

When the monthly periods are painful or irregular, when backaches and headaches drive out all ambition, when "I-can-hardly-drag-about" sensation attacks you, when you are "so-nervous-it-seems-as-though-you-would-fly," it is certain that some female derangement is fastening itself upon you. Do not let the disease make headway; write your symptoms to Mrs. Pinkham for her free advice, and begin at once the use of

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to write and thank you for all you have done for me. I have been suffering with womb and ovarian trouble for about four years and tried everything, but found no relief. I went to the best specialists in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago. I thought at times I would go crazy, I suffered so. The doctors told me the only thing would be to have an operation and my ovaries taken out. I at last decided to quit the doctors and give Mrs. Pinkham's remedies a trial. I used both Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash, and now find myself completely cured. I had the doctor to make an examination and he said I was cured. I cannot say enough for what your remedies have done for me, and have advised all my friends to try it."—MRS. CLARA MALL, with N. P. & Nat. Express Co., Ashland, Wis.

"It affords me great pleasure to tell you of the benefit I have derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now enjoying better health than I ever did. It seemed to me that I had no strength at all. I could hardly drag about. I was in pain all over.

MRS. FRANCES STAFFORD.

"I began to feel better after taking the first dose, and am now like a new woman. I know that if other suffering women would only try it, it would help them.

"I thank you with all my heart for what your medicine has done for me."

Mrs. Lou Davis, 74 Institute Place, Flat 5, Chicago, Ill., says:

"August 24, 1901.

"For the good of others I wish to testify to the merits of your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I was certainly in a very bad condition. I suffered terribly with a continual backache and headache. I had pleurisy in my right side, bearing-down pains, and those dizzy, sinking or fainting spells, was nervous, peevish and despondent.

"I was advised to try your medicine, and was greatly surprised at the benefit I derived from its use. I am now entirely cured of these ailments, and consequently feel and look like an entirely new person.

"I shall always be pleased to influence suffering women to try your Vegetable Compound. It has done wonders for me, and I am very thankful."

GRAIN GROWING. MIXED FARMING.

The reason why more wheat is grown in Western Canada in a few short months than elsewhere, is because vegetation grows in proportion to the sunlight. The more northerly latitude in which grain will come to perfection, the better it is. To our many patrons who can spare the time
We beg to submit a few verses in rhyme,
And in this crude effort we will try to tell,
Of the many kinds of material we sell.

As to our prices, we will simply say,
You figure your bills wherever you may,
Then come to us and see what we can do,
For we know our prices will suit you.

Our lumber is the best that money can buy,
And our grades are those on which you can rely.
In the spring when you discover your roof is void
Come in and get some of our PAROID.
It is water proof, fire proof, in the sun doesn't run
And you are not sorry you have ever begun.

Our posts are straight and if you are wise,
You'll not pass us by, but you are one that buys.

The quarterly meeting of the directors of the Bank of Klemme was held on wednesday forenoon. The bank was found to be in excellent condition. Under the management of Cashier Sweigard the bank has done a flourishing business, and is now enjoying a good steady growth. The directors were more than pleased with the showing.

By an over sight last week we failed to mention the departure of Chris Rhodes for Dakota. Chris has gone to Dakota to work at his trade—carpentering. Chris says that we erred in our statement some time ago that he would return to Klemme a married man and declares that he is still enjoying single blessedness. He is a good fellow and we much regret to see him leave town.

Art Gibbs and family are to leave Klemme and will locate at Strawberry Point in the eastern part of the state. Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Homer Harr, a brother of our J. L., having purchased a drug business at that place. Mr. Gibbs expects to leave the last of this week but Mrs. Gibbs will visit her parents here for some time before going to her new home. The entire community very much regrets the removal of this estimable family, but wish them abundant success. It is to be hoped that their visits to their old home will be frequent.

Kaste-McGee.

Our hopes of last week that we might confirm the report that Ben Kaste had gone to Greene to become a double man has been realized and on Friday afternoon he and his bride arrived in Klemme to spend a few days with Mr. Kaste's relatives They were married at the home of the bride's parents at Greene on Thursday evening last, at 8:30, the ceremony being performed by Rev. C. S. Cole, pastor of the M. E. church of that city. But very few people witnessed this happy wedding, it being a very quiet affair.

The groom is well known to all our people having spent a good share of his boyhood days in our midst. He is a young man of good habits, possessed of good business ability and has the push and energy that makes success in life an assured fact. He has many friends here who rejoice with him in his good luck in securing for a life's partner so worthy a young lady. Wherever he goes may he be as successful in making friends as he has here—the home of his childhood.

His bride was formerly known as Miss Myrtle McGee, the accomplished daughter of a wealthy stockman of Greene. She is a handsome young woman and will be an ornament as well as a wholehearted helpmeet in their home. She is a stranger to us and to most of our people, but we have heard her spoken of as a young lady of many talents and very popular among her acquaintances. She has exercised good taste in in the selection of a husband.

They left the fore part of the week for Hancock where the groom has a position in a store. The future of this well-matched pair is bright, and may no cloud o'er-shadow their future happiness and may their craft meet with no storms while out on life's seas.

Will you Stand for It?

Numerous firms calling themselves Tailoring Establishments send out samples of cloth from which to sell so called tailor made suits. These suits in many cases however are nothing more or less than ready made suits or sweat shop products. You pay $5. to $7. extra for the name tailor made. Will you allow yourselves thus to be blinded. We beleive you will not and accordingly have invested our money in a full and complete assortment of clothing. We have the famous and reliable line of Koken Bros, "Gayrock"; guarantee a fit and a moderate price. This is by far the best line ever shown in Klemme and we ask for your inspection and patronage. Prices are guaranteed in competition with other towns and we will further promise to you a suit for $5.00 less than your grocer can sell it to you for. we will always be pleased to show our goods whether you intend buying immediately or not.

EDW. L. SCHAUB.

When a Britt man or a friend of Britt tells you that by signing the Britt petition it makes a vote between Britt and Garner an assured fact providing Britt is successful in securing 50 per cent of the voters of the county he is just supposing it be so and you have the same sight to suppose that it is untrue. As to whether or not it is lawful to circulate two petitions is yet to be determined by the supreme court of Iowa.

BEEF TRUST IS HEAVILY FINED

Missouri Supreme Court Has Fixed Upon $5,000 Penalty for Each Member.

LIFE OF TRUST IS AT STAKE

Members Are Found Guilty of an Illegal Combination and Must Pay the Fine by April 20 or Be Ousted From the State—Entered Pool to Fix Prices.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 21.—The Armour, Cudahy, Swift, Hammond and the Schwarzchild and Sulzberger Packing companies, the five defendants in the ouster proceedings brought by the attorney-general of Missouri against the alleged beef combine last summer, were fined $5,000 each in the Missouri supreme court and ordered to pay the costs of the case, which amount to $5,000. Unless the fines and costs are paid within thirty days the defendants will be ousted from the state, so the court orders.

The packers against whom this judgment was issued have extensive branch houses in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph. The decision of the supreme court which was announced by Judge Marshall, was unanimous. In the opinion of the court, the statements, representatives and agreements made by the representatives of the packing companies in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph were admissable in evidence against the packers, and were just as binding as though they were made and entered into by the highest officers of the companies or had been solemnly adopted by the directors or stock holders of the companies and made a part of the minutes of their meetings.

Continuing the opinion says:

"The testimony introduced by the state was abundant to show that the respondents (packers) were members of a combination or pool to fix and maintain prices."

BIG MAJORITY FOR TREATY.

Reciprocity Measure Is Ratified by the Senate by Vote of 50 to 16.

Washington, March 20.—After ratifying the Cuban reciprocity treaty the senate adjourned sine die yesterday at fifteen minutes past 5 o'clock. Practically the entire day was spent behind closed doors in executive session. Most of the time was devoted to consideration of the Cuban treaty. Several speeches were made in opposition to the treaty and one in favor of it and then promptly at the hour agreed, 3 o'clock, voting began. Roll calls were had on a number of amendments and the treaty itself was adopted by a ballot of fifty to sixteen, somewhat more than three-fourths vote, whereas, only two-thirds vote was necessary to secure a ratification.

Fortner of Louisiana, Berry and Carmack spoke in opposition to the treaty, while Simmons of North Carolina suppported it.

On conclusion of Mr. Simmons' speech voting began. The committee on foreign relations announced through Senator Cullom, its chairman, the acceptance of two amendments in addition to those already recommended by the committee. The first of these was the amendment increasing the rate of reduction on flour, corn meal and corn imported into Cuba from the United States. Senator Nelson spoke yesterday in support of an amendment along these lines, and Senator Burton perfected the amendment. As offered it provided for a reduction of 40 per cent but the committee modified the amendment so as to provide for a reduction of 30 per cent.

The other amendment adopted by the committee was suggested by Senator Bacon, and fixed a uniform reduction of 30 per cent on American cotton and goods imported into Cuba. The only aye and no vote taken on the committee amendments was on the amendment adopted some time ago by the committee at the instance of the beet sugar republican senators providing against further treaty reduction of the duty on sugar imported into the United States for the next five years, or while the treaty remains in force. A division was called for on this amendment, and it was sustaned by a majority of 22 votes, the vote being 44 for the amendment and 22 against it, the negative votes being cast by democrats. The other committee amendments, including those accepted today, and the amendment making the approval of the entire congress necessary to render the treaty effective, then were adopted.

MRS. RATH'S BABY

Tired Mother's Touching Story of Anxiety and Suffering.

Cuticura Brings Blessed Cure to Skin Tortured Baby and Peace and Rest to Its Worn Out Mother.

It is no wonder that Mrs. Helena Rath was taken sick. Single-handed, she did all the housework and washed, cooked and mended for her husband, Hans, and their six children. After a plucky fight to keep on her feet, Mrs. Rath had to yield, and early in 1902 she took to her bed. What followed she told to a visitor, who called at her tidy home, No. 821 Tenth Ave., New York City.

"I hired a girl to mind the children and to do whatever else she could. I couldn't stay in bed long. Sick as I was, it was easier for me to crawl around than to lie and worry about my little ones. So I got up after a few days, and let the girl go. I had noticed that she had sores on her face, hands and arms, but I paid no attention to that until Charlie, my youngest, began to pick and scratch himself. He was then ten months old, and the girl had paid more attention to him than to any of the others. Charlie was fretful and cross, but as he was cutting teeth, I didn't think much of that. Even when a rash broke out on his face I wasn't frightened, because everybody knows that that is quite common with teething babies. Several of my others had it when little, and I thought nothing about it.

"But the rash on Charlie's poor little face spread to his neck, chest, and back. I had never seen anything quite like it before. The skin rose in little lumps, and matter came out. My baby's skin was hot, and how he did suffer! He wouldn't eat, and night after night I walked the floor with him, weak as I was. Often I had to stop because I felt faint and my back throbbed with pain. But the worst pain of all was to see my poor little boy burning with those nasty sores.

"I believed he had caught some disease from the girl, but some of the neighbors said he had eczema, and that is not catching, they told me. Yes, I gave him medicine, and put salves and things on him. I don't think they were all useless. Once in a while the itching seemed to let up a bit, but there was not much change for the better until a lady across the street asked me why I didn't try the Cuticura Remedies. I told her I had no faith in those things you read about in the papers. She said she didn't want me to go on faith nor even to spend any money at first. She gave me some Cuticura Ointment—I think the box was about half full—and a piece of Cuticura Soap. I followed the directions, bathing Charlie and putting that nice Ointment on the sores.

"I wouldn't have believed that my baby would have been cured by a little thing like that. Not all of a sudden, mind you. Little by little, but so surely. Charlie and I both got more peace by day, and more sleep by night. The sores sort of dried up and went away. I shall never forget one blessed night when I went to bed with Charlie beside me, as soon as I got the supper dishes out of the way and the older children undressed; when I woke up the sun was streaming in. For the first time in six months I had slept through the night without a break.

"Yes, that fat little boy by the window is Charlie, and his skin is as white as a snow flake, thanks to the Cuticura Remedies. I think everybody should know about the Soap and also the Ointment, and if it is going to help other mothers with sick babies, go ahead and publish what I have told you."

MRS. HELENA RATH.

The agonizing, itching, and burning of the skin as in eczema, the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair, and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as of pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum,—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made them the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the civilized world.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are sold throughout the civilized world. PRICES: Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. per bottle (in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), Cuticura Ointment, 50c. per box, and Cuticura Soap, 25c. per tablet. A Cure for Rheumatism.

Alhambra, Ill., March 23d.—Physicians are much puzzled over the case of Mr. F. J. Oswald of this place. Mr. Oswald suffered much with Rheumatism and was treated by doctor after doctor with the result that he got no better whatever. They seemed unable to do anything for him, and he continued to suffer till he heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Oswald began a treatment of this remedy, which very soon did for him what the doctors had failed to do and they cannot understand it.

This is the same remedy that cured Hon. Fred A. Busse, our State Treasurer, of a very severe case of Rheumatism some years ago and which has since had an unbroken record of success in curing all forms of Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble.

There seems to be no case of these painful diseases that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure promptly and permanently.

Daniels, the General Passenger Agent, who has charge of it, has the "Carnegie faculty" of getting good men around him, who know their business, and the result is that in everything the publication department of the New York Central distributes, it is "all right."—Brooklyn (N. VENEZUELAN SENSATION

CASTRO HAS RESIGNED PRESIDENCY.

Head of Venezuelan Government Suddenly Decides to Step From Power.

Caracas, March 23.—President Castro has resigned. He placed his resignation of the presidency of the republic of Venezuela in the hands of the president of congress after the presidential message.

Senor Castro handed over the exercise of the presidential functions to the president of congress.

In the ordinary course of events President Castror's term would have ended Feb. 20, 1908. He was elected president of Venezuela in February of last year for six years, beginning Feb. 20, 1902. He had been elected provisional president of Venezuela on March 30, 1901, by the constituent assembly. Senor Castro, when the presidency changed hands sometime previous to that date, had proclaimed himself president and the United States government in November, 1899, officially recognized the de facto government headed by him. The action of the constituent assembly legalized his position and vested him with the full powers of a presidential ruler to the limit of its authority. Up to that time while being generally recognized as president of Venezuela, he had in reality been simply dictator of the republic. A year later, as already stated, the Venezuelan congress ratified his election and regularly installed him as president of Venezuela for a term of six years dating from Feb. 20, 1902.

Washington, March 23.—The first intimation received by Secretary Hay of President Castro's resignation was given him by the Associated Press dispatch announcing the fact. He would not discuss the matter, however, beyond stating that the news was unexpected. Herbert W. Bowen, Venezuela's plenipotentiary here, likewise had not been informed until shown the dispatch. Until officially advised he said he would be unable to give expression to any views on the subject.

From an authoritative quarter, however, it was learned that this move on the part of President Castro has long been contemplated. Representations were made to him several months ago by the leaders of Venezuela that his resignation would have the effect of enabling the people of that country to present a solid front to the world in the matters in controversy with the several powers. The statement was made that the resignation is the result of a secret agreement with the leaders referred to that President Castro temporarily relinquish his office pending the adjustment of the matters which Minister Bowen has in hand.

It was intimated by the Associated Press informant that while President Castro nominally gives up his office, it is the intention to keep it within the family by an arrangement to make Castro's brother vice president, so that he would succeed to the presidency. It is the belief here, based on information which until now had been kept inviolate, that the present plan is to allow President Castro to remain out of office for a short time and then re-elect him at the next elections. Mr. Pulido, the Venezuelan charge d'affaires, is absent from Washington, and it was states, is now on his way to the Venezuelan capital.

Caracas, March 23.—The Venezuelan congress by a unanimous vote, has declined to accept President Castro's resignation and has passed a resolution requesting him to reconsider his decision. It is believed that President Castro will yield to this expressed desire of congress and remain in power.

Caracas, March 23.—The delegation appointed by congress called at the president's residence, Miraflores palace, and transmitted to President Castro the resolution unanimously adopted by congress refusing to accept his resignation, and requesting him to reconsider his decision. President Castro in reply declined to change his mind, but after being urged by his personal friends, he offered to present another message to congress, which he will meet on Thursday, to suggest a solution to the situation.

PEACE IN URUGUAY.

Announcement From Montevideo Indicates Close of Revolution.

Montevideo, March 23.—Peace has been signed between the Uruguayan government and the rebels.

There are general rejoicings here at the signing of peace. The peace arrangement leaves the position of the government and political parties virtually the same as before the outbreak.

Washington, March 23.—Confirmation of the termination of the revolution in Uuruguay was received by Mr. Herrera, the Uruguayan charge d'affairs in Washington. The dispatch announcing that fact contained no particulars. The termination of the revolution, however, leads Mr. Herrera to assume that the president has acceded to the demands of the "whites."

Strike Commissioners Reports.

Washington, March 19.—Judge Gray and Carroll D. Wright, president and recorder respectively of the anthracite coal strike commission, yesterday handed to Presdent Roosevelt the report of that commission. It is said the report will be made public Saturday.

DISGUISED CATARRH.

A Stealthy, Insidious, Weakening Enemy to Women—Many Thousand Women Suffer Needlessly From This Cause.

There are a multitude of women, especially housewives, and all other women obliged to be on their feet constantly, who are wretched beyond description, simply because their strength and vitality is sapped away by catarrhal discharges from the pelvic organs. These women get up in the morning tired, drag themselves through their daily duties tired, only to go to bed at night as tired as before.

Mrs. Eva Bartho, 133 East 12th Street' N. Y. City, N. Y., writes:—"I suffered for three years with what is generally known as leucorrhea, in connection with ulceration of the womb. The doctors advocated an operation which I dreaded very much, and strongly objected to go under it. Reading of the value of Peruna, I thought it best to give this well-known remedy a trial, so I bought three bottles of it at once. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am to-day in perfect health, and have not felt so well for fifteen years."—Mrs. Eva Bartho.

MRS. EVA BARTHO.

MISS LOUISE MAHON.

Miss Louise Mahon, 3 Glen Baille Street, Toronto, Ont., Can., Secretary of the King's Daughters and Secretary of Lady Maccabees writes:—"If all women knew of the benefits to be derived from taking Peruna we would have many happier and more healthful women. My health has never been too robust, and I am easily fatigued and can not stand much. About a year ago I was so run down that I had to take to my bed, and became weaker and weaker. A friend advised me to try Peruna, and I have great reason to be grateful, for in two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was perfectly well, and I now find that my health is much more robust than formerly, so that I take Peruna once or twice a month and keep well."—Louise Mahon.

Peruna is such a perfect specific for each case that when patients have once used it they can never be induced to quit it until they are permanently cured. It begins to relieve the disagreeable symptoms at once. The backache ceases, the trembling knees are strengthened, the appetite restored, the digestion made perfect, the dull headache is stopped and the weakening drains are gradually cured. These results certainly follow a course of treatment with Peruna.

Barbara Alberty, corner Seventh and Walnut streets, Appleton, Wis., writes as follows in regard to Peruna:

"For years I have suffered with backache and severe pains in the side. I doctored so much that I became discouraged. A school friend told me how very much Peruna had benefited her and I sent out for a bottle, which did more to relieve me than all the other medicine I have ever taken. I used it faithfully for two weeks and it completely cured me. I have not had any pains since, anywhere, but feel like a new woman. I am truly thankful for what Peruna has done for me."—Barbara Alberty.

Mrs. Kate Mann, 806 Bathurst Street, Toronto, Ont., Can., Vice President of the Ladies Aid Society, writes:—"I am pleased to give praise to Peruna for the blessed relief I found through its use. I suffered for years with backache and dragging down pains and often had to go to bed and stay there when I was so busy that I could illy be spared. It was therefore a simple godsend to me when Peruna was brought to my notice. Every drop seemed to give me new life, and every dose made me feel much better, and I promised myself that if I found that it cured me I would advocate it so that other suffering women should know of it. I have been in perfect health for one year, I enjoy work and pleasure because in such fine health, and no trouble seems too heavy to bear when you are in good health. Peruna has simply been a household blessing, and I never will be without it again."—Mrs. Kate Mann.

MRS. KATE MANN.

Mrs. Anna Martin, 47 Hoyt St., Brooklyn N. Y., writes:—"Peruna did so much for me that I feel it my duty to recommend it to others who may be similarly afflicted. About a year ago my health was completely broken down, had backache, dizziness and irregularities, and life seemed dark indeed. We had used Peruna in our home as a tonic, and for colds and catarrh, and I decided to try it for my trouble. In less than three months I became regular, my pains had entirely disappeared, and I am now perfectly well."—Mrs. Anna Martin.

Mrs. Wm. Hetrick, Kennard, Washington County, Neb., writes:

"I am fifty-six years old and have not felt well since the Change of Life began ten years ago. I was in misery somewhere most of the time. My back was very weak, and my flesh so tender it hurt me to lean against the back of a chair. I had pain under my shoulder-blades, in the small of back and hips. I sometimes wished myself out of this world. Had hot and cold spells, dizziness and trembling of the limbs, and was losing flesh all the time. After following your directions and taking Peruna I now feel like a different person."—Mrs. Wm. Hetrick.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Peruna can be purchased for $1 per bottle at all first class drug stores.

Sad Indeed.

Last Thursday at Garner occurred one of the saddest accidents which we have heard of in a long time. Mrs. Geo. L. Wellemeyer, with whom many of our citizens are acquainted, she having lived here, was the victim of this terrible accident, and her life was the penalty. In taking a gun out of a barrel, in some manner the trigger caught and it went off, the entire charge—and the gun was loaded with duck shot—struck her in the left thigh. No one was near when the accident occurred and before help arrived she was too weak from loss of blood, to speak. Mr. wellemeyer was not at home at the time and did not arrive until three hours after her spirit had taken its heaven ward flight. All the relatives of Mrs. wellmeyer have the profound sympathy of all, but those who need this sympathy more than husband, parents, brothers and sisters are the three little ones who have been robbed of a mother's love and tender care. The little ones will be well cared for, no doubt. but that mother's love shall never again be felt by them, for the power to bestow that was buried with their mother in Evergreen Cemetery, in Garner, last Sunday.

"Beau" the Cocker Spaniel dog belonging to M. H. Crissman has been missing since Sunday night. It is feared that Beau has got hold of some poison, and is now dead. Surely no one would intentionally poison this dog as he was a favorite with everybody and was not in the same class with the worthless "curs" that roam the streets of every town. Mr. Crissman was very fond of this dog, and regrets very much to lose him. It may be that the dog was stolen but the poison theory is favored for the reason that it is known that the dog was sick on Sunday evening. People should be very careful about leaving poison around for no telling what the result of such carelessness will be.

W. R. Bloom and Aug Lau went to Des Moines on Wednesday to be in attendance on the grain men and farmers meeting which will be held there the latter part of the week. Our grain buyers are wide awake business men and ever on the alert to absorb more knowledge of the grain business. That they are already well versed in the grain dealing business is evidenced by the fact that they pay more for grain than any buyers in surrounding towns and yet prosper. Prof. Holden of the State Agricultural College, of Ames, will deliver a lecture to the gathering. We did not learn whether or no any of our farmers attended.

A party of thirteen arrived here from Germany on Monday. We have been unable to learn the names of our new citizens. They are at present making their home with Thos. Blank, but will soon move into the property recently vacated by Mr. Clumfoot. No more thrifty people or better citizens are abroad in our land today than those whose home was at one time in the "fatherland." They are welcome to their share of the blessings of our land, and we wish them all the success which their sturdy, honest nature entitles them to.

CZAR TO NAME COURT.

Minister Bowen Names Him in Draft of Protocol.

Washington, March 30.—Minister Bowen hopes to begin work during the present week with the diplomatic representatives of the Venezuelan blockading powers on the protocol for sending to The Hazue arbitration tribunal the question whether these nations shall have preferential treatment in the payment of the claims of their citizens against Venezuela. Mr. Bowen therefore has submitted to the British ambassador the draft of the protocol for the purpose stated, a notable feature of which is that the czar of Russia shall name the members of the court. It is known that the allies intend to offer some amendments to the terms offered by Venezuela's representative, but their nature has not been made known, although one of them is believed to be regarding the proposition relative to the czar, as there is thought to be some objection on their part to that monarch assuming the function of naming the members of the court. Mr. Bowen is anxious to have the work completed as soon as possible and will urge this on the allies' representatives.

According to the terms of the protocol of February 13 the first payment of 30 per cent of the customs receipts of La Guaira and Porto Cabello for the month of March are to be paid to the representative of the Bank of England at Caracas on the 1st of April. This will form the nucleus of the fund with which is to be paid the claims of the various nations that are adjudicated by the mixed commission which is to sit at Caracas.

RECIPROCITY NOT WANTED.

President Discouraged and Will Submit No More Treaties to Senate.

Washington, March 27.—The announcement in the Jamaica legislature regarding the failure of the reciprocity treaty with the United States is but a forerunner of what may be expected in the case of all agreements of a similar character which failed to secure action by the United States senate. It was evident from the attitude of that body that the members were opposed to the reciprocity idea as outlined in the reciprocity treaties that were sent to it by the president and all efforts along that line have been abandoned by the administration.

None of the rejected treaties, among which is that with the French republic, it is authoritatively stated, are to be again submitted to the senate in December next, and because of the attitude of the senate the president is discouraging the formation of new treaties. Sugar formed an important item of reciprocal exchange in some of the treaties, notably those in the West Indies, and so far as that article of import is concerned the administration is stopped from agreeing to any reduction of duty by reason of the terms of the Cuban reciprocity agreement, which specifically provides that no sugar produced by any country other than Cuba shall be admitted into the United States by treaty or convention while the Cuban treaty is in force at a lower rate of duty than is imposed by existing law.

WITHDRAWS RESIGNATION.

Castro Bows Before Desire of Congress and Takes up Burden.

Caracas March 26.—After reading his special message to congress General Castro withdrew his resignation of the presidency of Venezuela.

In a special message delivered to congress President Castro, after passing in review the other difficulties in the way of the government, says he saw how his intentions were misrepresented, and he was disheartened and at that moment resigned.

"Notwithstanding those reasons which were weighty to my mind," he continues, "congress does not accept my resignation and insists that I should continue, that I should not persist therein, but considers me still useful in the government. I bow before its desire, and resign myself to the new obligations imposed by my country, but only until the work of pacifying the nation shall be complete and order re-established in the public offices of the republic. I hope the future will prove you right. Accept an expression of my supreme thanks for the generous demonstration of which you have made me the object."

BREAKS ANTARCTIC RECORD.

The Discovery Surely Locates a Vast Continent.

London, March 27.—President Markham of the Royal Geographical survey, commenting upon the achievements of the British Antarctic ship Discovery, says it has been proved conclusively that the greater part of the Antarctic region is a vast continent. Captain Scott, the commander of the Discovery, penetrated 100 miles further south than any previous explorer and discovered an extensive mountainous region, hitherto absolutely unknown, extending to 83.20 south. He thinks this indicates that the land stretches to the pole in a series of very lofty mountains, which is considered to be far the most important geographic result ever achieved in Antarctic exploration. The Discovery wintered 400 miles further south than any vessel had previously wintered.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

Two hundred employes of the Iroquois pearl button factory at Dubuque walked out when the superintendent

Miss Marie Glessner, a young lady living near Cedar Falls, is suffering from a dislocated lower jaw. The member was thrown out of its natural position while the young lady was yawning. It will be several days before she can use the jaw as freely as before.

The First National bank of Manson, of which George A. Griswold was vice president, has wired the authorities at Santa Monica, Cal., that it will donate $2,500 additional to the reward fund offered for the arrest and conviction of the highwaymen who held up a car and murdered Colonel Griswold and wounded three others. The amount subscribed is now $9,600.

Judge P. B. Wolfe of Davenport rendered an important decision in the case of the German Trust company vs. The Board of Review. He decided that the Trust company is assessable for both city and county taxes on securities worth $636,650, which it holds as agent. It is the first case of this kind brought up in Iowa, and will be carried to the supreme court.

The body of H. C. Hayes, who disappeared mysteriously from Fort Dodge recently, was found by searchers in a wooded gully a mile from town. He had committed suicide by drinking wood alcohol. Two years ago, Hayes lost an arm in a corn shredder. His suicide was caused by despondency over his inability to properly support a large family in his crippled condition. The searching parties had looked for him day and night for three days.

The Arlington hotel at West Union was entirely destroyed by fire a few days ago and four persons were injured, one of whom may die. The injured: Mrs. McClintock, a guest, both legs broken, arms and hands burned, may die; Julius Oleson, cook, right leg broken and body badly burned; Bertha Oleson, severely burned about arms; Jack Conlin, a guest, hands burned. The first was first discovered in the basement and spread so rapidly that the firemen were unable to check its progress. The financial loss is estimated at $13,000.

A mysterious attempt to murder Roy Kellogg, son of E. . Kellogg, living about two miles from Morton, occurred a few days ago. Young Kellogg went to the barn at an early hour to do the morning chores. As he entered the stable an unknown man jumped from the manger and as he did so fired a shot from a revolver, the bullet taking off the end of Kellogg's finger. He made a vicious lunge at the boy and knocked him over, gave him a couple of kicks in the stomach and then disappeared. When the boy recovered his senses he returned to the house and was taken to town, where a surgeon dressed the wound. The case has another peculiar feature. About a month ago the same boy found a strange man in the barn. A horse had been harnessed and the fellow was evidently preparing to make his escape with the animal. Kellogg could not give a good description of the man as it was quite dark in the barn.

The state executive council at a recent meeting, considered letters from several of the county auditors in reference to the request recently sent out by the council asking the county auditors of each county to prepare an abstract of the real estate transfers for the last half of 1902. Letters from the auditors of Mills and Clayton counties took the position that the transfers made the first half of year were the more representative and that the transfers the lasthalf of the year were generally of the cheaper lands. It was recommended the council call for reports on the transfers of the entire year. It was finally decided this should be done, and Secretary Davison will at once send letters to the auditors advising them of the decision of the council. It is the feeling of the council that if the more representative transfers were made in the first half of the year in a few counties, the same is true in all of them and that on the whole data on the transfers for the full year of 1902 will be more satisfactory.

An increase of nearly $2,500,000 in the deposits of the state and savings banks of Iowa in the period between February 6 of this year, the date of the last preceding call, is shown by the bank statement just issued from the office of Auditor of State Carroll. In other respects, a healthy and sound condition of things in the Iowa banking world is shown. The comparative part of the statement, showing the condition of state and savings banks since 1891, shows that at the time of the last bank call there were more state and savings banks in Iowa than ever before, more on deposit with the exception of two dates in 1902 than at any time in the history of the state, greater capitalization, and with the exception of September 15, 1902, and June 18, 1902, greater liabilities. On these two dates the deposits were from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 higher than at the time of the last call. The number of state and savings banks February 6 of this year was 564, of which 327 were savings and 237 state. At the last preceding call, December 8, 1902, there were 556 banks in the state.

Robert Wilson, a blacksmith of Iowa Falls, was seriously if not fatally injured while shoeing a horse. The animal made a lunge, and Wilson losing his balance, was thrown under the horse, which stepped on his head and back, fracturing the man's skull and injuring his back. He was taken to Ellsworth hospital, where an operation was performed on his skul. If no complications arise he may recover.

The opposition to the ten months school movement decided upon by the West Des Moines school board has taken definite shape and a petition is being circulated to be presented to the board of education at its next meeting. The petition is being quite generally signed. Those opposed to the lengthening of the school year are claiming that another month is too much to place upon the children and that the strain is already too great for the boys and girls. Some of the teachers also claim that nine months is enough to tire the strongest constitution. Those connected with the schools say that the matter is not an experiment and that the lengthening of the year is partly for the purpose of giving the children more time to do the same amount of work so that the strain will not be so great.

S. H. Mallory, Lucas county's wealthiest and most prominent and useful citizen, died at Ilion, his home, just north of Chariton, on the 25th. The cause of his death was pernicious, progressive anaemia. He had been a sufferer from this fatal disease for more than a year and had been confined to the house for the last seven weeks. He was 68 years old. S. H. Mallory was the president of the First National bank of Chariton and one of the prominent bankers of the state. He was for years connected with the building of the Burlington railroad. He was a member of the Iowa board of centennial managers and in 1893 was one of the Iowa directors at the world's fair. He was an active member and high in the councils of the Episcopal church. In 1877 he was elected to the state legislature.

The beauty of pretty and vivacious Lieutenant Bertie Faulk of the Sioux City Rescue mission is sadly marred. Across the oval forehead of the charming rescue worker is a deep red scar, where a bullet traced its course as fired by Mrs. Frank Ball of Sioux City. Mrs. Ball claims the lieutenant has been robbing her of the affections of her husband. Lieutenant Bertie explains she was trying to save his soul and that if Mrs. Ball had been a Christian woman the husband would not have sought religious consolation from the Salvation Army lassie. Mrs. Ball found the lieutenant and her husband together. She went out and got a revolver. Returning, she fired through the partition and the bullet grazed the forehead of the rescue worker. The husband has gone to Omaha. No arrests have followed.

The contract for the addition to the agricultural hall, the stock judging pavilion and the new green house at Ames college, was awarded to C. E. Atkinson, of Webster City, at $53,752, by the building committee of the board of trustees of the Iowa State college. The original bid made by Atkinson on the three buildings was by over $5,000 in excess of the above amount, but by slight modifications of the plans the committee was enabled to obtain a bid at the desired low figures. The addition to the agricultural hall will be 60 by 100 feet and two and a half stories high, to be built of pressed brick, with a slate roof. It will be devoted chiefly to the interests of farm mechanics, a new addition to the curriculum of the agricultural department, and will contain a class room, drafting room, wood shop, offices and two machine operating rooms. The new green house will be 36x82, divided into three compartments for the agronomy, soil work and horticultural departments.

At a recent meeting of the Des Moines Commercial exchange to discuss the freight rate situation speeches were made by former Lieutenant Governor Frank T. Campbell, Judge S. F. Prouty, Victor A. Roberts, George H. Lewis and W. S. Kellar. Judge Prouty introduced a resolution suggesting a continuance of the agitation and the employment of a commission to represent Des Moines interests in the matter of freight rate adjustments. This resolution was adopted without opposition. The speakers contended that the Elkins law was designed to help the railroads and not the shippers, and the prediction was made that it would have a very serious effect on Des Moines jobbing and manufacturing interests and on the small railroads. It was defined as a law to prevent competition among the railroads, which, coupled with the non-existence of a valid joint rate law in Iowa and the absolute power of railroads to fix their own interstate rates, will entirely destroy all rate competition among railroads in Iowa. It was suggested that the only hope of Des Moines shippers to gain reasonable treatment, under the Elkins law, is to combine and offer all business to the road which will make the best open rate terms, giving a contract for all business for a period of years. This system has been tried with good effect by some large shippers and wide awake communities.

ELECTRIC LINE ACROSS IOWA.

Projected Union of Three Existing Interurban Systems.

Des Moines, March 30.—An interurban electric trolley line uniting Chicgo, Joliet, Rock Island, Davenport, Iowa City, Newton, Des Moines, Winterset, Creston and Omaha is projected by the union of Joliet, Davenport, Des Moines and Omaha electric railroad interests.

Layman Waterman of Omaha, who has projected an electric line from that city to Des Moines, was the guest last week of the Des Moines officials of the local interurban and street car lines.

President J. S. Polk of the local street car interests, spent a part of the week in Davenport.

H. H. Polk, president of the interurban electric line, says two or three parties of surveyors are at work for the Des Moines company, but that it is not ready to announce its plans for the extensions of this year, at this time, as they have not been fully determined.

No announcement of the project of connecting Chicago and Omaha by an electric railroad of which the Des Moines system will be a link, is authorized by the officers of the company here. The belief that the project is under way is generally entertained.

General Manager Hippee says the story that Mr. Polk was in Davenport on this project is not correct. It is true, he said, that President Polk was at Davenport but was not there on business connected with the projected Omaha-Chicago line.

Mr. Hippee said it was true that Mr. Watterman was in the city last week and was confident that his scheme of building a line by way of Creston to Winterset, there to connect with the Des Moines line, or his more pretentious scheme of building a line from Omaha into Des Moines will go through.

Asked about the Chicago-Omaha project, Mr. Hippee said that it would first be necessary to get a line between Des Moines and Omaha, as he viewed the situation at this time.

Mr. Waterman is known to represent the Omaha electric railway interests and the line which he has projected from Omaha to Creston and other Iowa points has been described repeatedly. His company also recently acquired the rights of the Des Moines and Southern Electric company, which was organized at Mt Ayr, and planned to build a line into Des Moines and as far as Creston, toward the west, on the understanding that an Omaha line would be built to meet it there.

The Des Moines interurban has been projected as far as Winterset, and there has been talk of going to Greenfield. On the east the line is built to Colfax, and is projected as far as Newton.

The Davenport people have been looking toward the west for some time, and have thought of building to Iowa City, at least, to connect there with the line which Colonel Dows and others of Cedar Rapids will build from Cedar Rapids to Iowa City within a year.

Already one of the finest interurban lines in the country is in operation between Elgin and other adjacent Illinois towns, and it has been so successful that it has been looking about for desirable extentions and for other electric connections.

It is understood that Governor Cummins will meet President Roosevelt and his party at the borders of the state and accompany the party across Iowa, and that the governor will not leave the party until the president starts for St. Louis. Governor Cummins has been invited specially to Keokuk April 23, and will probably go there.

The gratifying news comes from the bedside of Harry Pattee of Perry that he is much improved. He takes some nourishment now and is gaining strength, and is himself more hopeful of recovery. His friends have taken fresh hope. The pus which had accumulated in the lung cavity was evidently the chief obstacle in the way of his recovevry. At any rate, he is improving since the recent operation.

James Cooper, a teamster, was killed by No. 4, the eastbound passenger at Stuart. He started to cross the track whhen the train was only a few feet from him. The engine struck him and carried him quite a distance on the pilot. He was thrown against a switch and his head and face badly bruised and cut. He lived about ten minutes after he was struck. Mr. Cooper was about 65 years old. He leaves a wife and three grown children.

Settlements have been made with the widows of Charles Bradfield and John Matthews, who were killed by the explosion of the acetylene gas tank at Mapleton last winter. The Western Construction company of Sioux City has paid the women $750 each as a partial recompense for the loss of life occasioned by the explosion. Full settlement has been made by the company for other damages sustained at the time by property owners, which aggregated the sum of $475.

Fireman Roy Evans, of Marion, was instantly killed at Cedar Rapids. The accident occurred on the Milwaukee tracks opposite the Magnus company's brewery. Mr. Evans was making his way to his home at Marion on a freight, and as the train was leaving the city he determined to walk from the caboose to the engine over the cars. In attempting to jump from the top of a box car to a coal car ahead, he missed his footing and fell beneath the wheels.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, March 30, 1903.

Efforts are being made to have a record kept of all the reports which are printed by county auditors in accordance with the new law which requires that a complete financial statement of the year's transactions shall be printed in pamphlet form each year. The fact is developed that only a few of the county auditors have complied with the law, and the further fact has been made known that this refusal is in accordance with a secret understanding arrived at by the members of the boards of supervisors of the various counties that they would refuse to comply with the law. The facts will be secured and laid before the next legislature. The supervisors at their state meeting decided they would try to secure the repeal of the law.

Frank Novak will make an effort to secure a pardon or parole from the Anamosa penitentiary. He is serving a life sentence for the murder of Edward Murray at Walford. He was found guilty of having robbed and murdered Murray and then burned the body in his store which he fired. The case was a sensational one in many respects. Novak disappeared after the tragedy and was tracked to Alaska and brought back.

Professor Thomas Nicholson of Mount Vernon, who has been named by Superintendent Barrett as chairman of the committee of the educational council of the State Teachers' association, having in charge the topic of teachers' compensation, has worked out a plan for the investigation of this topic, which promises to result in arousing the greatest interest on the subject of teachers' wages, the pensioning of teachers, better support for the schools, and like subjects. Professor Nicholson is sending out a letter to members of the committee of the council in which he urges that in the first place the topic should be taken up, handled vigorously and disposed of in one year, instead of being dragged along for three years, as has been the custom. He urges, too, that the topic is of sufficient breadth to employ the energies of all the 21 members of the committee, and that the chairman should not be compelled to do the major part of the work. He then outlines his plan for securing complete data on the subject of salaries of teachers. He says tables should be secured making comparisons with the wages of teachers in other states, England and Canada. He says the average term of service of superintendents and principals should be obtained, and an inquiry should be made "why strong men like Cooper, Warner, Sessions, Willard and others leave the state or leave the profession." It is suggested that an investigation should be made to bring out a comparison of teachers' salaries with the wages paid skilled mechanics, clerks, lawyers, doctors and ministers. Inquiry, he says, should ing of the teacher here as compared also be made as to the social standing with other countries.

Advices received by the officers of the State Federation of Labor are to the effect that the boilermakers of the state are prepared to attend the next convention of the State Federation of Labor in strong force. They will urge on the federation the necessity for a competent boiler inspection law, and will probably bring before the federation the copy of a law which they wish enacted. This, it is expected, will be patterned after the New York law, or the laws of one of two other states that carry on boiler inspection successfully. The co-operation of the federation in carrying on the campaign in the legislature and getting the bill passed will be sought.

The bank of Irwin, correspondent of the Des Moines National, has won in a notable action against the American Express company, tried at Harlan, Shelby county. The controversy was over the $2,000 in currency stolen in transit between the Des Moines National bank and the bank at Irwin last fall, and the Bank of Irwin has obtained a judgment against the express company for the amount, with interest and costs. October 20 of last year the bank of Irwin ordered $2,000 in currency of the Des Moines National bank. The currency was at once prepared for shipment by the bank here and delivered to the American Express company for conveyance to Irwin. When the package supposed to contain the money reached the bank of Irwin, the clerk in charge of the bank opened it and found it contained nothing but brown paper. The attention of the agent of the express company at Irwin was called to the condition of the package, and detectives of the express company at once began an investigation. The officers, after looking into the matter, charged that the package had contained brown paper from the first, that is to say that the Des Moines National bank had put brown paper into the package instead of currency. The bank of Irwin asked the Des Moines National bank to make the loss good. As the currency before delivery to the American Express company had been handled by but two persons, President Arthur Reynolds and Cashier A. J. Zwart, the officers of the Des Moines bank, were satisfied the money had been taken after it left the bank here. The bank of Irwin was informed that the money had been duly shipped and charged to the Irwin institution, and that the only recourse for the bank of Irwin was to sue the express company.

Some men know just enough to make fools of themselves.

THE LION'S WHELP

A Story of Cromwell's Time

CHAPTER I

Swaffham and De Wick.

During the seventeenth century Swaffham Manor House was one of the most picturesque dwellings in Cambridgeshire. It was so old that it had a sort of personality. It was the history of the Swaffham family in stone and timber.

The central tower—built of the white stone of the neighborhood—was the fortress which Tonbert Swaffham erected A. D. 870, to defend his lands from an invasion of the Danes; and five generations of Tonbert's descendants dwelt in that tower, before William of Normandy took possession of the crown of England. The Swaffham of that date became a friend of the Conqueror; and the Manor House had the singular fortune to be identified with the stirring events of every dynasty.

In the middle of the seventeenth century it still retained this character. Puritan councils of offense and defense had been held in its great hall, and parliamentary soldiers drilled in its meadows. For Capt. Israel Swaffham was the friend of Gen. Cromwell, and at the time this story opens was with Cromwell in Scotland.

A great fighter, he had no parliamentary talent, and no respect for parliaments. He believed England's religious and civil liberties were to be saved by the sword, and when the King's fast-and-loose proposals had been discussed by the men of Cambridgeshire, in Swaffham, he had closed the argument with this passionate declaration:

"There is no longer disputing with such a double mind as the mind of Charles Stuart. The very oath of God would not bind him. Out, instantly, all of you who can!"

His three sons rose at his words and the rest of the council followed, for all felt that the work was but half done—there was to be a Second Civil War. Then home was again deserted for the battlefield, and Capt. Swaffham's wife and daughter were once more left alone in the old Manor House.

Mrs. Swaffham was the child of a Puritan minister, and she had strong principles, but there were hours when she had pitied the late king, excused his inexcusable treacheries, and regretted the pomps and ceremonies of royal state.

Jane Swaffham was of a different spirit. She had a soul of the highest mettle; and she had listened to those English mystics, who came out of the steel ranks or triumphant Puritanism, until she had caught their spirit and been filled through and through with their faith.

This was the maiden who was sitting, one sunny afternoon, at the open window of the household parlor in Swaffham. She was thinking of her father and brothers, of the unhappy condition of England, and of the unrest in their own household. For she knew that her mother was worried about many things, and the fret that was bred in the kitchen and the farm offices—in spite of all her efforts—insinuated itself into the still order of the handsome room in which she was sitting.

At this moment there was the sound of wheels and the tramp of horses, and Jane said, "It is Matilda de Wick. I know the roll of the carriage." Then Jane lifted her sewing, and the wheel began to hum, and the door opened swiftly and Matilda de Wick entered.

"I have just been at Ely," she said, "and if I live seven-and-fifty years longer in this sinful world, I shall not forget the visit. I have been visiting Lady Heneage, and I have heard so much of the Cromwell's full cup that, in faith, I think it has gone to my head."

"I trust Lady Heneage is well," said Mrs. Swaffham.

"She had need to be well. Her house is as full as the ark. Mrs. Elizabeth Hampden is there, and daughter Flambord, and daughter Clayton, and all their children and retainers. It is their last gathering before they go away. Do you wish to know where they are going? To London, of Course."

"And they are going to London? Is it really so?" asked Jane.

"'Tis not very civil to doubt it. But that is not all of my news—I heard also that Jane Swaffham was going to London—a thing I would not believe without Jane's assurance."

"It is very uncertain," replied Mrs. Swaffham. "Jane has an invitation from Mary Cromwell, and if Doctor Verity comes here soon, he may find the time to take her to London with him. We know not assuredly, as yet."

"Jane must move mountains to go. The Cromwells are now living in the stately Cockpit. They will hold court there, and Jane Swaffham will be of it."

"I am sure of one thing," answered Jane. "Public honors please not Gen. Cromwell. He would thank God to escape them."

"I do not say that the wish to see him honored is universal," continued Matilda. "Father Sacy thinks there are a few thousand men still living in England who have not bowed the knee to this Baal."

"Children! Children! can you find nothing more lovely to talk about? Matilda, you know that you are baiting Jane's temper only that you may see her lose it."

Then Matilda laughed, and stooping to her friend, kissed her and said, "Come, little Jane, I will ask your pardon. Kiss and be friends, Jane. I came to get your receipt for lavender conserves, and this is nothing to it. Come, let us go to the still-room." She spoke with an unconscious air of authority, and Jane as unconsciously obeyed it, but there was a coldness in her manner which did not disappear until the royalist lady had talked with her for half an hour about the spices and the distilled waters.

When the electuary had been prepared, the girls became silent. They were as remarkably contrasted as were the tenets, religious and civil, for which they stood. But if mere physical ascendency could have dominated Jane Swaffham, she was in its presence. Yet it was not Matilda, but Jane, who filled the cool, sweet place with a sense of power not to be disputed. Her pale hair was full of light and life; it seemed to shine in its waving order and crown-like coil. Her eyes had a steady glow in their depths that was invincible; her slight form was proudly poised; her whole manner resolute and a little cold, as of one who was putting down an offense only half-forgiven.

Matilda was conscious of Jane's influence, and she called all her own charms forth to rival it. Putting out of account her beautiful face and stately figure as not likely to affect Jane, she assumed the manner she had never known to fail—a manner half-serious and wholly affectionate and confidential. She knew that Swaffham was always a safe subject, and that a conversation set to that key went directly to Jane's heart. So turning slowly round to observe everything, she said,

"How cool and sweet is this place, Jane!"

"It is, Matilda. I often think that one might receive angels among these pure scents."

"Oh, I vow it is the rosemary! Let me put my hands through it," and she hastily pulled off her white embroidered gloves, and passed her hands, shining with gems, through the deliciously fragrant green leaves.

"I have a passion for rosemary," she continued. "It always perfigures good fortune to me. Sometimes if I wake in the night I smell it—I smell miles of it—and then I know my angel has been to see me, and that some good thing will tread in her footsteps."

Then she said with an attempt at indifference, "When did you hear from Cymlin? And pray in what place must I remember him now?"

"I know not particularly. Wherever the Captain-General is, there Cymlin Swaffham is like to be."

"Why do you not ask after Stephen's fortune—good or bad?"

"I did not at the moment think of Stephen. When Cromwell is in the mind 'tis impossible to find him fit company. It is he, and he only."

"Yet if ever Stephen de Wick gets a glimpse of home, it is not home to him until he has been at Swaffham."

Jane made no answer, and they walked silently to the door where Matilda's carriage was waiting. Mrs. Swaffham joined them as Matilda was about to leave, and the girl said, "I had come near to forgetting something I wished to tell you. One of those men called Quakers was preaching his new religion at Squire Oliver Leder's last night. There was much disputing about him to-day."

"What said Lady Heneage of the preacher?" asked Mrs. Swaffham.

"She thought he ought to be put in the stocks; and her sister Isabel said that he was a good man, and had the root of the matter in him. I heard that he was to preach again at Deeping Den. Now, I must make what haste I can; my father will be angry at my delay. Good-bye! faithful till we meet again."

"She says 'faithful,' yet knows not how to be faithful."

"She is much changed."

"It would be strange indeed if she was not changed. Before these troubles she was a girl living at her mother's knee, petted by her father, and the idol of her brothers. Two of her brothers fell fighting by the side of Prince Rupert, her mother wept herself into the grace for them, her father is still nursing the wound he got at Naseby, and her only brother, Stephen, is with Charles Stuart, wherever he may be. If such troubles did not change a girl, she would be hewn from the very rock of selfishness."

On her way home Matilda sat erect, lost in thought, and her eyes had a look in them full of anxiety and sorrow. The sadness of an immense disillusion was over her. Her life had gone to ruin, but she trusted that some miracle would restore it. All her old friends had departed. The grave had some; others had taken different ways, or battle and exile had scattered them. By the side of her sick father she stood alone. Oppressed by such considerations, she felt like a child that suddenly realizes it has lost its way and is left alone in a wilderness.

Nothing in her surroundings offered her any help. The road was flat and dreary; a wide level intersected with deep drains and "droves"—a poor rough, moist land, whose horizon was only broken by the towers of Ely, vast and gray in the distance. Large iron gates admitted her to de Wick park. The house was a quadrangular building of various dates, and gray walls rising from trim gardens with box edged flower plots and clipped yew hedges. An old-world sleepy air, lonely and apart and full of melancholy, pervaded the place.

The door stood open, and she passed without delay into the wide entrance hall, and went leisurely up the broad stairway. Her hat, with its moist drooping feathers, was in her hand; her hair hung limply about her brow and face; she was the very picture of a beauty that had suffered the touch of adverse nature, and the depression of unsympathetic humanity.

But the moment she entered her own room she had the sense of covert and refreshment. She put off her sense of alienation and unhappiness with her damp clothing, and as the comfort of renewal came to her outwardly, the inner woman also regained her authority; and the girl conscious of this potent personality, erected herself in its strength and individuality. She surveyed her freshly clad form in its gown of blue lutestring; she turned right and left to admire a fresh arrangement of her hair; she put around her neck, without pretense of secrecy or apology, the rosary of coral and gold; and admired the tint and shimmer of its beauty on her white throat. Then she asked—

"Was any stranger with the Earl at dinner, Delia?"

"My lady, he dined with Father Sacy alone."

"And pray what did they eat for dinner?"

"There was a sucking pig roasted with juniper wood and rosemary branches, and a jugged hare, and a pullet, and some clotted cream and a raspberry tart. All very good, my lady; will you please to eat something?"

"Yes. I will have some jugged hare, and some clotted cream, and a raspberry tart—and a glass of Sapnish wine, Delia, and a pitcher of new milk. Have them served as soon as possible."

She took one comfortable glance at herself, and in the pleasure of its assurance went down-stairs. Her step was now firm and rapid, yet she paused a moment at the door of the room she wished to enter, and called up smiles to her face and a sort of cheerful bravado to her manner ere she lifted the steel hasp that admitted her. In a moment her quick eyes took a survey of its occupants. They were only two men—Earl de Wick, and his chaplain, Father Sacy. Both were reading; the Earl, Sir Philip Sidney's "Arcadia"; the chaplain, the evening service in the book of common prayer. Neither of them noticed her entrance, and she went straight to her father's side, and covering the open page with her hand, said in a merry tone—

"Here is a noble dwelling in Arcadia, while the great Captain-General Cromwell——"

"The devil!"

"Is going up and down and to and fro in the land, seeking whom he may devour. I have been at Ely and at Swaffham, gathering what news I can, and I assure you, sir, there is none to our comfort."

"What have you heard? Anything about the Scots?"

"Cromwell is in Scotland. What do you expect from that news?"

"That Leslie will be his match."

"Then you will be disappointed 'There is a tide in the affairs of men, and this tide of Cromwell and the Commonwealth is going to sweep all royalty and all nobility into the deep sea."

"Well, then, I may as well return to my 'Arcadia' and learn how to be rustical. We nobles may play at Canute if we like—but——"

"It is useless, while this man's star flames in the firmament. If he conquers the Scotch army, what more can they offer him but the crown?"

It is related that at an informal dinner at which several friends of Embassador Choate were present, one asked him: "If you were dead and could come back to this world in another body, who would you prefer to come as?" Without a moment's hesitation the gallant ambassador retorted: "As Mrs. Choate's second husband."

It is well known that the venerable actor, Joe Jefferson, is a warm friend of ex-President Cleveland, and frequently accompanies him on fishing expeditions. One day E. H. Sothern, while playing at a theater in Washington, D. C., called at the white house to see President Cleveland. "As I entered the grounds," says Mr. Sothern, "I met Jefferson coming from the white house. I said to him, 'Well, so you have been looking for a position.' 'Oh, no, Sothern, I have only been calling to arrange for a fishing excursion. I am too modest to ask for any position,' he replied. 'Never mind,' said I, 'I am going in and will do my best for you. I will ask Mr. Cleveland to send you to Marblehead as ambassador.' Quick as a flash Jefferson replied: 'Don't do it, Sothern; that is a foreign country, and I don't speak the language.'"

One Answer for All.

Lancaster, N. Y., March 30th.—Postmaster Remers is still in receipt of many letters asking if his cure has old good.

It will be remembered that some time ago the particulars of Mr. Remers' case were published in these columns. He had been very low with Diabetes. Physicians could do nothing to save him and he grew worse and worse till someone recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills. A treatment of this remedy was begun and when eight boxes had been taken Mr. Remers began to see an improvement, which continued as the treatment proceeded till he was completely restored.

He has since enjoyed perfect health and is as robust and able a man as any in Lancaster. Interviewed the other day he said:

"Many people wrote to me when the story of my case was first printed and some write to me yet asking if the cure was only temporary and if the diabetes has returned. I have only one answer to everybody. Three years ago I was very low with diabetes. The best physicans failed to help me and Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me. I am well and strong and have not had the slightest return of the old trouble."

City Election.

Monday was election day and everything passed off smoothly. The struggle between the various candidates was friendly, and no bad feeling will result from this election. A large vote was poled and almost everybody who is a voter here was on deck and cast his vote for his favorite candidate. The ticket as elected is as follows: E. P. Dow, Mayor; J. E. Tierney, Clerk; E. M Fuller, Assessor; Fred Henschen, Treasurer, Geo. Nissen and Wm. Koerner, councilman for full term, and J. P. Larson, councilman to fill vacancy.

The defeated candidates have no reason to feel bad over their defeat, as the vote was quite close on most of the offices. The newly elected officers are men of good business ability and the affairs of our city will be in the future, as they have been in the past, safely guided. This same would have been true had the defeated candidates been successful. The nominees on both tickets were good men. The newly elected officers will take the oath of office on Monday of next week.

The five mill tax for water works carried by a vote of 51 to 26. This insures Klemme a water system in the near future. The money thus derived does not amount to a great deal, but is sufficient to lay a foundation upon which to build a system second to none. The property owners of our town acted wisely in voting this measure through.

The matter of granting a franchise to Koerner Bros. & Co. to operate and maintain a telephone system here also carried. The vote on this proposition standing 51 for, to 28 against. The franchise is for 20 years.

It is gratifying to learn that no hard feeling exists between the various candidates and now that the excitement of election is over let it be gone, and, united, work for the best interests of Klemme.

The delegates to the county convention M. W. A at Britt returned Wednesday evening and were loud in their praise of the Britt Woodmen, who entertained and banqueted the boys. Wm Fuller was chosen as delegate and M. Elder as alternate to the State Convention at Des Moines.

Forty of our young people attended the Epworth Lergue social meeting at Dr. Spooner's home on Friday evening. Several new members were taken in and on the whole the evening was a grand success. The league appointed a committe to buy a table which will be used in their meetings. Mrs. Geo. Nissen was chosen as Junior League superintendent.

We are glad to learn that the Britt Court House Committee has came to realize what good advertising medium some of the "small sheets in remote part of the county" are, and saw fit to take out a considerable space in the Kanawha Record last week for which space we warrant they paid well. The Record is well to the front among our county papers but the Britt News a few weeks ago classed it among the "small sheets published in remote parts of the county." It pays to advertise if you do exactly as you say you will in your advertisement, but will it pay Britt?

THE BEST WAY TO TEACH HISTORY.

The idea of object teaching, the foundation of the Froebel system of instruction, has in recent years met with general acceptance and adoption in almost every branch of education, high and low, with resultant benefits which are beyond question. Even such subjects as grammar and arithmetic are now taught in this way so far as practicable, and with marked advantage over the old dry and abstract methods. The practice of teaching history by making pilgrimages to the very scenes where great historical events have occurred is an application of the same principle and much more valuable in the way of impressing the reality of history upon the minds of the young than any amount of mere text-book instruction could be. A recent issue of the "Four-Track Series," published by the New York Central management, gives a description of the historical sites in the immediate vicinity of New York, which will be of exceeding value for the guidance of teachers and others who desire to adopt this method of historical study. One of the best ways to develop civic pride and promote good citizenship lies in this very direction, an increase of knowledge of local history being accompanied with an increase of interest in matters of local government and a higher concern for what affects the welfare and good name of the community.—From Leslie's Weekly.

When Your Grocer Says

he does not have Defiance Starch, you may be sure he is afraid to keep it until his stock of 12 oz. packages are sold. Defiance Starch is not only better than any other Cold Water Starch, but contains 16 oz. to the package and sells for same money as 12 oz. brands.

An amusing instance of a minister stumbling on a text of a humorous personal application is that related of a widower, who had remarried within a year after his first wife's death. His friends and congregation thought Sunday, when his text was announced Sunday, when his text was announced, they could scarcely control themselves. He rose in his place in his pulpit and said: "My beloved brethren! You will find my text in the seventeenth verse of the fourth chapter of Second Corinthians, 'Our light affliction, which is for the moment.'"

CUBANS ADOPT RECIPROCITY

Measure, Without Change in Any Particular, Passes the Senate.

SEC'Y HAY GIVES ASSURANCE

Cubans Are Informed That the President Will Call a Special Session of Congress Before December 1—Congress Must Act Before Treaty Is Effective.

Havana, March 30.—The treaty of reciprocity between Cuba and the United States, as amended by the senate of the United States was approved Saturday in the Cuban senate by a vote of 12 to 9. This approval is absolute and is not hampered by any conditions, the questionable time limit amendment having been dispensed with through the receipt of a cable message from Secretary Hay, in which it was positively decided that President Roosevelt would call a special session of congress prior to Dec. 1. The purport of this assurance was transmitted to the senate by President Palma and read at the beginning of the session, an understanding having been reached previously with Senators Bustamente, Capote and Dolz, composing the majority of the foreign relations committee, that the objectionable condition in the report be eliminated This was done by the offering of amendments by the other senators substituting the unconditional adoption of the amendment by the American senate for the qualified acceptance contained in the original re

Final action was delayed for a long time by the discussion of an amendment offered by Senators Sanguilly, Tamaya and Recio, requiring the house to pass upon the treaty. Senator Sanguilly argued that while the constitution was not explicit upon this point, that the representatives in congress of the people ought to be consulted as well as the commercial interests, whose opinions the committee had sought eagerly. He cited the actions of the UnitedStates as a precedent, and said the committee evidently was afraid that the treaty would be defeated if submitted to the house. Senator Bolz admitted that this was a good reason, and quoted the constitution to show that reference to the house was not required. The amendment requiring the house to pass on the treaty was defeated by a vote of 5 to 15.

GEN. SAN MIGUEL KILLED.

Maccabebe Scouts Charge His Position and Utterly Rout Him.

Manila, March 28.—Two companies of Macabebe scouts singally defeated the main body of San Miguel's force yesterday. It is believed that San Miguel was killed. Lieutenant Reese was seriously wounded. The scouts lost three men and had eleven men wounded.

The enemy occupied an entrenched position midway between Mariquina San Francisco and Delmonte, and had erected a stone fort which was garrisoned by 200 men. The first and fourth companies of Macabebes commanded by Lieutenants Reese and Nickerson respectively, attacked the enemy's position, but as the scouts were exposed to the fire of the enemy in a manner which placed the Macabebes at a disadvantage the lieutenants directed them after an hour's fighting to surround the position and charge after having divided their companies. The two officers then led a gallant and successful charge, during which Lieutenant Reese fell seriously wounded.

The enemy then broke and ran, leaving forty-five men dead on the field, including a general officer, who is believed to be San Miguel, though his identification is incomplete. It is hoped this defeat will discourage disorder in Rizal province. The military authorities will direct the operations of the three detachments which are pursuing the bandit band. Additional troops are to be sent to Surigao later.

TREATY IS ABANDONED.

Announcement in Jamaica Legislature Regarding Reciprocity Treaty.

Kingston, Jamaica, March 27.—At yesterday's session of the legislature the governor, Sir Augustus Hemming, announced that the proposed reciprocity convention with the United States had been abandoned owing to representations from Washington that it was hopeless to expect its ratification by the United States senate. The Jamaica reciprocity convention is one of the conventions made by the United States with the several British West Indian colonies, and although the treaties had been extended several times, they have never been brought to a vote in the United States senate.

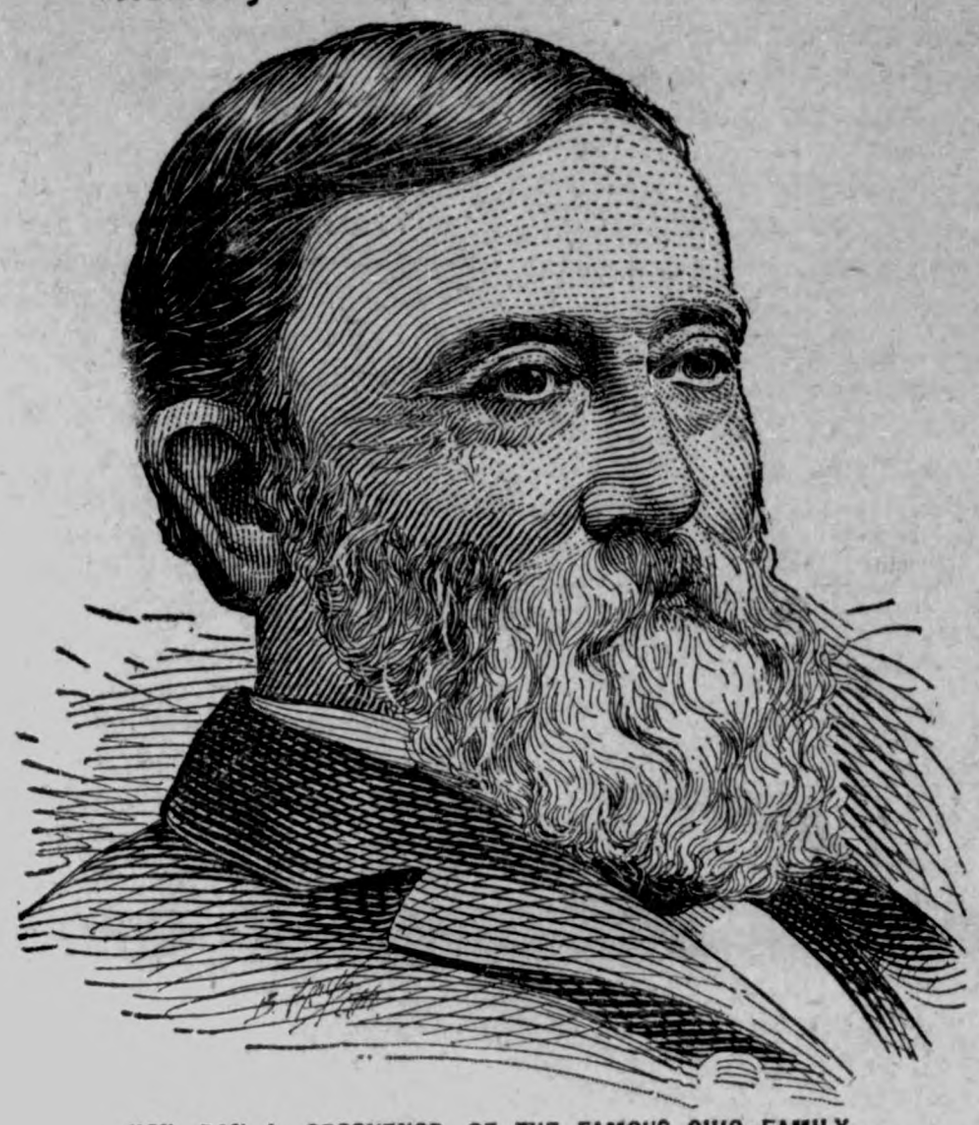
DAN GROSVENOR SAYS:

"Pe-ru-na is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy—I am as Well as Ever."



HON. DAN A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:—

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy."—

DAN A. GROSVENOR.

In a recent letter he says:—

"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive numerous letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer yes."—Dan A. Grosvenor.

A County Commissioner's Letter.

Hon. John Williams, County Commissioner, of 517 West Second street, Duluth, Minn., says the following in regard to Peruna:

"As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I know what it is to suffer from that terrible disease and I feel that it is my duty to speak a good word for the tonic that brought me immediate relief. Peruna cured me of a bad case of catarrh and I know it will cure any other sufferer from that disease."—John Williams.

A Congressman's Letter.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, Congressman from Louisiana, in a letter written at Washington, D. C., says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all around good medicine to those who are in need of a catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it, as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."—H. W. Ogden.

W. E. Griffith, Concan, Texas, writes: "I sufiered with chronic catarrh for many years. I took Peruna and it completely cured me. I think Peruna is the best medicine in the world for catarrh. My general health is much improved by its use, as I am much stronger than I have been for years."—W. E. Griffith.

A Congressman's Letter.

Congressman H. Bowen, Ruskin, Tazewell county, Va., writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy, Peruna, to any one who is suffering with catarrh, and who is in need of a permanent and effective cure."—H. Bowen.

Mr. Fred D. Scott, Laure, Ohio, Right Guard of Hiram Foot Ball Team, writes: "As a specific for lung trouble I place Peruna at the head. I have used it myself for colds and catarrh of the bowels and it is a splendid remedy. It restores vitality, increases bodily strength and makes a sick person well in a short time. I give Peruna my hearty indorsement."—Fred D. Scott.

Gen. Ira C. Abbott, 906 M street N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:—

"I am fully convinced that your remedy is an excellent tonic. Many of my friends have used it with the most beneficial results for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."—Ira C. Abbott.

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, orator of Reservoir Council No. 168, Northwestern Legion of Honor, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes from 2535 Polk street, N.E.:

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, Minneapolis, Minn.

"I have been troubled all my life with catarrh in my head. I took Peruna for about three months, and now think I am permanently cured. I believe that for catarrh in all its forms Peruna is the medicine of the age. It cures when all other remedies fail. I can heartily recommend Peruna as a catarrh remedy."—Mrs. Elmer Fleming.

Treat Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards the cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systemic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

"Kidney Colds"

Nothing will "lay you up," "play you out," "put you to bed" quicker than a kidney cold.

Thousands feel the first effect of colds in the kidneys; backache, rheumatic pains, urinary disorders, retention of the urine, infrequent and too frequent urinary discharges tell of kidneys out of order.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney Ills from common backache to dangerous diabetes.

A. T. Ritenour, owner of the wood yard at 125 East Cork street, Winchester, Va., says: "Ever since I had la grippe I have been a sufferer from kidney troubles, which made themselves apparent in racking pains through the region of the kidneys and across the small of my back. The pains were always severe, and sometimes so sharp and biting that they compelled me to take to my bed. The kidney secretions furnished further evidence of disorders. They were off color, irregular, and painful of passage. Added to this there was an annoying weakness.

"The newspaper advertisements of Doan's Kidney Pills attracted my attention, and I procured a box of that remedy at Franck Baker & Sons' drug store. The relief I experienced was magical. The pills lifted me from my bed of sickness, placed me on my feet, and made me a well man. I can work as well as ever. Doan's Kidney Pills, I believe, saved my life. They are a great remedy to stop kidney troubles resulting from colds."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Ritenour will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

ADMIRAL DEWEY STANDS BY WORDS

Tells President He Had No Intention to Reflect on German Emperor.

GERMAN PAPERS ARE ANGRY

Call Dewey a Worthy Imitator of Captain Coghlan and Recall Manila Incident—Declare the Admiral Should Be Reprimanded.

Washington, March 30.—At the instance of the president Admiral Dewey called by appointment Saturday at the white house and made a full explanation of a recent newspaper interview in which the admiral was quoted as saying that the Caribbean sea maneuvers were an object lesson to the kaiser, more than to any other person. The admiral assured the president that he had no intention of reflecting in the interview upon Germany, her emperor or her navy, and that while the statements credited to him were substantially what he said, he neglected to caution the interviewer against quoting him. Admiral Dewey drove to the white house in his own carriage accompanied by the acting chief of the bureau of navigation, Captain Wm. S Cowles. At the close of the interview the admiral returned immediately to his Rhode Island avenue home. The admiral declined to make any statement for publication. At the white house it was stated that the admiral's explanation was satisfactory to the president. It is not believed that further official notice will be taken of the incident.

Admiral Dewey, in the interview, speaking about the Germany navy said that it could not cope with the warships of the United States.

"Your maneuvers in southern waters with forty warships must have been an object lesson for Germany and England," was suggested to him.

"Forty!" exclaimed the admiral. "There were just fifty-four vessels of all classes. There was no man who was more worried on account of the object lesson the United States afforded this winter than Emperor William. It is certainly realized that Germany could not make a successful fight with our navy.

"I have had ample opportunity for studying the German navy. The difference between that navy and the United States navy is that the men in the German navy do not possess self-relience. They depend upon the officers too much. Each man is not an intelligent, thinking being in the performance of his particular duties like the personnel of our navy.

"A warship is a ponderous machine shop and the Americans are trained so that each unit is an intelligent being, applying himself, when in action, under the general instructions of his superiors. If every officer on an American ship were killed the men could and would go on and fight to a victory."

Berlin, March 30.—The interview with Admiral Dewey has angered the newspapers here. Even those of a usually moderate tone, refer to it in a bitter manner. For instance, the Vossiche Zeitung says:

"The American navy is evidently suffering from a disease of infancy—lack of modesty. Its leader evinces something unspeakably immature One can only stand amazed that such intensified self-complacency should take root in a people of German origin. Such behavior would not excite wonder if it had occurred in some Central or South American republic, or Hayti. Admiral Dewey is a worthy imitator of Captain (now rear admiral) Coghlan, who, at a New York club, gave a boastful toast bristling with insults to Germany, and warmed up the exploded story that Admiral Dewey compelled the German fleet at Manila to lie to when it refused to respect the blockade. Captain Coghlan seems, however, to have spoken from Admiral Dewey's own heart. Captain Coghlan was disciplined, and President McKinley expressed to the German ambassador his regret that the incident occurred The same thing must perhaps be done now, in order that superheated Dewey may be called down. Political generals and admirals, at any rate, are not a sign of wholesome political conditions."

The Tageblatt sees in Admiral Dewey's words confirmation of "its oft-repeated assertion that the United States' easy victory over Spain has produced a certain exaggerated military self conceit."

The Tageblatt adds the information that the vessels on the American station, after docking at St. Thomas, Bermuda, and Newport News, will proceed to South American waters.

In a runaway accident at Marshalltown Miss Cora Galloway was thrown to the pavement and seriously injured and Miss Blanche McLean and Miss Lottie Evans were also hurt. The three young ladies were out driving when their horse became frightened at a passing street car. They were all thrown violently to the pavement Miss Galloway striking on the back of her head. She has been in an unconscious condition most of the time since, and the physicians fear concussion of the brain.

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT

Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives, or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs. It is well known to be a simple combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants with pleasant, aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.

Many of the ills from which women suffer are of a transient nature and do not come from any organic trouble and it is pleasant to know that they yield so promptly to the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs, but when anything more than a laxative is needed it is best to consult the family physician and to avoid the old-time cathartics and loudly advertised nostrums of the present day. When one needs only to remove the strain, the torpor, the congestion, or similar ills, which attend upon a constipated condition of the system, use the true and gentle remedy—Syrup of Figs—and enjoy freedom from the depression, the aches and pains, colds and headaches, which are due to inactivity of the bowels.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs can hope to get its beneficial effects and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable druggists everywhere at 50 cents per bottle.

VOLUME VIII. NUMBER 36. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, APRIL 9 1903 $1 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

New City Officers.

On Monday evening the newly elected officers were sworn in. Each and every one swore long and loud that they would to the best of their ability perform the duties of their respective offices. E. P. Dow after having taken the oath of office, presided with much dignity over the meeting of our city dads, and the office of mayor is in the hands of a good competent business man. A resolution was adopted compelling "his highness" to have his whiskers cut "Van Dyke." He appointed as marshall, Myron Haskins. This selection is considered by all to be a good one. Myron is now bedecked with a star, and we warrant that the office of marshall will be well taken care of for this year. Julius Henschen was elected street commissioner and will enter upon the duties of his office at once. There is a chance for a great deal of work to be done in this line, and we look for some big improvements in the condition of our streets under his supervision. The newly elected councilmen, Nissen, Koerner and Larson also took the oath of office and entered upon their duties in a way which indicates that they will in the future be valuable members of the council. The books of the retiring mayor, clerk, and treasurer were looked over and found to be absolutely correct, and were accepted by the council. No business of much importance was up for the consideration of the council. Their chief duty was the allowing of bills of which there was a goodly number, this being the ending of the year. The retiring officers are to be congratulated upon the manner in which they leave the city's affairs, and it reflects great credit upon them as men of good business ability. You may expect to find our town's business in equally as good shape at all times under the new administration. The town is not bad off financially and at the close of this year it is hoped that its indebtedness will be entirely obliterated.

Base Ball.

On Wednesday afternoon the base ball fans of our town met in the reading room of the Bank of Klemme and perfected an organization, by the selection of the following officers: Frank Gruetzmacher will be manager Frank Kluckholn, captain, Joe Nissen, secretary and Paul Griesmer, treasurer. Last year Klemme had the best team in the county and the new organization gives promise of a repitition of last year's success. In the selection of officers the boys acted wisely and you may confidently look forward to a successful ball season for Klemme's team. The boys are doing some good practice work and will soon be in splendid form.

A Surprise.

The surprise party that was given at the Frei home south of town on Wednesday evening was a very enjoyable affair. The party was well planned and Mrs. Frei upon whom it was gotten up, was completely surprised. A large number of our young people were in attendance, and as is always the case when a social evening is spent at the Frei home all enjoyed themselves hugely. Delicious refreshments were served, games were played and various forms of amusements were indulged in until a late hour, when all departed feeling that they would long remember the evening, and the hospitable manner in which they had been entertained.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, April 5, 1903.

E. H. Hunter, a member of the committee on transportation to confer with the railroads with regard to getting a reduction of rates on the occasion of the approaching visit of the president and party, has returned from Chicago. Mr. Hunter stated that he was given to understand by the Western Passenger association that a round trip rate of one and one third fare would be put in within a radius of seventy-five miles of Des Moines by all the lines April 27 and 28. Tickets will be good returning until April 28.

The state capitol commission has let the contract for the erection of a ware house on the site of the heating plant near the state capitol. The building will cost a little less than $29,000. The state warehouse will be a handsome stone faced building set back 17 feet from the sidewalk, two stories high, with ample basement and containing fireproof rooms large enough to hold all the public documents and stores not in immediate use.

Governor Cummins and Adjutant General Byers have decided definitely that all the companies and the band of the Fifty-fourth regiment of the Iowa national guard will go to St. Louis the latter part of the month to participate in the parade at the dedication exercises.

The regiment numbers about 550 officers and men. It is composed of the following companies: Company A, Albia; Company B, Davenport; Company C, Muscatine; Company D, Washington; Company E, Centerville; Company F, Oskaloosa; Company G Ottumwa; Company H, Burlington; Company K, Grinnell; Company I, Iowa City; Company L, Newton; Company M, Fairfield. The regimental band is located at Ottumwa.

The reports of institutions for March, which are coming into the office of the board of control, include the report on the inebriate department at Mt. Pleasant. This shows that no less than 43 inmates escaped in March. There were 129 inebriates at the end of February, and this has decreased to 103 in spite of the number of admissions. A few were paroled by the regular method.

State Labor Commissioner Brigham, who has been in Dubuque, says he finds a gratifying effort to comply with the state law on fire escapes. Deputy Commissioner Holder, who was in Oskaloosa, Bussey and Albia recently, says the authorities at Oskaloosa are working hard to see that buildings needing fire escapes are provided with them. Mr. Brigham has been looking up cases where the owners of factories having promised to comply with the law on safety appliances, have not done so. Mr. Brigham has given notice to a number of delinquents that he will begin action in the courts unless the law is lived up to. He finds a disposition on the part of some to promise all sorts of reforms and fail to make them.

The state of Iowa is managing to store away a good many sheckels in its coffers through the good offices of the Iowa hog. The members of the board of control, who have just returned from the semi-annual inspection of the institutions at Eldora and Marshalltown, have marvelous tales to tell of the success of swine raising on the farm of the industrial school at Eldora. Since January $3,000 has been realized from the sale of hogs from the Eldora farm and $2,000 more will be obtained before the season is much farther along. About 500 young pigs will be reared this summer. Chairman Cownie says the farm is being run in first class manner, and aside from having a large number of hogs to sell, the boys at the school have all the fresh pork they can use.

After preserving the secret for fifteen years, S. R. Dawson at last has revealed to another his method of making Damascus and Hercules steel. C. C. Taft is the recipient of his confidence and these two are the only living men who know or have known the secret of the manufacture of the steel which, harder than any other known metals, is elastic. Mr. Taft is president of the Damascus Steel company. This company contracted with Mr. Dawson, not only for his knowledge and labor, but for the secret as well. The directors the past week selected Mr. Taft as the person representing the rest of the company to whom the revelation should be made. Mr. Dawson promptly discharged his obligation under the contract. He initiated Mr. Taft into the mysteries of his discovery and opened his pupil's eyes to the secret of ages long gone. Not only did he instruct Mr. Taft in the simplicity of the formula, but also taught him how to make the product. Mr. Dawson has said, during his fifteen years of struggle that at the proper time he would reveal the secret to the proper person. This he wished to fully protect the secret, not only for the benefit of his business associates and his own memory, but for the use and benefit of the whole world. This he now has done.

$30,000 for Coe College.

Cedar Rapids, April 3.—Mrs. Caroline Sinclair, widow of the late T. M. Sinclair, has offered to give $30,000 to Coe college, located in this city, for the erection of a college chapel.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

A broken brake beam catching in the ties of Silver Creek bridge near Covington derailed nine cars of a west bound freight, throwing them in the ditch twenty-five feet below. The caboose became detached from the train and no one was injured. The bridge is a complete wreck.

F. T. Orvis, a well-known traveling man, of Appleton, Wis., traveling for the Milwaukee Lithographing company, was run down by a Burlington passenger train at Burlington and instantly killed. He was walking along a side track and stepped on the main track as the train reached him. He had $50 in cash in his pockets. His head was badly cut.

Through Judge Birdsall member of congress from the Third district, John W. Philpot of Cedar Falls, has been appointed deputy United States marshal under United States Marshal Ed. Knott of Waverly Mr. Philpot took the oath of office in the federal court at Dubuque on April 1, and immediately assumed the responsibilities. He will have his office in Dubuque.

Hon. D. B. Henderson, ex-speaker of the house of representatives, has been voted a life membership in the Dubuque lodge of Elks. This action is a tribute of the Elks for Dubuque's distinguished citizen statesman. Mr. Henderson was initiated into the Elks about a year and a half ago and the society desires to honor him by putting him on the roster as a life member.

The dairy department of the Iowa State College of Agriculture, which has been carrying on experiments for some time under the direction of Profs. G. L. McKay and C. Larson, having in view the improvement of the keeping qualities of butter, has at last discovered a device by which the desired results are successfully obtained. The device, which consists of the complete purification of wash water, so extensively used in all Iowa creameries, by destruction of all undesirable germs and bacteria which cause the rapid deterioration of butter in quality and flavor, is of the utmost importance and value to all Iowa.

The following story comes from Waterloo: A case which has baffled medical science for years has at last been solved in an unexpected yet satisfactory way without the use of the knife and is proving little short of a revelation to even the best posted men of the medical profession. The case in question is that of Holis H. Bucklin. It has been unquestionably shown by the removal of the reptiles that two snakes have made their abiding place within his stomach for the past fifteen years. They are of the bull snake specie and the largest one was three feet long and an inch and a quarter in diameter. The other was eighteen inches in length and a little over half inch in diameter. These reptiles were removed in a natural way by means of strong cathartics and other powerful medicines after a season of fasting lasting over a period of six days and nights and which was endured under the most excruciating pain, especially in the night time.

The damage cases broughgt against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company in behalf of the victims of the terrible wreck at Rhodes last summer have been settled in the federal court at Cedar Rapids by the payment of $11,000. The suits aggregated $90,000. Suits were begun in behalf of the estates of nine victims of the wreck, $10,000 being asked in each case. The estate of Henry Jackson Richardson, Hazel Run, Mo., gets $2,500. Patrick Sullivan, Mike Doyle, L. Bingham, John Allen, Mike Flynn, Thomas Casey and Frank R. Ray are settled for $1,125 each, and to "John Doe," who was never identified, is allowed the sum of $875. It is not likely the heirs will ever be found in the majority of the cases, and in that event the money, after the costs and administrator's fees are paid, will revert to the school fund of the state. The Rhodes wreck was one of the worst that ever occurred on that road, ten men being killed as a result and forty others were badly injured.

A dispatch from Des Moines says: Lester Soule, general manager of the Des Moines, Iowa Falls & Northern railroad company, is authority for the statement that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul company has acquired the former line and proposes to use it for the purpose of shortening its run from Des Moines to St. Paul and Minneapolis. The Milwaukee people, Mr. Soule says, will build the connecting link between the Iowa Falls & Northern at Iowa Falls, and their own line from Austin to Mason City this spring. The route has already been surveyed by the Iowa Falls & Northern company and construction crews are to be set to work immediately. As soon as the line is completed, it is stated, the Milwaukee people will announce a cut in passenger and freight rates for traffic between Des Moines and St. Paul and Minneapolis and the Twin Cities and Kansas City. With its present facilities the Milwaukee is compelled to carry passengers from Des Moines to the Mississippi river in order to get into Minnesota. The new route will shorten the length of the run several hundred miles and will give the Milwaukee company a shorter line to the Twin Cities than any railroad in Iowa.

A big crowd was present at Dubuque a few days ago to witness the launching of the government boat Oleander, built at the ship yards of the Iowa Iron works. This is the fourth government boat built in Dubuque. When finished she will be the finest boat of her class in the government service.

The public schools of Fraser have been closed on account of an epidemic of diphtheria which has caused several deaths among the residents of that place. There are four teachers in the schools, having over 200 pupils. A number of the pupils have been taken ill and in order to prevent a wholesale epidemic the directors thought best to close the schools for a few weeks.

Dick Burbridge, the Allison blacksmith whose bloody coat was found on the Omaha bridge between Omaha and Council Bluffs, is in Marshalltown. Burbridge says the coat found on the bridge was his, but had been stolen from his room some few days before The news of his supposed death was received in Allison recently and occasioned much surprise, as word had been received from Burbridge within a few days before.

The trustees of Iowa college have voted to accept the $50,000 offered by Andrew Carnegie for a new library, and plans will be secured at once. Mr. Carnegie imposed two conditions. First, that the library should be free to Grinnell people, and second, that $5,000 should be expended annually in the maintenance and development of the library. A committee of trustees was appointed to raise the funds to meet the second condition. Work on the new chapel will be begun early in the summer.

In an interview Mayor J. H. Funk of Iowa Falls admitted that he is back of the agitation that has resulted in the indictment of three druggists of that place, and his position in the matter is in line with his past record looking to temperance legislation in the state and the enforcement of the laws of the commonwealth looking to the control of the liquor traffic. In his official capacity as mayor, Mr. Funk has been brought in touch with the magnitude of the retail trade in liquors, and it is supposed the numerous examples brought before him in police court have resulted in steps being taken in hopes of curbing the promiscuous sale of intoxicants to questionable characters.

The ninth annual session of the Southeastern Iowa School Teachers' association at Burlington closed with one of the best meetings of the convention. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Superintendent J. E. Williamson of Fairfield; vice-president, Superintendent F. M. Fultz of Burlington; secretary, County Superintendent Miss Laura Fitch of Chariton; treasurer, Superintendent Eugene Henley of Brooklyn; chairman of executive committee, Principal Eugene C. Pierce of Ottumwa. Resolutions were adopted suggesting amendment of the compulsory school law as to make it mandatory for school boards in cities with 5,000 population or more to appoint a truant officer who shall give his whole time to the work of securing regular attendance. The resolutions also approved manual training and urged the agitation of the subject of better salaries for teachers.

A petition for rehearing has been filed with the supreme court in the case of Bryce vs. B., C. R. & N. Railway company, appellant. This is the case in which the supreme court held last January that the automatic coupler statute of the state did not apply to engines. Bryce sued to recover damages for injuries sustained while coupling cars to a switch engine, which was without an automatic coupler. The superior court of Cedar Rapids gave him a judgment, but the supreme court reversed the trial court and the plaintiff now asks a rehearing. In the argument filed with the court it is urged that the object of the automatic coupler statute was to put an end "to the appalling loss of life and limb to that class of railway employes engaged in train switching service to which they were subjected in making couplings by hand," and it is urged the statute applies as well to engines as to cars.

Mrs. Catharine McClintock, who dropped from a balcony during the burning of the Arlington hotel in West Union a week ago, is dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John R. Cook. This is the first fatality resulting from a fire in local history. Mrs. McClintock was nearly 70 years old, and had been a resident of West Union for many years. During the past winter she had made her home at the Arlington with the Cook family, but on the morning of the fire neither Mr. nor Mrs. Cook were there. Mr. Hasbrouck, the owner of the hotel, got her out of her room and onto one of the balconies. She attempted to reach the ground by means of a rope, and fell to the stone sidewalk, breaking both ankles. The shock was more than she could rally from. The others injured during the fire are in the city hospitals and progressing favorably. Miss Olsen, the hotel cook, who had her knee cap shattered, her ankle broken and her hands badly burned, had in her trunk, wrapped in a bundle of clothing, more than a thousand dollars' worth of cash and securities.

SEC'Y ROOT ON TARIFF SCHEDULES

Calls Attention to Objectors Who See Only Wrong in Existing Conditions.

SAYS TARIFF IS NOT SACRED

But He Holds It Better to Endure Some Faults Than Destroy By Tinkering—Expression Regarded as that of the Administration.

Boston, April 3.—Elihu Root, secretary of war, and U. S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, were the guests of honor and the principal speakers last night at the annual dinner of the Home Market club, the representative republican organization of New England. The occasion was of signal interest because last night the speeches of Secretary Root and Senator Lodge were regarded particularly as the words of the administration at Washington on the anticipated issues of the next national campaign.

Secretary Root spoke on the tariff and Mr. Lodge on the question of Canadian reciprocity and of the charges made against the American soldiers in the Philippines.

Secretary Root said in part:

"I remember hearing Mr. Tilden say that if you put a hundred men in a room and made any proposition whatever to them, some one of the hundred would dispute it.

"Reducing this saying to its lowest degree of one in a hundred we must look for at least 800,000 among the people of the United States in whose very eyes everything that is done is wrong, and whatever is being done ought not to be done, or ought to be done otherwise.

"This useful but trying class of our fellow citizens has recently turned its attention to the existing protective system of the United States. If we had been a free trade country they would have been protectionists. As we have long been a protectionist country they are free traders. To them are joined the members of the democratic party, who desire a change of administration and who demand what they call a revision of the protective tariff, but which they really mean to be a destruction of the protective tariff. Along with them go, to some extent, certain good men and true men who urge a real revision of the tariff, which they believe will make it a better protective tariff than it is now.

In speaking of the true nature and necessary effect of the proceedings which these citizens wish congress to take, the secretary said he assumed first that the principle of protection should be maintained, and next, that the people of the United States are now enjoying a period of extraordinary prosperity and that they don't want that prosperity to end.

"The question is not whether under some other law we might or might not have become prosperous, or whether under some other law we may or may not in the future attain prosperity. It is that the prosperity we have now today is the prosperity of productive enterprise which has adjusted itself to the conditions that this Dingley law has created, and the stability of those conditions in substance is essential to the continuance of this present period of prosperity.

"There is no fetish in the tariff schedules and no sacredness in particular rates of duty. If through original error of changes of conditions the provisions of this law work ill to the country, then at the proper time and in the proper way a sensible people will change the law. If a law is working well as a whole, common sense requires that we should endure some faults, even though they are serious, rather than destroy the general good effect by constant tinkering."

Speaking of the cry for revision of the tariff as being the protector of trusts, Secretary Root said we cannot get rid of trusts by revising the tariff unless we are ready to reduce the duties in the classes of manufacture in which the so-called trusts are engaged—that is to say, in all the principal kinds of manufacture—to such an extent as to put an end to all American manufacture.

"In each class," said the secretary, "the trust is the strongest and if duties are lowered below the point of adequate protection, the independent manufacturer will go to the wall first. It is impossible that reduction of duties should wipe out trusts except as it wiped out American manufacture. When that happens, free trader and protectionist alike will have substituted the foreign trusts for domestic trusts, and the prosperity of foreign workmen for the prosperity of American workmen.

"The question is whether there are really existing evils to be cured as great as the evils to be endured from the long and difficult process of revision.

In conclusion the secretary said:

"In determining when and how that process shall be undertaken two cardinal rules should be observed

"First, it should be done only when congress is as free as possible from the distractions and temptations of an active political campaign. When congress settles down to attend to business it is a very wise complete and effective body. When it is playing politics it contributes more of brilliancy to the impending campaign than it does of substantial value to the statute book.

"The second rule to be followed is expressed by the oft-repeated saying that the tariff should be revised by its friends. If the American people are ready to abandon the principle of protection and face the crash and downfall of our present prosperity which would immediately result, then they should hand the revision over to the democratic party, and that is the meaning of the men who are crying 'revise the tariff in order to destroy the trusts.' What they really mean is to abandon the principle of protection in order to destroy the trusts. Let us make all American producers stand on their stand on an equal footing with foreign competition."

THE PRESIDENT AT CHICAGO

Talks of Monroe Doctrine and American Position in Western Hemisphere.

Chicago, April 3.—Six thousand people, in a hall the seating capacity of which is but 5,000, gave enthusiastic greeting to President Roosevelt when he stepped upon the stage of the Auditorium last night. The great building has held many a throng, but never one that was more hearty and unstinted in its applause for a single man than the crowd that filled it to the roof last night. From the first row to the last it was packed to its utmost capacity.

The address of the president dealt with the Monroe doctrine and the position of the United States in the Western Hemisphere. He said in part:

"Ever since the time when we finitely extended our boundaries ward to the Pacific and south to the gulf, since the time when old Spanish and Portugese colonies the south of us asserted their pendence our nation has insisted because of its primacy in strength among the nations of the western hemisphere it has certain duties responsibilities which oblige it to a leading part thereon. We that our interests in this hemisphere are greater than those of any European power possibly can be, and our duty to ourselves and to weaker republics who are our neighbors requires us to see that none the great military powers from across the seas shall encroach upon the territory of the American republics acquire control thereover.

"This policy, therefore, not only bids us to acquiesce in such territorial acquisition, but also causes us to object to the acquirement of a control which would in its effect be equivalent territorial aggrandizement. This why the United States has steadily believed that the construction of great isthmian canal, the building of which is to stand as the greatest material feat of the twentieth century—greater than any similar work in any preceding century—should be done by no foreign nation but by ourselves."

The president here referred to the different steps taken to secure the canal, and then discussed the course of the United States in the recent Venezuelan trouble, asserting that both Germany and Great Britain "assured us in explicit terms that there was not the slightest intention on their part to violate the principle of the Monroe doctrine, and this assurance was kept with an honorable good faith which merits full acknowledgement on our part."

"The Monroe doctrine," he declared, "is not international law, though I think one day it may become such, this is not necessary so long as it remains a cardinal feature of our foreign policy and as long as we possess both the will and the strength to make it effective. The last point, my fellow citizens, is the important, and is one which all people we can never afford to forget. I believe in the Monroe doctrine with all my heart and soul; I am convinced that the immense majority of my fellow country men so believe in it, but I would infinitely prefer to see it abandon it than to see us put it forward and bluster about it, and yet fail to build up the efficient fighting strength which in the last resort can alone make it respected by any strong foreign power whose interest it might ever happen to be to violate it.

"Boasting and blustering are as objectionable among nations as among individuals, and the public men of a great nation owe it to their sense of national self-respect to speak courteously of foreign powers just as a brave and self-respecting man treats all around him courteously. But though to boast is bad, and causelessly to insult another, worse; but worse than all is it to be guilty of boasting, even without insult, and when called to the proof to be unable to make such boasting good."

In conclusion the president said: "We wish a powerful and efficient navy, not for the purposes of war but as the surest guaranty of peace. If we have such a navy—if we keep on building it up—we may rest assured that there is but the smallest chance that trouble will ever come to this nation; and we may likewise rest assured that no foreign power will ever quarrel with us about the Monroe doctrine."

In his "Random Reminiscences" Charles H. E. Brookfield says that his great uncle, Henry Hallam, the historian, was invited by Tennyson to be godfather to his first boy. Hallam readily consented. As they were walking up the church-yard, side by side, the historian inquired of Tennyson: "What name do you mean to give him?" "We thought of calling him Hallam," said the poet. "Oh, had you not better call him Alfred?" modestly suggested the historian. "Aye!" replied the bard, "but if he should turn out a fool?"

THE IMPRESSIONS OF A WOMAN.

What a Woman Says About Western Canada.

Although many men have written to this paper regarding the prospects of Western Canada and its great possibilities, it may not be uninteresting to give the experience of a woman settler, written to Mr. M. V. McInnes, the agent of the government at Detroit, Mich. If the reader wishes to get further information regarding Western Canada it may be obtained by writing any of the agents of the Government whose name is attached to the advertisement appearing elsewhere in this paper.

The following is the letter referred to:

Hilldown, Alberta, Feb. 5, '03.

Dear Sir—I have been here now nearly five years, and thought I would write you a woman's impression of Western Canada—in Alberta. There are several ranchers in this district who, in addition to taking care of their cattle, carry on farming as well; their herds of cattle number from 100 to 200 or 300 head, and live out all winter without any shelter than the poplar bluffs, and they come in in the spring in good order. Most of the ranchers feed their cattle part of the time, about this time of the year, but I have seen the finest fat cattle I ever saw that never got a peck of grain—only fattened on the grass. You see I have learned to talk farm since I came here—farming is the great business here. I know several in this district who never worked a day on the farm till they came here, and have done well and are getting well off.

I think this will be the garden of the Northwest some day, and that day not very far distant. There has been a great change since we came here, and there will be a greater change in the next five years. The winters are all anyone could wish for. We have very little snow, and the climate is fine and healthy. Last summer was wet, but not to an extent to damage crops, which were a large average yield and the hay was immense—and farmers wore a broad smile accordingly.

We have good schools, the government pays 70 per cent of the expense of education, which is a great boon in a new country. Of course churches of different denominations follow the settlements. Summer picnics and winter concerts are all well attended, and as much, or more, enjoyed as in the East. Who would not prefer the pure air of this climate with its broad acres of fine farms, its rippling streams, its beautiful lakes, its millions of wild flowers, its groves of wild fruit of exquisite flavor, its streams and lakes teeming with fish and its prairies and bluffs with game, to the crowded and stiff state of society in the East. I would like to go home for a visit some time, but not to go there to live, even if presented with the best farm in Michigan. Beautiful Alberta, I will never leave it. And my verdict is only a repetition of all who have settled in this country. This year I believe will add many thousands to our population. And if the young men, and old men also, knew how easy they could make a home free of all incumbrance in this country, thousands more would have settled here. I would sooner have 160 acres here than any farm where I came from in Michigan, but the people in the East are coming to a knowledge of this country, and as they do, they will come West in thousands. All winter people have been arriving in Alberta, and I suppose in other parts as well, which is unusual, so we expect a great rush when the weather gets warmer.

We have no coal famine here. Coal can be bought in the towns for $2 to $3, according to distance from the mines, and many haul their own coal from the mines, getting it there for 50 cents to a dollar a ton. Very truly yours,

THE LION'S WHELP

A Story of Cromwell's Time

BY AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "The Bow of Orange Ribbon," "I, Thou and the Other One." "The Maid of Maiden Lane," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Dodd, Mead & Company All rights reserved.)

CHAPTER II.

"Those unlucky Stuarts! They will swallow up all England's chivalry. Oh, for one campaign with Queen Elizabeth at its head! She would send old Oliver with his Commonwealth to the bottomless pit, and order him to tell the devil that Elizabeth Tudor sent him there."

"What say you if, for once, we part without Cromwell between our goodwills and our good-nights? Father, I have seen to-day a fan of ostrich feathers; 'tis with Gaius the packman, who will be here in the morning. Also, I want some housewifery stores, and some embroidery silks, and ballads, and a book of poems written by one Mr. John Milton, who keeps a school in London."

"I know the man. We will have none of his poems."

"But, father, I may have the other things?"

"You will take no nay-say."

"Then a good-night, sir!"

"Not yet, I will have my pay for 'the other things.' You shall sing to me. Your lute lies there. Come—'It is early in the morning.'"

Happily, tenderly, fell the musical syllables to the tinkling lute, and as she drew to a close, still singing, she passed smiling out of the room; leaving the door open however, so that they heard her voice growing sweetly softer and softer, and further and further away, until it left nothing but the delightsome echo in their hearts—

"Our feet are bathed in May-dew
And our hearts are bathed in love."

CHAPTER II.

Doctor John Verity.

The anxious days went by for a week and there was still no word at Swaffham. Then Jane went over to de Wick, hoping that the Earl might have news from his son, which would at least break the voiceless tension of their fears. But the Earl was in the same state—restless, perplexed, wistfully eager concerning the situation of the opposing armies. In their mutual sorrowful conjectures they forgot their political antipathies, and a loving apprehension drew them together; they talked in low voices of the absent, they clasped hands as they walked together through the lonely park in the autumn afternoon. They also agreed that whoever had news first should send a swift messenger to the other, no matter what the tidings should be. When they parted, Jane kissed her friend, a token of love she had not given her for a long time and Matilda was so affected by this return of sympathy that she covered her face with her hands and wept. "Oh, Jane!" she said, "I have been so lonely!"

And as Jane answered her with affectionate assurances, there came into her heart a sudden anticipation of intelligence. Without consideration, with no purpose of mere encouragement, she said confidently: "There is some one on the way. I seem to hear them coming." So they parted, and Jane brought home with her a hope which would not be put down. Her face was bright and her voice so confident that her mother felt the influence of her spirit and anon shared it.

All were in deep sleep when the blast of a trumpet and the trampling of a heavily-shod horse on the stones of the court yard awakened them. Jane ran to her mother's room, and found her at an open window. She was calling aloud to the messenger, "Is it you, Doctor Verity?" and the answer came swift and strong, ere the question was fairly asked:

"It is I, John Verity, with the blessing of God, and good tidings."

"Get your horse to stable, Doctor, and we will be down to welcome you." The next moment the house was astir from one end to the other—bells were ringing, lights moving hither and thither, men and women running down stairs, and at the open door Mrs. Swaffham and Jane waiting for the messenger.

It was good even to see him, and how much better to hear him say:

"Israel Swaffham is well and God hath given us a great victory."

"Now then, we shall have peace, Doctor?"

"No use, Martha, in crying peace! peace! when peace is wickedness. Our liberty was won by men willing to go to the battlefield for it. When did you hear of us last?"

"About the tenth of August. You were then in camp near Edinburgh," said Mrs. Swaffham.

"To be sure—having a paper war with the Kirk and David Leslie. It was little to Cromwell's liking, and no more to David Leslie's; both of them would rather defiance of battle than Declarations from the General Assembly.

"You women would not understand the setting of the battle. It is enough that it began at four in the morning, and that by nine o'clock there was no longer a Scotch army—three thousand of it were slain in the battle and many more killed in pursuit. We had all their baggage and artillery, besides fifteen thousand stand of arms and two hundred colors to hang up in Westminster hall."

"And what of Israel Swaffham? He did his part? I know that," said Mrs. Swaffham.

"He led his own troop of the solid fen men of Cambridgeshire. I saw their blue banner waving wherever Tonbert carried it."

Jane's face was radiant and tears of enthusiasm filled her eyes. She kissed the doctor proudly and ran to send a messenger to de Wick with the tidings of Dunbar.

"Are you going further, Doctor?" asked Mrs. Swaffham.

"No, Martha. I mean to stay here until the General's messenger joins me. He sent a letter to London by the young Lord Cluny Neville, and he took the direct road there, so we parted very early in the day; but he calls here for me on his return, and we shall go back together, if so God wills, to Edinburgh."

"I never heard you speak of Lord Cluny Neville before."

"Because I did not know him before. Cromwell has set his heart on the youth, and shows him great favor. Some are jealous of the boy and make a grumble that he is so much trusted."

"If this young Lord is taking a letter to Madame Cromwell, then why did not Israel write to me?"

"'Oh, the unreasonableness of women! Can a man write when he is in the saddle pursuing the enemy? Israel and Lambert left immediately with seven regiments for Edinburgh. He sent you words full of love and comfort, so did your sons; what would you have, woman?"

Then Mrs. Swaffham put her hand on the Doctor's arm to stay him, and she asked, "Do you remember the flag the women of Huntingdon and Ely gave to Gen. Cromwell just before Naseby?"

"I do. And your Israel made the speech. I am not likely to forget it."

"Then you also remember that as Israel was speaking, the east wind rose, and stretched wide-out the silk folds, so that the big tawny lion watching the red cross was blown straight above the General's bare head. And there was a murmur of wonder, and then a great shout, and Israel pointing to the flag and the man below it, cried out:

"Behold your Captain! Cromwell 'is a lion's whelp—from the prey thou art gone up, my son—and unto Him shall the gathering of the people be.'"

"I was standing with Mrs. Cromwell and the girls," said Jane; "and at the shout he turned to them, and little Frances ran to him and he gave the flagstaff into your hand, Doctor, and then stooped and tied the child's tippet. Then Mary and I went closer, and to us he was just the same Mr. Cromwell that I knew years ago, when I sat on his knee and put my arms round his neck, and he kissed me as tenderly as if I was one of his own little girls. But for all that, something of power and majesty clothed him like a garment, and the people generally feared to touch the hem of it."

"A lion's whelp!" he said proudly, "and while England's lion has such whelps, she may make and unmake kings as is best for her. Then he lit his candle and went stamping down the flagged passage that led to his room.

CHAPTER III.

Woven of Love and Glory.

For the next three days there was a busy time at Swaffham. All the neighbors were summoned to hear the news, and a sermon from Dr. Verity; and he did not spare the rod in the way of his calling. There were some wealthy young men present, and he let them know that they ought not to be present; furthermore, he told them how many miles it was to Duty and to Scotland.

"This is not a time," he said, "for men to be on their farms or in their shops getting a little money. Thou Shalt' is written on life in characters just as terrible as 'Thou Shalt Not.' It is not enough that you do not help the enemy; you Shall shut your shop, you Shall leave your oxen untied; you Shall take your musket, and never once think in your heart 'Who is going to pay me for this business?' If you, Squire Acton, would go out, and you, Fermor, and you, Calthorpe, and Charmington and Garnier, you would draw men after you; for many will follow if the candle be once lighted. By the mouth of John Verity, a servant of the Lord, you have this day got another call. Look inward and think over it."

Then Acton rose and said, "Doctor Verity, I will go," and Calthorpe and Fermor followed, and the Doctor told them to meet him at Swaffham Market Cross the following day. "And I will say this to you," he added, "you are like to have the good fortune of the man hired at the eleventh hour; you will get the full penny for the last stroke."

The short service was followed by an excellent dinner, and the richly dressed men and women, full of eager questions and innocent mirth, filled the Swaffham parlors, and made a fair picture of hospitality sobered by great interests and great events. Some of the guests lingered for two and three days, but Dr. Verity would not be delayed. The next morning he enrolled sixty men and then he was resolved to ride with them as far as York. "And if Neville comes, send him quickly after me," he said. "He thought he might be four days, but I will give him seven, and then wonder if he keeps tryst. There will be many things in London to delay him."

In fact, Neville was so long delayed, that Mrs. Swaffham was certain he had been sent back to Scotland at once on Mrs. Cromwell's order, and that he would probably be with the Lord General before Dr. Verity. After a week or more had passed, all expectation of his visit died out, and Jane began to wonder why Matilda had not been to see her.

As she was speaking there was a slight stir in the passage and Jane smiled at her mother. It was only an illustration of the old law—they had been talking of Matilda, because she was approaching them, and had sent her thoughts in advance.

Jane went to meet her friend, kissed her and removed her hat. Then Matilda went to Mrs. Swaffham and laid her head against her breast and said, "I have a bad headache. I have a bad heartache. Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"

"It was bad news for you, dearie," said the motherly woman; "you may be sure I thought of you."

"I know you did. It was terrible news. Father has walked the floor night and day ever since."

"I hope that no one you love was hurt?"

"Stephen is well, as far as we know. He sent one of his troopers with the news—George Copping, a Huntingdon man. I dare say you know him?"

Carter Harrison was again elected mayor of Chicago Monday. This is the fourth time. He has little to crow over this time as his plurality over Stewart was less than 7,000. Fraud is charged against Harrison and a contest is likely.

E. L. Stilson, of Corwith, has an announcement in this issue of the TIMES. He is a candidate for representative from this district, and his chances for success are flattering. He is eminently qualified for this all important position, and will look to the best interests of his constituents should be be successful.

We understand that he is to fill a vacancy only and may return here ere long and make Klemme his home. We call the attention of our readers to the announcement of H. H. Ellsworth, of Britt, as a candidate for sheriff. Mr. Ellsworth is well acquainted all over the county, and, no doubt, will have a strong following. His republicanism is unquestioned, and if elected to the office to which he aspires, will serve faithfully. He is perfectly competent and will no doubt, be a strong candidate in this section.

An Able Discourse.

On last Sunday evening Hans Nissen, who was home for a short vacation, delivered a very able sermon in the Eng. M. E. church In his sermon he plead with the people to be more lenient and unselfish and not shut their eyes and refuse to see, but try and see more in one another. His illustrations were plain and his thoughts were couched in choicest language. His every jesture showed plainly that his words came from the bottom of his heart. He is certainly a fine talker and his effort on last Sunday evening was well received. He finishes his school work at Morningside in June after which he will accept the charge of Castalia. We expect to see him rise fast in his chosen profession. May he succeed.

The following puzzle has been going the rounds of the press. Try it and see how it works:

Take the number of your living brothers, double the amount, add to it three, multiply the result by five, and add to it the number of living sisters, multiply the result by ten add to the number of deaths of brothers and sisters, substract 150 from the result. The right hand figure will be the number of deaths the middle figure the number of living sisters and the left the number of living brothers.

ECZEMA

Psoriasis, Scalled Head, Milk Crust, Tetter, Ringworm, etc.

Speedily, Permanently and Economically Cured, when All Else Fails, by Cuticura

The agonizing, itching, and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair, and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum,—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made them the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the civilized world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent to cool and cleanse the blood. This complete treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning, and scaly humours of the skin, scalp and blood, and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure when all other remedies and the best physicians fail. As evidence of the wonderful curative properties of Cuticura Remedies and of their world-wide sale, we quote from

The Hon. Mr. Justice Finnemore's Letter.

"I desire to give my voluntary testimony to the beneficial effects of your Cuticura Remedies. I have suffered for some time from an excess of uric acid in the blood; and since the middle of last year, from a severe attack of Eczema, chiefly on the scalp, face, ears and neck, and on one limb. I was for several months under professional treatment, but the remedies prescribed were of no avail, and I was gradually becoming worse, my face was dreadfully disfigured, and I lost nearly all my hair. At last, my wife prevailed upon me to try the Cuticura Remedies, and I gave them a thorough trial with the most satisfactory results. The disease soon began to dissappear, and my hair commenced to grow again. A fresh growth of hair is covering my head, and my limb (although not yet quite cured) is gradually improving. My wife thinks so highly of your remedies that she has been purchasing them in order to make presents to other persons suffering from similar complaints, and, as President of the Bible Women's Society, has told the Bible women to report if any case should come under her notice when a poor person is so afflicted, so that your remedies may be resorted to."

REPORTS EXCITE SURPRISE IN CHINA

Pekin Worried Over Increasing of American Squadron in Chinese Waters.

ALARM SAID TO BE NEEDLESS

Empire Is Only Threatened By 100,000 Rebels In Revolt in Kwang Si Province and It Is Said They Are Not Attacking Foreigners.

Peking, April 6.—The report received here that the action of the United States in increasing her Asiatic squadron is on account of "the alarming reports on the situation in China," excites surprise in Peking. Such reports were not sent by the United States or British legations, which possess good facilities for judging the situation in China. The only disturbances considered serious are those in the Kwang Si province the southern province of China bordering on Tonkin, where 100,000 rebels are said to be in arms, which are never directed against foreigners. The latest reports regarding Gen. Tung Fuh Siang the "boxer leader," and Prince Tuan the exiled anti-foreigner, who are at the head of the insurgent forces in the northwest provinces of Kansu, are reassuring. The government claims to have come to an agreement with them whereby they agree to refrain from hostilities. It is believed that the government is supplying them with funds on condition that they remain quiet.

The officials promise the foreign ministers that the indemnity bonds will soon be signed. The officials apparently have concluded that it will be impossible to obtain any concession in the terms of the indemnity until that formality is fulfilled.

The dowager empress and the court started today on their journey to the western tombs. They will be absent from Peking eighteen days. Other trains will carry most of the high officials in Peking and the court's entire household of eunichs and concubines. Business traffic on the railways entering Peking will be practically suspended for several days. The masses regard the pilgrimage with astonishing disapproval, and predict that heaven will send disasters.

The United States consul at Canton telegraphs that the famine in the Kwang Si province, resulting from the rebellion there, is serious. Thousands will die unless assistance is forthcoming. He recommends that relief funds be started abroad.

WABASH TROUBLE SETTLED.

Railroad Employes Claim Victory In Adjustment of Difficulties.

St. Louis, April 6.—After four months of controversy between the employes of the Wabash road and the officials of that system the differences have been finally adjusted and the controversy effectually and satisfactorily settled. Officials of the brotherhoods representing the employes declare the settlement is eminently satisfactory and is a sweeping victory for organized labor. The Wabash officials declare that all differences with the employes have been finally terminated in a satisfactory manner and that their future relations will in all probability be the most harmonious

East of the Mississippi river, the rates will be brought up to this same standard when competing lines in the same territory grant similar concessions.

The various yard men receive a substantial increase varying in different localities.

There is an entire revision of rules applying to all classes af train service. This was the main bone of contention and was granted in its entirety.

The following are the main points embraced in the settlement:

Twelve per cent increase for conductors, brakemen and baggagemen in the passenger service, and 15 per cent for conductors and brakemen in the freight service, over the rate which existed January 1, 1902, west of the Mississippi river.

For the firemen increases were granted on the Canadian lines in accordance with the Canadian Southern division of the Michigan Central. On the lines in the United States material increases and improvements in the working conditions were granted the firemen.

DEFEAT FRENCH IN BATTLE.

Algerian Tribesmen Cause Slaughter in Fight With Convoy.

Algiers, April 3.—News has arrived of an attack by a body of 150 Oulad Djerit tribesmen on a French convoy escorted by detachments of Algerian light infantry, the foreign legion and shahis at the village of Ksar-El Azous southern Algiers. The fighting lasted eight hours with varying fortune.

The French troops exhausted their cartridges and then fought a hand-to hand encounter. Finally the tribesmen were victorious.

The French had nine killed, thirteen wounded, including an officer, and two missing. The tribesmen suffered heavily, carrying away their dead and wounded on forty camels which they captured from the French convoy.

"Yes, my autobiographical book, 'My Life in Many States and in Foreign Lands,' has had a good sale," said George Francis Train to a reporter the other day, "but it is surprising how many people want free copies." "Indeed?" remarked the reporter. "Yes," added the aged Citizen Train, disgustedly, "there must be an impression abroad that I am an accommodation Train."

An interesting feature of the recent army debate in the house of lords was the collapse of Lord Lovat, who on rising to make his maiden speech, said: "My lords, I venture to think this army corps system, by producing a definite scheme—" and then sat down, unable to utter another word. His failure in the house of lords was such a contrast to Lord Lovat's gallant work in the South African war, during which he raised and commanded a corps of scouts and won the distinguished Service Order, that it has produced much good-natured comment in the English papers. One writer points out that Lord Lovat can console himself with the refiflection that only a short time ago the Duke of Devonshire rose from his seat in the house of lords, looked slowly around, intetnding to speak, and then sat down without uttering a word.

A Farmer's Good Story.

Velpen, Ind., April 6th.—Wm. O'B. Sullivan, a highly respected farmer of this place, tells a personal experience to show that there is still some genuineness and honest worth to be met with in this age in which so many frauds are reported.

"Yes, I have been humbugged," said Mr. Sullivan, "and when I was so ill with the Rheumatism, Kidney and Heart Trouble, I used a good deal of stuff that claimed to be remedies for these diseases only to find them worthless.

"But, as you know, I did find the genuine remedy after all and I had not been taking Dodd's Kidney Pills very long before I knew that they were an honest remedy that would do all and more than was claimed for them. They cured me, made a well man of me and I am now as sound as I ever was.

"I can testify that Dodd's Kidney Pills are a genuine remedy for Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble."

CONSUMPTION

THE PRESIDENT ON THE TARIFF

Says the Question Should Be Treated as a Business Proposition.

POLICY IS STABLE AND WISE

But We Should Be Able to Change Our Policy to Meet Changed Conditions—In Changing Duties to Affect Trusts We Must Not Forget Other Interests.

Minneapolis, April 5.—The biggest, most tremendous, most enthusiastic reception ever tendered any man in the Twin Cities was that to President Roosevelt yesterday. His speech at the Armory Hall, which was on tariff and reciprocity, brought out much enthusiasm.

President Roosevelt was introduced by President Northrup, of the University of Minnesota, and spoke as follows:

My Fellow Citiens: At the special session of the senate held in March the Cuban reciprocity treaty was ratified.

When this treaty goes into effect it will confer substantial economic benefits alike upon Cuba, because of the widening of her market in the United States, and upon the United States, because of the equal widening and the progressive control it will give to our people in the Cuban market. This treaty is beneficial to both parties and justifies itself on several grounds.

In the first place we offer to Cuba her natural market. We can confer upon her a benefit which no other nation can confer; and for the very reason that we have started her as an independent republic and that we are rich, prosperous and powerful it behooves us to stretch out a helping hand to our feeble younger sister. In the next place it widens the market for our products, both the products of the farm and certain of our manufactures; and it is therefore in the interests of our farmers, manufacturers, merchants and wage-workers. Finally, the treaty was not merely warranted, but demanded, apart from all other considerations, by the enlightened consideration of our foreign policy. More and more in the future we must occuupy a preponderant position in the waters and along the coasts in the region south of us; not a position of control over the republics of the south, but of control of the military situation so as to avoid any possible complications in the future. Under the Platt amendment Cuba agreed to give us certain naval stations on her coast. The navy department decided that we needed but two, and we have specified where these two are to be. President Palma has concluded an agreement giving them to us—an agreement which the Cuban legislative body will doubtless soon ratify.

In other words, the republic of Cuba has assumed a special relation to our international political system, under which she gives us outposts of defense, and we are morally bound to extend to her in a degree the benefit of our own economic system. From every standpoint of wise and enlightened home and foreign policy the ratification of the Cuban treaty marked a step of substantial progress in the growth of our nation toward greatness at home and abroad.

Equally important was the action on the tariff upon products of the Philippines. We gave them a reduction of 25 per cent, and would have given them a reduction of 25 per cent more had it not been for opposition, in the hurried closing days of the last session, of certain gentlemen, who, by the way, have been representing themselves both as peculiarly solicitous for the interests of the Philippine people and as special champions of the lowering of tariff duties. There is a distinctly humorous side to the fact that the reduction of duties which would benefit Cuba and the Philippines as well as ourselves was antagonized chiefly by those who in theory have been fond of proclaiming themselves the advance guardians of the oppressed nationalists in the islands affected and the ardent advocates of the reduction of duties generally, but who instantly took violent ground against the practical steps to accomplish either purpose.

Moreover, a law was enacted putting anthracite on the free list and completely removing the duties on all other kinds of coal for one year.

We are now in a condition of prosperity unparalleled not merely in our own history but in the history of any other nation.

This prosperity is deep rooted and stands on a firm basis, because it is due to the fact that the average American has in him the stuff out of which victors are made in the great industrial contests of the present day, just as in the great military contests of the past; and because he is now able to use and develop his qualities to best advantage under our well established economic system. We are winning headship among the nations of the world because our people are able to keep their high average of individual citizenship and to show their mastery in the hard, complex, pushing life of the age.

There will be fluctuations from time to time in our prosperity, but it will continue to grow so long as we keep up this high average of individual citizenship and permit it to work out its own salvation under proper economic legislation.

The present phenomenal prosperity has been won under a tariff which was made in accordance with certain fixed and definite principles, the most important of which is an avowed determination to protect the interests of the American producer, business man, wage-worker and farmer alike.

The general tariff policy, to which, without regard to changes in detail, I believe this country is irrevocably committed, is fundamentally based upon ample recognition of the difference between the cost of production—that is the cost of labor—here and abroad, and of the need to see to it that our laws shall in no event afford advantages in our own market to foreign industries over American industries, to foreign capital over American capital, to foreign labor over our own labor.

This country has and this country needs better-paid, better-educated, better-fed and better-clothed workingmen, of a higher type than are to be found in any foreign country. It has and it needs a higher, more vigorous and more prosperous type of tillers of the soil than is possessed by any other country. The business men, the merchants and manufacturers and the managers of the transportation interests show the same superiority when compared with men of their type abroad. The events of the last few years have shown how skilfully the leaders of American industry use in international competition the mighty industrial weapons forged for them by the resources of our country, the wisdom of our laws and the skill, the inventive genius and the administrative capacity of our people.

It is, of course, a mere truism to say that we want to use everything in our power to foster the welfare of our entire body politic.

In other words, we need to treat the tariff as a business proposition, from the standpoint of the interests of the country as a whole, and not with reference to the temporary needs of any political party.

It is almost as necessary that our policy should be stable as that it should be wise. A nation like ours could not long stand the ruinous policy of readjusting its business to radical changes in the tariff at short intervals, especially when, as now, owing to the immense extent and variety of our products, the tariff schedules carry rates of duty of thousands of different articles. Sweeping and violent changes in such a tariff, touching so vitally the interests of all of us, embracing agriculture, labor, manufactures and commerce, would be disastrous in any event, and they would be fatal to our present well-being if approached on the theory that the principle of the protective tariff was to be abandoned. The business world, that is, the entire American world, can not afford, if it has any regard for its own welfare, even to consider the advisability of abandoning the present system.

Yet on the other hand, where the industrial conditions so frequently change, as with us must of necessity be the case, it is a matter of prime importance that we should be able from time to time to adapt our economic policy to the changed conditions. Our aim should be to preserve the policy of a protective tariff, in which the nation as a whole has acquiesced, yet wherever and whenever necessary, to change the duties in particular paragraphs or schedules as matters of legislative detail, if such change is demanded by the interests of the nation as a whole.

In making any readjustment there are certain important considerations which can not be disregarded. If a tariff law has on the whole worked well, and if business has prospered under it and is prospering, it may be better to endure some inconveniences and inequalities for a time than by making changes to risk causing disturbance and perhaps paralysis in the industries and business of the country. The fact that the change in a given rate of duty may be thought desirable does not settle the question whether it is advisable to make the change immediately. Every tariff deals with duties on thousands of articles arranged in hundreds of paragraphs and in many schedules. These duties affect a vast number of interests which are often conflicting. If necessary for our welfare, then of course congress must consider the question of changing the law as a whole or changing any given rates of duty, but we must remember that whenever even a single schedule is considered some interests will appear to demand a change in almost every schedule in the law; and when it comes to upsetting the schedules generally the effect upon the business interests of the country would be ruinous.

One point we must steadily keep in mind. The question of tariff revision, speaking broadly, stands wholly apart from the question of dealing with the trusts.

No change in tariff duties can have any substantial effect in solving the so-called trust problem. Certain great trusts or great corporations are wholly unaffected by the tariff. Practically all the others that are of any importance have as a matter of fact numbers of smaller American competitors; and of course a change in the tariff which would work injury to the large corporation would work not merely injury, but destruction, to its smaller competitors; and equally of course such a change would mean disaster to all the wage-earners connected with either the large or the small corporations. From the standpoint of those interested in the solution of the trust problem such a change would therefore merely mean that the trust was relieved of the competition of its weaker American competitors, and thrown only into competition with foreign competitors; and that the first effort to meet this new competition would be made by cutting down wages, and would therefore be primarily at the cost of labor. In the case of some of our greatest trusts such a change might confer upon them a positive benefit.

Speaking broadly, it is evident that the changes in the tariff will affect the trusts for weal or woe simply as they affect the whole country. The tariff affects trusts only as it affects all other interests. It makes all these interests, large or small, profitable; and its benefits can be taken from the large only under penalty of taking them from the small also.

To sum up, then, we must as a people approach a matter of such prime economic importance as the tariff from the standpoint of our business needs.

We can not afford to become fossilized or to fail to recognize the fact that as the needs of the country change it may be necessary to meet these new needs by changing certain features of our tariff laws.

Still less can we afford to fail to recognize the further fact that these changes must not be made until the need for them outweighs the disadvantages which may result; and when it becomes necessary to make them they should be made with full recognition of the need of stability in our economic system and of keeping unchanged the principle of that system which has now become a settled policy in our national life. We have prospered marvelously at home. As a nation we stand in the very forefront in the giant international industrial competition of the day. We can not afford by any freak of folly to forfeit the position to which we have thus triumphantly attained.

The Stone Manufacturing and Building company of Des Moines is back of a proposed concrete stone factory at Huron, S. D., where an abundance of materials for the easy manufacture of the product are to be found at a reasonable price. The factory will be made the distributing point for the northwestern country. It is not understood that the factory has been definitely determined upon as yet, but it is projected with the chances in favor of it being carried through.

The Waterloo Concrete Stone company, is planning to build fifteen or twenty factories in Iowa. Fort Dodge, Cherokee, and Oskaloosa are among the favored points. The Fort Dodge plant will be the first one built. It is said the demand for concrete stone is so great that it is almost impossible to satisfy it. The Waterloo Stone company recently changed hands, E. C. Litchfield becoming the general manager. The company operates four factories and quarries.

That the people of South Carolina had little regard for Theodore Parker, the anti-slavery leader, is evident from the experience a Boston merchant once had in Charleston. According to J. H. Trowbridge, in the Atlantic Monthly, an excited crowd gathering around the hotel register where he had written his name, observed him with suspicious whisperings. Thereupon the excited landlord stepped up to him and said anxiously: "Your name is Parker?" "That is my name, sir." "Theodore Parker, of Boston, the abolitionist?" "Oh no, no, sir! I am Theodore D. Parker, a very different man!" The landlord heaved a sigh of relief. "I am glad to hear it!" he said; "and allow me to give you a bit of wholesome advice. When you are registering your name in Southern hotels, write the D. damned plain!"

HOW A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN ESCAPED SPRING CATARRH BY USE OF PE-RU-NA.

Nothing Robs One of Strength Like Spring Catarrh--Spring Fever is Spring Catarrh.

MISS HELEN WHITMAN.

Miss Helen Whitman, 308½ Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"There is nothing like Peruna for that tired feeling, which gives you no ambition for work or play. After a prolonged illness, about a year ago I felt unable to regain my health, but four bottles of Peruna made a wonderful change and restored me to perfect health. As long as you keep your blood in good condition you are all right, and Peruna seems to fill the veins with pure, healthful blood. I thoroughly endorse it."

MISS HELEN WHITMAN.

Have you got nerves? Well, you ought to have nerves. But they ought to be strong nerves, good nerves. Does your hand tremble? You are living too fast. Does your heart flutter at times? You had better call a halt. Americans live too fast. They crowd too much into a single day. They have too little leisure. The hospitals and insane asylums are filling up. The quiet, pastoral scenes of yore are becoming rare. It's time that we quit this sort of business.

How to Get Strong Nerves.

First, repair the injury already done to your nerves. The way to do this is to do exactly as did Mattie B. Curtis, Secretary of Legion of Loyal Women, Hotel Salem, Boston, Mass. She said in a recent letter: "I suffered for over a year with general weakness and debility manifested in severe headache and backache. I took four bottles of Peruna, and for two months have been entirely free from these maladies."

Nervous Prostration.

Thousands of cases might be quoted in which Peruna has been used to rescue people from the perdition of deranged nerves, and put them on the good, solid foundation of health. The County Auditor of Erie County, New York, Hon. John W. Neff, in a recent letter written at Buffalo, New York, stated: "I was persuaded by a friend to try a bottle of your great nerve tonic, Peruna, and the results were so gratifying that I am more than pleased to recommend it."

A Spring Tonic.

Almost everybody needs a tonic in the spring. Something to brace the nerves, invigorate the brain and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question. Everyone who has tried it has had the same experience as Mrs. D. W. Timberlake, of Lynchburg, Va., who in a recent letter, made use of the following words: "I always take a dose of Peruna after business hours, as it is a great thing for the nerves. There is no better spring tonic, and I have used about all of them."

Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the best time to treat catarrh. Nature renews herself every spring. The system is rejuvenated by spring weather. This renders medicines more effective. A short course of Peruna, assisted by the balmy air of spring, will cure old, stubborn cases of catarrh that have resisted treatment for years. Everybody should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book on catarrh. Address the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Lulu Larmer, Stoughton, Wis., says:

"For two years I suffered with nervous trouble and stomach disorders until it seemed that there was nothing to me but a bundle of nerves. I was very irritable, could not sleep, rest or compose myself, and was certainly unfit to take care of a household. I took nerve tonics and pills without benefit. When I began taking Peruna I grew steadily better, my nerves grew stronger, my rest was no longer fitful, and to-day I consider myself in perfect health and strength. My recovery was slow but sure, but I persevered and was rewarded by perfect health."—Mrs. Lulu Larmer.

Mrs. Lulu Larmer.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

I consider it a most excellent preparation."

Dr. T. Jones, of Osgood, Mo., writes under date of Oct. 28, 1899: "I have used Syrup Pepsin for some time and find it gives most excellent results and it is one of the greatest selling preparations I have ever carried in stock. I do not hesitate to recommend it.

VOLUME VIII. NUMBER 37. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, APRIL 15 1903 $1 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

A Notable Structure.

The annual Engineering number of the RAILWAY AGE, issued March 20, contains a very interesting and instructive account of the construction of the new Rock Island passenger depot in Chicago.

In many respects the building is one of the most remarkable structures of recent years and the rapidity with which it has been erected is graphically shown in connection with the article, by a series of photographs taken at intervals of from 10 to 30 days. In the photographs, the building is seen rising like a flourishing plant—one story, then three, four, seven, eleven, and finanally the top cornice.

The building is 12 steries high and has a frontage on Van Buren street of 215 feet. The construction directly pertaining to the station extends south from Van Buren street 1,433 feet. The train shed is 580 feet long and 215 feet in width. The roof is supported by 19 steel trusses. The center is 85 feet above the track level The glass area in roof, sides and ends exceeds 48,000 square feet.

Some interesting facts are:

The amount of structural steel used in the depot is greater than in any other building in Chicago, being 14,200 tons.

More than 200,000 fiel rivets were used.

A total of 2,280 piles were used in the foundation.

The tracks enter the station at an elevation of 15 feet above the sidewalks.

There will be 6,800 electric lights in the main building and 108 arc lamps in the train shed.

There are 11 tracks; 1500 trains a day can be moved in and out of the station.

The modern and economical methods used in construction are illustrated by the fact that one of the first acts of the contractors was to set up in the old train shed a Gates stone crusher, and as fast as the stone was taken from the walls of the old building it was put through the crusher and used in the foundations of the building.

An indication in the difference in the size of the two buildings is given by the fact that the stone from the old building was not sufficient for the foundations of the new, and considerable additional stone had to be purchased.

Trains ceased running into the old depot December 9, 1901, and it is expected the new depot will be occupied May 1. This gives sixteen months as the time occupied in demolishing the old building, putting in the new foundation and erecting and finishing the new building.

The total area of the depot, train shed and power house is 197,401 square feet, or a little over 4½ acres.

The new building is on the site of the old station and is the only passenger depot in Chicago located on the elevated loop, over which trains of all elevated lines pass.

The first and second floors are devoted to waiting rooms, ticket office, etc., and the floors above to general offices of the railways using the depot.

A Most Libera Offer.

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper The Iowa Homestead, its Special Farmers' Institute Editions, and The Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our home, and make the price of the four one year for only $1.40. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known thruout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Iowa Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the West; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while The Special Farmer's Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined

An ingenious clock for the use of hotels has been devised. It is stationed in the office, and is so constructed that it can be made to give an awakening ring in any room at any specified time, and it will do its duty faithfully, without oversleeping itself, as porters and other hotel attendants sometimes do.

Nickel coins, similar to those used in the United States, Germany and Belgium, are soon to be introduced in France. The value of the coin will be twenty-five centimes, equal to about five cents. It will weigh six grams. The new coin will be of considerable utility, as at present there is no intermediate money between the ten-centime piece and the half-franc.

A system of wireless telegraphy is ingeniously worked by the porters of hotels in various European cities. The position, or angle, marked by the way in which a label is pasted on a guest's baggage indicates whether the owner is accustomed to tipping. For instance, if the upper left-hand corner of the label points downward, he is generous; if the label is straightly placed, the sides parallel with the sides of the trunk, he is a mean fellow, averse to tipping, and on him special attention would be wasted. He's a lobster!

A Veteran's Story.

Bath, N. Y., April 13th.—The first consideration of the Commandant and Officers in the conduct of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home here is the health of the Veterans. Kidney Troubles are the most common cause of ailment, very few of the old men escaping these in some form or other.

Of course the comrades do as much as possible for themselves, and one or the most popular and useful remedies employed is Dodd's Kidney Pills, which seem to be almost infallible in cases of Kidney derangements. Indeed there are among the veterans several who claim to owe their lives to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

For instance, A. E. Ayers, who came to the home from Minneapolis, Minn., was given up by four doctors in that city. He had Bright's Disease, and never expected to live through it, but his life was saved and his health restored by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

His experience has made the remedy very popular among the men, and no one who has used Dodd's Kidney Pills for any Kidney Trouble has been disappointed.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, April 13, 1903.

George M. Rommel, special agent of the department of agriculture for the study of animal husbandry, on a visit to Des Moines, says he is preparing a bulletin of the department on the subject of swine raising. Much of his most important material has been gathered among the pork producers of Iowa, and Iowa will stand out prominently in the bulletin, which is to be published during the present season. Mr. Rommell is a graduate of the State college at Ames. He is a son of Prof. A. Rommell of Mount Pleasant. A year ago he prepared a bulletin on horse markets, which was published by the department of agriculture, and which made a name for the Iowa young man throughout the country. He has gathered quantities of statistics concerning hog raising in Iowa but withholds his figures for publication in the bulletin.

E. S. Ellsworth, president of the Des Moines, Iowa Falls and Northern Railroad company, denies that there is any truth in the story published recently to the effect that this road has been sold to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad company. Mr. Ellsworth has written a letter in which he says: "It is decidedly annoying to read in some of our state papers, almost daily, sensational articles referring to sale of the Des Moines, Iowa Falls and Northern railway to some other company. While in the past I have paid little attention to such reports, I deem it only proper to refute the article, purporting to come from Lester Soule. I can assure you if any negotiations were pending, I think I would be the first one to know it. The Des Moines, Iowa Falls and Northern road is first to be completed, when its value and usefulness will be then known. We are prosecuting the work with renewed vigor, and I am pleased to say, with new men. Its owners are quite able to take care of it, and do not believe in taking 'green apples' to market.'"

Governor Cummins has received a letter from Washington informing him the interior department had determined to repay the state of Iowa for the sum of $7,000, which the last legislature appropriated to defray the cost of renovating the Tama Indians and their reservation. At the time the general assembly was in session, small pox was raging in the reservation, and in order to protect the surrounding whites, immediately, the state had no other recourse but to temporarily bear the expense itself. The reservation was cleaned up thoroughly, the Indians were disinfected, infected clothing destroyed, and new purchased to substitute for that which had to be burned. The interior department has directed the Indian bureau to repay the state for its expenditures.

Major William C. Butler of the Twenty-fifth infantry and Major Daniel H. Brush of the Fifth infantry have been detailed from the department of Missouri to inspect the Iowa National Guard.

The meeting of the representatives of the various mutual fire insurance companies of Iowa held at the Kirkwood hotel was largely attended. The only feature of public interest which was discussed was the adoption of a resolution expressing it as the sense of the companies that there should be an insurance department created in Iowa. After an extended discussion of the question, it was decided that a committee would be appointed to formulate a definite plan of action for having a bill introduced at the next session of the legislature looking to the establishment of the department

By far the most important of the railroad reports thus far received for the year 1902, those of the Northwestern and the Rock Island systems, have just reached the office of secretary A. H. Davidson of the executive council. Both systems show large increases in their gross and net earnings as compared with the earnings of 1901. It is notable that the two systems have each complied for the most part with the demands of the council in respect to classification of earnings. The Northwestern has been especially thorough in regard to this. The Rock Island has for the most part made out its report in accordance with the council's wishes. The Rock Island report shows $77,970,022,93 as the total gross earnings for Iowa in 1902. The gross earnings per mile were $6,805.77. The operating expenses were $4,759,381.77 and the net earnings were $3,210,641.16. In 1901 the gross earnings were $7,783,695,36, the operating expenses were $4,777,735.50, and the net earnings were $3,005,959.86. For an Iowa line only, the B., C. R. & N. shows gross earnings for 1902 of $4,581,631.70, operating expenses of $3,010,438.51, and net earnings of $1,571,193.19. In 1901 the earnings were greater, the gross earnings being $4,773,630.32, the operating expenses $3,020,376.10, and the net earnings $1,753,254.22. The Chicago & Northwestern system reports the same mileage for 1902 as for 1901, that is 1,164,74 miles of road on the system proper in Iowa and 383.2 miles of the Toledo & Northwestern, and 26,40 for the Chicago, Iowa & Dakota, making a grand total Iowa mileage of 1,564. The total gross earnings for 1902 on the system in Iowa, including the Toledo & Northwestern and the Chicago, Iowa & Dakota, were $11,956,965.90; the operating expenses were $8,614,463,23; the net earnings were $3,733,501.56. This is an increase over 1901, when the system made the following showing on its line in Iowa: Gross earnings, $11,926,821.90; operating expenses, $8,644,325.79; net earnings, $3,282,496.11.

DECISION IS A GREAT BLESSING

John Skelton Williams, of Seaboard Air Line, Discusses the Merger Verdict.

SOUND LAW AND GOOD SENSE

Is to the Advantage of All Legitimate Interests and the Country's Welfare—Is Idle to Talk of a Political Republic With a Financial Tyranny.

Richmond, Va., April 13.—The decision of the United States circuit court of appeals in the Northern Securities case, Mr. John Skelton Williams, president of the Seaboard Air Line railway system, says he regards as one of the greatest blessings and the brightest promise for railroad interests and general business that the country could have. In an interview with a representative of the Associated Press, when asked his opinion of the decision, Mr. Williams said:

"I am satisfied that when they come to study the matter carefully, railroad men and thinking men of all classes not only in the south, but in the country generally, except those whose ambitious schemes are directly hindered, will be united in the feeling that the decision is sound law, good sense and for the advantage of all legitimate interests and for the country's welfare. From a legal standpoint it accords with the opinions of many of the ablest lawyers in the country, and it seems to be fortified with authorities and reasoning too strong to be shaken I have no fear that the supreme court will reverse or seriously modify it Public policy, public sentiment and established principles and precedents of law combine to sustain the circuit court.

"The independent roads and systems are by this decision assured that connecting lines with whom they interchange business cannot be bought up by some powerful competitors of their own and of such friendly connecting lines, and the holders of securities in the independent systems will be assured that their interests cannot be jeopardizeed by the sale of a majority share to rivals whose interests may be to divert the business of the road to other channels at the expense of minority holders. The larger systems on the other hand, are protected against the building of parallel lines built to force them to buy to protect themeselves.

"The decision seems to make impossible the success of the projected Southern Securities company. It will be recollected that in the recent hearing before the inter-state commerce commission in the Louisville Nashville case Mr. Gates testified that if the Northern Securities company was upheld Mr. Morgan proposed the organization of a southern securities company to merge certain important roads in the south, plans having been discussed or arranged to await the decision, which Mr. Morgan expected to be favorable to his methods. It could not have been a healthy or safe situation if a few men could have sat in their offices in New York and controlled the railway systems of this entire country, not safe for the stockholders of the roads themselves nor for the public.

"Speaking for the independent systems, I welcome the promise of continued fair competition. There is plenty of business to give good profits to all roads and systems properly established and wisely managed, and there will be demand for extension, and for new lines to carry the steadily increasing traffic and travel. As for the general public, it is idle to talk of a political republic with a financial tyranny. There is no more safety in having commerce at the mercy of an absolute ruler than there would be in having our government controlled by a czar, who might be a benevolent or a cruel despot, a wise or a ruinous one, according to his whim or abilities or the circumstances. Instead of disturbing our prosperity, this decision if sustained, as I believe it will be will establish, secure and protect the commercial situation; it will encourage and foster legitimate extension and growth and expansion, and stimulate enterprise and industry and local effort by guaranteeing them against oppression anl forced absorption."

A HUNDRED MOROS KILLED.

Manila, April 11.—Captain Pershing's force captured Bacolod island of Mindanao, Wednesday, killed a hundred Moros and wounded many others. Three Americans were wounded.

Anti-Strike Bill Passes.

The Hague, April 10.—The second chamber of The Netherlands parliament today adopted the anti-strike bill by 81 to 14. The socialists and liberal democrats voted with the minority. It was to prevent the adoption of this bill that the big strike was inaugurated, simply as a demonstration of popular disapproval.

Here's a Recipe for Making Bread.

WHEN a well bred girl expects to wed,
'Tis well to remember that men like bread.
We're going to show the steps to take,
So she may learn good bread to make.

2.

FIRST, mix a lukewarm quart, my daughter,
One-half of milk and one-half of water;
To this please add two cakes
of yeast,
Or the liquid kind if preferred in the least.

3.

NEXT stir in a teaspoonful of nice clear salt,
If this bread is n't good, it won't be our fault.
Now add the sugar, tablespoonfuls three;
Mix well together, for dissolved they must be.

4.

POUR the whole mixture into an earthen bowl,
A pan's just as good, if it hasn't a hole.
It's the cook and the flour,
not the bowl or the pan,
That—"Makes the bread that makes the man."

5.

NOW let the mixture stand
a minute or two.
You've other things of great importance to do.
First sift the flour—use the finest in the land.
Three quarts is the measure,
"GOLD MEDAL" the brand.

6.

SOME people like a little shortening power,
If this is your choice, just add to the flour
Two tablespoonfuls of lard, and jumble it about,
Till the flour and lard are mixed without doubt.

7.

NEXT stir the flour into the mixture that's stood Waiting to play its part, to make the bread good.
Mix it up thoroughly, but not too thick;
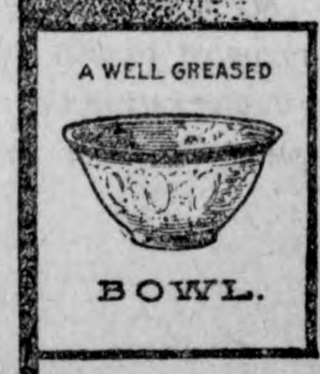
Some flours make bread
that's more like a brick.



8.

NOW grease well a bowl and put the dough in,
Don't fill the bowl full, that would be a sin;
For the dough is all right and it's going to rise,
Till you will declare that it's twice the old size.

9.

BRUSH the dough with melted butter, as the recipes say;
Cover with a bread towel, set in a warm place to stay
Two hours or more, to rise until light,
When you see it grow, you'll know it's all right.

10.

AS soon as it's light place
again on the board;
Knead it well this time. Here is knowledge to hoard.
Now back in the bowl once more it must go,
And set again to rise for an hour or so.

11.

FORM the dough gently into loaves when light,
And place it in bread pans greased just right.
Shape each loaf you make to half fill the pan,
This bread will be good enough for any young man.

12.

NEXT let it rise to the level of pans—no more,
Have the temperature right—
don't set near a door.
We must be careful about draughts; it isn't made to freeze,
Keep the room good and warm—say 72 degrees.

13.

NOW put in the oven,—it's ready to bake,—
Keep uniform fire, great results are at stake.
One hour more of waiting and you'll be repaid,
By bread that is worthy "A Well Bred Maid."

Here is the Same Thing in Prose.

GOLD MEDAL FLOUR.

BREAD RECIPE.

To one quart of lukewarm wetting—half water and half milk, or water alone—add two half-ounce compressed yeast cakes, or the usual quantity of liquid yeast, and stir until dissolved.

Add one teaspoonful of salt and three tablespoonfuls of sugar and when well dissolved, stir in with wooden spoon, three quarts of well sifted flour, or until dough is sufficiently stiff to be turned from the mixing bowl to the moulding board in a mass.

If shortening is desired add two tablespoonfuls lard.

Knead this dough, adding if necessary from time to time, flour until it becomes smooth and elastic and ceases to stick to fingers or board.

Do not make dough too stiff. Spring Wheat Flour needs a little more working than Winter Wheat Flour, and should be a little softer to make it rise properly.

Put dough into well greased earthen bowl, brush lightly with melted butter or drippings, cover with towel and set in warm place, about 75 degrees, for two hours, or until light, then knead well and return to bowl, cover as before and set for another hour's rising or until light.

When light, form gently into loaves or rolls, place in greased bread pans, brush with butter or drippings, cover again and let stand for one and one-half hours, then bake.

The Eastor exercises at the various churches were quite elaborate this year. The Danville sale which occured some time ago has been reported in full, and has gone down in history as one of the most successful auction sales ever held in this vicinity. Some rare bargains were offered to the public on this occasion including a patent milk stool and a miner's lamp. The milk stool is so constructed that it is impossible for the most vicious cow to seriously injure you while in the act of milking and is a wonderful invention coming from fertile brain of one of this countrys most noted inventors. The miners lamp has oft times bedecked the sky piece of this gentleman who offered it for sale and for many a weary hour has its faint rays revealed the whereabouts of a vein of coal. No one appreciated the value of this lamp and as a result it is still the property of Mr. Danville. The other property offered for sale brought good prices.

MERGER IS DEFEATED.

Federal Court Enjoins Northern Securities Company.

St. Paul, Minn., April 10.—The United States circuit court of appeals yesterday handed down a decision in the suit of the United States against the Northern Securities company, enjoining the company from voting the stock of the Northern Pacific or Great Northern Railway companies, but allowing the return of such stock as had been delivered to that holding company. The opinion was unanimous, all four judges concurring, but the opinion was written by Judge Thayer.

The substance of the order is in the decree, which is as follows:

A decree for the United States will accordingly be entered to the following effect:

"Adjudging that the stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies, now held by the Securities company, was acquired in virtue of a combination among the defendannts in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states; enjoining the Securities company from acquiring or attempting to acquire further stock of either of said companies, also enjoining it from voting such stock at any meeting of the stockholders of either of said railroad companies or exercising or attempting to exercise any control, direction or supervision of influence over the acts of said companies or either of them by virtue of its holding such stock; enjoining the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies, respectively, their officers, directors or agents, from permitting such stock to be voted by the Northern Securities company or any of its agents or attorneys on its behalf, at any corporate election for directors or officers of either of said companies and likewise enjoining them from paying any dividends to the Securities company on account of said stock or permitting or suffering the Securities company to exercise any control whatsoever over the corporate acts of said companies or to direct the policy of either, and finally permitting the Securities company to return and transfer this stock to the stockholders of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies, any and all shares of stock of those companies which it may have received from such stockholders in exchange for its own stock, or to make such transfer and assignment to such person or persons as are now the holders and owners of its stock originally issued in exchange for the stock or said companies."

RAILROADS CITED TO APPEAR.

Interstate Commerce Commission After Several Western Lines.

Washington, April 10.—The interstate commerce commission yesterday made a number of trunk railway lines respondents in proceedings involving the legality of their local rates on grain and grain products and in the case of two of the roads the class and commodity rates, and issued an order requiring the roads to file answers by May 1.

In the case of the Chicago & Northwestern, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Chicago Great Western, Chicago, Milwaukee & St Paul, Wabash and Rock Island the commission says it appears that these lines made large advances in rates between Missouri river points and St Louis, other Mississippi river points, Chicago and intermediate destinations during the last half of 1902, on grain and grain products originating west of the Missouri; that such advances operated to increase total rates on such traffic from points west of the Missouri river to Chicago and the other points and that high local charges between these various points have been and are kept in force by such carriers. In the case of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas and the St. Louis & San Francisco the commission says it appears that these roads put in effect class rates between St. Louis and Texas common points considerably higher than those in effect on like traffic at any time since the operation of the interstate commerce law in 1887, except classes D and E, upon which rates are respectively 1 cent higher and 1 cent lower and slightly lower than on November 20, 1889, but 3 cents higher than on December 4, 1893. It also appears to the commission that many special or commodity rates were also increased about the same time, and that rates to Texas common points from numerous territories, including practically all sections east of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers have also been materially increased by these advances in these rates from St. Louis, and that these advances may be unreasonable and otherwise in violation of the law. investigation of the legality of these rates is therefore ordered and following the filing of the answer a hearing will be arranged at which representatives of the various roads will be required.

What Did He Mean?

The Rev. John S. Lyon at the dinner of the Paper Manufacturers' association spoke of a friend who received a letter from one of his parishioners which read: "My Dear Pastor—I have been sick for two months and have not been able to hear your excellent sermons, which has been a great comfort to me."—New York Times.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

Frank Bebee, 35 years old, died at Charlotte as the result of a strange and horrible accident. While driving a team of mules he was thrown out over the dash board of his wagon. His foot caught in the wheel and his leg was terribly mangled and nearly torn from its socket. The member was amputated, but he died from the shock.

Fire, which is supposed to have originated from spontaneous combustion, completely gutted the big new factory building of the Herrick Refrigerator company at Waterloo. The loss is estimated at about $8,000, fully covered by insurance. The building contained a large quantity of finishing lumber and other valuable stores, most of which is a total loss on account of damage by water and smoke.

Roger Clay and Frank Boehmler, prominent young business men of Cedar Falls, were carried over the Cedar river dam in a sail boat and drowned. Mr. Clay might have been rescued but for his frantic haste when a boat was sent out. Mr. Clay was secretary and treasurer of the Cedar Falls and Janesville Light and Power company and was a young man of exemplary character who was making for himself an early success in life. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Clay.

H. A. Groves was arrested in Sioux City a few days ago just before taking a train for Council Bluffs. Groves is one of a gang of four men who have burglarized homes in Sioux City on a wholesale scale. The members of the gang would secure rooms, fill their grips with portable things of value and leave the house. John Ryan was also arrested by the police in the act of burglarizing the Larson-Swan dry goods store Ryan has been identified by Mrs. E. D. Maxon as the man who entered her house and held up the entire household The same man on that night entered the Marvin, Palmer, Blondel and Parker residences in the Hill district The authorities are unable to get clues or evidence that Ryan has any accomplices.

An extensive book agent fraud in which several prominent women among them Mrs. T. E. Carter, wife of the former anti-saloon league superintendent, were made innocent parties was exposed at Sioux City a few days ago by the arrest of H. A. Groves, one of the agents, on the charge of burglary. The scheme was to engage prominent women to solicit for subscriptions for an alleged New England book and magazine company, and printed blanks were furnished for that purpose. Most of the women who are prominent in church work, solicited subscriptions and collected the cash which was turned over to the agent, less their commission. Groves added burglary to this offense just before leaving by robbing the house at which he was stopping. He was arrested when taking the train for Council Bluffs, with the stolen goods in his possession. The police believe from the evidence that the scheme has been widely worked throughout the northwest.

In order to obtain support among friends for her three little children, the oldest of whom was 14, Mrs. Ellen M. Arthur walked all the way from the gulf towns of Texas to Sioux City. She had seen a prospectus of the southern state which pictured it as a land flowing with milk and honey. When she got there she faced the alternative of starving or walking, and she chose the latter. Buying a little express wagon, in which she placed her 9-year-old daughter Barbara, and pulling the little cart after her, she started out on the long tramp back to home and friends. Across the huge state of Texas trudged the mournful little party, through the Indian territory, up through Kansas and Missouri until Iowa was reached, finally reaching Sioux City. This is probably the longest tramp on record ever taken by a woman and children. The courts have just allowed Mrs. Arthur a divorce from the husband she has been separated from for several years, with $2,000 alimony. She has been looked after by friends since her arrival in Sioux City.

As the first step in increasing the yield of corn in Iowa by fifty million bushels, the possibility of which was demonstrated by Prof. Holden of Ames, the Iowa Corn Growers' Association will give away to every farmer in the state a package of pure bred seed corn. The corn is Reed's Yellow Dent, the only grain known that has been scientifically bred for half a century. It has been purchased in large amount, by the Corn Growers' association, an association formed by George S. Forest, superintendent of agriculture for the World's Fair, and will be given away in two pound packages upon receipt of enough money to pay postage, twenty-five cents. This will plant one-fourth of an acre and yield a large amount of seed corn for the coming year. Farmers wishing the corn should write to George S. Forest, at Miles, Iowa, or to Prof. Holden, at Ames. Prof. Holden states that if Reed's Yellow Dent is sown in the state there will be little doubt but that the yield will be increased in a very short time. A portion of the corn raised will be used in the Iowa exhibit at the St. Louis exposition.

The papal delegation at Washington has held in regard to a Sioux City church that neither the congregation nor the diocese is responsible for debts contracted without the knowledge or assent of the bishop. A debt of $60,000 was contracted by Father W. Fowler for the building of St. Joseph's church. The loan was made through an English company at Montreal. The matter was recently brought before the delegation at Washington, which absolved the congregation from responsibility, saying if the loan company wanted to loan money without the consent of the bishop it must take the risk. The property is not deemed good for the sum.

While the official announcement has not yet been received dispatches from Washington state that two Iowa national guard regiments will be permitted to go to Fort Riley this fall to take part in the maneuvers there. The understanding is that Secretary Root will grant the request made by Adjutant General Byers some weeks ago, that two Iowa regiments be permitted to go. The decision of the war department is of no little importance to the Iowa guard, as the maneuvers at Fort Riley, along with regular troops, and under the supervision of the ablest masters of the art of war in the United States army, will afford the guard opportunities for instruction such as nothing short of actual service in the field in time of hostilities could furnish.

The board of trustees of the State Normal school at Cedar Falls has recently passed a regulation whereby all studens who fail to take their work in spelling, rhetoricals and society work as is required by the course of study, must be discontinued from attending the institution. This regulation was passed because the trustees and members of the faculty deemed it necessary for teachers to be good representatives of the correct usage of the English language. Physical training has also been made a required study for next year. At least two terms will be required of all students who expect to graduate in 1904 and afterward on the physical training question, as just as soon as the new gymnasium is completed it is the intention of the trustees to require all students to take a two-years' course in physical training. This department of physical training was instituted about two years ago and the trustees the highly pleased at the results shown by the department since its organization.

Sixteen inmates of the hospital for the insane at Independence all belonging to the inebriate ward made their escape from the asylum a few days ago. About thirty inmates were out walking for their daily jaunt under the guidance of Attendants Lathrop and Smith. They were taken out upon the highway and when the limit of the walk was reached sixteen of the men struck for the fields. Lathrop staid with his wards, directing Smith to follow the runaways. Smith was taken by the men, severely whipped and laid out in a ditch. Five men were later captured at Otterv...e, a village four miles north of Independence. The others made good their escape. Two men were shot, one in the thigh and one in the leg, but they boarded a Rock Island train and are now in a Cedar Rapids hospital. There are conflicting stories as to their wounds. They state they were shot by an attendant. The other inebriates say they approached a farm house for food and were taken for tramps and driven away with shot guns. This is the third escape in three weeks. Eight escaped April 1st, and the two weeks previous. They are the hardest class of patients to handle. The two men wounded were: Henry Miner, Cedar Rapids; Frank Crowley, Iowa City. The men base their attempt to escape on alleged abuse and improper treatment by hospital authorities.

As the result of his recent visit to Omaha to confer with officers of the department of the Missouri, in regard to the inspection of the Iowa National Guard, required under the new Dick law, Adjutant General Byers expects an early inspection of the guard. While in Omaha, Adjutant General Byers conferred with Col. E. J. McClernand, who is adjutant general of the department of the Missouri. General Bates was not present, being in Chicago at the time General Byers was in Omaha. It was the design of Adjutant General Byers to have the Fifty-fourth regiment inspected first, but Col. McClernand was unable to map out his exact route in the absence of a detailed letter of instruction he was expecting from the war department and was unable to say just what the number of inspectors would be and what routes would be mapped out for them. General Byers expresses willingness to have them accompany the Iowa inspectors. There are forty-eight organizations to be inspected at forty-five stations. While the inspection is preliminary to the issue of Krag-Jorgensen rifles, Adjutant General Byers still hopes to get enough rifles of the new pattern before the troops go to St Louis to supply that regiment. Governor Cummins and Adjutant General Byers are both seeking to have this done and the governor has written the secretary of war about it, as well as General Byers.

LORENZ OPERATION PERFORMED.

Use of Hip of 5-Year-Old Girl to Be Restored.

Des Moines, April 11.—Dr. John Ridlon of Chicago for the one hundredth time yesterday performed, in Des Moines, the operation which has made Dr. Lorenz's name familiar in every city in the country on account of his visit to America to perform it on the daughter of J. Ogden Armour of Chicago—the reduction of congenital dislocation of the hip.

The operation performed yesterday—the first of the kind ever done in Des Moines—was closely watched by thirty of the physicians of Des Moines and surrounding cities, who came over for it, and by a large number of ladies. The operation was perfectly successful so far as the reduction of the dislocation was concerned; it remains to be seen, when the plaster cast is removed, whether the head of the bone will remain within the socket without a second operation.

The patient was the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Everett of Ocheyedan, Osceola county.

The child, of course, was as putty in the hands of the strong man. Dr Ridlon is a large and powerful man Seizing the child's right leg, the one affected, he began its manipulation round and round upon the hip. This involved the sawing on the tensely drawn tendon connecting the muscles of the thigh and the abdomen. The work began at almost exactly 2:00 o'clock. Within five minutes the hip bone had been dislocated from its unnatural position and was freely moved about. When free the doctor illustrated to the physicians the fact that the leg could be absolutely straightened, but when the head of the bone was inserted in the hip socket, the cords were shortened. This made necessary the manipulation of the knee joint to stretch the cords, which was done until the leg could be perfectly straightened while the hip was properly socketed. Then came the experiment to test the depth of the socket by extending the leg alongside the other in a natural position, but it was soon seen that it could not be brought into a position of more than forty-five degrees before the bone would leave the socket.

Dr. Ridlon illustrated the position in which the leg should be bandaged in the plaster cast and began to do this work, which was far more difficult than that of dislocating the child's unnaturally jointed hip. A bandage of half an inch in thickness was put on The position of the leg and the hip as bandaged was apparently the most unnatural, but really the only possible one. The leg was raised to a position at right angles from the body extending to the side. The bandage included the hip, the abdomen and the thigh Being finished it was cut at the edges so as to release the leg below the thigh, the left leg around which it had been wrapped to hold it, and the lower part of the abdomen and spine. About the body it was not to exceed four inches in width. Though perfectly hard it was evident that the bandage could be easily worn for an indefinite period.

BUILDINGS FOR UNIVERSITY.

Assembly Hall and Gymnasium to Cost $150,000.

Iowa City, April 11.—Iowa university is to have a new $150,000 gymnasium and assembly building. This was decided upon by the board of regents yesterday morning just prior to adjournment, after an all-night session. The full board has been in session for two days, but the members and the president of the university refused to speak until yesterday.

President MacLean said: "The new plan of the board of regents to hold the annual meeting, and take action on the president's budget in April instead of at the June meeting, has proved a great success. The meeting just closed has been one of the busiest, with the most work actually accomplished, of any board meeting in years. In fact, it was one of the significant meetings in the history of the university."

President MacLean's annual budget was submitted to the board. The total amount of appropriations asked by him for the university for the coming year amounted to $240,000. This amount was practically allowed, with slight scaling in various departments.

The most important action taken by the board was the decision reached in regard to the erection of new buildings for Iowa university. The students are especially hilarious over the result of the meeting, for the long sought gymnasium is now an assured fact. The board had a weighty question to decide, the advisability of erecting a gymnasium and assembly building first, or a library and museum building. Both are needed and equally sought after by the various friends of the university. The friends of athletics feared that the departments of science would be successful in securing the first building, but the board decided otherwise.

The Commonwealth Telephone Co will change the Waterloo exchange to an automatic switchboard as quickly as possible. The Automatic Electric Co. will furnish the equipment.

In the Fertile Wheat Fields of Western Canada.

To the Editor: The emigration of well-to-do farmers from the United States to the Canadian Northwest has assumed such proportions that organized efforts are now being made by interested persons and corporations to stem the tide. The efforts are being initiated chiefly by railway and real estate interests in the states from which the bulk of the emigration takes place. The movement of population has taken from numerous states thousands of persons whose presence along railways in these states makes business for the transportation companies. The movement has also become so widely known that it has prevented the settlement of vacant lands along these lines, parties who might have located there being attracted to the free and more fertile lands of Canada. The result of the movement has been that the railway companies not only see the vacant lands along their lines remain vacant, but they also see hundreds of substantial farmers who have helped provide business for the railways move away and so cease their contributions. The farmers have moved to Canada because they were convinced that it would be to their financial interest to do so. In moving they have been inconsiderate enough to place their own financial interests before those of the financial interests of the railway corporations.

In addition to the railway corporations, real estate dealers are working to stem the flow of emigrants. Of course every emigrant who goes to Canada means the loss of commissions on land deals by real estate dealers. Now a person has but to know what the interests are that are trying to stop the flow to know what motives are influencing their course. The emigration means financial loss to railway corporations and to real estate men. These interests therefore are not directing their opposition efforts out of any love for the departing emigrant or out of any high patriotic motive either. They are doing so purely from selfish interests. It is a matter of dollars and cents with them. They are not patriotic, they are so consumed with love for their fellow-citizens, that they want to prevent these fellow-citizens going to Canada and getting free farms of the best wheat land in the world, and instead they want to make them stay on high-priced farms in the United States, where they will continue to pour money into the pockets of these railways and real estate men.

One of the methods employed by these interests to stem the tide is the distribution of matter to newspapers painting Canada in the darkest colors. These articles emanate chiefly from a bureau in St. Louis. They are sent out at frequent intervals for simultaneous publication. A writer is employed at a high salary to prepare this matter.

Moreover, statements absolutely at variance with the truth have lately been published broadcast. These appear chiefly in what purport to be letters from persons who are alleged to have gone to Canada and become disgusted with it. Only a few of such have been published, and they contain statements that are absurd in the falsity. Whether the parties whose names appear in connection with the letters have ever been in Canada, and if so, their history while there, is to be thoroughly looked into. The discovery of their motive, like the discovery of the motive of the interests who are engineering the opposition may prove illumining. In the meantime, however, it may be pointed out that only a few of such letters have appeared, but since 1897 over 87,000 American settlers have gone to the Canadian West. Can any reasonable person suppose for a moment that Canada was one-quarter as bad as represented in these letters the 87,000 Americans now there would remain in the country; or, if the Canadian West had not proved the truth of all that was claimed for it, the papers of every state in the American Northwest would not be filled with letters saying so? Imagine 87,000 aggressive Americans deceived and not making a shift of their deceivers. The fact that the 87,000 are well satisfied and are encouraging their friends to follow them.

Anyone who sees any of these disparaging letters should remember that it is railway and real estate interests who have from purely selfish reasons organized a campaign to stem the flow to Canada. If Canada were half as bad as represented there would be no need of such an organization. The fact that such exists is of itself a magnificent tribute to Canada. Finally it should not be forgotten that the letters published are brimful of falsehoods and that 87,000 satisfied Americans in the Canadian West constitute a living proof that such is the case.

The Canadian Government agent whose name appears in advertisement elsewhere in this paper is authorized to give all information as to rates and available lands in Western Canada.

Third class railroad passengers are carried in India for about half a cent a mile. At this rate a person would be conveyed from New York to Chicago for $4.50, or from New York to San Francisco for $16.50.

TWO SIGNALS.

There are two serious signals of Kidney ills.

The first signal comes from the back with numerous aches and pains.

The second signal comes in the Kidney secretions. The urine is thin and pale, or too highly colored, and showing a "brick-dust like" deposit.

Urination is infrequent, too frequent or excessive.

You should heed these danger signals before chronic complications set in—Diabetes, Dropsy, Bright's Disease.

Take Doan's Kidney Pills in time and the cure is simple.

J. F. Wainwright, of the firm of Bones & Wainwright, painters and contractors, Pulaski, Va., says: "Four or five times a year for the past few years I have suffered with severe attacks of pain in my back, caused from kidney trouble. During these spells I was in such misery from the constant pain and aching that it was almost impossible for me to stoop or straighten and it really seemed as if the whole small of my back had given away. At times I also had difficulty with the kidney secretions which were discolored, irregular and scalding, and I was also greatly distressed with headaches and dizziness. I used a number of recommended remedies but I never found anything so successful as Doan's Kidney Pills. When I heard of them I had an attack and procured a box of them. In a few days the pain and lameness disappeared, the trouble with the kidney secretions was corrected and my system was improved generally. I have every confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Wainwright will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

THE LION'S WHELP

A Story of Cromwell's Time

BY AMELIA E. BARR

CHAPTER III.—(Continued.)

"I know who he is."

"I never saw my father so distracted. And it is always 'give, give, give.' George took away our last silver, and I am sure nearly all our money. Father has sent away all the men-servants, but such as are necessary to work the land; four of them went back with George to the army. I have had to send Delia away—only Anice and Audrey are left to care for us, and father says they are more than he can afford."

"Dr. Verity has been here," said Jane, trying to change the subject. "He thinks the war nearly over, Matilda."

"It is not. Even if King Charles were killed, there would then be King James to fight. The war may last for a century. And if this is the world, I would I were out of it. Dear, shall I ever be happy again?"

Thus, in spite of all Jane's efforts, they ever found themselves on dangerous or debatable ground. All topics were roads leading thither, and they finally abandoned every kind of tactic and spoke as their hearts prompted them. Then, though some hard things were said, many very kind things were also said, and Matilda rose to go home comforted and helped—for, after all, the tongue is servant to the heart. As she was tying her hat, a maid called Mrs. Swaffham from the room, and Matilda lingered, waiting for her return.

"Heigh-ho!" she said, "why should we worry? Everything comes round in time to its proper place, and then it will be, as old Anice expects—the hooks will find the eyes that fit them."

As she spoke Mrs. Swaffham hastily entered the room, and with her was Lord Cluny Neville. Both girls turned from the window and caught his eyes at the same moment. He was, as Dr. Verity said, a man destined to captivate, not only by his noble bearing and handsome face, but also by such an indescribable charm of manner as opened the door of every heart to him. Bowing to both girls, he presented Jane with a letter from her friend Mary Cromwell, and also with a small parcel which contained some beautiful ribbons. The pretty gift made a pleasant introduction to a conversation full of gay inquiries and interesting items of social information. Matilda watched the young soldier with eyes full of interest, and did not refuse his escort to her carriage; but, as she departed, she gave Jane one look which left her with an unhappy question in her heart, not only for that night, but to be recalled long after as premonitory and prophetic.

During the preparations for the evening meal, and while Neville was in his chamber removing his armor and refreshing his clothing, Jane also found time to put on a pretty evening gown. Something had happened to Jane; she was in a delicious anticipation, and she could not keep the handsome stranger out of her consideration. When she heard Neville's steady, swift step coming towards her she trembled. Why? She did not ask herself, and her soul did not tell her. It indeed warned her, either of joy or of sorrow, for surely its tremor intimated that the newcome was to be no mere visitor of passage, no neutral guest; that perhaps, indeed, he might have entered her home as a fate, or at least as a messenger of destiny. For who can tell, when a stranger walks into any life, what his message may be?

It was a wonderful evening to both Jane and Mrs. Swaffham. Neville told over again the story of Dunbar, and told it in a picturesque way that would have been impossible to Dr. Verity. It was a magnificent drama, though there was only one actor to present it.

Jane did not speak; she glanced at the young man, wondering at his rapt face, its solemn pallor and mystic exaltation, and feeling his voice vibrate through all her senses, though at the last he had spoken half-audibly, as people do in extremes of life or feeling.

It is in moments such as these, that Love grows—even in a moment's gaze. Jane forgot her intention of captivating, and yet none the less she accomplished her purpose. For when they parted for the night he held her hand with a gentle pressure, and quick glancing, sweetly smiling, he flashed into her eyes admiration and interest not to be misunderstood.

And Jane's heart was a crystal rock, only waiting the touch of a wand. Had she felt the mystic contact? Her fine eyes were dropped, but there was a faint, bewitching smile around her lovely mouth, and there was something bewildering and something bewildered in her very silence and simplicity.

The sun was high when Neville awoke next morning, and he was ashamed of his apparent indolence and would scarce delay long enough to eat a hasty breakfast. Then his horse was waiting, and he stood at the threshold.

As he mounted, Mrs. Swaffham asked him if he went by York, and he answered, "Yes, I know perfectly that road, and I must not miss my way, for I am a laggard already."

"That is right," she said. "The way that is best to go is the way that best you know."

He did not hear the advice, for the moment his horse felt the foot in the stirrup he was off, and hard to hold with bit and bridle.

When he was quite out of sight, they turned into the house with a sigh, and Mrs. Swaffham said, "Now, I must have the house put in order. If I were you, Jane, I would go to de Wick this afternoon. Matilda is full of trouble. I cannot feel indifferent to her."

So Jane went to her room and began to fold away the pretty things she had worn the previous night. And as she did so, her heart sat so lightly on its temporal perch that she was singing and did not know it. And she did not know that, at the very same moment, Cluny Neville was solacing the loneliness of his ride by the "Hymn for Victory," given to its Hebraic fervor a melodious vigor of interpretation admirably emphasied by the Gregorian simplicity of the tune.

She let the open door frame her beauty.

CHAPTER IV.

So Sweet a Dream.

Peace was now confidently predicted, but hope outruns events, and the winter slowly settled down over the level dreariness of the land without any apparent change in the national situation.

In de Wick the situation was pitiably forlorn and desolate. Matilda would gladly have escaped its depressing atmosphere for a little while every day, but she could not, for the roads leading from it were almost quagmires unless steadied by frost, and it was only rarely on such occasions that the horses could be spared to take her as far as Swaffham. Even the atmosphere of Swaffham, though grateful and cheering, was exasperating to the poor royalist lady. There was such cheerfulness in its comfortable rooms, such plenty of all the necessaries of life, such busy service of men and maids, such active, kindly hospitality to herself, and such pleasant companionship between Jane and her mother, that Matilda could not help a little envious contrasting.

One day, near Christmas, the roads above them, and in spite of the cold were hard and clean and the sky blue Matilda resolved to walk over to Swaffham. As she left her father she kissed him affectionately, and then courtseyed to the Chaplain, who did not notice her attention, being happily and profitably lost in a volume by good Dr. Thomas Fuller.

Matilda walked rapidly, and the clear cold air blew hope and cheerfulness into her heart. As she went through the garden she saw a monthly rose in bloom, and she plucked it; and with the fair sweet flower in her hand entered the Swaffham parlor. Jane was sitting at the table serving Lord Cluny Neville, ho was eating and drinking and leaning towards her with a face full of light and pleasure. Mrs. Swaffham sat on the hearth.

Matilda saw the whole picture in a glance, and she set her mood to match it. Dropping her gown, she let the open door frame her beauty for a moment. She was conscious that she was lovely, and she saw the swift lifting of Neville's eyelids, and the look of surprised delight which came into his eyes. She was resolved to be charming, and she succeeded. She let Jane help her to remove her hat and tippet. She let Mrs. Swaffham make much of her.

Then she sat down by Neville, and he cut her a slice of the pasty, and Jane filled her wine-glass, and Neville touched his own against it and wished her health and happiness. Then they sang some madrigals, and as the shades of evening gathered, Neville began to tell them wild, weird stories of the Border-Land, and they sat in the twilight pleasantly afraid of the phantoms they had themselves conjured up, drawing close together and speaking with a little awe, and finding even the short silences that fell upon them very eloquent and satisfying.

There was then no question of Matilda returning that night to de Wick, and very soon Mrs. Swaffham joined them, and the servants began to build up the fire and spread the table for the evening meal.

"Where did Charles Stuart go after Dunbar?" asked Jane.

"He went northward to Perth. For a little while he held with Argyle and the Kirk, but the Covenanters drove him too hard. They told him he must purify his court from all ungodly followers, and so made him dismiss twenty-two English Cavaliers not godly—that is, not Calvinistic—enough. Then Charles, not willing to endure their pious tyranny, ran away to the Highlands behind Perth, and though he was caught and persuaded to return, he did so only on condition that his friends should be with him and fight for him."

"Why should the Scots object to that?" asked Mrs. Swaffham.

"Because," answered Neville, "these men were mostly Englishmen and Episcopalians; and the Whigs and Covenanters hated them as being too often reckless and wicked men, full of cavalier sauciness. In return, Charles Stuart hated the Whigs and Covenanters, made a mockery of them, and, it is said, did not disguise his amusement and satisfaction at the defeat of the godly army at Dunbar."

"And how did these godly men regard Cromwell?" asked Matilda with undisguised scorn.

"They troubled us a little in the West," said Neville, "and Cromwell marched the army to Glasgow, and on the next Sabbath day the preachers railed at him from every pulpit in that city. One of them met the Lord General on the street and attacked him with threats and evil prophesies. I would have shut his lips with a blow, but Cromwell said to me, 'Let him alone; he is one fool, and you are another,' and the very next day he made friends with this preacher, and I met them coming down the High street together in very sober and pleasant discourse. After beating these Whigs well at Hamilton, we went into winter quarters at Edinburgh; and Cromwell is now staying at Lord Moray's house in the Canongate."

"He ought to have taken his rest in Holyrood Palace," said Jane.

"I am glad he did not," replied Neville. "'Tis enough to fight the living Stuart; why should he run into mortal danger by invading the home of that unlucky family? A man sleeps in his dwelling place—and when he sleeps he is at the mercy of the dead."

"Not so," said Jane. "The good man is at the mercy of God, and if he sleeps, his angel wakes and watches. 'I will lay me down in peace and take my rest; for it is thou, Lord, only, that makest me dwell in safety.'"

Neville looked steadily at her as she spoke with such a glad confidence, and Jane's face grew rosy under his gaze, while Neville's smile widened slowly, until his whole countenance shone with pleasure.

Behavior is a mirror in which every one displays his image.—Goethe.

Francis E. Leupp, in an article on "Humors of Congress," says that Representative Hilborn of California, after a vote in the house unseating him, retired to the cloak room, where he held a levee as friends crowded in with expressions of sympathy and good will. "Well, Hilborn," said one of them, "you are certain to come back, so you ought not to feel so bad." "Yes," said Hilborn, in his dry way; "we all cherish Christian belief in the resurrection, but I don't think that it entirely reconciles us to death."

It is related that a stranger once entered a cathedral in Sicily and begged to be allowed to try the organ, which was new and a very fine instrument that even the organist did not understand. With some reluctance the organist allowed the stranger to play, and soon the cathedral was filled with sounds that its walls had never heard before. As the stranger played, pulling out stops never before combined, and working slowly up to the full organ, the cathedral filled, and it was not until a large congregation had wondered at his gift that the stranger told his name. He was Dom Lorenzo Perosi, the young priest-composer, whose latest oratorio, "Leo," was recently performed at the Vatican during the celebration of the pope's jubilee.

Just a Few Resolutions

The following resolutions were adopted by the Board of Supervisors at their last meeting They tell their own story:

RESOLVED: That whereas, W. L. Mitchell, County Treasurer, has presented to the board of supervisors his report under oath, concerning the matter of the deposit with him of certain money by the Britt County Seat Finance Commitee such report being in response to an order therefor made by the board on April 7th, 1903

And whereas from said report it appears that the said county Treasurer has not received and does not have to hold any money received by him from said finance commitee, as such Treasurer and that the funds if any so held by him, is so held in his capacity as a private citizen. And

WHEREAS, the board of supervisors could have no control over a fund so held by the said W. L. Mitchell in his private capacity and the county could not acquire an interest therein, which it could enforce or require an accounting to be made by the said W. L. Mitchell concerning such fund, and that the bond presented to the Board for approval is not one concerning or covering the official acts of said W. L. Mitchell as County Treasurer, and the approval or disapproval of the same by the board would be a mere nullity and of no effect. Therefore be it RESOLVED, That no action of approval or disapproval of said bond be taken by this board and that the County Auditor be directed to return the same to the said W. L. Mitchell.

STORIETTES.

When a shot was fired in the wings of the Tivoli opera house during the third act of "Carmen" on Zelie de Lussan's opening night, a disappointed spectator, who considered Tennery's Don Jose about "the limit," remarked, with a sigh of relief, "Thank God." Those about him, who shared his feelings, snickered sympathetically. But their smiles were turned to peals of laughter when Don Jose presently bobbed up serenely, and the talkative wag exclaimed tragically, "Ye gods, her aim was bad. She missed him!"

In an Iowa law court the other day an attorney, in the midst of his argument, paused a moment, and said: "I see your honor shakes his head at that statement. I desire to re-affirm it, although your honor dissents." "I have not intimated," replied the judge, "how I should construe the evidence or what my decision will be in the case, and your remark is uncalled for." "You shook your head." "That may be true," the court replied; "there was a fly on my ear, and I reserved the right to remove it in any manner I saw fit. Proceed with your argument."

Nat Goodwin was examining a canvas at an art exhibit in Boston the other day, when the painter of the picture approached him and said: "You seem to like that picture?" "Like it," answered Goodwin; "a man who would perpetrate a thing like that ought to get six months." This was too much for the artist. "Why, what do you know about painting?" he exclaimed; "you're only an actor. How can you know a bad picture. You never painted one." "No," drawled Goodwin, "that's true enough. But I know a bad egg when I run across it, and, would you believe it, I never laid one, either."

On the day of ex-President Cleveland's first inauguration in Washington, D. C., the late Thomas P. Ochiltree took a cab to go to the capitol. The driver was drunk, and the horse ran away. "Tom" was thrown out and so severely injured that he was on crutches for more than a year. He sued the Pennsylvania Railroad company, which owned the cab, for $20,000 damages. His friends jocularly insisted that he would cling to those crutches until the suit was decided. Meanwhile he went to a Clover Club dinner in Philadelphia, and, being called on to speak, arose to respond, with no crutches in sight. As soon as he uttered the words, "Mr. President," Mr. Postlethwaite, of the Pennsylvania railroad, one of the brightest fellows in the club, sang out: "Colonel Ochiltree, where are your crutches?" It was enough to floor most men, but "Tom" was equal to the emergency. Quick as a flash came this answer: "Under the table, sir, where you will be in a few minutes." Mr. Postlethwaite joined as heartily as anybody in the laugh following this knock-out blow.

They "Waited" and "Saw."

Warren's Corners, N. Y., April 20th —"Wait and see—you're better now, of course, but the cure won't last."

This was what the doctors said to Mr. A. B. Smith of this place. These doctors had been treating him for years and he got no better. They thought that nothing could permanently cure him. He says:

"My kidneys seemed to be so large that there wasn't room for them, and at times it seemed as if ten thousand needles were running through them. I could not sleep on my left side for years, the pain was so great in that position. I had to get up many times to urinate, and my urine was sometimes clear and white as spring water, and again it would be high-colored and would stain my linen. The pain across my back was awful. I was ravenously hungry all the time.

"After I had taken Dodd's Kidney Pills for four days my kidneys pained me so bad I could hardly sit down. On the morning of the fifth day I felt some better, and the improvement continued until I was completely cured.

"This is months ago, and as I have had no symptom of a return of my old trouble I am sure I am permanently cured."

TO DRIVE TURKEY OUT OF EUROPE

Russia Is Preparing to Settle the Balkan Question Definitely.

TO TAKE CONSTANTINOPLE

Russian Troops Being Massed Where They Will Be Handy, While the Black Sea Fleet Is Being Put on a War Footing—Aggressive Action Impending.

Vienna, April 20.—News received here within the past few days indicates that Russia is preparing to take a hand in the Balkan imbroglio and the scale on which the preparations are being quietly made leads to the belief that the czar intends if he takes a hand in the fight this time he will settle the far eastern question definitely and for the time by driving Turkey out of Europe, taking Constantinople, and such other portions of European Turkey as he desires, and disposing of the remainder of it as circumstances may indicate.

Not only are Russian troops being massed in such a way as to attract the least attention, but which will place them where they may be used promptly and efficiently when the time comes, but the navy is also being put in condition for use. The Black Sea fleat is being put on war footing, the auxiliary navy is being kept in touch with the admiralty and it would take very little to put Russia on a full war footing. This may all mean simply precaution, but in well informed circles, here, it is believed that aggressive action is not far from the minds of the czar's government.

MILLING INDUSTRY PARALYZED.

Every Flour Mill in Minneapolis Closed Down for Indefinite Period.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 17.—The Northwestern Miller says:

Tonight every flour mill in Minneapolis and practically all of the merchant spring wheat mills in Minnesota and the northwest shut down entirely and will cease turning out flour for an indefinite period. This act has been forced upon the millers by the intolerable conditions surrounding the manufacture and sale of flour. For some time, owing to the price of cash wheat, the high rates of freight and the depressed state of the flour markets, mills have been operating at a loss, but the crowning disadvantage which has paralyzed the milling industry throughout the northwest was the act of the line of boats operating between Duluth and Buffalo in today moving wheat on a basis of 2 cents per bushel, while the present proportionate rate of flour from Duluth to Buffalo is maintained at 9 cents per 100 pounds, equivalent to 5 4-10 cents a bushel. The transportation lines have told the millers that under the operation of the Elkins bill they need not anticipate any discrimination in rates against flour, but the action of the line boats in making this 2 cent rate on wheat shows that such an assurance was meaningless. Until freight rates on the manufactured product are placed on a parity with those given the raw material, or until the 2 cent rate given wheat is advanced, the millers will find it impossible to grind, and unless something occurs to improve the milling situation, the prospects are that the practically universal shut down of the merchant spring wheat mills will be indefinitely prolonged.

MORE $1,000 BILLS TRACED.

St. Louis Grand Jury Secures Additional Evidence of Bribery.

St. Louis, April 20.—Trace of four more $1,000 bills was obtained in the evidence presented Saturday to the St. Louis grand jury. It is stated that three of the bills were used in connection with the alum bill legislation in the senate and the fourth influenced text book legislation in the house.

This information will be transmitted to Attorney General Crow at Jefferson City and the indictments will be found there.

Among the witnesses was Rev. Crayton S. Brooks, pastor of the Christian church at Jefferson City, who began the boodle crusade by declaring from the pulpit that bribery was rampant in the Missouri legislature. Rev. Brooks further astounded his audience by declaring that he knew a man to whom a $1,000 bill had been paid for legislative influence. Right on the heels of this accusation came the charges of Speaker Whitecotton on the floor of the house that money had been used to defeat the text book bill. Grand jury investigation simultaneously in Jefferson City and St. Louis resulted.

While Lieut. Gov. James A Lee is believed to be in Chicago, nothing more was learned today as to his exact whereabouts.

Both Mrs. Lee, his wife, and Robert E. Lee, his brother, declare that Gov. Lee is away simply for a needed rest and that after he has sufficiently recuperated he will return to St. Louis.

Jefferson City, April 20.—The Cole county grand jury has returned four indictments, three presumably against state senators for the charged acceptance of bribes in connection with the alum bill legislation. Strict secrecy is maintained and definite information as to the indictments cannot be obtained. After the indictments were returned the grand jury adjourned to April 27.

IRISH LAND BILL TO PASS.

Amendments Recommended at Dublin Will Be Accepted.

Dublin, April 18.—The Irish national convention concluded last evening. In two days it got through a large amount of controversial work and emerged, to quote T. P. O'Connor "scalpless and honored from a test the whole world was watching. It was not only shaping the destinies of Ireland, but it held in its hand the fate of the powerful British ministry."

John Redmond, replying to an enthusiastic vote of thanks for his chairmanship, declared that the convention was a credit in every particular to Ireland.

In a statement Mr. Redmond makes the important announcement that the amendments adopted by the convention will be accepted at the joint conference at which Lord Dunraven, lord mayor, Captain Shawe-Taylor, John Redmond, Wm. O'Brien and T. W. Russell will meet. This practically insures the passage of the Irish land bill. The delegates returned to their homes last night, in a happy frame of mind, with John Redmond's parting words, "may the God of our fathers once again visit this land with the peace and plenty that are her due."

T. P. O'Connor, summing up the day's proceedings, wrote the following for the Associated Press:

"This was the day for agreeing on the amendments to the land bill which are considered essential. Most of these were proposed by Wm. O'Brien. They covered several important questions, including demands for more liberal treatment of the congested districts and of the laborers. The proceedings were extremely harmonious. There was an animated but good humored discussion on the retention of an eighth as a rent charge proposed by Mr. Davitt and myself, the former representing views in favor of the nationalization of the land, while I put forward those of peasant proprietary. Ultimately the resolution was adopted condemning the eighth, but retaining a technical rent charge."

One of the most important amendments was that proposed by Michael Davitt, that the principle of the American homestead law be added to the land bill to "safe-guard the peasants from the results of improvident borrowing and the operation of land grabbers and land jobbers."

John Redmond made the following statement to the Associated Press correspondent:

"The convention was the most important national assembly held in Ireland during the last hundred years. If its recommendations be substantially carried out by the government the land question will be settled and the whole future of Ireland will be full of hope. The convention's recommendations will be supported by the members of the land conference and they will be presented to the government as the demands of both landlords and tenants. I have the strongest possible hope that the government will have the wisdom to accept them. If all goes well, the result will be the absolute end of the land war in Ireland."

SERVIA READY TO FIGHT.

King Alexander Will Protect Interests in the Balkans.

London, April 20.—The correspondent at Belgrade of the Daily Mail has had an audience with King Alexander of Servia. In this interview the king said the situation in the Balkins was exceedingly grave and that the Albanian difficulty was a greater menace to peace than the Macedonian question.

"The continued massing of Turkish troops in old Servia," King Alexander said to the Daily Mail's correspondent, "will force me to take similar steps. Servia will not take the initiative, but if the other Balkan states move Servia will not, and cannot look on, but must protect her own vital interests."

King Alexander denied with emphasis that his recent coup l'etat was effected with the chief purpose of settling the question of a successor to the throne, and declared it was simply a measure to check the injurious ascendency of the radicals.

BOXERS SUPPRESSED.

Minister Conger Reports Attempt to Organize in District of Yutien.

Washington, April 20.—Minister Conger reports to the state department from Peking under date of March 12 that an attempt has been made in the district of Yutien, about 100 miles west of Peking, to reorganize the Boxer movement, but was promptly suppressed by the energetic action of the viceroy, the famous Yuan Shi Hi, who stood like a rock against the Boxers in 1900. Several soldiers lost their lives in the attempt to arrest the criminals. In the fight several were killed, and ten others were arrested, who are to be beheaded and their heads exhibited where the organization started. Mr. Conger says only such prompt and severe measures will prevent similar organizations in other localities, and that it is hoped and believed Yuan Shi Hi will continue as he has begun. The native official report on the uprising is quoted at length.

Aguinaldo Signed Order to Kill Otis.

Washington, April 16.—While examining an immense quantity of papers captured from the Filipino insurgents, Captain John R. M. Taylor of the Fourteenth infantry, acting under the direction of Colonel Edwards of the department of insular affairs, a few days ago discovered a remarkable document endorsed on the back with a direction to kill Gen. Otis. That endorsement, Captain Taylor insists is in the handwriting of Aguinaldo, the insurgent chief.

"So you lost again." "Of course." "Couldn't the horse you bet on run?" "Yes; he could run very well. But he couldn't swim."

An Interesting Letter Concerning Peruna.

Miss Della Janveau, Globe Hotel, Ottawa, Ont., is from one of the oldest and known French Canadian families in Canada. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, she says:

"Last spring my blood seemed clogged up, my digestion poor, head ached and I felt languid and tired all the time. My physician prescribed for me, but a friend advised me to try Peruna. I tried it and am pleased to state that I found it a wonderful cleanser and purifier of the system. In three weeks I was like a new woman, appetite had increased, I felt buoyant, light and happy and without an ache or pain. Peruna is a reliable family medicine."

Adia Brittain, of Sekitan, O., writes:

"After using your wonderful Peruna three months I have had great relief. I had continual heaviness in my stomach, was bilious, and had fainting spells, but they all have left me since using Peruna."—Adia Brittain.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

NEVER SAW SUCH LARGE YIELDS.

The Climate Is Healthy—The Winters Are Pleasant in Western Canada.

Writing from Stirling, Alberta, to one of the agents representing the Canadian Government free homestead lands, Mr. M. Pickrell, formerly of Beechwood, Ky., says of Western Canada:

"In the first place we will say that the summer season is just lovely indeed. As to the winter, well, we never experienced finer weather than we are now enjoying. We have just returned from Northern Alberta, and will say that we found the weather to be very mild, the air dry, fresh and invigorating. Considering everything we can say that the winters here are most pleasant, healthy and enjoyable to what they are in the States. Here it gets cold and continues so till spring—there are no disagreeable winds. In South Alberta it is some warmer—two to four inches of snow may fall and in a few hours a Chinook wind comes along, evaporating the entire snow, leaving terra firma perfectly dry; in fact, we did not believe this part until we came and saw for ourselves and we now know what we herein write to be just as we write it. There has not been a day this winter that I could not work out doors. Farmers here are calculating on starting the plow the first of March.

"As to farm wages, we would not advise a man to come here with the expectation of living by his day's work, but all who do want a home I advise to have nerve enough to get up and come, for there never has been, and may never be again, such a grand opportunity for a man to get a home almost free.

"As to the crops, I have been in the fields before harvest, saw the grass put up and the grain harvested, and I never saw such large yields. I saw oats near Edmonton over six feet tall that yielded 80 bushels per acre, and I talked to a farmer near St. Albert who had a field year before last that averaged 110 bushels per acre and weighed 43 pounds to the bushel. All other crops would run in proportion—as to potatoes and vegetables, the turnout was enormous. I have such reports as the above from all sections that I have visited, and that has been every community between the Edmonton district and Raymond, in the Lethbridge district.

"As to stock raising, I would advise a man to locate in this place, or any place, in South Alberta, but for mixed farming I would say go up farther north, say near Lacombe, Wetaskiwin or Edmonton, where it is not quite so dry and where there is some timber to be had. I will say that nowhere have I ever seen a better opportunity for a man, whether he has money or not, to obtain a home. Nowhere can be found a more productive soil, better water and a better governed country than Western Canada affords. Inducements to the homeseeker are unexcelled. I met two men near Ponoka on the C. & E. R. R., who borrowed the money to pay for their homestead, and in four years those two men sold their farms—one for $2,500, the other for $3,000. I met a man near Wetaskiwin who landed here with 25 cents six years ago. He is now worth $8,000. The advantages for ranching are excellent. In fact, I do not believe this section can be beat. Markets are good; as to living, a family can live as cheap here as they can in the States. The average yield of oats in this neighborhood last year was 70 bushels per acre; wheat averaged 35, barley 40, and the beet crop was good. In consequence of the successful cultivation of the beet a large beet sugar factory is being erected at Raymond, seven miles from here.

"In conclusion I will say that N. W. T. from Manitoba to a long distance north of Edmonton produces most wonderful crops. Lakes and rivers abound with fish, and game is plentiful. And that this is unquestionably the country for a man to come to if he desires to better his condition in life. I would advise the prospective settler to look over the Lethbridge, Lacombe, Wetaskiwin and Edmonton districts before locating.

"I will locate in the Edmonton district next fall and several families from the States will locate with me. In the meantime I will receive my mail here and will be pleased to give the interested all the information desired."

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, April 20, 1903.

Governor A. B. Cummins in welcoming the delegates to the good roads convention, declared that Iowa leads the states of the union in nearly everything; has better crops, better stock, better men and women and children, but about the worst roads. He said this was entirely natural, as the soil that makes the best corn doesn't make the best roads. The state, however, has the clay and gravel for making roads. God has given the natural facilities and it is for the people to make the roads. He explained that he had believed the subject of good roads was of such importance that instead of selecting delegates to the international convention to meet in St. Louis he had decided to call a state convention that the delegates to the St. Louis convention may have somebody to report to and that the information gained there might be properly utilized.

The board of control, after returning from its trip to the southern institutions of the state will devote a good deal of attention to getting out its biennial report to the general assembly. This report is in many respects the most interesting one that is brought to the notice of the general assembly, and the report prepared this year will be fully up to the standard. One of the features of the report will be a separate chapter on the workings of the inebriate law. It is not probable the board will go to the length of recommending to the legislature that an appropriation be granted for a new state institution. But the evils of the present system, whereby the inebriates are mingled with the insane, and the difficulties of properly guarding the inebriates, preventing escapes and getting the men to work, will be explained fully. The legislature will thus be put in a position to act intelligently on the question whether a new institution ought to be provided. Another new feature of the report will be a separate chapter on children's homes. The reports from these institutions under the new law have been surprisingly numerous. The report from the chief executive of the different institutions will not be in the hands of the board until about the latter part of June. Until these are received the board cannot figure on the appropriations needed from the legislature.

Adjutant General Byers has approved the recommendation of Inspector General John R. Prime and his assistant, Major John T. Hume, that Co. B. of the Fifty-sixth regiment at Perry be mustered out of service. The inspectors visited the company March 25, and found it below the required standard of efficiency. For this reason, the recommendation that it be disbanded was made though it has been organized for a number of years. Adjutant General Byers has not decided where he will locate the company that will succeed the organization. There are a number of places anxious to be allowed to form a company. The company at Bedford, I of the Fifty-fifth, has been mustered out of the service because of the recommendations made by the inspectors on their tour this spring. One reason for the order was the low standard of efficiency of the company. Another reason was the failure of the citizens to provide a suitable armory.

Iowa equal suffragists are looking ahead to the meeting of the Thirtieth general assembly next winter, and, in the hopes of their being able to get a suffrage amendment through, they will carry on an unusually vigorous campaign in the state this season. The selection of senators and representatives will be looked after with care, and the suffragists will throw their influence to those only who are friendly to their cause. Mrs. McMillen, who has been doing much work as an organizer in the northern part of the state, will resume work in a short time. Fayette county will be her first theater of action. Next fall it is planning to bring a national organizer of ability, whose name is not yet announced, into the Iowa field. What is known as the national organization plan will be applied to Iowa as far as possible. The executive committee is considering this, and has not yet worked out all the details of its methods of organizing.

Governor Cummins has announced a partial list of the delegates that will go from this state to the National Conferences of Charities and Correction at Atlanta, Ga., May 6 to 12. Other appointments will be added to the list here given. Commissions have been issued to those whose names appear below, all of whom have signified their intention of going to the conference. The list follows: Hon. Wm. Larrabee, of Fayette county, and Mrs. Larrabee; Miss Carrie Nairn, Des Moines; Dr. Agnes Eichelberger, Woodbury county; Mrs. E. G. Rhodes, Henry county; Rev. C. P. Martin, Rev. Geo. W. Waltz and F. K. Ward, of Linn county; Judge G. S. Robinson, Des Moines; Rev. Mary A. Safford, Des Moines; Mrs. C. A. Boehmler, Black Hawk county; H. L. Brown and Mrs. Mary R. Brown, of Woodbury county; Elmer A. Park, Lee county; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Miles, of Fayette county.

Miss Gannon, Sec'y Detroit Amateur Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."—Miss GUILA GANNON, 359 Jones St., Detroit, Corresponding Sec'y Mich. THE MEN AND WOMEN

Who Enjoy the Choicest Products of the World's Commerce.

Knowledge of What Is Best More Important Than Wealth Without It.

It must be apparent to every one that qualities of the highest order are necessary to enable the best of the products of modern commerce to attain permanently to universal acceptance. However loudly heralded, they may not hope for world-wide preeminence unless they meet with the general approval, not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting, enjoying and learning the real worth of the choicest products. Their commendation, consequently, becomes important to others, since to meet the requirements of the well informed of all countries the method of manufacture must be of the most perfect order and the combination the most excellent of its kind. The above is true not of food products only, but is especially applicable to medicinal agents and after nearly a quarter of a century of growth and general use the excellent remedy, Syrup of Figs, is everywhere accepted, throughout the world, as the best of family laxatives. Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants known to act most beneficially on the system and presented in the form of a pleasant and refreshing liquid, but also to the method of manufacture of the California Fig Syrup Co., which ensures that uniformity and purity essential in a remedy intended for family use. Ask any physician who is well informed and he will answer at once that it is an excellent laxative. If at all eminent in his profession and has made a special study of laxatives and their effects upon the system he will tell you that it is the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetens the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after-effects. Every well-informed druggist of reputable standing knows that Syrup of Figs is an excellent laxative and is glad to sell it, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, because it gives general satisfaction, but one should remember that in order to get the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs it is necessary to buy the genuine, which is sold in original packages only; the name of the remedy—Syrup of Figs and also the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

The announcements of A. M. Deyoe, for county superintendent, and W. L. Mitchell, for county treasurer, appear in this issue. Both these gentlemen have held their offices one term, and are now candidates for nomination for the customary second term, which will undoubtedly be awarded them without opposition.

Mr. Simkins has bought Tom Way's interest in the Britt News and will hereafter conduct the business by his lonesome. The News under the management of Mr. Simpkins has been a good, newsy paper and is daily gaining favor with the people. The fact that Mr. Way is closing out his interests in this county is learned with regret by his many admirers.

The name of the Hancock Signal has been changed to the Garner Signal. For over 30 years the Hancock Signal has been published in Garner and enjoys the distinction of being the oldest paper in the county and to many of the old settlers the "old reliable" has become a household necessity. The Signal is all right and grows better with each issue.

In this issue appears the announcements of Chas. Hall and H. C. Byers as candidates for county sheriff. Both these gentleman are old residents of the county and while but one man can be elected to the office yet the chances of each these men appear bright. With four candidates in the field and a few more prospects things look very favorable for a warm time at the primaries.

Oscar Carlson is one of the busiest men in this town now-a-days. Besides attending to his duties as liveryman he is superintending the papering and painting of the Kirkwood house, tacking down carpets, washing wood work and making garden. He has all the symptoms of one who is about to become a double man. This place will be very handy for Oscar as it is so close to his business.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

W. H. Cresman and Charles Dickerson, who broke jail at Estherville, were captured at Sanborn. In all five broke jail, and all have been recaptured.

Burglars entered the Elks' club at Sioux City and broke open a nickel slot machine and secured about $40 in nickels. The police have a theory that some of the boys employed at the place did the job. Sioux City has been terrorized by burglars for some time, and the police seem to be helpless. Two of the house breakers have been caught, but through the instrumentality of outside parties.

The preliminary work on the Illinois Central grade reduction will commence this week, after which eight gravel trains will be put into service and the work of distributing 100,000 yards of gravel, the amount the company intends to use this year, will be started. On account of the 1,000 extra laborers who are likely to be stationed in Webster City this summer, it has been suggested to the city council that an extra policeman or two be added to the force. This will likely be done.

In order to avoid threatened injunction, the Sioux City Traction company, owned by Armour & Co. and Swift & Co., tore up their tracks on Jackson street from Fifth to Twenty-ninth street. The work was begun at midnight and was completed by daylight. The traction company had wished to abandon its line and railroaded a resolution through the council permitting them to do so. The property owners protested and through Henderson & Fribourg served notice of an injunction. The action of the company tearing up the tracks was to forestall this injunction. There was no interference from the police. The residents are red hot and will now endeavor to bring about a forfeiture of the company's franchise. The case promises to involve legal points that have never been passed upon in Iowa.

A tornado struck about three miles west of Iowa Falls on the Iowa river a few nights ago, resulting in the total demolition of the Heidenreich tile factory. The storm came from the northwest, and struck the section about 7:45 p. m. The gale appears to have assumed cyclonic proportions at two points, and the orchard of Owen Ivins was struck and badly damaged. A few rods beyond the cyclone appears to have dipped down and picking up the tile factory, carrying portions of it eighty rods across the river. A small building, occupied by Ernest Wachholz, an employe at the factory, was blown down, burying the family of father, mother and five children in the debris. In the darkness and rain it was difficult to rescue the inmates. When the infant child was found, it was near a stove and had been badly burned. One of the other children and the mother were also injured. Slight damage is reported at other points, but nothing serious. The loss on the factory is partially covered by insurance. The factory was a new one, having been built last season, and had just been started up.

Because Louise Bruce, the woman he loved, and whom he intended to marry, was going to wed another, Arthur Perry shot at her three times in front of the Ideal restaurant at Des Moines, inflicting four wounds, and supposing he had killed her, turned and killed himself by putting his revolver to his head and sending a ball through the brain. Mrs. Louise Bruce was taken to Mercy hospital in care of Dr. Rood, who said that while her wounds were of a serious nature, he did not think they would cause death. Jack Carns, a bakeryman from Osceola, was the man whom Louise Bruce was to marry, and they were going to live in Osceola. The shooting occurred at 1:15 p. m. just west of the stret car waiting room on Mulberry, and a moment after it happened a crowd of several hundred people was attracted to the scene. A squad of police had to be summoned and it was with difficulty they kept the people back from the body of the man, which lay in the gutter just in front of the restaurant. The body lay in a pool of blood until the arival of Dr. Beck, the coroner.

In a suit to recover an itinerant license fee paid State Treasurer Gilbertson, B. A. Stockdale of Council Bluffs, an eye and ear specialist, has attacked the constitutionality of the itinerant physicians' law. Plaintiff sets out the fact that he is an allopathic physician permitted to practice by certificate issued him by the state board of medical examiners in 1893; that he makes a specialty of treating eye, ear, nose and throat diseases; that in order to cover the large field of practice he has built up for himself it has been necessary to open and maintain offices in several towns in western Iowa. He has paid the itinerant license fee under protest and solely for the purpose of creating prejudice against him in case he refused. Dr. Stockdale now claims that that section of 2851 which prohibits the practice of medicine without a license where such practice is obtained "through circulars, letters of other advertisement and where the practice is at any other place than the office of the practitioner," is unconstitutional for the reason that it is arbitrary, unreasonable and not founded on any principle of public policy of tending to protect lives of a community.

Crooks from Sioux City robbed the postoffice at Ireton and got away with $150 in cash and $50 worth of stamps; no clue.

Willie Labarge, aged 14, was drowned at Dubuque by falling from a board on which he, in company with another boy, was floating in a slough.

Miss Edna Martz of Greenfield, who stopped in Creston while enroute home from the western part of the state, is minus a diamond ring valued at $170. She went into the ladies' waiting room of the depot, and taking her rings off to wash her hands, she forgot them. Leaving the room, she came back in a short time to look for the rings, but they were gone.

Suit was brought in the district court at Sioux City against the Sioux City Traction company for $5,000 damages by Mabel D. Culbertson of Morningside, because of injuries sustained February 25 at the Steuben street crossing on the elevated line between Sioux City and Morningside. She was laid up at Samaritan hospital until a few weeks ago. Several ribs were broken, her head gashed and the woman was thrown senseless on the tracks.

Edgar Demueles, a student in the law department of Michigan university, was arrested at Dubuque on a warrant charging him with the crime of grand larceny. The information was sworn to by a representative of the Schieber Conchar & Westpal company, formerly Demueles' employers. The charge is that he stole $50 from the cash drawer. Two marked $20 bills that had been put in the drawer to assist in the detection of the person who had for years pilfered from the firm, were found on Demueles' person. He was bound over to the grand jury for trial. His arrest was a shock to society circles in which he was quite prominent. In his examination he was apparently cool and unconcerned.

Horse thieves stole five head of horses, a fine rubber tired buggy and two sets of carriage harness in the country two miles south of Malvern. One team valued at $400 was stolen from I. J. Swain and the other three animals from Ross Summers, they being valued at $150 each. Sheriff Morgan, of Glenwood, by hurried driving and a liberal use of the telephone, overtook the men about ten miles east of Council Bluffs and returned them to the county jail at Glenwood. One of the fellows is a colored man about 35 years old. He gave his name as Charles Smith. The white man is about 19 or 20 years old. He gave his name as George Stuart. They are strangers. They didn't deny having stolen the animals, but claimed to have been drunk at the time.

About 12,000 of the 55,000 pensioners in this district are the younger veterans of the Spanish-American war. Their disability in nearly every case arises from stomach trouble, contracted, it is believed, from the germ which pervades the atmosphere and the food of the country. Pension Commissioner Richard P. Clarkson believes that this is the case. "It seems that nearly all of the boys who go to the Philippines," said Mr. Clarkson, "return with a stomach trouble which is very serious, indeed chronic. The trouble seems to be in the climate and it affects nearly all of them the same way. Congressman J. A. T. Hull came back with the same trouble after his long business trip there, and has been under a physician's care ever since he returned."

Hon. A. H. McVey, judge of the district court of Polk county, says that the divorce business has reached the proportions of an epidemic in Des Moines. Judge McVey has the statistics to prove it. He is getting them into shape for an address before the Ministerial association of Des Moines, and will present them at a meeting of the asociation early in May, probably on the 11th. "I don't know how it is in other counties of Iowa," said Judge McVey, in an interview, "but in Polk county the divorce business certainly is almost an epidemic. I began taking statistics on the subject while I was trying that sort of cases, and was surprised at the extent to which the divorce business has been carried." The judge declined to go into the details, preferring to give his statistics fresh to the Ministerial association

Prof. G. L. McKay, head of the dairy department of the Iowa State college, has announced the results of the Iowa dairymen's twelve month contest for the month. Harry Evans, of Strawberry Point, is winner of first place with an average score of 97¼; Nick Knutson, of Emmetsburg, was second, with 96½, and L. Neilson, of Salem, third, with 92½. Samples of butter by over 100 dairymen in the state were sent in to the department for the contest. A careful chemical analysis of each exhibit of butter was made by Prof. C. Larson, and instructions will soon be sent out to creamerymen whose butter proved to be defective as to how to improve the quality of their products. The butter was first scored by Prof. McKay and then shipped to New York to be re-scored by Mr. Healy, the well known butter expert. The contest will continue until January 1, 1904, new samples of butter being sent in by the contestants every other month. There will be six scorings in all, and the one averaging the highest score in the six contests will be awarded a gold medal.

CHANCE FOR A BOY.

State Fair Directors Offer Scholarship at Agricultural College.

Des Moines, April 18.—Secretary J. C. Simpson of the state department of agriculture has announced the addition to the state fair programme of what promises to be one of its most interesting features. This is a judging contest in which there will be a single prize offered, but that one prize will be worth the competition. It will be a $200 scholarship to the Iowa State college, in the regular agricultural course at that institution.

The contest will be open to the youth of Iowa under 21 years of age. It will be held in the new stock pavilion on the fair grounds Monday forenoon, August 24, beginning at 9 o'clock and all contestants must report to the superintendent in charge not later than 8:30 in the morning of that date.

The scholarship will be awarded to the boy who does the most proficient work in judging certain classes of horses, cattle and samples of corn assigned for this purpose, and who can give in the best form in writing the reasons substantiating his judgment. The department of agriculture will deposit $200 with the treasurer of the Iowa college. This sum will be paid to the boy winning this contest at the rate of $25 per month until the full $200 is paid, providing the conditions laid down in the offer are complied with.

The plan, it is believed, will find great favor among the boys of the state who are interested in corn and stock judging and who hope to take a course at Ames. Secretary Simpson first suggested the idea and it was taken up by the board and met the approval of Professors Curtiss and Holden of Ames.

DEMAND STRINGENT LAWS.

Teachers Want Law to Require Entire Year's Attendance at School.

Sioux City, April 20.—After demanding from the next state legislature a compulsory educational law to require an entire year's attendance in school the tenth annual session of the Northwest Iowa teachers adjourned. The demand and the inauguration of a campaign for higher wages for the teachers were the two chief features of the session. The matter of joining the Federation of Labor was discussed among the teachers outside the convention, but it did not meet with general approval.

The campaign of education for higher wages will be relied upon to bring good results. Many teachers favored college diplomas as a necessary requirement for high school positions.

The next meeting will be held either at Fort Dodge or Sioux City. The following officers were elected: President, H. Bigelow, LeMars; vice-president, F. E. Lark, Onawa, treasurer, Miss Maria Z. Pingrey, Estherville; recording secretary, Miss Eva D. Kendall, Sioux City; executive committee, A. V. Storm, Cherokee; J. V. Durkee, Sioux Rapids; George P. Mullen, Fort Dodge.

PHYSICIANS JOIN "TRUST."

State Society Will Affiliate With American Medical Association.

Sioux City, April 18.—Young doctors vs. old doctors was the character of a struggle in the Iowa State Medical society convention, which closed here yesterday, in the adoption of the new constitution. This aligns the society with the American Medical association, which some of the doctors term the "great medical trust." It will virtually force all doctors to enter local county societies. If they are not members of local societies they cannot be members of a state or national society.

It was opposed on the ground that it flavored of trades' unionism. Each society will be entitled to one delegate in the house of delegates, which will transact the business of the state society. If the local society has over fifty members, the representation will be one delegate for every fifty members or fraction thereof. If a doctor fails to pay his dues, the local society will have to expel him or forfeit its membership.

The Burlington Gazette is in receipt of a letter from a prominent Newport, Iowa, man, outlining a plan for the construction of a trolley line between Burlington and Muscatine, thence through Iowa City to Des Moines. The writer requests that his name be not published in connection with the affair at present, inasmuch as nothing definite has been done.

The high school building at Malvern was destroyed by fire at midnight. When discovered the building was filled with flames and owing to the light water pressure the fire company was powerless. There was nothing saved from the building. It was a two-story, six-room brick structure and was worth approximately $20,000. There was but $5,000 insurance. Arrangements have already been made to acommodate the school during the remainder of the year and a new building will be erected before the fall term commences.

William and Herman Kramer had a quarrel over the disposition of the rent accruing from the leasing of the family homestead at Muscatine, and Herman made a lunge at his brother with a sharp butcher knife, cutting a six-inch gash in the coat of the man attacked. William Kramer's life was undoubtedly saved by a spectacle case of wood and leather which he carried in his vest pocket and which turned the point of the knife. The first attack failing, Kramer made another attempt, but a second brother interfered, preventing a killing.

If a man turned over a new leaf every time his wife wanted him to he would have but little time left to earn the price of her bonnets.

THE LION'S WHELP

A Story of Cromwell's Time

BY AMELIA E. BARR

Neville had asked to be called early, and before daybreak he came into the parlor ready for his journey. Some broiled beef, a manchet of white bread and a black jar of spiced ale, stirred with a rosemary branch, was waiting for him; and Mrs. Swaffham and Jane sat at his side while he eat and drank.

Soon Neville's horse came clattering to the door. He clasped Jane's hand as it hung by her side, and they walked thus to the threshold. Snow was falling; the steps were white with it, and the east wind blew it gently in their faces. Mrs. Swaffham laughed and drew her shawl over her head, and Neville laughed also, and with a cheerful word, leaped to his saddle, his dark figure growing more and more phantom-like through the dim dawn and the white veil of the snow. At the gate he wheeled his horse, and, saluting them, vanished into the gray obscurity, which made all things as if they were not.

"He did not say much of the Cromwells. I'll warrant they will forget you in their rising state."

"Far away from it. Mary and Frances sent me many good words, and they are very persuasive with me to come to London and share their state."

"You cannot go just yet, Jane. Your father is opposed to it, until Gen. Cromwell returns there. Then, if it so please God we shall all go—at least for a season."

Then the mother and daughter separated, and Jane went to her friend's room. She was languidly brushing out her long black hair, and Jane tried to kiss a smile into her melancholy face. And as she lifted her head, she had a momentary glance at a beautiful miniature lying upon the dressing table. The face was that of a youth with flowing locks and a falling collar of lace. In that same moment, Matilda moved her ribbons and kerchief in a hurried way, contriving in so doing to cover the picture.

"Oh, Jane, Jane! In truth, I am a retched girl, this morning. I have en dreaming of calamities and my eech is too small for my heart. ry soon this lucky Cromwell fam- will coax you to London to see all eir glory, and I shall be left in de ick with no better company than a ck; for my father speaks to me ut once an hour, and the Chaplain at all, unless to reprove me."

But you shall come to London o."

Do you think so ill of me as to be- e I would leave my father in the eliness of de Wick?" And she stood and kissed her friend, and in a e while they went downstairs to- her, and Matilda had some boiled k and bread and a slice of venison. n she asked Mrs. Swaffham to let have a coach to go home in.

rs. Swaffham kissed her for an- r, and they sent her away with confidence of good-will and com- happiness that the girl almost be- d days might be hers in the fu- as full of joy as days in the past been.

ter this visit it was cold winter her, and Cluny Neville came no until the pale windy spring was the land. And this visit was so that Mrs. Swaffham, who had to Ely, did not see him at all. he merely rested while a fresh was prepared for him, eating a bread and meat almost from s hand as he waited. Yet in that our's stress and hurry, love over- d a space that had not been taken ut it; for as he stood with one hand on his saddle, ready to leap into it, Jane trembling and pale at his side, he saw unshed tears in her eyes and felt the unspoken love on her lips, and as he clasped her hand his heart sprang to his tongue, and he said with a passionate tenderness:

"Farewell, Jane! Darling Jane!"—then, afraid of his own temerity, he was away ere he could see the wonder and joy called into her face by the sweet familiar words.

When he came again, it was harvest time; the reapers were in the wheatfields, and as he neared Swaffham he saw Jane standing among the bound sheaves, serving the men and women with meat and drink. He tied his horse at the gate and went to her side, and oh, how fair and sweet he found her! Never had she looked, never had any woman looked in his eyes so enthralling. The charm of the quiet moon was over all; there was no noise, indeed rather a pastoral melancholy with a gentle ripple of talk threading it about plowing and sowing and rural affairs.

In a short time the men and women scattered to their work, and Cluny, turning his bright face to Jane's, took both her hands in his and said with eager delight:

"Dear Jane! Darling Jane! Oh, how I love you!"

The words came without intent. But the heart is a ready scholar when love teaches, and as they slowly passed through the fields of yellow fullness, finding their happy way among the standing sheaves, Jane heard and understood that heavenly tale which Cluny knew so well how to tell her.

Not until they reached Swaffham did they remember that they two were not the whole round world. But words of care and wonder and eager inquiry about war, and rumor of war, soon broke the heavenly trance of feeling in which they had found an hour of Paradise.

So the blissful truce was over, and Jane and Cluny were part of the weary, warring, working world again.

Then he leaped into the saddle, and the horse caught his impatience and shared his martial passion, and with a loud neigh went flying over the land. Silently the two women watched the dark figure grow more and more indistinct in the soft, mysterious moonshine, until at length it was a mere shadow that blended with the indistinctness of the horizon.

"Thank you, dear mother," said Jane softly, and the mother answered, "When Neville has done his duty, he will come for you. He can no more bear to live without you than without his eyes. I see that."

CHAPTER V.

Sheathed Swords.

This long winter had been one of great suffering to Gen. Cromwell. After making himself master of the whole country south of Forth and Clyde, he had a severe illness, and lay often at the point of death. He took the field in June, throwing the main part of his army into Fife, in order to cut off the enemy's victual. This move forced the hand of Charles Stuart. His army was in mutiny for want of provisions, the North country was already drained, he durst not risk a battle—but the road into England was clear.

Cromwell himself had gone northward to Perth, and on the second of August he took possession of that city, but while entered it was told that Charles Stuart, with fourteen thousand men, had suddenly left Stirling and was marching towards England. Charles had taken the western road by Carlisle, and it was thought he would make for London. He went at a flying speed past York, Nottingham, Coventry, until he reached the borders of Shropshire. At Shrewsbury he found the gates shut against him and his men were so disheartened that the king turned westward to Worcester, a city reported to be loyal, where he was received with every show of honor and affection.

Meanwhile Cromwell was following Charles with a steady swiftness that had something fateful in it. This was to be the last battle of the civil war, and Cromwell knew it. There was in his soul, even at Perth, the assurance of victory, and as he passed through the towns and villages of England, men would not be restrained. They threw down the sickle and the spade in the field, the hammer in the forge, the plane at the bench, and catching hold of the stirrups of the riders, ran with them to the halting place. So, with his ten thousand troops augmented to thirty thousand, he reached Warwick, and making his headquarters at the pretty village of Keynton near by, he gave his men time to draw breath and called a council of war.

Cromwell sat at the upper end of a long table. A rough map of the country around Worcester lay before him, and Harrison, Lambert, Israel Swaffham and Lord Evesham were his companions. There were two tallow candles on the table, and their light shone on the face of Cromwell. At that moment it was full of melancholy, but he saw in an instant the entrance of Neville, and with an almost imperceptible movement commanded his approach.

Neville laid the letters of which he was the bearer before Cromwell, and his large hand immediately covered them. "Is all well?" he asked—and reading the answer in the youth's face, added, "I thank God! What then of the city?"

"Its panic is beyond describing," answered Neville. "Parliament is beside itself. But London is manifestly with the Commonwealth, and every man in it is looking to you and to the army for protection. Some, indeed, I met who had lost heart, and who thought it better that Charles Stuart should come back than that England should become a graveyard fighting him."

"Such men are suckled slaves," said Lambert. "I would hang them without word or warrant for it."

"Yea," said Cromwell, "for Freedom is dead in them. From here there are two courses open to us, a right one and a wrong one. What say you, Lambert?"

"I say it were well to turn our noses to London, and to let the rogues know we are coming."

"What is your thought, Harrison?"

"Worcester is well defended," he answered musingly. "It has Wales behind it. We cannot fight Charles Stuart till we compass the city, and to do that we must be on both sides of the river."

"Fight him," said Lord Evesham, "better now than later."

"Fight him! That, I tell you, is my mind also," said Cromwell strking the table with his clinched hand. "Some may judge otherwise, but I think while we hold Charles Stuart safe, London is safe also. God has chosen this battlefield for us, as He chose Dunbar. But there must be no slackness. The work is to be thorough, and not to do over again. The nation wishes it so, I know it. The plain truth is—we will march straight on Worcester; we will cut off Charles Stuart from all hope of London: we will fight him from both sides of the river, and bring this matter of the Stuarts to an end."

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, April 27, 1903.

On the 20th Grand Master W. S. Gardner, A. F. and A. M. of Clinton, set the cornerstone of Polk county's new court house, surrounded by the multitudes of taxpayers of the county, each of whom had a pecuniary interest in the exercises and their significance. The beautiful ritual of the Masons, with its sweet music and symbolic exercises, occupied half an hour. It was followed by a short but stirring speech from Governor Cummins. With one exception all of the grand lodge officers of the Masonic order were present.

The Drake home field meet on the 25th was one of the most successful ever held at that institution. Many good records were made, including the breaking of one world's record, and the tieing of one state record. Thurman Chapman broke the world's record in the pole vault and tied the state record in the high hurdles. In the pole vault he cleared the bar at twelve feet, beating the world's record by one and a half inches. The event was won at 11 feet 6 inches. The record is held by Clapp of Yale. In the 120 yard hurdles Chapman went the route in sixteen and one-fifth seconds, tieing the state record.

The people along the western Iowa line of the Rock Island are in a fever of excitement on acount of the presence in that section of a corps of surveyors sent out by the Rock Island railroad from Atlantic, Avoca and other points as far east as Guthrie county. The engineers decline to state on what mission they are working and the rumor has been circulated that the road is planning to straighten the line at least from Atlantic west. This means the change of the course in very many respects, and the danger to many towns of being left off the new line, altogether. The towns along the western end of the "Q" in this state entertained a like trouble last year. The Rock Island officials will have nothing to say about the project in the western part of the state.

Adjutant General Byers has received a comunication from Adjutant General McClernand of the department of the Missouri, in which he expresses pleasure at the earnestness displayed in Iowa in regard to the participation by the guard of this state in the September maneuvers. He says he will inform General Bates of the desire of General Byers that two and if possible three regiments take part.

Assessor Schramm does not conceal the fact that he was disappointed by the action of the city board of review in cutting down the assessment on which he had worked so conscientiously. There were some cases, of course, in which he himself recommended changes—especially in the cases of poor people. But the wholesale cutting that the board did was not to his liking, although he carefuly abstained from making any criticisms. "It is up to you, gentlemen," he would say with reference to assessments, when asked reasons for assessing the properties as he had and after he had explained these reasons.

"The system is wrong," he said. "I admit that there were some inequalities in the assessment as made. Nothing else would be expected when the work had to be done in three months' time. This is a large city, one of the largest areas in the country. There are sub-divisions of subdivisions in it. There are straight streets and crooked streets and no streets at all. If any one imagines that it is easy to find and value every description of property however big, little or irregular it may be, he is badly mistaken.

"In my opinion there should be a board of assessors with power to go into the field and appraise the value of property. They should have sufficient time for the work, also. It ought to begin the summer before the January when the assessment is made, unless the board were continuously in session. We did not have time to study the real estate of the city as we should have done to have made an assessment that would have been beyond criticism. Had we had more time we would have done better, but as it was we did fairly well, I believe."

A leading physician of Marshalltown says that there are as many as four hundred cases of typhoid fever in that city, but the real estimate is suppressed because of fear of alarming the people more. The fever does not seem to be pure typhoid, but more of a malarial typhoid which, although it is not of such long duration, has taken a very serious form. It is supposed to come from the water. Almost all the domestics have left the city so that it is impossible to get help and many families are in sore distress.

The closing chapter of a dastardly crime was enacted at Marshalltown a few days ago when Judge Burnham, of the district court, sentenced William Andrews to ten years in the penitentiary. Andrews is the man that was arrested at Jewell Junction charged with the crime of sodomy committed in Marshalltown last January, his victim being little 5-year-old Freddie Buchanan, living on South First street.

RAILWAY TRUST GETS HARD BLOW

Fourteen Lines Are Enjoined by Courts From Rate Discrimination.

FIRST ELKINS LAW DECISION

Roads Must Not Discriminate Against Small Shippers—Judges Grosscup and Phillips of One Mind on All Points of the Case.

Chicago, April 25.—Judge Grosscup yesterday entered an order in the United States circuit court of appeals, enjoining six railroad companies from discriminating against small shippers in the western territory. The decision is especially important as being the first under the new Elkins law.

The government, according to the decision, is entitled to the injunction against the offending railroads under the interstate commerce act, as well as the Elkins law. The ruling applies to fourteen railroads which were covered by proceedings instituted in the federal court. Six of these companies were defendant in the local court; the others are under the jurisdiction of the Kansas City federal court. Judge Grosscup announced that he and Judge Philips were of one mind relative to all the points involved and that the latter would render a like decision today.

The decision, which was given orally, holds that the government has the right to bring an action in equity to restrain railroad companies from discriminating either by furnishing lower rates or giving rebates to favored shippers.

It further declares that while each injured citizen has a right to such relief in his own behalf, in cases like those under consideration, the injured persons are so numerous and the injury to each is so infinitesimal, that it is the duty of the government to act for them under the power specifically conferred by the statutes.

The Elkins law is held to be simply declaratory of the substantive rights which existed before and an injunction would lie under the interstate commerce act.

The railroad companies in the local court affected by the order are: Michigan Central; Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne and Chicago; Pittsburg, Chicago, Cleveland and St. Louis; Lake Shore and Michigan Southern; Illinois Central, and Chicago and Northwestern. Those in the jurisdiction of the Kansas City court are: Chicago and Alton; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy; Missouri Pacific; Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; Wabash, and Chicago Great Western.

REFUSES TO INDORSE MILLER.

Illinois Legislators Declare "No Confidence" in Presiding Officer.

Springfield, Ill., April 25.—The Illinois house of representatives yesterday by a vote of 72 to 60 declared "no confidence" in the presiding officer, Speaker John H. Miller, whose alleged unwarranted use of the gavel in furthering a proposed enactment affecting rich street railway franchises in Chicago led to a riot Thursday. A comittee of five, all personal followers of the speaker, had been appointed by him to investigate the charges of attempted bribery in connection with the passage of the Mueller traction bill. There was a strong feeling among the anti-Miller legislators that there was a possibility of a whitewash, and steps were taken to increase the committee in such a manner as to have the speaker's appointees in a minority, if anything in the line of a whitewash should be attempted. The Miller men fought hard to retain the committee as originally appointed, but were outvoted and the report of the committee was made a special order for next Tuesday morning. A subpoenae isued for George W. Hinman of Chicago was also made returnable at the same time. It is said to be the intention to interrogate him regarding the facts upon which an editorial in the Inter Ocean of Chicago, alleging bribery in connection with the Mueller bill, was based.

MULLAH'S TROOPS CUT DOWN

British Obtain Revenge for Recent Reverse in Somaliland.

Aden, Arabia, April 27.—Brigadier General Manning, after an engagement with the Mad Mullah's forces has relieved Colonel Cobbe, near Gumburru, Somoliland, 45 miles west of Galadi. About 2,000 of the mullah's men were killed. The British loss is not known. The few details obtainable of the disaster to Colonel Plunkett's detachment April 17 show the mullah's forces consisted of 2,000 horsemen and 10,0000 spearmen. They surrounded Colonel Plunkett's force in the open and the Somalis after a heavy rifle fire, charged repeatedly with their horsemen and spearmen on all sides. The British detachment held out until its ammunition was exhausted and than charged with the bayonet, but it was ultimately overwhelmed by weight of numbers. The British force fought until all its officers and 170 men were killed. Most of the handful of men who reached the camp were wounded. The Somalis' losses are reported to have been enormous. The mullah's forces are reported to aggregate from 3,000 to 4,000 mounted men and about 80,000 spearmen.

PAYNE LETS AX FALL ON TYNER

Assistant Attorney General of Postoffice Department Is Summarily Ousted.

MRS. TYNER ROBS THE SAFE

Appears at the Postoffice Department With Safe Expert and Extracts Papers Bearing on Pending Investigation Into Conduct of Tyner.

Washington, April 24.—A most sensational development of the investigation of postoffice department affairs occurred just before the department closed yesterday when Postmaster General Payne announced the summary dismissal of James N. Tyner, asistant attorney general for the postoffice department, coupling with the announcement the startling charge that all the papers and records in the safe of the latter's office had been abstracted by Mrs. Tyner, wife of the discharged official, with the assistance of others. The postmaster general states that Mrs. Tyner has refused the demand of the government for the return of the papers taken and said circumstances in the case would be submitted by him to the department of justice this morning. Other sensational developments are expected to follow. The question of arrests is now under consideration and will be passed on immediately by Attorney General Knox.

JAMES N. TYNER.

The facts are told tersely in the letter of dismissal by Postmaster General Payne made public last night. The letter is as follows:

Washington, April 22.—Hon. James N. Tyner, assistant attorney general for the postoffice department: Sir: You are hereby removed from the office of asistant attorney general for the postoffice department.

I deem it proper to give you the reasons for this summary action on the part of the department. Early in the month of March I communicated to you, through a mutual friend, a request for your resignation. After a painful interview with you, and a more painful one with Mrs. Tyner, I consented to modify the demand for your resignation, so that it might take effect on May 1, 1903, with the proviso however, that you were given leave of absence from the time of the acceptance of the resignation to the date of its taking effect, with the understanding that you were not in any way to undertake to discharge the duties of the office.

Late yesterday afternoon Mrs. Tyner came to the office of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, entering the regular way and went through the main office to the private office, closing the door behind her. She then unlocked the door entering from the public hall into the private room and admitted her sister, Mrs. Barrett, whose son was formerly assistant in your office, and whose conduct is now under investigation by the department. She also admitted, in the same manner, Mr. C. G. Hamner, an expert in the employ of the Mosler Safe company, with whom she had made an arrangement to meet her at the department. At her direction Mr. Hamner opened the safe in the room and she took therefrom all papers, records and articles of every kind and carried them away with her.

Imediately upon learning what had been done I directed the fourth assistant postmaster general to send two inspectors to your house to demand, in the name of the postmaster general the delivery to them of any papers, documents or other materials which had been abstracted from the safe. This demand was refused by Mrs. Tyner, and she likewise refused to permit the inspectors to see you or to see and examine the papers in her presence. Mrs. Tyner further stated to the postoffice inspectors that she committed this act with your knowledge and by your direction. Further comment on this transaction, on my part, is not necessary.

The facts in the case will be submitted to the attorney general of the United States for such action in the premises as he may deem proper.

Very respectfully,
H. C. PAYNE,
Postmaster General.

It is suspected at the department that the papers have some connection with the recent conduct of the... Some weeks ago a turf investigating concern alleged that its operations and working methods had been questioned by the asistant attorney general for the postoffice department. The charges involving the office of assistant attorney general, and a... formerly connected with that office were ventilated very generally at the time and an investigation was ordered by the postmaster general. This is really the inception of the investigation that has spread into every part of the department. The complaints crystallized into a formal request for Tyner's resignation, March 9th. Tyner had been in exceeding poor health for a long time and had left the office at only rare intervals during the office entirely in charge of assistants for months at a time. He is suffering from an unusually severe case of paralysis and in consequence of this fact the request for his resignation was based on his ill health.

TYNER'S PAPERS EXAMINED

General Payne Does Not Know Those Shown Are All Taken.

Washington, April 27.—The most important developments Saturday in the investigation of the sensational abstraction of papers from the files of the office of the assistant attorney general for the post-office department, which led to the dismissal of the official, were the submission of papers purported to be the papers taken from the inspection of the postal authorities and the decision of Postmaster-General Payne to relieve Acting Assistant Attorney-General G. A. Christiancy from his office pending an investigation of his conduct. The action in the case of Mr. Christiancy was taken at his own request. He states that in the courts the fullest investigation of Mr. Christiancy has held the office of assistant attorney-general since March 1, 1901, and has been in charge of the legal affairs of the department most of the time since then, owing to General Tyner's absence, caused by ill health. General Tyner's counsel submitted to Postmaster-General Payne and Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow papers papers which they declared constituted all that had been taken away, but a statement later issued by the postmaster-general reciting the correspondence on the subject relative to the submission of the papers specifically declines to accept the statement that the papers submitted necessarily constituted all that were abstracted.

MILLER GIVES EVIDENCE

Is Before Legislative Committee but Fails to Name Bribe Offerer.

Springfield, Ill., April 27.—The special committee appointed to investigate the boodle charge made by Speaker Miller in connection with the Mueller bill, concluded its session this evening. Most of the members immediately left for their homes, but the committee are here, maintain the utmost reticence concerning the proceedings of the committee. Speaker Miller when asked for a statement, refused absolutely to say what he told the committee. From meagre information from various sources it is learned that the examination assumed a very wide range and went into the entire history of the proposed traction legislation at this session. Questions were asked concerning the relations of the steering committee of the house. It is said that the speaker explained that his action in putting through amendments to the Lindley bill with the gavel, was in accordance with the agreement of the steering committee. The speaker was unable to furnish the committee with the names of persons who had told him that there was money behind the Mueller

The man and the time and the place had met and there was no doubting it. His words burned this assurance into the hearts of all who heard him, and when he struck his sword hilt to emphasize them, they answered with the same movement, unconscious and simultaneous.

In some remarkable way this tremendous national crisis had become known in every corner of the land. And the very vagueness and mystery of the conviction intensified its importance, for generally the information came as the wind blows, no one knew whence.

At Swaffham and de Wick this fateful feeling was aggravated by keen personal interests. To Mrs. Swaffham and Jane the coming battle might mean widowhood and orphanage. To de Wick it might mean the extinction of the family, root and branch, the loss to the lonely earl and his daughter of the one love on which their future could build any hope.

On the third afternoon, there came rumors of a great Parliamentary victory, rumors that Charles Stuart had been slain in battle, suppositions and surmises innumerable and contradictory. Jane went as quickly as possible to de Wick, for if indeed there had been a Royalist defeat, Stephen de Wick might have reached home and life was hardly to be borne, unless some certainty relieved the tension cutting like a tight thong the heart and brain.

The neglect and desolation of de Wick Park had in it something unusual; it was that strange air of sorrow, new and unaccepted, which insists on recognition. It hurried Jane's steps; she felt sure she was either going to meet trouble or that trouble not of your profession. I can weep for the death of those who loved me."

With these words Matilda turned sobbing away, and Jane, slowly at first and then hastily, took the road to Swaffham. For she remembered that the news which had reached de Wick was probably at Swaffham. So she made all possible haste, and as soon as she reached home she was aware of a change. Her mother came quickly towards her. Her look was flurried, but not unhappy, as she cried, "Have you the news, Jane? 'Tis the greatest victory that hath ever been in England. Dr. Verity came an hour ago, so tired he could scarcely sit his horse. He has had a warm drink and sleeps, but he says no victory was ever like it."

"And my father and brothers? What of them?"

"Your father is well; Tonbert and Will have some slight sword cuts. We must be ready to go with Dr. Verity to London on Tuesday morning. Your father desires it. To-morrow, being Sabbath, we can do nothing towards our journey, but on Monday all must be finished."

Jane worked rapidly. Her little box was soon packed, her room put in order, when there was a sharp, impatient knock at the door. Before she could in any way answer it, Matilda de Wick entered and threw herself on her knees at Jane's side.

"You said you would help me," she cried; "you said you would, with heart and hands! Now, Jane, keep your word!"

"What is it, Matilda? What is it you wish?"

"It is Stephen; it is his friend Hugh Belward. They are searching de Wick for them now. I have brought them to you. Jane, for God's sake

"Jane, Jane! Why don't you let them in?"

as following after her. She entered the hall and saw a man in his stocking feet softly descending the stairs. She knew his name and his occupation and her heart stood still with fear.

"Is that you, Jane Swaffham?" cried Matilda, running down stairs. "Come here, come here, come here!" and seizing her by the arm, she compelled Jane to ascend at her side. Jane made no resistance to such impetuous, imperative passion, and she was carried up the steps and along the corridor until Matilda suddenly stopped and threw open the door of a darkened room.

"Go in, Mistress Swaffham," she cried, "and look your last on one of Cromwell's victims." And Jane shook herself free, and stood a moment regarding the placid face of the dead priest.

"Oh, God be merciful!" said Jane, and Matilda answered, "Yes, for men know nothing of mercy. Come, there is more yet."

Then she opened the door next to the death chamber, and Jane saw lying on a great canopied bed the dying earl. His last breaths were coming in painful sobs, but he opened his eyes and looked mournfully at Jane for a few moments. Then the physician sitting by his side motioned authoritatively to the two girls to leave the room.

"He is dying. You see that. He may live till morning—no longer," said Matilda; "he is only waiting to see Stephen, and Stephen will never come."

"What can I do for you, dear? Oh, what can I do?"

"I will have nothing from you, not even pity. I never wish to see your face again. And how poor Stephen loved you! And you—you have not a tear for his fate. I thank God I am not of your profession. I can weep for the death of those who loved me."

With these words Matilda turned sobbing away, and Jane, slowly at first and then hastily, took the road to Swaffham. For she remembered that the news which had reached de Wick was probably at Swaffham. So she made all possible haste, and as soon as she reached home she was aware of a change. Her mother came quickly towards her. Her look was flurried, but not unhappy, as she cried, "Have you the news, Jane? 'Tis the greatest victory that hath ever been in England. Dr. Verity came an hour ago, so tired he could scarcely sit his horse. He has had a warm drink and sleeps, but he says no victory was ever like it."

"And my father and brothers? What of them?"

"Your father is well; Tonbert and Will have some slight sword cuts. We must be ready to go with Dr. Verity to London on Tuesday morning. Your father desires it. To-morrow, being Sabbath, we can do nothing towards our journey, but on Monday all must be finished."

Jane worked rapidly. Her little box was soon packed, her room put in order, when there was a sharp, impatient knock at the door. Before she could in any way answer it, Matilda de Wick entered and threw herself on her knees at Jane's side.

"You said you would help me," she cried; "you said you would, with heart and hands! Now, Jane, keep your word!"

"What is it, Matilda? What is it you wish?"

"It is Stephen; it is his friend Hugh Belward. They are searching de Wick for them now. I have brought them to you. Jane, for God's sake save them; not for my sake, not for pity's sake, but for God's sake save them! They are now outside this door. Jane, Jane! Why don't you let them in? Oh, for God's dear sake!"

"How can I do what you ask me, Matilda? Think of what you ask—"

"I know; I ask life for two poor souls ready to perish. Jane, there is no time to talk. Let them through the door."

"I will call mother," she said; "let them in until I bring her here." Then she opened the door, and Matilda brought the wayworn, bloodstained, fainting fugitives within the sanctuary.

Mrs. Swaffham was not long in answering Matilda's petition. "Surely, surely, my poor lads," she said pitifully, "I will find hiding for you."

"God Himself thank you, madame," sobbed Matilda. "Father said you would."

"Yes, dearie, and Will shall saddle a horse and take you home."

"No, no, no! It would then be known I had come here in the dark. No one must know. I can find my way—and I must now go."

"Tell your father that they who would hurt the young men must hurt me first."

"It will be the greatest, the last comfort he can have in this world." Then she kissed her brother, and with a glance of farewell pity at his companion, went quickly and quietly away.

"Go downstairs, Jane," said Mrs. Swaffham, "and if Dr. Verity is waiting, order supper to be served. I will bestow our friends in the oak room, on the west side of the house."

To this room she took them, and then brought water and wine and bread and meat, and some of her son's clothing, showing them, also, that the wide chimney had been prepared for such emergencies by having stout, firm, iron stirrups placed right and left at very short intervals. "By these you can easily reach the roof," she said. She kissed them both and poured out wine and made them drink, and then left them to eat and rest.

In the parlor she found Dr. Verity eating a beefsteak pudding and talking to Jane, who sat with a white and anxious face trying to smile and answer him.

"Come and rest a little, Martha," he said. "And what think you? Here come a half-a-dozen riders awhile ago, seeking young de Wick. They said also that it was thought Charles Stuart might be with him, and they would have searched Swaffham—high and low—if I had not been here. I think we will begin our journey to London on Monday morning, Martha."

"I cannot. If I had as many hands as fingers, I could not. You may keep watch and ward to-morrow and Monday, and it may be well to do so; for, to tell the truth, I trust neither men nor maids in the kitchen. For a Parliament half-crown they would hide the devil. When was this great battle of Worcester fought?"

"Last Wednesday, on the third day of this month."

"Mother, remember how sad we were all that day. You said to me, 'Jane, there is death in the air;' and the men could not work, and they vowed the beasts trembled and were not to guide or to hold."

"The third of September!" said Mrs. Swaffham, "that was Dunbar day. A great victory was Dunbar!"

"Yes; and now there is peace."

"Peace comes too late for many a family. There are the de Wicks."

"I am sorry for them, and I could be sorrier if they had suffered for the right instead of the wrong. What will the young lady Matilda do after her father's death?"

"Her aunt, Lady Jevery, has been written for, more than a week ago. She may be at de Wick even now. I think Matilda will make her home with the Jeverys."

"Then she goes to London. I know their great house near Drury Lane. It has very fine gardens indeed. And now, Jane, dear, little Jane, listen to me. You are going to the great city, to Whitehall palace, to Hampton court, to the splendor and state of a great nation. You will be surrounded by military pomp and civil glory and social pride and vanity. Dear little girl, keep yourself unspotted from the world!"

"May God help me, sir."

"And let not the tale of love beguile you. Go often to the assembling of the saints and catch the morning dew and celestial rain of their prayers and praise."

Jane smiled gratefully, and her eyes were dim with tears as she laid her hands in Doctor Verity's to clasp her promise. Yet when she reached her room and sat quiet in its solitude, no one will blame her because many thoughts of love and hope blended themselves with the piteous ones she sent to de Wick, and to the two weary fugitives under Swaffham roof.

CHAPTER VI.

On the Tide Top.

The great day of triumph was over. Cromwell had entered London at the head of his victorious army, and the city was safe and jubilant. Standing at her mother's side, Jane had witnessed from a window in the crowded Strand the glorious pageant of Liberty.

And in the midst of this joyful turbulence she had caught sight of her father and brothers and lover; her father's face sternly glad, like the face of a man who had fought a good fight to assured victory; his sons imitating his bearing, as well as youth could copy age; and the young lord not far from them, proud and radiant and carrying aloft the colors of the Commonwealth.

As yet they had not met, nor had Cluny any certain knowledge of the Swaffham's location. Mrs. Swaffham had learned that Cluny Neville was personally objectionable to her husband and sons, and, as she could not see clearly what road to take, she very wisely stood still, waiting for some light and guidance. And it seemed unnecessary to trouble Jane's heart until there was a positive reason for doing so; yet her depression and evident disappointment fretted her mother.

"What is the matter with you, Jane?" she asked irritably one morning; "you look as if you had lost everything in the world instead of being as your father thinks, right on the road to many a good day. I wouldn't throw such a damp over things if I were you."

"You seem to have forgotten Cluny, mother."

"He seems to have forgotten us; he might have called, I think."

"Does he know where we are?"

"He could have found out. And, Jane, it is not maidenly to take any young man so seriously as you take Lord Neville until your father and brothers are satisfied."

(To be continued.)

Home Duties

The real heroines of every day are in our homes. Frequently, however, it is a mistaken and useless heroism.

Women seem to listen to every call of duty except the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. How much harder the daily tasks become when some derangement of the female organs makes every movement painful and keeps the nervous system unstrung? Irritability takes the place of happiness and amiability; and weakness and suffering takes the place of health and strength. As long as they can drag themselves around, women continue to work and perform their household duties. They have been led to believe that suffering is necessary because they are women. What a mistake!

The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will banish pain and restore happiness. Don't resort to strong stimulants or narcotics when this great strengthening, healing remedy for women is always within reach.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

For proof read the symptoms, suffering and cure recited in the following letters:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express to you the great benefit I have derived from your advice and the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My trouble was female weakness in its worst form and I was in a very bad condition. I could not perform my household duties, my back ached, I was extremely nervous, and I could not eat or sleep, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. My husband spent hundreds of dollars to get me well, and all the medicine that the doctors prescribed failed to do me any good; I resorted to an operation which the physician said was necessary to restore me to health, but I suffered more after it than I did before; I had hemorrhages of the womb that nothing could seem to stop.

"I noticed one of your advertisements and wrote you for advice, I received your reply and carefully followed all instructions. I immediately began to get stronger, and in two weeks was about the house. I took eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and continued following your advice, and to-day I am a well woman. Your remedies and help are a Godsend to suffering women, and I cannot find words to thank you for what you have done for me."—MRS. LOTTIE V. NAYLOR, 1328 N. J. Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"I was suffering with falling of the womb and could hardly drag about, but after taking five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was completely cured. I am now a well woman and able to do all my work.

"I think your medicine one of the best remedies in the world."—MRS. J. M. LEE, 141 Lyndal St., Newcastle, Pa.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done a great deal for me. I suffered so much from falling of the womb and all the troubles connected with it. I doctored for years with doctors and other remedies but received only temporary relief.

"I began taking your medicine, and had not taken it long before I was feeling better. My husband said that I should keep right on taking it as long as it gave me relief from my suffering, as I could not expect to be cured by one or two bottles. I did so and am now able to be on my feet and work hard all day, and go to bed and rest at night. Thanks to your Vegetable Compound I am certainly grateful for the relief it gave me. It is the mother's great friend. I would not be without it in my house, for when I feel tired or out of sorts I take a few doses and feel all right.

"I would recommend your medicine to all tired mothers, and especially to those suffering as I was."—MRS. R. F. CHAMBERS, Bennet, Neb.

SPICES—PURE AND OTHERWISE.

By A. S. Atkinson, M. D.

Spices properly used have their value in helping digestion and stimulating the flow of the gastric and pancreatic juices, and at the same time they tempt the jaded appetite to a better relish of good, wholesome foods But spices are not always what they are sold for; neither are they always as wholesome and harmless as they should be.

Naturally dealers and manufacturers in adulterated foods try to select harmless articles to mix with their adulterated goods. Whatever the nature of the material used for adulterating it is always cheaper than the genuine goods. It is usually some woody substance, which when ground fine enough will pass muster without being easily detected. Thus in such spices as cloves, cinnamon, mace, allspice, nutmeg, mustard, and ginger there are many such materials as ground cornmeal, parched wheat, peas beans, and coffee beans, which can easily be mixed with them without changing the general appearance or even taste beyond lessening the strength.

Ginger, for instance, is frequently adulterated with pepper, mustard hulls, and turmeric. These give nearly as sharp a taste to the mixture as pure ginger would, and the effect is that the adulterated spice frequently passes unchallenged. Cinnamon has quite a variety of materials used for cheapening its retail cost. Cassia, arrowroot, mustard hulls, charcoal, burnt shells and cracker dust are all frequently ground to swell the bulk of the spice. Then in cloves we have some of these same materials, and such other articles as clove stems and hulls ground up, allspice, peas, wheat and even mineral colors. Nutmegs since the days of the first Yankee nutmegs made in Connecticut of white birch colored to resemble the natural ones, have been susceptible to considerable adulteration, and starch cereals, mustard, peas and other roasted articles go to make up ground nutmegs. Of course, whole nutmegs are hard to imitate, but even these are sometimes sold as genuine when they are nothing but wild, flavorless nutmegs.

Pepper has its weight increased with the addition of such cheap and harmless substances as bran, peas rice, corn, charcoal, mustard hulls sago, arrowroot, and cocoanut shells None of these add any spicy flavor to the combination but they serve to enhance the profits of the maker.—Scientific American.

At an evening party in a Stockholm residence the heat became almost intolerable. The window sashes were found frozen and a pane of glass was shattered. A current of cold air rushed in, and at the same instant flakes of snow were seen to fall to the floor in all parts of the room. The atmosphere was so saturated with moisture that the sudden fall in temperature produced a snowfall indoors.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

The Commonwealth Telephone Co. will change the Waterloo exchange to an automatic switchboard as quickly as possible. The Automatic Electric Co. will furnish the equipment.

Iowa Central conductor, O. A. Nowell, of Oskaloosa, in charge of a "spreader" employed on the track work a mile north of New Sharon, was seriously injured by the derailing of the machine. The plow caught in the end of a tie causing it to leave the track. He jumped and was caught in the machinery, and may die. Brakeman Leighton and Fireman Black were also injured.

The Eagle Roller mill at Thurman, owned and operated by W. P. Savage, was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $15,000, with insurance of but $5,000. When the fire was first discovered the whole of the second floor was ablaze, leading to the belief that the fire originated on that floor. The building was a three-story structure. The five rollers were operated by a steam engine, but as the mill had not been running for two or three days, it is a mystery what started the fire. The larger part of the wheat in the building was in sacks and was removed by volunteer help. There was 200 or 300 bushels of corn burned. It is thought Mr. Savage will rebuild at once.

Harry L. Evans, the two and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Evans, of Des Moines, the third victim of pneumonia aggravated by poison taken into the system through eating canned peaches, died on the 21st. Earl, aged 5 years, was the first to succumb to the fatal disease, Eva Pauline, followed four days later and Harry, the baby, was the last. Mrs. Evans, mother of he dead children, is herself in a precarious condition and not expected to live. Pneumonia is given out by the attending physician as responsible for the deaths though it is admitted the poison is indirectly responsible. The entire family was effected by the poison. When Earl, the first one died, it was thought his death was due to pneumonia from which he was suffering. An autopsy was held and the stomach is now in the hands of the coroner for analysis.

The Hossack case will not be tried again. It is now on the criminal court docket of Madison county, to which county it was taken on change from Warren. It will be dismissed because Warren county is unwilling to stand any further expense in the prosecution. The case has already cost that county about $10,000, and there seems to be no probability of a conviction. The board of supervisors of Warren county has adopted a resolution directing that the county attorney of Madison county be not given any further assistance in the case and cutting off the employment of the Warren county lawyers, who alone are sufficiently familiar with the case to make a strong presentation of it. The resolution also asked County Attorney Cooper of Madison to dismiss the case and make no further expense to Warren county. There will be no alternative for him and Mrs. Hossack will be at the next term of court declared free and her bondsmen will be released.

Three persons were seriously, and about 25 others slightly injured near Harlan on the 21st by a wreck of the accommodation train on the Northwestern railway. The badly injured are the conductor of the train and Mrs. Gladson. The latter received a severe gash in her throat by being thrown through a broken window. The train was due at Harlan at 5 o'clock. It was a mixed train made up of freight cars and two passenger coaches. While running at a rate of 25 miles an hour the flange on one of the wheels of a freight car broke, throwing the car from the track and taking several others in the ditch with it. There were about 35 passengers in the coaches, both of which were derailed and turned completely over. It is a miracle that several of the passengers were not killed outright. The passengers, including the injured, were all taken to Harlan and cared for. A traveling man for an Omaha house is considered seriously injured, but it is not thought any of the injuries will prove fatal.

The local National Military college board, which had charge of building the collegiate building as the gift of Mason City, has formally deeded the building and campus to the Sons of Veterans of the United States. The gift is considered worth $200,000. The local board was incorporated to build the present magnificent building and dispose of lots in the college addition to pay for the same and now that the matter is in such shape as to present it without encumbrance the deed was made. The terms of the deed has two stipulations, that the Sons of Veterans must use the building and campus for educational purposes and that no lien can ever attach on the building or the grounds. The building with the campus at the present rate of real estate in Mason City is worth $200,000. It is within the city limits on the sightliest knoll in the city and will increase in value every year. The institution was opened this year, a year previous to the original intention and the first year enrolled over 200 students. It is the intention to enlarge the board of regents and next year to make the necessary canvass for an endowment which will assure its complete and permanent success.

A body found in the river at Burlington has been identified as that of Charles Eckburg, who disappeared several weeks ago. A large reward had been offered for any news of him. He had evidently been accidently drowned.

Henry Ernest Junker, the 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Ernest Junker, who live on Waller's island, near Sioux City, died at St. Joseph's hospital, after suffering several days from injuries sustained while being ridden on a rail by his schoolmates at South Sioux City.

A man giving the name of Ed Wilson and alleging to be a traveling man, was arrested at Grinnell on charge of stealing twenty-five pairs of pants from the store of Griffey & Andrey at St. Louis. The pants were found in his grip and it is said have been identified.

Florence Perry, aged 17 years, and Isaac Gates, a farm hand eloped from Miss Perry's home, east of Webster City. The relatives of the girl can obtain no clue to the destination of the eloping pair. The Perrys are prominent and wealthy people and had forbidden Gates who worked upon an adjoining farm, to call at the house to see the girl. Miss Perry is a handsome, darkeyed girl of slender form and has a host of friends and admirers among the young men of the neighborhood in which she lived.

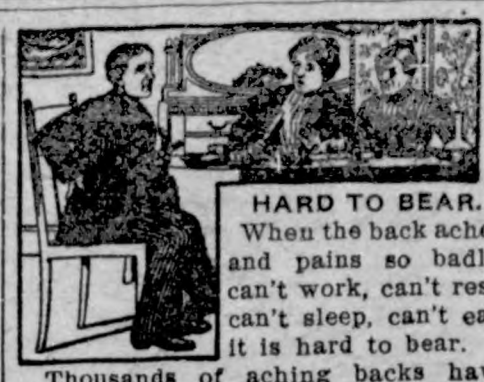
J. C. Snyder was instantly killed and Sylvester Finney was fatally injured in an accident in the Union Pacific yards at Council Bluffs. The two were fixing a draw-bar on a box car preparatory to attaching their engine, which had been backed to within a couple of feet of the car. Another engine backed into the string of cars and crushed them between the car and their engine. Snyder was a switchman and leaves a large family Finney is an engineer with a small family.

Mayor Frank Dodson of Perry Judge Edmund Nichols of that place, D. D. McColl of Perry and A. M. McColl of Woodward, all prominent Dallas county politicians, called on Governor Cummins a few days ago and conferred with him and with Adjutant General Byers in regard to the reorganization of the company at Perry, which has been ordered mustered out for inefficiency. While no action was taken, it is not improbable that later on the company may be reorganized under new officers and with new membership.

A young boy who gives his name as J. W. Coofman, and who says his home is at Souton, W. Va., was arrested at Marshalltown on the charge of stealing $18 from the Globe hotel at Cedar Rapids. The money belonged to Belden Hill, the ball player, and had been placed in the safe for safe keeping. Coofman had been employed at the hotel for several months and knew the combination of the safe. The young man was suspected when he bought a suit of clothes at Marshalltown and tendered in payment a package of silver dollars done up in the style used by banks. The wrapper on the package had the initials B. H. on it. The prisoner was taken back to Cedar Rapids. The safe contained many other valuables, but they were not molested.

Representative Charles J. Wilson of Washington has been appointed by Governor Cummins as a member of his staff to succeed Col. E. J. Pratt, who has resigned to take effect May 1. Col. Pratt is chief of engineers and Mr. Wilson will have the same position. For 26 years Mr. Wilson has been identified with the National guard. He served in the Spanish-American war and is now captain and commissary of subsistence in the Fifty-fourth regiment. He is an enthusiast on military matters, and no man is better known through the Iowa guard than he. He will accompany the governor and staff to St. Louis. He has been one of the most active members of the house. In the Gear-Cummins senatorial contest he supported Senator Gear.

Dan Breen, one of the best known steamboat mates on the Mississippi river, was declared by a jury to have acted in self-defense when he killed Christopher and Ellsworth Leonidas, the long haired medicine men on the steamer Dubuque last July. The verdict saves Breen from indictment for the double murder and it quashes two suits for $15,000 damages, each commenced at Davenport against the Diamond Joe Steamboat company. The suit grows out of the double tragedy enacted on the deck of the steamer Dubuque, one of the floating palaces of the Diamond Joe company, in the Mississippi river opposite Davenport, last July. Christopher and Ellsworth Leonidas, the "long-haired medicine men," as they styled themselves, were shot to death at that time by First Mate Dan Breen. Dressed in cowboy fashion, with holsters in their belts, in which reposed three revolvers with which they gave sharp-shooting exhibitions, when engaged in vending their "Indian remedies," the men commenced to bully the crew and came up against the mate with the result mentioned. Both were dead before the boat could land. After their bodies had lain for several weeks at Davenport, unclaimed, they were sent to the state university to go on the dissecting table.



HARD TO BEAR.

When the back aches and pains so badly, can't work, can't rest, can't sleep, can't eat, it is hard to bear.

Thousands of aching backs have been relieved and cured.

People are learning that backache pains come from disordered kidneys, that Doan's Kidney Pills cure every Kidney ill, cure Bladder troubles, urinary derangements, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease.

Read this testimony to the merit of the greatest of Kidney Specifics.

J. W. Walls, superintendent of streets of Lebanon, Ky., living on East Main street in that city, says:

"With my nightly rest broken, owing to irregularities of the kidneys, suffering intensely from severe pains in the small of my back and through the kidneys, and annoyed by painful passages of abnormal secretions, life was anything but pleasant for me. No amount of doctoring relieved this condition and for the reason that nothing seemed to give me even temporary relief, I became about discouraged. One day I noticed in the newspapers the case of a man who was afflicted as I was and was cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. His words of praise for this remedy were so sincere that on the strength of his statement I went to the Hugh Murray Drug Co.'s store and got a box. I found that the medicine was exactly as powerful a kidney remedy as represented. I experienced quick and lasting relief. Doan's Kidney Pills will prove a blessing to all sufferers from kidney disorders who will give them a fair trial."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Walls will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

Crank notions are all right if they can be turned to good advantage.

Wives are objects of barter and sale in parts of Russia. In the district of Kamyschin, on the Volga, for example, the price of a pretty wife, a well to do family ranges from $100, and on special occasions a higher sum is obtained. In the villages the lowest price is about $5. It is customary for the father of the intending bride and bridegroom to haggle for a long time over the amount to be paid for the young lady.

Rev. W. W. Waddell declares that nemies of the Protestant faith have nade missionary work in Bahia, Bra- il, especially hard for him by telling he more credulous that the religion which he represents permits all kinds of special wickedness. Accordingly, nen and women came to him and ask o join the Presbyterian church of Bahia, which now has about one hun- dred members, with the understanding that they continue in certain vices. 'I remember one man," he says, for example, "coming to me and asking if he could become a member of the church, and when I asked him if he understood the creed of the Presby- terian faith, he said: 'No; but I want to go to heaven.' 'Then, of course, you expect to lead an upright life?' I said. 'No, no,' was the answer, 'that's just what I don't want to do. They tell me that one can sin all he wants to and belong to your church. The religion that I used to believe in was too strict. They wanted to pardon me and then license me to continue my life, for a certain sum. I didn't have the money, so I got out.'"

Powersville, Ky., April 27th.—Mrs. J. J. Monson, who has been ill for over eight years, says:

"Yes, it is truly wonderful. I am 36 years of age and for the last eight years I have suffered with acute Kid- ney trouble.

"I tried all the doctors within reach and many other medicines, but got no relief till I used that new rem- edy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was confined to my bed for four months this winter and had such a pain in my side I couldn't get a good breath. I had smothering spells, was light-headed and had given up all hope, for I didn't think I could live long.

"After I had taken a few of Dodd's Kidney Pills I began to improve and I kept on till now, as you can see, I am well.

"I have been up and doing my own work for sometime now and haven't felt pain or weakness since.

"I praise the Lord for my wonder ful restoration to health and will always recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills."

ALMOST A RIOT IN LEGISLATURE

Disgraceful Scenes Follow Attempt to Crowd Street Car Bill Through.

WILD UPROAR IN THE HOUSE

Speaker Miller Called a Liar When He Declared Amendent to Bill Carried—Recalcitrants Remain in Seats and Reorganize House With Temporary Officers.

Springfield, Ill., April 24.—Slugging and rolling over each other across the speaker's platform in a frenzied general fist fight at the feet of a score of women guests, the members of the Illinois legislature yesterday surpassed the wildest scenes of the Austrian reyehstrath. Last night charges by the speaker of the house, Isaac Miller, that attempts had been made to bribe him were formally made as an explanation for the extraordinary actions on his part that precipitated the riot.

The interior of the legislative chamber last night resembled in a measure the track of a tornado so general was the wreckage of chairs and desks.

Chicago street railway franchises more valuable than gold mines were directly at stake, federal court receivership proceedings against the Union Traction company of Chicago yesterday having brought the matter to a sudden issue.

The federal receivership was held by many to indicate an intention by the Street Railway company to fight out a claim to ninety-nine-year franchises instead of negotiating with the Chicago city council for a renewal of franchises on a twenty-year basis with a municipal ownership option on the part of the city.

The stormiest time ever experienced in the Illinois legislature began almost without warning in a whirlwind of wild disorder which arose yesterday in the house of representatives over rival traction measures, or so-called municipal ownership bills.

The municipal ownership fight now in progress here is the most interesting that the state capital has witnessed in many years. Chicago sentiment is said to favor the Mueller bill, and Mayor Harrison, Graeme Stewart, the recently defeated candidate for mayor of Chicago, John M. Harlan and others of influence, have been here several days working for it. The Lindley bill, the municipal ownership measure, favored by an active minority, has, however, been forced ahead. Wednesday the speaker arbitrarily refused a roll call on a motion to postpone consideration of the Lindley bill, although a majority of the house demanded the roll. The postponement motion was declared carried, amid the protests of the majority. The postponement was desired by the Lindley forces because it was feared that they had not votes enough to defeat a motion to substitute the Mueller bill. Yesterday Speaker Miller ordered the Lindley measure advanced to the third reading. A tumult of voices arose in opposition during which the attempt was made to pull the speaker from his chair.

The bill was read and as each amendment was read, despite repeated calls for a roll call, the speaker, amid a din which drowned his voice, declared it carried. Finally, the previous question was moved and despite all protests, the movements of the gavel indicated that the speaker had declared the bill passed. The speaker then declared the house adjourned.

Ninety-seven members then made Representative Allen temporary speaker and the Mueller bill was adopted as a substitute for the Lindley bill. A resolution was then passed that the speaker be informed of the action of the majority.

When Speaker Miller returned he stated that his action was due to the fact that money was being used to pass the Mueller bill, he himself having been approached. A resolution for investigation of the charges by a committee of five was adopted and the house adjourned.

During the recess five representatives of the speaker's friends and five of the opposition went into conference to agree on a settlement. The conference lasted nearly three hours. It was finally agreed that the action of the house on the Lindley bill should be reconsidered and that today there should be a roll call on amendments that were adopted yesterday morning under the gavel. Last night when the house reconvened, a motion to reconsider was entered in accordance with the agreement and then postponed until today.

Robert R. Roberts, M. D., Washington, D. C., writes:

"Through my own experience as well as that of many of my friends and acquaintances who have been cured or relieved of catarrh by the use of Hartman's Peruna, I can confidently recommend it to those suffering from such disorders, and have no hesitation in prescribing it to my patients."—Robert R. Roberts.

ACONSTANTLY increasing number of physicians prescribe Peruna in their regular practice. It has proven its merits so thoroughly that even the doctors have overcome their prejudice against so-called patent medicines and recommend it to their patients.

Peruna occupies a unique position in medical science. It is the only internal systemic catarrh remedy known to the medical profession to-day. Catarrh, as every one will admit, is the cause of one-half the diseases which afflict mankind. Catarrh and catarrhal diseases afflict one-half of the people of the United States.

F. H. Brand, M. D., of Mokena, Ill., uses Peruna in his practice. The following case is an example of the success he has through the use of Peruna for catarrh.

Dr. Brand says: "Mrs. 'C.,' age 28, had been a sufferer from catarrh for the past seven years; could not hear plain and had watery eyes. She came to me almost a physical wreck. She had tried the Copeland cures and various other so-called specialists, and had derived no benefit from them. She told me she did not want to spend any more money on medicines unless I could assure her relief.

F. H. Brand, M. D.

"I put her on Peruna and told her to come back in two weeks. The effects were wonderful. The cast-down look she had when I first saw her had left her and a smile adorned her face. She told me she felt a different woman, her hearing was improved and her eyes did not trouble her any more.

"This is only one case of the many I have treated with your valuable medicine."—F. H. Brand, M. D.

Catarrh may invade any organ of the body; may destroy any function of the body. It most commonly attacks the head, nose and throat, but thousands upon thousands of cases of catarrh of the lungs, stomach, kidneys, bladder and other pelvic organs have been cured by Peruna.

Peruna is able to cure catarrh wherever it may be located by its direct action upon the mucous membranes. Catarrh means inflamed mucous membranes. Peruna acts at once to cleanse and invigorate the catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane no matter where it may occur in the body. Its action is the same on the mucous lining of the nose as on the mucous lining of the bowels. It cures the catarrhal inflammation wherever it may occur.

Dr. R. Robbins, Muskogee, I. T., writes: "Peruna is the best medicine I know of for a cough and to strengthen a weak stomach and to give appetite. Beside prescribing it for catarrh, I have ordered it for weak and debilitated people, and have not had a patient but said it helped him. It is an excellent medicine and it fits so many cases.

"I have a large practice, and have a chance to prescribe your Peruna. I hope you may live long to do good to the sick and suffering."

We say Peruna cures catarrh. The people say Peruna cures catarrh. Prominent men and women all over the United States from Maine to California do not hesitate to come out in public print to say that Peruna is what it is recommended to be, an internal, systemic catarrh remedy that cures catarrh wherever it may be located.

Dr. M. C. Gee's Experience.

Dr. M. C. Gee is one of the physicians who endorse Peruna. In a letter written from 513 Jones street, San Francisco, Cal., he says:

"There is a general objection on the part of the practicing physician to advocate patent medicines. But when any one medicine cures hundreds of people, it demonstrates its own value and does not need the endorsement of the profession.

"Peruna has performed so many wonderful cures in San Francisco that I am convinced that it is a valuable remedy. I have frequently advised its use for women, as I find it insures regular and painless menstruation, cures leucorrhoea and ovarian troubles, and builds up the entire system. I also consider it one of the finest catarrh remedies I know of. I heartily endorse your medicine."—M. C. Gee, M. D.

Women are especially liable to pelvic catarrh, female weakness as it is commonly called. Especially in the first few weeks of warm weather do the disagreeable symptoms of female weakness make themselves apparent. In crisp, cold weather chronic sufferers with pelvic catarrh do not feel so persistently the debilitating effects of the drain upon the system, but at the approach of summer with its lassitude and tired feelings, the sufferer with pelvic catarrh feels the need of a strengthening tonic.

Peruna is not only the best spring tonic for such cases but if persisted in will effect a complete cure. Write for a copy of "Health and Beauty," written especially for women by Dr. Hartman. If you want to read of some cures also, write for a copy of "Facts and Faces." That will surely convince you that our claims are valid.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

CARLSON—SWANSON

A very quiet wedding took place here on wednesday evening. The principal actors in this event were Oscar E. Carlson and Hattie A. Swanson. The knot was securely fastened by Rev. H. E. Bowman, of the M. E church and the ceremony which united this worthy pair was performed at 9:00 o'clock. None but a few of the immediate relatives of the parties interested witnessed the ceremony.

The groom Oscar Carlson is our genial and popular liveryman. He has made Klemme his home for several years and during that time has made many warm friends. He is a young man of good business ability and by strict application to his business has made a success. He is possessed of good habits, a good disposition and manly qualities which insures for Miss Swanson a true and loving husband. In the selection of a life's partner he has shown rare taste and won the heart and hand of one of our fairest and best young women. She is quiet well known here having lived with L. W. Fuler's family for some little time we have always her spoken of as worthy of as worthy of any young man's love and she is universally admired for her true womanly qualities.

They went to housekeeping immediately in the Kirkwood house which had been put in splendid order by the groom.

It certainly is a love match well made and we bespeak for this pair smooth sailing for their matrimonial bark, and tender our hearty congratulations. May they enjoy all the happiness that true love brings to those who love, honor and obey.

BOMB-MAKING PLANT UNEARTHED

In Shoemaker's Shop in Salonica, Connected Underground With Bank.

PLAN TO BLOW UP THE TOWN

Principal Districts Had Been Mined Preparatory to Simultaneous Destruction—Two Hundred Turks Killed in Battle at Logodasch.

Salonica, European Turkey, May 4.—The number of Bulgarians killed during the recent dynamite riots is now estimated at 100.

A complete bomb making plant has been discovered in a shoemaker's shop communicating by an underground passage with the Ottoman baank. It is feared that the presence of the three Austrial warships which have arrived here will encourage the Bulgarians to irritate the Turks, who, up to the present time, have behaved well.

Paris, May 4.—A dispatch received here from Salonica says the police in their search for persons suspected of being concerned in the outrages there discovered that the revolutionists had mined the principal districts of the town with the intention of blowing them up simultaneously, but circumstances forced them to act before their preparations had been completed and the planned disaster was averted.

The Turkish population, however, is dangerously inflamed. It is estimated that 300 persons are dead as the result of the outbreaks. One thousand arrests have been made.

Vienna, May 4.—It is said here that in consequence of the Salonica outrages, the Turkish government will address a memorandum to the great powers, accusing Bulgaria of responsibility for the recent happenings in Macedonia. It is further asserted that Turkey will bring forcible pressure to bear against the principality if it does not cease to aid the revolutionary movement.

On the other hand the Bulgarians declare that their government has been deeply affected by these outrages, which it feels have damaged the Macedonian government but that it is powerless against the Macedonian desperadoes.

In official circles here indignation is expressed at Turkey's negligence in failing to take precautions to prevent the outrages, particularly as the authorities had been warned that something of the kind was expected.

London, May 4.—A dispatch to the Morning Leader from Sofia describes a battle between Turks and insurgents at Logodasch. The Turks were defeated with a loss of six officers and 200 men killed.

London May 4.—Owing to the existing censorship it is still impossible to obtain reliable news from Salonica. The reports of a general massacre there probably are exaggerated, but the statements that several hundred were killed emanated from various points including Constantinople, where it is alleged also that Turkey has decided to send an ultimatum to Bulgaria. Two Italians warships have arrived at Salonica, and the porte, fearing that foreign troops will be landed has requested Austria to withdraw her squadron.

It is reported from Uskub, European Turkey, that the Turks are holding meetings in the mosques and discussing a general massacre of the Christian population in the event of dynamite outrages, which, according to prisoners in Salonica, have been planned to occur at Constantinople, Uskub and Adrianople.

Albanians have plundered several Servian villages near Prizren, Turkey. The Turkish troops made no attempt to hinder them.

ABANDON SOMALI CAMPAIGN.

Broderick Says England Will Not Pursue Mad Mullah.

London, May 1.—In the house of commons last night War Secretary Broderick announced the virtual abandonment of the Somali campaign.

In a discussion of the army estimates, members of the opposition attacked the government for muddling the Somali affair and doing unnecessary police work for Italy.

Mr. George (Welsh nationalist) said it was a relief to hear that the expedition had been abandoned. "If the Mullah is mad," said the member, "I would like to know what the war office is."

Mr. Broderick objected to the use of the term "abandoned." "What I said was," he said, "that having attained our object in driving the Mullah from Mudug, we do not propose to operate further in that direction."

FANATICAL LEADER CAPTURED.

Manila, May 2.—Governor Cailles of Laguna province and a party of volunteers yesterday captured Rios, the fanatical Filipino leader in that part of the island of Luzon.

Rios was formerly a blacksmith of Tayabas, and claimed to be of divine origin. He attracted many followers and started an insurrection which the constabulary suppressed. He fled to the mountains, and later claimed the title of Pope of Luzon, and also asserted he was a prophet.

Governor Cailles captured Rios in the disguise the latter had worn when appearing as a prophet. He is said to be guilty of many crimes, and probably will be tried for murder.

SERVICES AT THE DEDICATION

World's Fair Buildings at St. Louis Formally Dedicated With Ceremony.

WEATHER WAS A DRAWBACK

Addresses By President Roosevelt, Former President Cleveland and Others—Prominent Men From All Over the Country Were in Attendance.

St. Louis, May 1.—The rites which present the Louisiana Purchase exposition to the world, were performed in the liberal arts building yesterday with all the dignity and splendor befitting such an occasion. A parade of 11,000 soldiers down Lindell boulevard to the world's fair grounds, formed a brilliant prelude to the ceremony of dedication. This prelude over, 60,000 people crowded into the big auditorium, in the presence of official representatives of all the civilized nations of the world, and the words of dedication were spoken by the president of the United States.

As the last word fell from the speaker's lips and the dedication of the world's greatest world's fair was completed, 60,000 voices rose in a great roar of applause. President Roosevelt, ex-President Cleveland and an imposing company of diplomatists, governors, senators, congressional representatives, government officials and representatives of the exposition came direct to the liberal arts building from the lunch served them in tents on the grounds.

President Roosevelt, Former President Cleveland, President Francis of the exposition company, President Carter of the world's fair commission, members of the cabinet and the supreme court took seats in the center of the platform.

At the president's right sat the visiting diplomatists, a distinguished looking contingent which attracted much attention. In this section also were many other distinguished foreigners and representatives of the state department at washington, headed by Assistant Secretary of State Loomis. To the left of the president sat the joint delegation of senators and representatives representing congress, the foreign commissioners to the fair, and General Miles, Adjutant-General Corbin and General John C. Bates, with many others scarcely less distinguished.

The two front sections of the auditorium proper were occupied by the governors of states and their staffs, the national world's fair commissioners, the United States government board, United States senators and congressmen who were not members of the congressional joint delegation, and other notable guests. Across the aisle was a brilliantly gowned assemblage of women, including the wives or guests of the men connected with the ceremonies and the board of lady managers. Back of these rose tier on tier the thousands commonly spoken of as the general public.

Besides President Roosevelt, other participants in the ceremony were Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops E. R. Kendrick and Henry C. Potter, Former President Cleveland, Thomas Carter, president of the day, and David R. Francis. At the conclusion of the speeches, the day being the 100 th anniversary of the signing of the treaty which transferred the Louisiana purchase from France to the United States, a centennial salute of 100 aerial guns were fired. The day's demonstrations concluded last night with a display of fireworks on a magnificent scale.

The weather was the only disappointing factor of the day. The troops mobilized early in a sprinkle of rain and marched in a temperature close to the freezing point. For a few moments snow fell, but not enough of it to give visible evidence of the temperature.

NEED NOT BETRAY SECRETS.

Supreme Court of Missouri Helps the Defense in Boodle Cases.

Jefferson City, Mo., April 30.—The state supreme court yesterday decided that I. L. Page and Cole Hickox cannot be made to tell from whom they received the $1,000 and $500 bills, had in their possession in February last, about the time the greater part of the alum boodle money was distributed. The decision was rendered by Judges Robinson, Fox and Burgess and it will, it is believed, prove the most severe set back the prosecution in the boodle cases has yet received. The Judges held that Page and Hickox were within their constitutional rights and ordered Sheriff Smith to discharge them from custody. Smith had the prisoners under a commitment for contempt issued by Judge Hazell of the circuit court on Monday. Judge Hazell held that they could tell from whom they received the money without in any way placing themselves in danger of prosecution. The supreme court now holds that the names of the men who gave them the money might be a necessary link in the chain to secure their own conviction. Yesterday Judge Robinson granted a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Page and Hickox and set the hearing for today. Attorney General Crow appeared for the state and there was considerable argument in the case.

It always pays to respect the feelings of others.

STORIETTES.

Horace Greeley was one of the most profane men that ever lived, and when he realized that he was dying he is quoted as having said aloud: "Well, the devil got you at last you d—d old ——." A week after the funeral his daughter, Miss Gabrielle Greeley, wrote to Whitelaw Reid, the young editor of the New York Tribune, to know what were the last words of her father. Ried, so the story goes, wrote: "Your dear father's last words were: 'I know that my redeemer liveth.'"

In Victoria, B. C., the owners of slate roofs near the water front have been having much trouble of late because the slates were continually breaking and falling from their roofs, and then the buildings were damaged by leaks. A man was recently given the job of investigating, and worked in vain, until one day he accidentally heard something fall on the roof which explained the trouble. It seems that great flocks of crows dig clams on the beach at low tide, and when one caught a bivalve he flew high in the air with it, dropped it on to a slate roof, which smashed the shell and a piece of slate, and then flew down and sucked up the opened clam.

It is said that when President Roosevelt goes through a crowd a peculiar mania for touching his clothes is sometimes developed among the women. The hands reach out from all sides, and unless the Federal guards are alert and the president rather quick to dodge on his own account, he would be fondled over like a prize pony at every meeting place. At Sioux Falls the other day, a hatchet-faced old lady—not a member of the divorce colony—made a dash for him. She was shouldered off, but returned to the charge again and again. At last, just as the president stepped into his carriage, she put a skinny claw over Senator Kittredge's shoulder and slapped the president vigorously on the forearm. The president never glanced around. There had been no visible evidence that he had noticed his pursuer. But presently he turned to Senator Kittredge and whispered in his grimmest way: "I'm It, Senator."

Mrs. Mary O. Hahn, No. 3003 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes: "For two years I have been troubled with biliousness caused by inactivity of the liver. I had dizzy spells at times, pains across my back and a tired, heavy feeling, with loss of appetite and nervousness. Our family physician prescribed some liver tablets which certainly did not help me in the least. I took apollinaris and other mineral waters, but my complexion became more yellow and my general health worse. Reading one of your little booklets, I decided to give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a trial and am so glad I did. One bottle did more for me than ten dollars' worth of other remedies. I knew at once I had the right remedy. I kept taking it for several weeks, when I considered myself completely cured. NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, May 4, 1903.

The greatest musical event in the history of the state, or in America for that matter, and one which has already created an extraordinary interest far and near, is the great Nordica-De Reszke-Duss concert to be given in the Auditorium, Des Moines, on the evening of May 16th. It is an event of unusual importance when two of the world's greatest singers appear upon the same occasion even in the largest cities; but it is the truth when we say, that never before in the history of this country have two such preeminent singers appeared in the same concert as Nordica and De Reszke. These names are household words in every great musical center in Europe and America; honored and decorated by kings and queens, and idols of the public everywhere. These great artists will be accompanied by the great orchestra of the N. Y. Metropolitan opera house, under the direction of J. S. Duss, and numbering 60 men. Dr. M. L. Bartlett, of this city has charge of the arrangements. The railroads make an open excursion rate of a fare and one-third for the round trip, good to return on the 18th. There will be a matinee in the afternoon with famous soloists.

Manager Hippee of the Des Moines Street Railway company makes announcement of extensions and improvements for that company this year that will cost upwards of $100,000. Fully five miles of new road will be laid in addition to a large amount of double tracking, and a new bridge will be built across the Des Moines river to Highland Park.

The executive council has decided to close the bids for supplies for the state for the next biennial period June 15. The period will begin July 1. The date of making the awards was not settled on. The supplies include paper, ink, pencils and all kinds of office supplies such as are kept in the supply room at the state house. They are purchased biennially and thousands of dollars worth are needed. In one important particular the council decided on a departure. The state will hereafter furnish its own samples and bidders will have to bid to duplicate the samples. Formerly it was the custom to let the bidders submit their own samples. This plan led to interminable argument as to which samples were the best.

A movement looking to the correction of alleged abuses in jury trials in the Polk county courts, has been inaugurated by an order of the district bench creating a commission, whose personnel includes leading members of the Des Moines bar, for the purpose of investigating charges of tampering with jurors. The order is signed by Judges McVey, McHenry and Howe, and is as follows:

"Where as the atention of the court has been called to the alleged fact that certain jurors in attendance upon this court have been improperly influenced, or that attempts have been made by certain persons, so to do, with the intention of improperly influencing the verdicts of jury in this court, and,

"Whereas the attention of the court of such importance as to require a careful investigation of all the facts, charges and matters in connection therewith; and to this end the following persons are hereby appointed a committee to make such investigation and to make recommendations, or prefer charges as they may find proper in the premises, and to report to this court their findings for future action."

Judge L. G. Kinne, of the board of control, who has recently returned from the regular monthly inspection of the hospital at Independence, says that Dr. Crumbacher, superintendent of the hospital, has abolished all mechanical restrain of insane patients. The results thus far are excellent and the conduct of the patients is good. The order has been in force for three weeks and although there are nearly a thousand patients there, no trouble has been experienced. There are two schools of those that attend the insane, one of them believing in mechanical restraint in certain cases and the other not sanctioning it at all. Dr. Crumbacher believes it should not be used under any circumstances. All such apparatus as beds with cage-like tops and the like have been done away with. In case a patient grows violent, he is merely securely held by attendants until quieted and Judge Kinne says that so far in each case of violence the patients have been easily quieted.

Chairman John Cownie of the board of control, who has just returned from the inspection of Cherokee hospital, brings with him an interesting story showing the extreme aversion of the inebriates to anything in the shape of hard labor. Some time ago, the bare grounds of institution property at Cherokee were gone over by Seymour Nelson of Chicago, the landscape artist, and a scheme was mapped out for the planting of trees to adorn and shelter the grounds. The work of tree-planting has been taken up and thousands of evergreens and deciduous trees have been planted by the insane. About the time of Mr Cownie's visit one of the physicians went to the inebriates and suggested to them that it would be good for their health if they would take part in the work of tree planting. He asked all who were willing to volunteer. Mr. Cownie says that out of the sixty patients in the inebriate department, just one responded. None of the others were willing to exert themselves.

"PE-RU-NA SAVED MY LIFE,"

Writes Mrs. W. McRoberts.

Women Made Strong and Happy Mothers.

Catarrh of the Pelvic Organs is a Frequent Cause of Barrenness.

Pe-ru-na Eradicates Catarrh From the System.

"I Do All My Housework and Take Care of My Baby and I Feel So Good."

TO the woman of ancient Israel not to become a mother was regarded as the greatest of earthly calamities. To become a mother—more especially the mother of a strong, healthy boy—was the height of glory for the faithful woman of the good old Bible days. Even now, when maternity is not esteemed as of yore, the mother of healthy children is an object of admiration, and sometimes envy, by her neighbors. As compared with ancient peoples, the average American woman has a low appreciation of motherhood. There are, however, a great many exceptions to this statement.

The accompanying letters from grateful women who have been made strong, healthy and happy mothers need no added words of ours to make them convincing. Catarrh had weakened and impaired their entire systems. Peruna made them sound and well.

Mrs. L. M. Griffith, Arco, Idaho, writes: "Your medicine did me a wonderful amount of good. It cured me of barrenness. I am 30 years old and never had any children; but since beginning your medicine I gave birth to a 10-pound baby girl. She is now six months old and weighs 25 pounds. My friends were all surprised. Some would not believe it until they came to see me.

"My husband says he never saw such a change in any one as there was in me after I had taken three or four bottles of Peruna. I am stronger than I have been since I was quite young. God bless you and your medicine forever. I can not tell you all. My letter is too long already; but I will say Peruna cured me. I never saw or heard of anything half so good. I can never thank you enough for your kindness. In cases of la grippe it works like a charm. It cured my baby when other medicines failed. She was real bad with la grippe."—Mrs. L. M. Griffith.

Mrs. E. E. Thomas, Alpha, Mo., writes: "I have used your Peruna and Manalin. I had been doctoring for several years, but kept getting worse. One day a neighbor woman brought me your book, the "Ills of Life," and wanted me to take your medicine. I told her that I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I had tried so much medicine. My neighbors thought I was nearly dead with consumption.

"Finally I concluded that I would make a last trial. So my husband got me a bottle of Peruna and Manalin. I commenced taking them according to directions. That was two years ago. A year ago last November I gave birth to a 10-pound baby boy, who is well and hearty; and I am doing my own housework. I can never give Peruna too great praise. I think it is the best medicine I ever heard of."—Mrs. E. E. Thomas.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Delano, Miss.

Doctor S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—"I feel perfectly well of catarrh. I did as you directed me to and took Peruna and Manalin. The third of March I gave birth to a 10-pound baby girl and we are both well and happy. I am very thankful to you, and Peruna saved my life. I recommend it to everyone and can't praise it enough.

"I send you my own and my baby's picture. She is so sweet and good,—she is a Peruna baby. I have such good health now. I do all my housework and take care of my baby, and feel so good.

"There are three or four of my neighbors using Peruna now, since it did me so much good. They were just run down, and they think it is fine. It is so good to give strength."—Mrs. W. McRoberts.

SEED POTATOES.–Early Rose and Early Ohio's at Kluckhohn's.

"Big Six" one of the much respected citizens of our county is a powerful man indeed. It has just been learned by our reporter that this gentleman, the subject of this sketch on one occasion was prostrated beneath a chunk of coal that six men could not move but our hero, Sampson like, rose from under this coal and the peculiar part of it is that his miner's lamp was not exstinguished. This feat of strength is but one of the many that in his youthful days was performed by this gentleman who is beyond all question of a doubt an equal if not a superior to that man of old, "Sampson."

At a meeting of the school board last week the following corps of teachers were hired for the ensuing year. Principal, H. E. Bowman. Miss Dultz, Grammar room and Mrs. Hawley Primary department. Miss King was not an applicant for the position of principal as she contemplates returning to Canada. The board acted wisely in retaining those of the old teachers who cared to remain and in selecting Mr. Bowman as principal they made a very wise move. Mr. Bowman is no novice in educational work and we look for the Klemme schools to make some vast improvements under his directions.

Dr. A. J. Cole, of Britt, was here on Wednesday getting acquainted with the voters of this section and looking after his chances on getting the delegation from this townspip. The doctor is a candidate for state senator and his chances for success are good. Of the three counties in this district only two have candidates as yet. It cannot be said of him that he is a chronic office seeker as this is the first time that he has aspired to any office. His republicanism has never been questioned and during the past twenty years he has been an untiring worker for the republican cause, Some recognition at the hands of the republican party is certainly due him. He is a gentleman of much ability, well qualified for the position, and should he be successful in his candidacy will do all in his power for the good of his district. He should, and undoubtedly will get the Hancock delagation to the senatorial convention without opposition See that your delegates are instructed for a Hancock county man for senator.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

The opinion of Judge McPherson in the Ottumwa water works case has been given and decree entered ordering that the property be sold at auction from the county court house in Ottumwa to the highest bidder. Chas. J. Smith, deputy clerk of the United States courts at Keokuk, is appointed special master to make the sale, and the plant is to be sold by absolute sale without any rights of redemption. Bidders must deposit $5,000 in cash or certified check and the same amount must be paid immediately after the bid is accepted. The sale must be advertised once a week for five weeks in an Ottumwa newspaper, stating the date and hour of sale, which is to be decided upon later.

The people along the western Iowa line of the Rock Island are in a fever of excitement on acount of the presence in that section of a corps of surveyors sent out by the Rock Island railroad from Atlantic, Avoca and other points as far east as Guthrie county. The engineers decline to state on what mission they are working and the rumor has been circulated that the road is planning to straighten the line at least from Atlantic west. This means the change of the course in very many respects, and the danger to many towns of being left off the new line, altogether. The towns along the western end of the "Q" in this state entertained a like trouble last year. The Rock Island officials will have nothing to say about the project in the western part of the state.

George Burrier, alias Burns, alias Snell, who was arrested at Clinton two months ago, charged with burglarizing the residences of Dr. Hamilton, Dr. Fischer and Ed. Henle all the same night, has made a confession admitting the three robberies, and also stating that he burglarized the residence of Clarence Fay last fall, securing diamonds worth $1,200. Burrier implicates Daniel Murphy, a well known young man of Clinton. Burrier is thought to be the man who held up a gambling house in Clinton last fall and who shot a man named Frogg three times. He is wanted at Council Bluffs for robbing a laundry safe and is also wanted for a similar crime in Davenport. He served one year in the Iowa penitentiary, five years in Missouri, and is now out on parole from Indiana, where he was sentenced to fourteen years.

J. E. Campbell and F. S. Dunshee of Des Moines, the latter being retained by the former as attorney in the matter, have been studying the law of the state recently to see if it would justify prosecutions to punish persons for treating others to drinks of liquor. It is stated that they have decided that such prosecutions could not be made to stick. No suits, therefore, will be brought. Mr. Campbell, who is editor of the prohibition paper, the Commonwealth, went into the subject with the serious intention of beginning proceedings if there was any legal ground for it. He was disappointed that none appeared in the law. There is nothing in the prohibitory law which prevents the giving away of liquor unless it be for the express purpose of avoiding the prohibition against sale. The law was so constructed to avoid the objection which had been made that the law as proposed would prevent a man serving liquor on his table to his guests.

Matt Hunter was sentenced to 25 years' imprisonment by Judge Parish at Osceola for the murder of Homer Holland, a college athlete of national reputation. The murder occurred at Mt. Ayr a year ago. Hunter and Holland were rivals in love and had quarreled during a game of poker in which Hunter claimed Holland had defrauded him. He procured a weapon, sought Holland, and coolly shot him down on the street. He was convicted of murder in the second degree, receiving a life sentence. A new trial was granted, resulting in a second conviction in the same degree last week. Reports from Osceola and Leon state that the sentence, while disappointing to some of Hunter's most enthusiastic friends, is generally construed as a great victory in view of the fact that the conviction was in exactly the same degree as at the first trial and the evidence was not materially different.

Fire, which originated in the Lamar drug store at Melbourne, almost completely wiped out the business section of Melbourne. The total loss will aggregate $45,000, only partially insured. The town's fire protection is a small chemical engine, which was unable to cope with the flames and the efforts of those fighting the fire directed their attention to saving the dwellings near by. Among the losses is that of the city hall and jail, with all the records of Melbourne. The heaviest losers are L. H. Pearson, building $2,000, insurance $1,000; W. B. Kibbey, building $2,000, no insurance; George Hines & Son, hardware, $5,000, insurance $3,000; Melbourne Harness Co., stock and building, $3,500, insurance $2,000; Pearson hotel, owned and occupied by B. F. Hull $4,000, insurance $2,500; E. A. Hunts & Co., drug stock, $3,800, insurance $2,100; W. L. M. Wensel, building $10,000, insurance $6,000; postoffice also burned and Farmers' bank, no loss except furniture and building. Money in the vault was uninjured. Twenty other losses from small amounts to $1,500. But four places of business were left standing in town which is also without eating house of any kind.

Willie Connell, the young son of Samuel Connell, of Keokuk, was instantly killed by taking hold of a live wire near the electric plant.

The motive for suicide of Charles F. Rademacher, the popular young Sioux City society man, which has been considered a complete mystery, has been discovered. The books of the Thornburg wholesale tobacco firm, recently absorbed by the trust, are $3,240 short. Rademacher spent $1,500 in one week.

There is a movement on foot among the school teachers employed in the city schools at Council Bluffs to combine for mutual benefit. A meeting has been called for one night next week at which time an organization will be perfected. It is proposed to make a demand for a general advance in salaries. Superintendent Clifford has used his influence to discourage the movement, but has been unable to defeat it. The meetings are being held in secret so that not much is known of what is really being done.

Pursuant to a call of a committee, about one-half of the physicians of Marshalltown met in the court house to discuss the prevailing epidemic of typhoid fever. A resolution censuring the local press for publishing the report regarding the condition of the water was adopted. The recent resolution of the city council requiring each physician to report the number of cases in his care, was discussed at great length and it was decided to enter into correspondence with Dr. Kennedy of the state board of health before complying. In discussion of the cause of the epidemic, the physicians present by a rising vote, almost unanimously put the olame on the water supply. Considerable feeling was manifested over the recent action of the council, some even suggesting ignoring the matter entirely.

The republican state central committee at a meeting held at Des Moines a few days ago decided to hold the coming convention July 1. George D. Perkins will be the temporary chairman. Bernard Murphy of Vinton held E. M. Sargent's proxy; Harry Weaver of the First district voted Boysen's proxy. Weaver also handled Clayton's proxy. The remainder of the members were present. The vote was unanimous. The following minor officers of the convention were also chosen: E. W. Weeks of Guthrie Center, secretary; R. C. Gower of Laurens, assistant secretary; John Cook of Hampton, A. V. Proudfoot of Indianola, clerks; Col. J. C. Loper, sergeant-at-arms; J. H. Wilson of Menlo, doorkeeper. The representation was left the same as last year, being one delegate for every 200 votes or fraction thereof at the last preceding election for governor. The selection of the temporary chairman was in harmony with a tacit understanding between the Cummins and anti-Cummins members of the committee.

A fire started in James & Son's general store at Edgewood a few days ago and before it could be checked three buildings had been reduced to ruins, the fine brick in which the James store was located and buildings on either side of it. One of these was owned and occupied by Dr. Newman, who saved most of his library and instruments. The building on the other side was vacant on the lower floor, but the second floor was occupied by Schaeffer, whose loss was total, while the building also was entirely consumed. Edgewood is a town of 590 inhabitants and there was no means of fighting the flames save by the bucket brigade. Practically every man, woman and child turned out but the best that could be done was to save the adjoining buildings. At one time the office of the Edgewood Journal was on fire and only by the hardest kind of work was it saved. The loss on the James building and contents is estimated at $15,000 and the total loss is not far from $20,000. There was not a dollar of insurance and the fire loss will fall heavily upon the little town. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The commissions of all notaries public in Iowa, about 7,000 in number, will expire July 4 of this year, and preparations for the issuing of new commissions are already being made at the state house. The task involved is a large one. The office force of Secretary of State Martin is busy sending out notices to the notaries, to the effect their commissions would expire July 4, 1903. In case the notary receiving a notice desires a renewal, he is expected to fill up the blank attached to the notice and send it to the governor, requesting a renewal of his commission. Along with the application for a renewal there is expected to be sent a bond and the required $5 fee. On receipt of the application for a renewal, the bond being satisfactory, the governor will issue the commission, and it will be sent out from the office of the secretary of state. The number of commissions that are now in force exceeds by about 3,000 the number in force in 1900. By act of the Twenty-eighth general assembly it was provided the commissions of all notaries public issued prior to July 4, 1900, should expire on that day. It was also provided that "commissions subsequently issued shall be for no longer period than three years, and all such commissions shall expire on the fourth day of July in the same year."

SAGE IS OPTIMISTIC.

Thinks Reports Concerning Damage to Fruit Unduly Alarming.

Des Moines, May 4.—During the month of May for thirteen consecutive years the thermometer has dropped below the freezing point. Sometimes the killing frosts have delayed their appearance until the month was well nigh spent. The periodicity of these belated catastrophes has been most trying to growers of fruit and small grain.

The cold snap of the past week has excited no little apprehension through out the state as to the amount of damage done and J. R. Sage of the weather bureau has been flooded with queries. Much concern has been manifested over the condition of fruits Mr. Sage finds much comfort in the fact that the recent cold snap made its appearance in April, and says that while the fruit crop has undoubtedly been injured to some extent, the out look is very promising.

The reports received at the weather bureau have been meagre up to this time, but Mr. Sage produces several interesting facts to support his views. Prominent among these is the fact that all reports received up to this time indicate that the decline of the thermometer was most marked in the northern part of the state, where the season is fully a week later than in the southern section. The reports from the southern part of the state are somewhat alarming, but Mr. Sage argues that first reports are always the worst, and that a revelation as to the true condition is wholly a matter of time.

Mr. Sage also points to the fact that nature provides almost an unlimited number of blossoms and germs against the day of adversity, and that while the recent cold snap may have blighted or killed many of these, there still remains a sufficient quantity to assure a good crop. The fact is also cited that the temperature at the ground is always much lower than points in the air, and that the difference in temperature between the ground and a point ten feet in the air will range from six to ten degrees. The conclusion drawn by Mr. Sage is that while the temperature at the ground, in many portions of the state, may have fallen to the freezing point, or slightly below, the difference in temperature between the ground and points in the air on a level with the blossoms on the trees will in many cases have saved the blossoms from serious damage.

RICHARDS INDICTMENT RIGHT.

Motion to Quash Set Aside by Judge Nichols.

Des Moines, May 4.—Colonel L. Kinkead has returned from Knoxville where he made an argument in support of a motion filed for a change of venue from Marion county for W. A. Richards, indicted for complicity in the Sullivan robbery at Hamilton, New Year's eve. Judge Nichols will announce a decision soon.

A motion to quash the indictment was argued by the attorneys for the defense at Knoxville, before Judge Nichols, and was quickly overruled. Promptly a motion for a change of venue was filed.

The motion was based on the ground that there is a decided prejudice against Richards in the vicinity of Knoxville and Marion county, and that the bitter arraignment to which he was subjected, verbally, by the presiding judge in the Baird case, has served to make it impossible for him to gain a fair trial in Marion county. The ordinary order of the court granting a change of venue is to establish the new venue in the adjoining county in the district. This would remove the Richards case to Warren county, if Judge Nichols sustained the motion. Therefore, the attorneys for Richards asked that the change be not ordered to Warren county because at the next term of court Judge Gamble, who denounced Richards from the bench in the Baird case, will be the presiding judge at Indianola. However, if the venue is placed in Warren county, the attorneys for Richards ask that it be arranged that the case he beard by another judge than Judge Gamble.

It is thought that if a change is granted it will be to Monroe county, at Albia, which would be abundantly neutral. Complaint is made of the newspapers and the sensational reports in them of the robbery and of the Baird trial, in support of the motion for change of venue.

Mrs. Ella McDaniel and A. M. Livix, who were acquitted at Avoca of the charge of murdering the husband of the former at Macedonia, visited in Council Bluffs a few days ago. They were intending to return to their old home at Macedonia, but received assurance from the citizens there that their presence would not be tolerated. They later took a Union Pacific train for the west, and refused to state what their destination was.

After a most bitter legal fight Judge Sloan in the district court at Ottumwa sustained the motion to direct a verdict of not guilty in the case of the State vs. J. D. Ferre, where the defendant was accused of obtaining money illegally. The defendant was secretary of the Ottumwa Building and Loan Association which failed a year ago and left hundreds of poor miners in that city in a suffering condition. The complaining witness was George Ulson, a bachelor who invested his life's earnings, $1,600, and claimed Ferre accepted the money when he knew the association was insolvent and said it was a good investment. The defendant was secretary for two other companies which failed about the same time and two other cases are pending against him in court. The collapse of the companies left hundreds of families destitute.

THE LION'S WHELP

A Story of Cromwell's Time

BY AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "The Bow of Orange Ribbon," "I, Thou and the Other One," "The Maid of Maiden Lane," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Dodd, Mead & Company. All rights reserved.)

"But, mother, when I look back to last August—"

"If you want to look happily forward never look backward. I have always found that one good hour brings on another." And Jane took the counsel into her heart and anon began to sing, when soon a loud, joyful voice joined her, and its owner came into the room singing them.

"Oh, Doctor Verity!" Jane cried, "how glad I am to see you."

"I had been here an hour ago, but I had to wait on the Lady Mary Cromwell. She has sent you a letter, and a coach is at your order, and you are bid to Whitehall. And you will be very welcome there."

Then Jane ran to her mother, and her box of fineries was quickly packed, and the girl came down for her visit glowing with hope and happiness.

As they drew near to Whitehall, Jane's spirits fell a little. She had not caught a glimpse of her lover, and she felt a sudden anxiety about her position. Sometimes prosperity is as fatal to friendship as adversity, and the girl tried in silence to prepare herself for any change in affection that change of fortune might have caused. But her fears were very transient; Mary and Frances Cromwell, full of the joy and pride of their great position, soon carried Jane all through their splendid apartments, and afterwards sat down together in Mary's room to talk over old times and the friends and occupations that had made them happy and memorable. Their first inquiry was for Lady Matilda de Wick, and when Jane answered, "Her father is dead, and I know not exactly what has befallen her since his death," the girls were all silent a few minutes. After the pause, Mary Cromwell said:

"I remember her so well on her fine Barbary mare. How handsome she was! How proud! I wonder where she is."

"It was said she would live with her aunt, Lady Jevery; if so, she must be in London."

"We have seen Lady Heneage often," said Mary Cromwell, "and 'tis said there is a purpose of marriage between Alice Heneage and a favorite of my father's—Lord Cluny Neville."

"I have seen Lord Neville," said Jane. "He brought me your letters and the blue and gold ribbon you sent me. His visits were flying one; he came and he went."

"Like the knight in the story—he loved and he rode away. He is coming here this afternoon, is he not, Frank?"

"He said so. He was to make some copies of the hymn he wrote, for Mr. Milton has set it to music, and we are to practice the singing together. Father thinks very highly of the words."

"Dear me!" ejaculated Jane, "is he also a poet? I thought he wrote only with his sword. I fear that he has too many perfections. Has he not one fault to balance them?"

"Yes; but never mind them now," said Mary; "there is the bell for dinner, and we must answer it at once or we shall grieve mother."

They rose at these words and went quickly to the dining-room. Mrs. Cromwell, leaning upon the arm of her daughter, Mrs. Ireton, was just entering it, and Jane wondered silently at the state these simple country gentry had so easily assumed.

"The General dines with the Speaker," said Mrs. Cromwell; and she was herself about to say grace when Doctor Verity entered. He was greeted with a chorus of welcomes, and readily took his seat at the foot of the table and spoke the few words of grateful prayer which sweetened and blessed the meal. Then he said:

"As I came through Jermyn street I saw Lady Matilda de Wick. She looked daggers and pistols at me. God knows, I pity her. She was shrouded in black."

"Has anything been heard of Stephen de Wick?" asked Jane.

"It is thought he reached The Hague in safety. His companion, Sir Hugh Belvard, joined Prince Rupert's pirate fleet there."

At this moment Lord Cluny Neville entered the room. He saw Jane on the instant, and his eyes gave her swift welcome, while in the decided exhilaration following his entrance Love found his opportunities. But among them was none that gave him free speech with Jane; they were not a moment alone. Cluny had a fund of pleasant talk and soon there was heard from a distant apartment the sound of music, low and sweet, and full of heavenly melody.

"That is Mr. Milton playing," said Mary Cromwell. "I would know his touch among a thousand." And then Cluny blushed a little, and held out a small roll which he carried in his hand. It contained three fair copies of his own hymn, and Mary delightedly hurried Jane and Frank away with her to the musician. He turned as they entered and bowed gravely, and the girls fell at once under the charm of his music. "Glory to God!" he sang, and the room rang with the lofty notes and seemed full of Presence, and of flame-like faces, sublime and tender, while the air vibrated to the final triumphant crescendo, "Glory to God! Glory to God! Glory to God in the Highest!" And in his beautiful face there was seen for a few moments that face of the soul wherein God shineth.

Then there was a short pause of spiritual sensitiveness which was broken by the opening of a door, and all eyes turning towards it beheld Cromwell standing on the threshold. Frances ran to him with a cry of delight. Mary looked at him with adoring pride, and then put into Mr. Milton's hand the roll of manuscript Lord Neville had given her. Jane left her companions and timidly advanced to meet the Lord General.

All eyes, turning, beheld Cromwell.

"Jane," he said tenderly, "Jane Swaffham, I got your message, and it did me good; it did indeed. And if ever I can help you or yours, Jane, come to me; I will be as good as my word—doubt not. Let us see what John Milton is going to play for us. I'll warrant 'tis my young soldier's hymn, and in my judgment, a good hymn."

They were advancing towards the organ as Cromwell spoke, and they joined the group around the inspired player. His trampling notes gave the sensation of charging men and horses, and of the ministration of angelic hosts.

The exultant song ceased, but their hearts were yet full of thanksgiving, and Cromwell walked about the room—with Frances and Jane at his side—humming the majestic melody, or breaking out into some line of audible song, until, addressing John Milton, he said:

"We have sundry letters to write, and the plain truth is, I could wish they were more heavenly. Here is a man to answer who is playing fast and loose with us—and I will not have it. He is laying too much weight on my patience; let him take care that he break it not."

Speaking thus, he walked towards the door, and Jane marveled at the man. His countenance was changed; all its wistful tenderness and exaltation had given place to a stern, steadfast severity; his voice was sharp, his words struck like caustic, and the homelike, country gentleman was suddenly clothed with a great and majestic deportment.

Neville left soon after the Lord General, and the girls had a game of battledore and shuttlecock in the long gallery; then sewing, reading aloud, the evening meal and the evening exercise closed the day. The days that followed were little different. On the whole, Jane was not very sorry when her visit was over and she was free to return home. In spite of the frankest kindness, she felt out of her element. The Cromwells had outgrown their old friends, and not all their familiarities could dispel the atmosphere of superiority which surrounded them; it was unavoidable and unequivocal, though they were not themselves conscious of it.

Then there came to Jane's mind in very sweet fashion the memory of Matilda de Wick. They had quarreled almost constantly for years, and Matilda's exacting temper and sharp tongue had wounded her often; but for all that she knew Matilda loved her. With her mind full of kindly thoughts towards Matilda, Jane returned to her home, and she was delighted to find a letter from her friend waiting for her.

"It came this very morning," said Mrs. Swaffham, "and I told the man who brought it you would be here today, and no doubt would answer it forthwith."

Jane laid aside her bonnet and opened her letter. "She is at Lady Jevery's house, mother, and she longs to see me, and indeed I am in the same mind. We shall be sure to quarrel, but then——"

"You can both play at that game, and you hold your own very well. I would go to Jevery House in the morning. Whom did you see at the Cockpit?"

"I saw Lord Neville several times, but had no private speech with him; and I heard Mary Cromwell say there was a purpose of marriage between him and Alice Heneage."

"'Tis very like."

"I do not think so. I am sure he loves me."

"Then he should say so, bold and outright."

"He said last night he was coming to see my father and you, and though he spoke the words as if they were mere courtesy, I read in his face the purpose of his visit. Mother, we shall need your good word with my father."

"I can't go against your father, Jane. I would as soon take hot coals in my naked hands. You will have to do as your father says, Jane; so make up your mind to that. Father may have a purpose already of marrying you to someone else."

"I will not marry anyone else."

"Your sister said the same thing, but she married Philip Armingford; and now there is no man in the world but Philip."

"I will marry Cluny Neville or remain a spinster."

"You will in the end do as your father and brothers say. There, now! say no more about your marriage. It is beforehand talk, and that kind of discussion amounts to nothing. It is mostly to go over again. I have been making inquiries about the Jeverys; they are what your father calls 'Trimmers'—neither one thing nor another."

In the morning Jane an hour before noon was on her way to Jevery House. It stood close by Drury Lane—a mansion nobly placed upon a stone balustraded terrace, and surrounded by a fine garden. In this garden the old knight was oftenest found; he was there when Jane's carriage stopped at the iron gates. She had been delayed and almost upset in Drury Lane by the deep mud, so that the noon hour was striking as Sir Thomas Jevery met and courteously walked with her to the entrance hall. Here there were a number of servants, and their chief ushered her into a stately cedar salon, the walls of which were painted with the history of the Giants' war. Soon Delia came hurriedly into the room with an exclamation of delight. "Oh, Miss Swaffham! Oh, Miss Jane!" she cried. "My lady is impatient to see you." She led Jane up a magnificent stairway lined with portraits, and they soon reached Matilda's apartment. As the door opened she rose and stretched out her arms.

"Baggage!" she cried with a weak, hysterical laugh. "You dear little baggage! You best, truest heart! How glad I am to see you!"

And Jane took her in her arms, and both girls cried a little before they could speak. Matilda was so weak, and Jane so shocked to see the change in her friend's appearance, that for a few moments tears were the only possible speech. At length Jane said:

"You have been ill, and you never sent for me. I would have stayed by you night and day. I would have been mother and sister both. Oh, indeed, my mother would have come to you, without doubt! Why did you not let us know?"

HOWARD KILLED GOEBEL.

Jury Try to Disagree But Judge Sends Them Back.

Frankfort, Ky., May 1.—In the third trial of James Howard for the killing of Governor William Goebel, over three years ago, the jury at 10:20 a. m. yesterday reported that it could not agree. Judge Chantrell then sent the jury back with instructions to remain until an agreement was reached. It was 10:58 when the jury again came into the court room and handed to Sheriff Jeffers the sealed verdict which was passed up to Deputy Clerk James, who read it as follows:

"We, the jury, find the defendant guilty and fix his punishment at life imprisonment."

Howard was not visibly affected by the verdict.

The jurors took only one ballot on the question of guilt or innocence, all twelve voting for a verdict of guilty. The disagreement was as to the extent of punishment and on this question nine voted for the death penalty and three for life sentence. On the next ballot two of these who voted for life sentence came over with the nine. Juror Burkes then announced that he would, under no circumstances vote for the death penalty and a verdict of life sentence was afterwards agreed upon.

SPEAKER'S STORY FALSE.

Investigating Committee Says There Was No Attempt to Bribe.

Springfield, Ill., May 1.—The committee appointed to investigate charges of bribery in the Illinois legislature submitted a final report to the house last night.

The report states that the committee is unanimous as to the following conclusions:

"First, that the evidence produced before us does not establish any real attempt to corrupt the action of the speaker of this house.

"Second, that there was no reasonable or substantial ground for the editorial 'boodle,' published in the Chicago Inter Ocean on April 21, 1903, and that the charges therein contained and as specified further in the testimony of Mr. Hinman, were wholly without truth or foundation as to any member or officer of this house, so far as we have been able to discover."

During the reading of the report, not a sound was heard, notwithstanding the fact that the lobby and galleries were crowded with spectators who had been drawn to the house in anticipation of a repetition of the riotous proceedings of last week. Upon the question of the adoption of the report, there was a roll call.

The report was adopted without a dissenting voice. The house also unanimously adopted a vote of thanks to the investigating committee for the satisfactory manner in which it had performed its duty.

The rules were then quickly suspended on a viva voce vote and the Mueller bill, the traction measure which had been antagonized by Speaker Miller, was ordered to be brought before the house for immediate consideration. In a fierce debate, opponents of the bill charged that the Mueller law would carry with it a grant of control for forty-five years to street railway companies. An amendment offered by friends of the bill was adopted limiting all grants under the bill to twenty years.

CHINA GIVES HER REASONS.

Explains Refusal to Accede to Russia's Demands in Manchuria.

London, May 2.—In a dispatch from Peking the correspondent of the Times says that in an interview held on Wednesday with all the ministers of the Chinese foreign office, M. Plancon, Russian charge d' affaires, pressed for reasons for the rejection of the Russian demands. The ministers replied that they were unable to give the reasons separately. M. Plancon then, on behalf of his government, requested a statement of China's intentions regarding first, the contemplated alteration in the government of Mongolia; second, the non-alienation by lease, concession or otherwise of any portion of the Liau valley to any other power, and third, the opening of new treaty ports in Manchuria.

To the first clause the ministers replied that the alteration had not yet received imperial sanction; to the second that China had no intention of alienating any of her territory and to the third that the opening of ports would depend upon trade developments.

M. Plancon professed to be satisfied with these replies, but the Chinese are still uncomfortable knowing how powerless they are to resist Russia's demands. It announced that M. Lessar, the Russian minister to China, is returning to Peking and that the fulfillment of the terms of the Manchuria convention will be postponed until after his arrival, and will result from his negotiations. "The fact that Russia now appears anxious to repudiate the orders given M. Plancon," concludes the Times' correspondent, "does not mean that her demands have been abandoned; by these orders Russia has acquainted China with what she expects."

RUSSIANS AND TURKS CLASH.

Berlin, April 30.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Lokal Anzeiger says it is reported from Kars, Asiatic Russia, that a squadron of Turkish cavalry crossed the Russian frontier 70 versts from Sara-Kamysh, trans-Caspian territory, and showed intention of advancing. A Russian frontier post gave the alarm to a regiment of Cossacks, which fired on the Turks, killing an officer and six troops. The Russians suffered no loss. The Turks then retreated across the frontier.

"Did you have a pleasant time at Sunday school," asked Betty's mother. "No," said the child. "Why, what was the matter?" "Jesus wasn't there." "Yes, dear. He must have been; He is always there." "He wasn't today," insisted Betty, "for the teacher got up and said 'Jesus is calling today,' and then we just sang and came home."

Feels Younger and Stronger.

Festus, Mo., May 4th.—Mr. January S. Lilly, a highly respected old gentleman, aged 76, and whose home is in Festus, says:

"For many years I was failing in health. My kidneys were weak and gave me no end of trouble. I had pains in my back and hips so bad that I could not sit up straight without bracing my back, and could not sit only a few minutes in any one position.

"I had to get up during every night very frequently to relieve myself.

"Our doctor said I had Kidney and Bladder Inflammation. I have suffered for over five years in this way, always worse at night.

"I could get no relief, and was getting worse till I used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After I had used a few boxes of this remedy I felt stronger and better than I have for years and years. My pains all left me and I can rest and sleep.

"Every old man or woman who feels as I felt should use Dodd's Kidney Pills and I am sure they will not be disappointed. They brought me out wonderfully."

Speakers for the Woodman Picnic, June 9.

(From waverly Republican, April 23.

The principal speakers for the big Woodman picnic have been secured. They are Hon. J. G. Johnson, of Peabody, Kansas, and Hon. A. R. Talbet, of Lincoln, Nebr, Both are fine orators and leaders among the foremost men of the M. W. A, No picnic association has ever before been able to secure both these men to take part in the program. They are rival candidates for the Head Consul, the best office at the disposal of the order Mr.Jonson is now attorney general of the M. W. A. and in a political way it might be noted that he is chairman of the democratic national exedutive committee while Mr. Talbot is an ardent republican and a law partner of William Jennings Bryan. with the distinguished gentleman as orators of the day the people will hear two able addresses. The commitee is hard at work making arrangements for the picnic and the people of Waverly will see that the best entertainment is provided for the visitors. The commitee with the assistance of our citizens propose to make the 1903 Northeas, Iowa Woodman Picnic the biggest and best event of the kind in the history of Woodman picnics in Iowa. There will be a ball game between the two best teams in Iowa, prize drills for the Foresters and royal neighbors, band contests and many other interesting and desirable amusements.

The arrangements are all in the hands of an executive commitee of which Col. A. L. Sorter, of Mason City is president, F. A. Lee, waverly. Iowa. is secretary. The big event will be pulled off at waverly on June9th, 1903. Special trains will run all roads to accommodate the crowds of people from all over northeast Iowa who will visit waverly on that date.

Band Concert on the Street To-Night.

The editor sat in his easy chair, lighting his pipe on his auburn hair. A halo shown over his face so fair, but his knees were out and his feet were bare. And he sang a song both sad and sweet, while the flies died all around his feet, for he had no grub in his shop to eat, and the ground was covered with sleet. Now, what in the world was the man to do? He had eaten the paste and swallowed the glue; he hadn't a drink, he hadn't a chew, and while he stared his whiskers grew. And the band played on. Ex.

TURKEY'S NEW CAUSE FOR ALARM

Bands of Armenian Revolutionists Appear in Different Districts.

CUT DOWN BY PRISONERS

Captain Overton and Private Noyes Met Death at the Hands of Men They Were Guarding—Three Men Had Been Left to Guard Fifty.

Constantinople, May 18.—The Turkish authorities are disquieted at the recent appearance of bands of Armenian revolutionists coming from Russia, in the districts of Bayazid and Sasun, Armenia, and are adopting rigorous measures to guard the frontier. The Armenians cross in small parties in the neighborhood of Bayazid and hence make their way to the Sasun mountains, where they are safe from pursuit. It is alleged here that the Russian authorities of Kars, Asiatic Russia, are aware of the movement of the Armenian revolutionists, but that they do not intend to interfere. It is believed that the appearance of these bands indicates a revival of the activity on the part of the old Armenian committee, who it is reported, are anxious to be in a position to take advantage of possible complications arising from the Macedonian situation, in which case the Armenians will be revived, and the same advantages gained by the Macedonians from European intervention will be demanded for Armenia.

The Turkish government has notified the Bulgarian exarch that Gerassimos, bishop of Strumitza, Macedonia, has been removed and has invited the exarch to appoint his successor. The exarch, however, refuses to recognize the authority of the Turkish government to remove the bishop. It is alleged that Bishop Gerrassimos is a supporter of the Macedonian movement, but it is also stated that the charges are brought by the jealous Greek clergy.

It is announced that the Turkish troops entered Ipek, Albania, Saturday, and not May 8, as previously announced, after meeting with strong opposition.

CUT DOWN BY PRISONERS.

Americans Met Death at Hands of Men They Were Guarding.

Manila, May 18.—Capt. Clough Overton, of the Fifteenth cavalry, and Private Harry Noyes, who were killed May 15 at Sucatlan, Mindanao, met their death at the hands of insurgent prisoners whom they were guarding. Their companion in this duty, Private Hartlow, was wounded at the same time.

Captain Overton's troops of the Fifteenth cavalry had been scouting in the department of Misamis, Mindanao, on the trail of the insurgent leader, Flores. The cavalrymen captured fifty of Flores' followers and confined them in a house at Sucatlan. Captain Overton and three men remained to guard the prisoners while Lieut. Cameron continued in the pursuit of Flores. The prisoners suddenly broke out of the house where they were confined, secured their bolos, and rushed at the four Americans on guard. Captain Overton was slashed with a bolo and bled to death. After escaping the insurgents gathered and renewed the attack on the Americans. The cavalryman who was not wounded repulsed the enemy and defended his dead and wounded companions until the return of Lieut. Cameron. Capt. Overton is criticised for having kept only three men to guard fifty, and for having neglected to destroy the insurgents' bolos.

Flores is a Visayan and the majority of his followers are Paganos living in the Misamis mountains. No Moros were concerned in the affair.

TO REDUCE NAVIES.

England Would Join With Other Powers in Decreasing Armament.

London, May 15.—The question of the reduction of naval armaments came up again yesterday in the house of commons during a discussion of the estimates. The speakers suggested that the government take the first step in proposing a reduction to other powers. Sir Charles Dilke, advanced radical, said he thought this might be possible. In view of the improved relations between Great Britain and France, those two nations might talk the matter over and subsequently approach Russia. Even if Germany did not agree to a reduction the three powers might effect something. It was not necessary for Great Britain to build against the United States. It would be as great a mistake to count upon the United States as an enemy as to count upon her as an active ally, for the United States had always been the great defender of the rights of neutrals.

Mr. Arnold-Foster, the admiralty secretary, after having pointed out that it was the duty of the admiralty to deal with facts as they were and not as they might be, said that all the great powers were increasing their maritime preparations, mainly Russia. According to the available figures France and Russia together were now building three more battleships than Great Britain. As the actual force in ships which could be arrayed against Great Britain ought to be the guiding principle, he denied that the admiralty's proposals were in excess of the requirements of the country.

The secretary added that he would not on that occasion express any view with regard to the position as affected by the United States—"that was a grave consideration which in the future would have to be considered."

Thirty-Two Injured in Riot.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 18.—The attempt made by the officials of the Connecticut Railway and Lighting company to run their cars with non-union men yesterday resulted in a riot in which at least thirty-two men were injured.

The women of Bermuda are noted for their fine complexions. This is partly accounted for by the fact that they eat plentifully of onions.

EMPLOYERS GET READY TO RESIST

Organization Being Formed to Oppose Demands of Labor Unions.

MEETING HELD IN NEW YORK

More Than 700 Employers Hold a Secret Session to Discuss the Matter—Statement Declares Walking Delegate is a Parasite on the Body Politic.

New York, May 16.—The first steps towards effecting a general organization of employers in the building trades for the purpose of offering united resistance to the demands of the labor unions were taken last night at meetings held in Manhattan and Brooklyn. The meeting in Manhattan was held at the Building Trades' club, 700 employers being present, and the throng being so great that overflow meetings were held in the various assembly rooms of the club.

The meeting was in private, and at its close the following statement was given out as the sentiment of the various speakers:

"The complete paralysis of the building industry has been brought about by irresponsible combinations acting through a tyrannical board of walking delegates, or business agents, which demand prompt and energetic action by all good citizens who have the welfare of our great city at heart.

"It is time that the decent and order-loving mechanic asserts himself and defies the arbitrary demagogue who ties his hands and drowns his voice.

"The delegate is a parasite on the body public to be exterminated.

"It was pointed out that this is not a question of wages or hours, but a question of whether the irresponsible bodies of men are to be permitted to conduct the business of the employer, and in so doing make it impossible for him to execute his contracts and to discharge the obligations and responsibilities which he assumes and to which the courts and the law of the land bind him.

"The extremes to which the unions have resorted and the manner in which they have repeatedly broken contracts with their employers have alienated from them the sympathy of the public.

"The speakers also called upon the police and the magistrates to perform their duties unflinchingly. They pointed out the failure of justice in the past to punish violence, the brutality of assaults, the damage to property and the murders committed in the name of labor which have gone unpunished. They asked that political ambition should not be permitted to pervert justice The district atorney was called upon to use the machinery at his command and prosecute with all severity the blackmailers which this pernicious system has fostered, and thus to show the men how they are misrepresented and their confidence betrayed.

"The system calls for repressive measures. The public now looks to the employers to take the initiative and to use every lawful method to destroy the Goliath, whom lack of opposition has so emboldened that it throttles this great city without hesitation and without compunction."

BULGARIA CALLS POWERS.

They Must Act if Serious Complications Are to Be Avoided.

London, May 15.—The correspondent of the Times at Sofia cables as folows:

"Bulgaria has called the attention of the powers to the severities practiced by the Turkish authorities in Macedonia, the outrages committed by the armed Mohammedan population, and to the secrecy of the proceedings of the Salonica court martial which precludes consular intervention. Nothing is known here of the alleged Bulgarian note to the powers, but if serious complications are to be avoided these matters must receive the serious attention of the powers.

"A state of terror prevails in several districts. Many villages are blockaded by the Turkish troops and some have been bombarded and burned. The Bashi Bazouks are assisting in the work of destruction. Villagers have been arrested wholesale and others are fleeing to the mountains."

ASK TO HAVE CASE ADVANCED.

Attorney General Wants Hearing in Northern Securities Case.

Washington, May 16.—Authoritative announcement was made yesterday of the intention of the attorney general to enter a motion in the United States supreme court next Monday to advance the hearing in the Northern Securities company case, the appeal in which was docketed recently in that court. It is altogether probable that the court will grant the motion, but there is hardly any possibility of the argument of the case before the court reconvenes on October 12.

AMES GETS SIX YEARS.

Minneapolis Executive Pays Penalty for Bribery.

Minneapolis, May 18.—After listening to the appeal of the counsel of Former Mayor A. A. Ames for mercy, Judge Elliott sentenced the once powerful political leader to spend six years at hard labor in the state penitentiary. A bond of $19,000 was accepted by the court and Dr. Ames will not have to go to prison until the supreme court has passed on his appeal

A Beautiful Young Society Woman's Letter.

ST. PAUL, MINN.
521 Wabasha St.

Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

Dear Sir:

"I took Peruna last summer when I was all run down, and had a headache and backache, and no ambition for anything. I now feel as well as I ever did in all my life, and all thanks is due to your excellent Peruna."—Bess F. Healy.

The symptoms of summer catarrh are quite unlike in different cases, but the most common ones are general lassitude, played-out, tired-out, used-up, run-down feelings, combined with more or less heavy, stupid, listless, mental condition. Relish for food and the ability to digest food seems to be lost.

Skin eruptions, sallow complexion, biliousness, coated tongue, fitful, irregular sleep, help to complete the picture which is so common at this season.

Peruna so exactly meets all these conditions that the demand is so great for this remedy at this season of the year that it is nearly impossible to supply it.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HOUSEWIVES HEADACHES

You don't know why you suffer from headache and you are apt to believe you have some dire female trouble, but its dollars to doughnuts that you are wrong. Women are prone to put off the duties of Nature to attend to the duties of the home and when they do get time to go, the feeling has passed.

Constipation results and then the awful racking headache. Take a spoonful of every night before going to bed. Keep it up for a few weeks.

A. F. Klopf, of Troy, Ohio, miller at Hayner's Distillery, writes under date of June 10, 1901: "My wife and self suffered off and on for three or four years with Constipation and Sick Headache, and we received almost instant relief by taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The use of several bottles restored our digestive organs to normal condition, and although we are free from any gastric trouble, we do not consider being without a bottle for a minute."

HUMOR OF THE DAY

A Musical Performance.

The man had attended a musical party and the next morning met a friend who lived next door.

"I was at a delightful affair at your neighbor's last night," he said.

"Yes, I heard something going on there. What was it?"

"The execution of a number of musical selections by the young lady."

"Oh, it was an execution, was it?" said the friend in a tone of relief. "I am glad to hear it was no worse. It sounded to me like a murder."—Comfort.

Submarine Sport.

Charlie Finn—Well, how did the tennis match come out?

Willie Gill—It didn't come out. We hadn't more than got started before some fool fisherman came along and drew in the net.

Her Little Hint.

Tess—There goes Ursula Hope with Jack Timmid.

Jess—Yes, she's setting her cap at him.

Tess—Do you really think she cares for him?

Jess—Yes, indeed! You know her full name is Ursula May Hope. Well she signs all her letters to him now. "U. May Hope."—Stray Stories.

Not for His Reading.

"Do you choose for yourself the books you read, my boy?"

"Sure."

"But how do you know what to avoid?"

"Oh, I've all their names here."

"Their names?"

"You bet. It's in this list of 100 best books for boys to read."

Up to the Old Tricks.

"These college boys beat me," said St. Peter, as he locked the gate for the night.

"What's the matter now?" queried the man who was being fitted with a pair of wings.

"Why, I let in a batch a while ago and they no sooner got in than they began to pitch quoits with their halos."

An Objection.

"No," said the friend, "I don't think your new type of American girl will create anything of an artistic stir."

"Why not?" asked the artist in a tone of indignant disappointment.

"Because her legs are not too long nor her waist too short. In fact, she looks too much like a human being to be accepted as artistic."

Fine Point.

Miss Worry—That man seems to be ailing.

Expert—'Ale' nuttin', mum! Dat's beer!"

Both of Them.

Guest (at dinner)—"Ah! that's good old ale. Pardon my asking, but where did you get it?"

Subbubs—"Home brewed."

Guest—"Really? The chicken is delightful, too. Is it one of your own raising?"

Subbubs—"Yes, home brood."

Feminine Reasoning.

Postal Clerk—You'll have to put another stamp on that letter.

Miss Pert—Why?

Postal Clerk—Because it's overweight.

Miss Pert—But, gracious! Another stamp would make it still heavier.—Magazine of Humor.

Mrs. F. Wright, of Oelwein, Iowa, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Overshadowing indeed is the success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — compared with it, all other medicines for women are experiments.

Why has it the greatest record for absolute cures of any female medicine in the world? Why has it lived and thrived and done its glorious work among women for a quarter of a century? Simply because of its sterling worth. The reason that no other medicine has ever reached its success is because there is no other medicine so successful in curing woman's ills. Remember these important facts when a druggist tries to sell you something which he says is just as good.

A Young New York Lady Tells of a Wonderful Cure:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—My trouble was with the ovaries; I am tall, and the doctor said I grew too fast for my strength. I suffered dreadfully from inflammation and doctored continually, but got no help. I suffered from terrible dragging sensations with the most awful pains low down in the side and pains in the back, and the most agonizing headaches. No one knows what I endured. Often I was sick to the stomach, and every little while I would be too sick to go to work for three or four days; I work in a large store, and I suppose standing on my feet all day made me worse.

"At the suggestion of a friend of my mother's I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it is simply wonderful. I felt better after the first two or three doses; it seemed as though a weight was taken off my shoulders; I continued its use until now I can truthfully say I am entirely cured. Young girls who are always paying doctor's bills without getting any help as I did, ought to take your medicine. It costs so much less, and it is sure to cure them.—Yours truly, ADELAIDE PRAHL, 174 St. Ann's Ave., New York City."

Women should not fail to profit by Miss Adelaide Prahl's experiences; just as surely as she was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so certainly will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure others who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration; remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. Address is Lynn, Mass.; her advice is free and alway helpful.

Republican County Convention

The republicans of Hancock county will meet in delegate convention at Garner, on Friday. May 22, 1903, at two o'clock p. m. for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State convention, a Senatorial convention and a representative convention yet to be called, and also to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention. The basis of representation in said convention shall be one delegate from each township or precinct and one delegate for every 20 votes or major fraction thereof cast for W. B. Martin, for secretary of state, at the general election held on November 4, 1902.

German and Ell townships are entitled to the following number:

Ell township 6 delegates
German township 4 delegates.

It is recommended that the different townships hold their caucuses on or before Wednesday, May 20, 1903.

J. N. SPROLE. Secretary. E. L. STILSON, Chairman

The Primary Election.

The primary election on last Saturday was not as lively in these parts as it was in other localities, and but a very light vote was polled here. In many places in the county, however, a full republican and a good share of the democratic vote was out. There was no strife for any nomination other than that of sheriff for which office there were four candidates. H. H. Ellsworth, of Britt, was the successful candidate though by a very narrow margin, less than 50 votes bring his plurality over Schmalle. Considering the fact that there were three candidates from the east side and but one from the west Ellsworth's nomination is not what one would consider a great victory and Schmalle having received such a large vote demonstrates that he is quite a favorite thoughout the county. Mr. Ellsworth will undoubtedly make a good official as also would either of the three unsuccessful candidates. The whole ticket as nominated at the primaries is a good one and will appear upon the ballots this fall as follows: Treasurer, W. L. Mitchell; Superintendent of Schools, A. M. Deyoe. Sheriff, H. H. Ellsworth, Surveyer, E. W. Burgitt, and Coronor, A. R. Carton. The result of the primary election in Ell township for the office of sheriff was as as follows: Chas. Hall, 36; Byers, 18; Schmalle, 15, and Ellsworth, 6.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad has completed a survey for a new line from Greenfield, Adair county, to Villisca. It is now surveying a line from Greenfield to Winterset, and will soon run a third line from Winterset to Tracy. At this point the new line will cross the Albia and Des Moines branch and connect with the Burlington and Northwestern division of the Burlington. The sixteen miles between Tracy and Oskaloosa are now being built. When this stretch of track is completed, which will be within a few weeks, the Burlington's new through line from Des Moines to Chicago via Oskaloosa will be completed, and fast Chicago-Des Moines trains will be put on. First among the new pieces of road-making comes the Greenfield-Winterset connection.

The fees received in the office of Secretary of State Martin for the biennial period, which will end June 30, of this year, will be the heaviest ever received by the office in a period of corresponding length. They will reach nearly $350,000, or about the same as would be raised by a levy of six-tenths of a mill on the taxable valuation of the property in Iowa. A large share of this is due to the increase in the corporation fees received by the state because of the enactment by the last general assembly of the law removing the limit of the fee for filing articles of incorporation. More than $100,000 of the total has been paid by the Rock Island railroad alone. The receipts of the office in fees this far in the period have been over $92,000. There will be added to this before the period closes, $35,000 or more in notarial fees besides regular fees. The $20,000 filing fee just paid in by the Rock Island helped out materially.

The party of German agriculturists who are visiting in America spent a day at the Brookmont farm at Odebolt. They were met at the station by the owner of the farm, Albert E. Cook, and spent a most profitable day. The experiments in stock feeding, in corn breeding and other lines of experimentation being pursued on the farm aroused their most careful attention and they were unanimous in praise of the manner in which the farm was conducted. A large number of members of the Ames faculty, trustees, newspaper men and others, accompanied them from Ames to Odebolt. The Germans were unanimous in their praise of the work at the Iowa State college. They admitted it was ahead of anything they had ever seen. They expressed the greatest admiration for the country through which they passed. They were greatly interested at Ames in the clay industry and several of the party took a trip to Nevada to visit a new and up-to-date brickmaking plant.

A dispatch from Knoxville says: Another phase of the Richards case is awaiting a finish in the district court here. For a long time Bert Richards had been running a little restaurant in the town of Hamilton, and it was the understanding that the restaurant was owned in part or entirely by W. A. Richards, then deputy United States marshal. The little restaurant was run until after the robbery of Farmer Sullivan for which ex-Marshal Richards has been indicted, when the feeling against the Richards brothers was so strong that it was closed out. The grand jury recently indicted W. A. and Bert Richards for keeping a liquor nuisance, it having been demonstrated that the restaurant they conducted was used for other purposes than for selling pies and sandwiches. The case was called in the district court and an attempt was made to throw out the indictment as insufficient, but this was overruled, after which very little resistance was made in the case. Both of the Richards were convicted under the indictment, the jury being out only about five minutes. The court has not yet fixed sentence. It was presumably at or near this restaurant that Richards will claim to have been when the robbery of the Sullivans took place and the present trial may have involved the alibi in some way or another.

County Treasurer Al. W. Layman of Polk county has levied on the Mutual Telephone company for $5,000 delinquent taxes and taken possession of the exchange, switch board, telephones and business of the concern. The property he placed in the hands of the manager of the company, C. C. Deering of Boone, as special custodian, pending the sale of the property to satisfy the claim of the county for taxes. This sale will take place at 10 o'clock a. m. May 29 in front of the court house. In the meantime the property will be in the custody of Manager Deering, who will continue its operations as formerly. If the company raises the money and pays the taxes before the date of sale, it will release the property from the levy of the treasurer. The delinquent taxes cover the last three years. The company has paid no taxes to the county since the payment of taxes was transferred from the state to the county under the Blanchard law. The delinquent tax collector is entitled to 5 per cent penalty on the total delinquency, which will amount to $247.31 additional, so that the total amount due the county from the company is $5,133.55. However, the manager of the business during the period in which the treasurer has possession of the property preceding the date of sale is entitled to compensation as custodian from the county which would reduce the amount due to the county to a little more than $5,000.

A party of friends will leave Iowa next month for Europe under the leadership of Geo. I. Huffman, of Des Moines. Write him: Price $249.50. If you wait until you have "time," you will never go—never. Forget household cares, dismiss business from your mind and go.

A roughly dressed, smooth shaven man, riding a brown horse, dashed up to the postoffice at Kossuth a few days ago and, drawing a revolver, compelled Postmaster Richard Hedges to deliver over the contents of the safe, amounting to $150 in stamps and money. The bandit then escaped. Kossuth is a short distance northeast of Mediapolis and is a small country village. Postmaster Hedges is an old and rather feeble man and could do nothing to prevent the robbery, which was an exceedingly bold one. There is much excitement in Kossuth on account of the deed, but there seems to be little chance of capturing the robber.

Two masked robbers armed with ugly looking revolvers performed an interesting stunt at Lipgeng's saloon in West Burlington. There were then eight customers in the place. A man attired in a white mask appeared at the far end of the bar and in an easy manner commanded all to throw up their hands. The hands went up simultaneously, the victims were faced to the wall and relieved of their belongings. The till was first tapped and yielded between $75 and $80. The search of the customers swelled this amount about $25, making the harvest of the occasion about $100, a revolver and gold watch. After the men completed their work they backed out of the door and have not been seen since.

At the meeting of the trustees of the Iowa State college at Ames, it was decided to award the contract for the new central building to H. W. Schluetter, of Chicago. The contract price is $262,000. This does not include the heating and plumbing and the furnishing. Construction will begin at once, and it is the intention to have the building completed by September, 1905. It would be possible to complete the structure before that time, but it will not be finished until then, owing to the fact the proceeds of the special building levy will not be available until that time in sufficient sum to meet the cost of the improvement. The new building will be 110x220, and will consist of four stories and a basement. It will be of Lake Superior Bedford stone and fire proof.

Mabel Lund, the 11-year-old adopted daughter of Mrs. J. Lund, residing in Randall, south of Webster City, has been taken away by her stepfather, John Eddington. Mabel Lund was the grand-daughter of Mrs. J. Lund. At 3 years of age the little one was taken by Mrs. Lund who has raised her. Sometime after the birth of the child Miss Lund and Eddington were married and moved to Des Moines, where they have since lived. A few days ago Eddington unexpectedly appeared in Story City, hired a livery rig, drove out to the Lund home, found Mabel on her way home from school, enticed her into the buggy, drove back to Story City and left on the southbound train, going supposedly to Des Moines. Mrs. Lund is frantic over the loss of the child and will take legal action to recover her, though this will be difficult, as no adoption papers were made out when she took the girl.

The Indianola roller mills, owned by Hulen & Chilcoat, burned to the ground a few nights ago. The loss is complete and will amount to about $25,000. Both of the proprietors are in Illinois and the amount of the insurance is unknown. It is supposed that it was covered, however. The firm put in all new machinery last year. The plant was one of the finest in the state. The J. M. Holland lumber yard is located next to the mills, and for a long time it was uncertain whether or not the yards would be saved from the flames, which were repeatedly communicated thereto. It was feared that if the lumber caught the whole of the north end of town would be burned. It is supposed that the fire started in the boiler room of the mill. The plant was known as the Novelty Mill. It employed a half dozen men during most of the year. The mill was located a block and a half from the square and in the heart of the city.

Because of failure to secure the honor of delivering the valedictory at the commencement exercises of the Renwick high school to be held May 29, Miss Emma Yourdan, a bright young member of the graduating class, has become mentally unbalanced and is in a serious condition. Miss Yourdan has worked very hard in her studies the past month and often sat up till 2 o'clock in the morning pouring over her books, her supreme ambition being to become the valedictorian of her class. When the markings of the class were examined, the result of the work announced and the young lady found herself beaten by another member she locked herself in her room and when found an hour later was lying on the floor unconscious. Restoratives brought her back to consciousness, but she has been irrational ever since and talks continually in an incoherent manner about her graduation. Her mind seems to be completely shattered by the disappointment.

BODY TORN TO ATOMS.

Postmaster at Kossuth and Postoffice Blown to Pieces.

Mediapolis, May 15.—Shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the people of this town were startled by a loud explosion over in the direction of the little town of Kossuth, two miles distant.

It was quickly ascertained that the postoffice of the village had been blown up and that Postmaster Hedges had been killed, his body being torn to pieces.

The greatest excitement prevailed but it was learned at once that no one was in the postoffice building except the unfortunate postmaster at the time.

Rev. C. Leprick of the Presbyterian church had just left the store when the explosion occurred.

The building was rent and torn and quickly caught fire, soon burning to the ground.

The fragments of the postmaster's body were afterwards found in the cellar under the building.

Rev. Mr. Leprick says that he was talking to Mr. Hedges when the latter suddenly told him he was getting sick and to go for a doctor.

The minister started at once but went only across the street when the explosion occurred.

It is said Mr. Hedges, who ran a store in connection with the postoffice, had several cans of powder in stock. It is thought that after the minister left him he fell among the powder cans, dropping his pipe into the powder.

Some persons who were near at hand declare the explosion was that of dynamite, but it was known there was no dynamite in the store. Aside from these conjectures the affair is shrouded in the deepest mystery.

It will be remembered that on Monday last Postmaster Hedges was found insensible in the road and told a story about a lone highwayman robbing him of a lot of money and stamps.

Mr. Hedges since that has been in precarious health from a slight paralytic stroke but was feeling much better up to the time he told Rev. Leprick he was suddenly worse.

The property loss was small. The government officials will investigate the explosion. Mr. Hedges was a man of the highest repute.

Mediapolis, May 16.—It is now believed by some that Postmaster Hedges, who was killed in the explosion which destroyed the postoffice, committed suicide. His body was found in the cellar, directly under the place where the powder cans stood, showing he was leaning over the powder when it went off, blowing him straight up into the air and allowing his remains to fall directly back into the cellar. If he had been some distance from the powder the body would not have been blown away from the spot. The face was badly marked with powder burns. It is said that Mr. Hedges was somewhat out of his head the past day or two. Some people are inclined to believe his story of being held up and robbed as imaginary.

PAROLE LAW IS HIT.

Judge Miller of Anamosa Revolutionizes It.

Des Moines, May 15.—The Iowa parole law or system received a severe jolt yesterday at Anamosa, and there will be some revision of the rules unless the supreme court backs up the governor.

B. W. Garrett, parole secretary for Gov. Cummins, received a dispatch from Anamosa announcing that the district court had ordered released from custody Frank Davis, a convict serving time in the state penitentiary there. Habeas corpus proceedings were brought before Judge Miller at Anamosa to secure the release of Davis. He has been serving a seventeen year sentence from Clinton county for murder, and was paroled about two months before he would have been released. He was a good prisoner and earned all the "good time" possible, amounting to nearly seven years. He was returned upon violation of this parole. As is customary in such cases the good time deduction previously made was cancelled. In fact this was one of the conditions to which he subscribed when he accepted the parole and it is a clause in every parole agreement. Under this plan he would have to serve nearly seven years instead of the two months which would have released him if he had not accepted the parole agreement. Now the court has declared that the good time earned previously to the parole must stand to his credit and so standing he is entitled to release now that he has served the two of the three months which remained of his abbreviated term in the penitentiary.

The suit was brought by Attorney Tom Milnor, and as Attorney General Mullan could not go to Anamosa to defend the state the defense was entrusted to Senator Ellison. An appeal will be immediately taken to the supreme court, as the question is one the supreme court has never passed on. If the decision is allowed to stand it will necessitate a revision of the parole system in vogue in Iowa, which is somewhat irregular and without special warrant of law. It is expected that others who are in the same fix as was Davis will be asking for release on the same grounds. In every case where convicts have been returned for violation of their paroles they have been required to lose their previously earned credit for good conduct. If they are to be allowed this credit the governors will be much slower to grant paroles near the end of a sentence.

KILLED BY A ROBBER.

Lone Robber's Bold Act in a Restaurant at West Liberty.

West Liberty, May 15.—A desperate lone robber held up Tom McCarthy's lunch house, fifty yards from the Rock Island station, here at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. Arthur Meade, a jeweler, offered resistance to the robber and was shot. The bullet entered his breast near the heart and caused death. Meade did not regain consciousness after he was shot and could make no statement.

Mayor McIntosh and Marshal Wi... as soon as they learned of the robbery and murder caused the fire bells in the city and the factory whistles to be sounded. The town was aroused in a few minutes. A meeting of infuriated citizens was held. Mayor McIntosh presided at the meeting. A posse was enlisted and men armed to the teeth are scouring the country for the robbers.

Night Clerk Morian was in charge of the restaurant when the masked robber entered with revolver drawn. The robber had no sooner entered than he began to talk with Meade. Meade appeared to know the man and the two were joshing each other about the lateness of the hour. All at once the robber pointed a revolver at Meade and exclaimed.

"Shut your face and hold up your hands."

"Oh, I guess not," said Meade apparently thinking that the hold-up was a joke.

"Well, I think you will," said the robber, and then there was a flash from the pistol, and Meade reeled to the floor shot through the breast.

There were six or seven men in the room at the time. None of them offered any resistance to the robber who kept his smoking revolver in his hand and loudly shouted that he would shoot the liver out of any man who moved. The men who were in the restaurant were United States mail clerks and one traveling man, whose name at this time cannot be learned.

West Liberty is a postal distributing point and there are several postal clerks laying over here every night. They eat lunch in the McCarthy place, often in the middle of the night.

The unknown robber opened the safe of the restaurant and took therefrom all the cash, amounting to $25. Before leaving the place he passed by his victim.

"I am sorry that I had to shoot you," said the robber. "I hope that you will not die." But while the robber was speaking young Meade was breathing his last. A rush was made for the prostrate form on the floor as soon as the robber had left the place. He was too far gone to make a statement.

NEW INTERURBAN COMPANY

Will Build Electric Line From Des Moines to Council Bluffs.

Des Moines, May 16.—The Western Iowa Interurban Railway company will build an electric railroad between Des Moines and Council Bluffs, was organized in this city yesterday. It is capitalized for $1,000,000. Its principal place of business will be in Des Moines, and the line to be constructed remains to be definitely located.

However, it was decided to build the line through Polk, Dallas, Guthrie, Audubon, Shelby, Harrison and Pottawattamie counties. It will start from Des Moines. It will run through Adel, Guthrie Center, Audubon and Harlan. This is not determined upon, but it is generally understood. The probabilities are that it will go to Council Bluffs by way of Shelby. It may run from Shelby to Logan, or it may run from Harlan to Logan and leave out Shelby, though this is regarded as a remote contingency.

A board of directors, composed of one member from each of the interested counties, was selected. It is proposed as follows:

Polk county, H. H. Polk, Des Moines.
Dallas, Clyde Brenton, Dallas City.
Guthrie, E. W. Weeks, Guthrie Center.
Audubon, J. A. Nash, Audubon.
Shelby, G. W. Cullison, Harlan.
Pottawattamie, J. W. Davis, Council Bluffs.
Harison, Almer Stern, Logan.

These directors will meet at Audubon, June 1, to organize. The selection of a president has not been determined upon, as yet. It is probable that Mr. Weeks, of Guthrie county, will be selected.

The directors will first proceed to raise the paid up capital necessary to incorporate under the articles which were adopted at the general conference yesterday. These articles will then be filed. The directors will then elect the heads of the surveying, right-of-way departments, and the officers will begin work immediately after June 1.

It is understood that the Des Moines street car company will build to the Polk county line to meet the interurban road, on its own motion and on its own behalf. Therefore the new company will build its line from the Polk county line west. That is, the line will come in over the Des Moines interurban.

The Iowa National Bank of Iowa has begun the first of 300 suits to foreclose mortgages against victims of a swindling building and loan manager.

Engineer Harry Bechtel, one of the best known men in the employ of the Chicago & orthwestern road, was instantly killed at De Witt. Bechtel was oiling his engine, which stood on the track, and stepped back for a train on an adjoining track just as the westbound passenger came thundering into the yards. Bechtel did not have time to get out of the way and was killed instantly.

THE LION'S WHELP

A Story of Cromwell's Time

BY AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "The Bow of Orange Ribbon," "I, Thou and the Other One," "The Maid of Maiden Lane," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Dodd, Mead & Company. All rights reserved.)

"Cromwell wants only that Parliament should know its own mind, and declare itself dissolved. God knows it is high time, but Vane, and more with him, would sit while life lasts. Martha, my heart is troubled within me. Have we got rid of one tyrant calling himself King, to give obedience to a hundred tyrants calling themselves Parliament? It shall not be so. As the Lord liveth, verily, it shall not!"

There was a meeting of the Council at the Speaker's house the night after Israel Swaffham's indignant protest against Parliament, and Cromwell, sitting among those self-seeking men, was scornfully angry at their deliberations. His passion for public and social justice burned, and in a thunderous speech, lit by flashes of blinding wrath, he spoke out of a full and determined heart. Then he mounted his horse and rode homeward.

CHAPTER VIII.

Upon the Threshold.

If we believe that life is worth living, our belief helps to create that fact, for faith is in matters of the spirit all that courage is in practical affairs. To Jane and Cluny this belief was not difficult, for limitation always works for happiness, and during the ensuing year life kept within the bounds of their mutual probation and of Cluny's military duties, was full of happy meetings and partings; days in which Love waited on Duty, and again, days in which Love was lord of every hour; when they wandered together in the Park like two happy children, or, if the weather was unfit, sat dreaming in the stately rooms of Sandys about the little gray house in Fifeshire, which was to be their own sweet home.

So the weeks and months went by, and though they were not alike, they had that happy similitude which "I wish to see your face no more."

ves little to chronicle. Jane's chief tements came from her visits to Cromwell and Matilda de Wick. he affection between Jane and tilda had the strong root of habit well as of inclination. They could be happy if they were long apart. e visited frequently at Jevery se, and Matilda quite as frently at Sandys.

ne morning in the spring of 1653, e was returning from a two days' t to the Cromwells. The air was fresh and balmy she went to Jev- House, resolved to ask Matilda drive in the Park with her. As nt up-stairs she wondered what uld find Matilda in, for e was a certain mental pleasure he uncertainty of her friend's tem-

She found her lying upon a sofa er chamber, her little feet, pretshod in satin, showing just below gown; her hands clasped above head, her long black hair scatterosely on the pillow. She smiled uidly as Jane entered, and then have been expecting you, Jane. ud not keep the thought of you of my mind, and by that token I you were coming. Pray, where you been? Or, where are you ?"

have been spending two days the Cromwells, and the morning fair, I wondered if you would not an hour in the park. Do you that Cymlin arrives from Ireto-day? He would think the ey well taken, if he saw you at nd of it."

ou are a little late with your news, Jane. That is one of your faults. Cymlin was here last night. He spent a couple of hours with me," then she smiled so peculiarly, Jane could not help asking her:

"What is there in your way of smiling, Matilda? I am sure it means a story of some kind."

"I shall have to tell you the story, for you could never guess what that smile was made of. Forst, however, what did you see and hear at the Cromwells."

"I heard in a passing manner that Prince Rupert is off the seas forever—that he is at the French court, where he is much made of."

"Jane Swaffham, have you no fresher news?" and she pulled out of her bosom many sheets of paper tied together with a gold thread. "I had this yesterday," she said, "by the hand of Stephen, and I may as well tell you to prepare to meet Stephen de Wick, for he vows he will not leave England again until he has speech with you."

"Then he is forsworn; I will not see him."

"It will be no treason now to speak to your old servant. The Amnesty Act will cover you. But I fight not Stephen's battles; I have enough to do to keep my own share of your friendship from fraying. Now, I must tell you something concerning myself. I am going to France."

"France!" cried Jane in amazement.

"Yes, France. I have persuaded my uncle that he ought to go there, and look after his affairs. I have persuaded my aunt that it is not safe for my uncle to go without her, and they both know my reason for going with them, although we do not name Prince Rupert."

"When do you go, Matilda?"

"To-morrow, if Stephen be ready. And let me tell you, Jane, Stephen's readiness depends on you."

"That is not so."

"It is. I hope you will be definite, Jane. You have kept poor Stephen dangling after you since you were ten years old."

"What about Cymlin and yourself?"

Then Matilda laughed, and her countenance changed, and she said seriously, "Upon my word and honor, I was never nearer loving Cymlin than I was last night, yet he was never less deserving of it. 'Tis a good story, Jane. I will not pretend to keep it from you, though I would stake my last coin on Cymlin's silence about the matter. He came into my presence, as he always does, ill at ease, and why, I know not, for a man more handsome in face and figure it would not be easy to find in England. But he has bad manners, Jane, confess it; he blushes and stumbles over things, and lets his kerchief fall, and when he tries to be a gallant, makes a fool of himself."

"You are talking of my brother, Matilda, and you are making him ridiculous, a thing Cymlin is not, and never was."

"Wait a bit, Jane. I was kind to him, and he told me about his life in Ireland, and he spoke so well, and looked so proper, that I could not help but show him how he pleased me. Then he went beyond his usual manner, and in leaving tried to give me a bow and a leg in perfect court fashion; and he made a silly appearance, and for the life of me I could not help a smile—not a nice smile, Jane, indeed, 'twas a very scornful smile, and he caught me at it, and what do you think he did?"

"I dare say he told you plainly that you were behaving badly?"

"My dear Jane, he turned back, he walked straight to me and boxed my ears, for 'a silly child that did not know the difference between a man and a coxcomb.' I swear to you that I was struck dumb, and he had taken himself out of the room in a passion ere I could find a word to throw after him. Then I got up and went to a mirror and looked at my ears, and they were scarlet, and my cheeks matched them, and for a moment I was in a towering rage. I sat down, I cried, I laughed, I was amazed, I was, after a little while, ashamed, and finally I came to a reasonable temper and acknowledged I had been served exactly right. For I had no business to put my wicked little tongue in my cheek, because a brave gentleman could not crook his leg like a dancing master. Are you laughing, Jane? Well, I must laugh, too. I shall laugh many a time when I think of Cymlin's two big hands over my ears. Had he kissed me afterward, I would have forgiven him—I think."

"I cannot help laughing a little, Matilda, but I assure you Cymlin is suffering from that discipline far more than you are."

"I am not suffering at all. This morning I admire him. There is not another man in the world who would have presumed to box the Lady Matilda de Wick's ears; accordingly I am in love with his courage and self-respect. I shall laugh and cry as long as I live, and remember Cymlin Swaffham."

"It was too bad of Cymlin—but very like him. He has boxed my ears more than once."

"You are his sister. That is different. I will never speak to him again. There, let the matter drop. I wish now, you would either take Stephen or send him off forever. I am in a hurry to be gone, and Sir Thomas also. Go and send Stephen with a 'Yes' or 'No' to me. I am become indifferent which, since you are so much so."

Many letters were promised on both sides, and Jane was glad to notice the eagerness and hope in her friend's voice and manner. Whatever her words might assert, it was evident she looked forward to a great joy. And as long as she was with Matilda, Jane let this same spirit animate her, her ride home, however, was set to a more anxious key. She was a little angry also. Why should Stephen de Wick intrude his love upon her? Twice already she had plainly told him that his suit was hopeless, and she did not feel grateful for an affection that would not recognize its limits, and was determined to force itself beyond them.

She entered Sandys with the spring all about her; her fair face rosy with the fresh wind, and her eyes full of the sunshine. Cymlin and Stephen were sitting by the fireside talking of Irish hounds and of a new bit for restive horses which Cymlin had invented.

When Jane entered, Cymlin and Stephen both rose to meet her. Cymlin was kind with the condescension of a brother. He spoke to her as he spoke to creatures weaker than himself, and kissed her with the air of a king kissing a subject he loved to honor. Then he made an excuse to the stables and gave Stephen his opportunity. The young man had kept his eye fixed on the beautiful face and slender form of the girl he loved. He went to her and clasped her hands and said with a passionate eagerness, "Jane, dearest! I have come again to ask you to marry me. Say one good, kind word. When you were not as high as my heart, you did promise to be my wife. I vow you did!"

"Stephen, I knew not then what marriage meant. You were as a brother to me. I love you yet as I loved you then. I cannot be your wife. I am already plighted."

"To Lord Neville. You shall never marry him. I forbid it. I will hunt him to the gates of death."

"It is sinful to say such things."

"Let my sins alone. I am not in the humor to be sorry for them. I say again, you shall not marry that scoundrelly Scot."

"He is not what you call him—far from it."

"I call things by their right names. I call a Scot a Scot, and a scoundrel, a scoundrel." He threw her hands far from him and strode up and down the room, desperate and full of wrath. "You shall marry no man but myself. Before earth and heaven you shall!"

"If God wills, I shall marry Lord Neville."

"Oh, Jane! I shall go to total ruin if you do not marry me."

"Shall I marry a man who is not lord of himself? I will not."

"You have made me your enemy. What follows is your own fault."

"'Tis a poor love that turns to hatred; and you can do no more than you are let do."

"You will see. By my soul, 'tis truth! Oh, 'tis ten thousand pities you will not love me!"

"It is nowise possible, Stephen."

He flung himself into a chair, laid his arms upon the table and buried his face in them. "Go away, then," he sobbed, "I wish to see your face no more. For your sake, I will hate all women forever."

(To be continued.)

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, May 18, 1903.

A contract has been signed by Mr. D. Chamberlain and Benson & Marxer for the construction of the Chamberlain hotel at Seventh and Locust streets. The contract calls for a six-story and basement building, to be made absolutely fire proof, and is to be completed by December. The statement is authorized that the building, completed, will cost $200,000.

Governor Cummins has authorized the offer of a reward of $300 for the arrest of George Matheson, the young man of Pottawattamie county, who shot Deputy Sheriff J. C. Baker at the town of Weston, when the officer was making an arrest of Matheson. Matheson is a handsome young man 19 years old, with blue eyes and light brown hair, 5 feet 7 inches high, weighing 150 pounds. The sheriff of Pottawattamie county is making every effort to locate the fugitive, and appealed to the governor for this offer of reward, which was readily granted.

The National Cash Register company has begun suit against the Hallwood Cash Register company and R. A. Boulding, local sales agent for that concern, for $10,000 damages, because Mr. Boulding, in a circular said to have been issued and circulated in Lake City, Baxter and other Iowa towns since last September, has charged the National concern with being a trust. The National people say that there is a determined prejudice against trusts in Iowa, and being called one injures their business.

The merging of the National Life and Trust company of this city with the National Life Insurance company will raise the whole vast question of the worth of the Iowa law on the depositing of securities with the auditor of state. January 1 of this year the National Life and Trust company had on deposit with the auditor of state the sum of $764,000 in securities. It had practically this amount on deposit at the time of the merger. The question that will now arise will be whether these securities can be withdrawn from deposit. In effect, the National Life and Trust company has lost its identity and passed out of existence, and the business will be carried on by the National Life Insurance company, a non-Iowa company. Under the law non-Iowa companies are not required to secure their business in the state by depositing here, and it is expected that National Life Insurance company will insist on withdrawing the securities. It is also expected that Auditor of State Carroll will not permit the securities to be withdrawn, but will insist on them remaining on deposit in his office as a protection to the Iowa people who have taken out policies in the National Life and Trust company.

Several cases of rabies having developed in Des Moines the city council has authorized a wholesale slaughter of dogs.

Governor Cummins has issued a proclamation, offering a reward of $300 for the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Arthur Mead of West Liberty. Mead was killed by an unknown man the morning of May 14. He was slain in the restaurant of Thomas McCarthy by a robber, who entered the place about 1 o'clock in the morning, commanded those within to throw up their hands and robbed the restaurant. Mead did not at once not at once comply with the order to throw up his hands and was shot and killed. The robber was masked, and while the citizens of West Liberty made a vigorous search for him, he could not be discovered. Mayor J. E. McIntigh, Marshal R. J. Wiley and the members of the council united in asking the governor to offer a reward.

Allen K. Riddle, better known as Koch Riddle, is in the city jail on the charge of embezzling $600 belonging to the United States Express compnay. Riddle was formerly employed as night clerk for the company in this city and it is alleged while employed in this capacity he appropriated funds of the company to his own use. Riddle is a young man who has lived for years in the city. The express company has been wanting him for a year, but he has been out of the city and according to his own story has been in Kansas City, in Texas and Arizona. He says he was employed in different places as a waiter and that when in Los Angeles, he joined the local waiters' union there.

It is declared on the best authority possible—the people who have seen and talked with them—that the Rock Island engineers now working in the western part of the state are making surveys for the straightening of the tracks in that section of the state. One survey which has been finished is of a line directly from Avoca to Minden, cutting off the huge curve that runs the road up into Shelby county to the town of Shelby. This cut off will leave the town of Shelby without any railroad. However, the Great Western that is now building will pass within a very short distance west of Shelby. Another survey which is being made now is the one which leaves the present Rock Island line at Avoca and swings down to Council Bluffs in an almost straight line, cutting out the towns of Shelby, Minden, Neola, Underwood and Weston, and making a new route for more than twenty miles. Still another proposition, which is said to be even more favorably considered by the Rock Island officials, is a survey which will carry the line from Atlantic directly to Council Bluffs. This would reduce the distance fifteen or more miles between the two cities.

The noted English circus manager George Sanger, began his career as a showman with a trick pony, for which he paid $40. He is now seventy-five years of age, is very rich, and owns a costly circus and menagerie worth over $2,000,000.

A nervous bridegroom, after he had been married by the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon of Topeka, searched his pockets hurriedly, and then breathlessly declared that he had neglected to provide for the clergyman's fee. "But," he added, brightening up, "I can show you how to fix your gas meter so that it won't register."

A "Club of Silence" meets daily in a hall in Paris. The members are all mutes, and so are the attendants. Without a sound various orders are given, and the servants move as silently as spectators. The president of this club could speak up to his twenty-seventh year. Then he had his tongue cut out by some Indians he was fighting in Montana.

Six iron locks, connected by an iron chain, guard a massive chest in the council hall of the little republic of Andorra, on the southern slope of the Pyrenees. A consul from each of the six parishes has a key, and the locks cannot all be opened unless the six consuls are present. No stranger is permitted to see the contents of the box, but they are supposed to be sheets of lead, upon which is written the charter granted by Charlemange.

An Old Lady's Discovery.

Garnett, Ark., May 18th.—For 18 years Mrs. Mary Dunlop of this place has suffered with Kidney trouble, which was so bad at times that it made her life a burden. She tried much medicine and many treatments, but got no better.

At last, however, Mrs. Dunlop claims to have found a perfect remedy, and she is so pleased at the wonderful cure she herself has received, that she is telling all her friends and praising the medicine to everyone she meets.

The name of this medicine is Dodd's Kidney Pills, and it has done wonderful work for Mrs. Dunlop.

Everybody is talking about it, and some people are claiming to have been cured of Rheumatism by it.

A Mrs. Garrett who lives in Brazils, this state, was at the point of death with some Cerebro-Spinal trouble and was saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

It is certain that no other medicine ever introduced here has done so much good in such a short time.

HANNA AND HIS HASH.

Solicitude of a Serving Man Lest He Indulge in It Too Freely.

As is generally known, Senator Hanna is inordinately fond of corn beef hash, and whenever he takes lunch at the capitol restaurant he orders that dish, which he has taught the cook to prepare in a manner peculiarly his own. As a result he has had many imitators and "corned beef a la Hanna" is a favorite luncheon dish with many senators. When Shaw, the head waiter of the senate restaurant, wants it prepared with unusual care he orders it this way:

"One corned beef hash for Senator Hanna."

The restaurant was doing a great business one day and everybody seemed to want corned beef hash. Fourteen times the order for "corned beef hash for Senator Hannah" was shouted to the chef. When the fifteenth order went down there was a rumbling noise in the kitchen and the chef shouted:

"That's fifteen orders for Senator Hanna. He better watch out or he'll founder hisself."

The amount he gave was about $40,000. His other public benefits to the city have been many and generous.

Lyon & Healy, the well-known Chicago Music House, have just introduced three great piano compositions. The first is by Herbert L Clarke, "Idle Fracies," a beautiful waltz intermezzo. "Antics of the Ants,' by W. H. Scouton and Geo. D. Barnard, is a two step that will be popular in an instant. The third is a masterpiece by W. G. Yule entitled "A Dream of the Rain." These late pieces can be heard at your local music dealer. or will be send pospaid upon receipt of price by the publishers.

Italian Minister Was Stuck.

Mayor Des Planches, Italian ambassador to this country, was preparing a response to a toast, using the English language, when he stuck fast for lack of a pat phrase. He consulted nearly every one in the legation, but could get no help. As a last resource his secretary called up the state department by telephone and got Assistant Secretary Peirce on the wire. "What his excellency wishes to say," said the soft-spoken Italian, "is embodied in your phrase running to this effect: 'You must not look at the teeth of the horse that gives.' Will you please help him?" Mr. Peirce smiled broadly as he replied: "What you mean to say is that one should not look a gift horse in the mouth."

TAUGHT THE PRINCE A LESSON.

Young Woman Administered Stinging Rebuke to Germany's Future Ruler.

"A nod is as good as a wink to a blind horse," says the proverb, but some men are so obtuse that neither nods nor winks have any effect upon them. Such a person seems to be the young crown prince of Germany. An American girl was recently traveling on the continent. It was during the emperor's regatta that Miss Bernice Willard, a Philadelphia girl, was introduced to the crown prince at a dinner on the water. They were all sitting on deck, the gentlemen smoking, when a whiff of the smoke from the prince's cigarette blew into the lady's face.

"Smoke withers flowers," remarked a lieutenant across the way.

"It is no flower," remarked the prince jocularly; "it is a thistle."

Miss Willard raised her eyes a trifle. "In that case," she said. "I had best retire hurriedly or I shall be devoured."

The party saw the point; the prince was discomfited.

An Easter Hen.

There is a person residing in Greenup who has a number of hens, and he heard that to place Venetian red in the drinking water for chickens would keep off disease and improve the health of his chickens. He tried it, putting a large quantity of the powder in the water. The chickens did not take kindly to the colored water, except one hen that appeared to have a natural fondness for the liquid. She drank frequently and long of it, with the result that what should be the white of her eggs is a beautiful Venetian red. This is no exaggerated statement, but a fact.—Greenup Gazette.

Canadian Statesman in Washington.

The physical counterpart of King Edward startled a great many observers in Washington last week in the person of William Ross, member of the Canadian parliament and a resident of Port Perry, Ont. He was escorted into the Senate chamber by Dolliver of Iowa and was warmly welcomed. He was able to give the American statesman a piece of information in regard to a mater then under discussion. A difference of opinion had developed as to whether cloture rules were in force in any of the Canadian parliamentary bodies. Mr. Ross said no such rule was known in eitsher house of parliament in Ottawa, and Mr. Hoar thereupon announced the fact in the Senate.

The Baby Was Outclassed.

Mrs. Murphy: "Indade, Mrs. Finnegan, he twists up his mouth a bit, but whether its croyin' or laughin' it's meself that don't know." Mrs. Finnegan: "It's kiddin' me, yez aire, Mrs. Murphy." Mrs. Murphy: "Indade, Oim not, Mrs. Finnegan; it's a boiler foundry that we live next dure to."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

HUNDREDS DROWN AT TOPEKA, KAS.

Suburb of 8,000 Residents Completely Surrounded By Water.

FIRE FIEND ADDS ITS HORRORS

Lime in Submerged Lumber Yards Starts a Fire Which Destroys Floating Houses—Financial Loss Is Great.

Topeka, Kas., May 31, 2 a. m.—The fire horror connected with the flood, which Topeka has undergone the past eighteen hours, resulting in the death or not less than 150 to 200 people, and the burning of more than 400 houses, may be checked by a rain which started at midnight and which is still falling.

Absolutely no reliable estimate of the lives lost can be made, for the reason that the flooded district can not be traversed. It is at least 200, and may be larger than this. The extent of the damage is hard to get at. People were cooped up in their houses and could not escape from the fire or flood.

Burning houses are floating about, setting fire to others. The lower story of the burning buildings contain ten feet of water. The current is so strong that no boat can approach any of the burning buildings. People are gathered on the tops of houses and will meet death either from fire or drowning. The cries for help can be distinctly heard a mile away. The whole city is wildly excited because of the fact that no aid can be extended to the sufferers. The river at North Topeka is five miles wide. No possible estimate of the financial loss is obtainable, but it can be stated that it will reach into the millions.

North Topeka was the manufacturing district of the city. Three large flour mills, three woolen mills and other manufacturing enterprises are entirely destroyed. The water supply of the whole city has been cut off. The water from the river extends nearly a mile on the south side. The Rock Island depot has had to be abandoned, and more than five hundred people on this side of the river are also homeless, but no loss of life has resulted in South Topeka. The Kansas avenue bridge is the only one across the river for miles, and the approaches to that bridge are flooded by thirty feet of water. A pontoon bridge is being erected in an effort to reach the suffers.

Seven thousand or more people are on this side of the river sheltered in the public buildings. Topeka is now able to take care of all the unfortunates. The work of caring for the refugees is being pushed with the utmost rapidity.

Standing on the state house dome, as many as eighty fires can be counted in different parts of North Topeka. The whole central portion of the city had been burned out at 10 o'clock tonight, and it is safe to say that by morning not a house in the main part of North Topeka will be left standing. When it is stated that North Topeka has ten thousand inhabitants the extent of the disaster can be realized.

People are clinging to the roofs of houses and the limbs of trees, and many are giving up in despair and dropping into the waters below, to be carried away by the swift current. It is death by fire or drowning to four hundred unless means can be found for the rescue. Great efforts are being made to construct a steam launch to go to the aid of the sufferers, but whatever is done must be done promptly or the loss of life will be appalling.

Topeka, Kas., June 1.—There is ground for hope that the worst has passed. So slowly as to be almost imperceptible, the five mile stream of the Kansas river is settling back into its rightful channel. With 175 or 200 lives lost, millions of dollars of property destroyed, hundreds of pistol shots as signals of distress, blendid with the agonizing cries of unwilling inhabitants of tree tops and roofs of houses, and the waters creeping upward and then slowly subsiding and alternately changing hope to despair, the capital city passed the most memorable Sabbath day of its existence. To all this discomforting condition of affairs was added the presence of a cold dismal rain.

Briefly stated, the present condition of the flood is this:

170 to 200 people drowned.

Eight thousand people without homes.

Four million dollars, loss of property destroyed.

Identified dead five.

People missing 200.

Houses burned result of fire in lumber from slacking lime probably 200.

Banks collapsed two.

Wholesale grocery stores flooded two.

Big business blocks almost ready to crumble, fifty.

Wholesale commission houses deserted, six.

Rock Island trains containing 150 passengers held here by water.

City water works plant useless.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

Wencil Rezac, a wealthy property owner of the Bohemian colony in Cedar Rapids walked into the home of his wife, who has just secured from him a divorce with alimony and the custody of their child, and shot her three times in the head, afterwards sending a bullet into his own breast, which was later extracted from his neck. The woman cannot live, but it is thought Rezac will recover. In a statement he said he purchased the revolver for the express purpose of killing his wife and himself. They had lived together twelve years and had one son. He petitioned for divorce on the ground of adultery, and the woman secured the decree on a cross petition alleging inhuman treatment.

The blue and white of Drake university were triumphant at the close of the state field meet at Des Moines a few days ago. In one of the closest and most hotly contested meets in the history of Iowa collegiate athletics, the university young men were able to more than hold their own against a field of able competitors. The score cards at the finish gave Drake 42 points; Iowa was second with 32, and Grinnell third, with a total of 25. Thus for the third consecutive time the cup goes to the blue and white, and will therefore remain permanently with those colors. From the outset the Drake team made a remarkably strong showing, and there were but few events in the course of the afternoon in which some of the lusty athletes of that aggregation did not add one or more points to its record.

The prohibition state convention held at Marshalltown, made the following nominations: Governor, J. P. Hanson of Mahaska county; Lieutenant-Governor, J. H. Scull of Henry county; Superintendent of Public Instruction, J. A. Ward of Polk county; Railroad Commissioner, E. Dewey of Woodbury county; Attorney-General, William Orr of Page county. There was a warm discussion over the platform. The committee made a majority report presenting a preamble which declared "all governments derive authority from Jesus Christ." This was looked upon as an intimation that Christ was responsible for the saloon business, trust evil, etc., and a substitute, cutting out all reference to Christ, was finally adopted after a hot fight. One plank of the platform favors a national marriage and divorce law.

Chief Justice C. A. Bishop was fully sustained by the supreme court in the matter of the canvass of the statement of general consent to the sale of intoxicating liquors filed with the county auditor of Polk county February 28, 1900. In an opinion written by Judge Emlin McClain the decision of the trial court is affirmed and it is decided the canvass made by the board of supervisors was legal. The action of the supreme court effectually removes the obstacles raised by the anti-saloon element of the city to the sale of liquor under the mulct law and disposes of litigation that has been pending about three years. The court did not go into that phase of the case that was raised by the filing of the protest against the canvass of the petition with the auditor instead of the board of supervisors and held this question was not material.

The issuance of an injunction against Nels Johnson and I. Nelsen, saloonkeepers of Dike, has caused considerable feeling among the citizens. The defendants will have a hearing at Grundy Center. Dike has depended upon the saloon license to pay most of the municipal bills and the taxpayers are raising a row because the closing of the saloons will raise the tax levy. A sewer was built and the saloon licenses were supposed to pay for it. As Grundy county has never granted a petition for the running of saloons, the places are run contrary to law and only because the city council permits it. Rev. Carle Felt, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, is behind the movement, supported by Ira Wilson and F. E. Crouse, residents of the country. The men have not ventured to town, as there is much feeling against them, public sentiment being decidedly with the liquor dealers.

Mose Simpson jumped from a moving Rock Island train between Kellogg and Newton and sustained injuries that may prove fatal. Simpson was arrested at Kellogg on the charge of bootlegging. When the constable went to serve the papers on Simpson the latter drew his gun and commenced shooting, the officer returning the fire. Simpson succeeded in escaping in the excitement and word was sent to Sheriff Hook of Newton, who came on and made the arrest. Simpson had his preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Sheriff Hook started back to Newton with his prisoner and just before the train reached Amboy, Simpson made a wild dash for the door, jumping from the platform. The train was stopped and Simpson was picked up more dead than alive. Medical attention was given him at Amboy and the journey to the county jail continued. Simpson came to Grinnell from Kentucky several years ago and had more or less trouble with the authorities because of bootlegging.

During a storm at Wellsburg lightning struck the barn of L. Bungee, southeast of there, killing two horses and entirely consuming the barn and all of its contents.

Rev. B. F. W. Cozier, formerly of Des Moines, died a few days ago at Moscow, Idaho. Death came suddenly and peacefully, although he had been ill since he left Iowa last September.

Wm. F. McCauley, freight conductor of the Great Western, was run over by a train in the company's yards at Dubuque. Both legs were cut off and he died on the way to the hospital.

Colonel D. B. Henderson has announced his future plans. He said: "In the fall I will go to New York with my family and engage in the practice of law." He has not decided as to who he will associate with. The nature of his business will be that of counsel along business and legislative lines. He has the assurance of a large amount of private business from men with whom he has become acquainted during the many years he was in congress.

The body of Miss Bennett A. Cook, a popular young lady who graduated from the Davenport high school three years ago, was found in the Mississippi near Davenport. Miss Cook had been missing for a week and was rumored to have eloped with Ross Scandrett, a young man of the town and a son of well to do parents and nephew of Governor Van Sant, of Minnesota, who is a native of Dubuque county. Scandrett reported at Dubuque after a few days' absence and denied the elopement story. After the body was found, he was placed under arrest, but afterward liberated, the inquest disclosing the fact that the young woman had probably suicided. Her love affair with young Scandrett is regarded as the cause of her rash act.

F. Stentson stabbed a woman by the name of Reynolds in a place on Third and Division street at Burlington. He then ran toward the river with Officer Bert Seamons in pursuit. In spite of a shot from the policeman's revolver, the fugitive gained the river bank and grabbing a boat started across the river. Officer Seamons jumped into a steam launch and gave chase. A large crowd of people lined the river bank and cheered on the pursuer. Gradually the launch drew up to the rower who was working desperately to gain Illinois soil and temporary immunity from the Iowa law, but just as the rower was within a boat's length of land the launch forged up and the officer grabbed him. The woman is said not to have been seriously hurt.

Three toll line companies doing a telephone business claim that their lines were built into the city of Des Moines before October 1, 1897, and that either of them has the right to construct and operate a telephone exchange to take the place of the Mutual company if that goes to pieces on account of the tax sale. The three are the Hawkeye, the Boone county and the Southern Iowa, whose lines come in from the sections of which Boone county, Dallas county and Ringgold county are the centers. The three companies have contracts with the Mutual company to use its local exchange for a terminal. It is not unlikely that one of these companies will propose to take a lease on the Mutual company's properties and operate them under its own franchise.

Otha Wallace, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wallace, was another victim of the tornado which recently visited South Des Moines. The Wallace home was in the path of the stom and the dwelling was lifted from the foundation and carried about thirty feet, being completely turned over. Mr. Wallace first freed himself from the debris and hastened to the assistance of his wife and child. While he was rescuing these the ruins caught fire from a cook stove. Meanwhile neighbors had hurried to the scene and together with Mr. Wallace made desperate attempts to rescue the baby girl pinned under the ruins but the flames drove them back. When the body was recovered it was incinerated beyond recognition. The Wallace home was about three miles west of the city over the Eighteenth street bridge.

In the blackness of a recent storm murder was done at the farm house of Joseph Usher, a dairyman, living five miles from Cedar Rapids. A telephone message was sent the coroner that Wm. Garrity had died of a hemorrhage. Before the coroner arrived the body had been taken away by an undertaker and every particle of furniture and clothing in the room destroyed by fire. The family said that they had heard a sound of a groan, and Usher went up stairs to see what it meant, finding the man dead. When the body was washed by the undertaker, a bullet hole was found in the left breast. Usher was arrested just after he had finished his day's delivery of milk to patrons in Cedar Rapids. After two hours he made a partial confession, saying that he went up stairs to close windows in the rain; that Garrity attacked him, and he killed him in self defense. Usher's wife is much younger than himself, and Garrity has been doing chores while Usher delivered the milk. The police think jealousy was the motive for the crime, but Usher denies it.

BIG DAMAGE BY FLOODS

Entire State Seems to Be Affected By High Waters.

DES MOINES HAS GREAT LOSS

Thousands of People Are Homeless, and the Property Loss Is Almost a Million Dollars—Ottumwa Is Also Suffering.

Des Moines, May 31.—The worst flood in the history of Iowa culminated in Des Moines yesterday, when the water of the Des Moines river rose to a height of 1 foot 8.4 inches in excess of the height of the flood of last year. A total of twenty-four feet was reached by the river at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and during the early evening an additional three inches took the water above that mark on the gauge at Locust street. The last official measurement was 23.25 at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. Last year the official maximum was 21.90 and the actual measurement was 21.30.

The excessive height to which the flood went added new terrirtoy to its field of operation. For the first time since 1851 the water extended from the east river bank to the Northwestern tracks and traffic over the main city bridges was totally suspended. All of the city bridges were closed to travel.

Business was totally suspended. The street car company was forced to abandon its power plant and the street car service was wholly abandoned.

More than 1,000 homes were partially submerged and 500 business houses and factories were surrounded by the water.

The churches and school houses have been thrown open to the homeless, and the public authorities furnished them food. From 2,000 to 3,000 people were chased from their homes by the flood.

Half the ice supply has gone out and the remainder is expected to go before the flood recedes.

All the railroads have ceased operations.

The water last night covered the following territory:

From Flint brick works around the foot of the Highland Park hill to Thompson's bend and south to the south bank of the channel.

All of Central Place, being a block west of the Belt line railroad, east to the river and south to the dam.

All of East Des Moines from the dam to Elm street and west to the river.

All of South West Des Moines from the covered bridge to Eighteenth street and as far north as Elm street and the Rock Island tracks.

All of South Des Moines to the foot of the hills from Jefferson street to Avon.

All of South East Des Moines from the rivers north to the Rock Island tracks and east as far as vision reaches.

The damage will be not much less than half a million dollars.

The following is the story of the flood in brief:

Twenty-two fatalities reported; two certain, four believed to be authentic, four reasonably authentic, the other twelve doubtful.

Sixteen ice houses, half the city's supply, gone, and half the remainder in imminent danger.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 people homeless.

A money loss aggregating hundreds of thousands.

The highest water in the history of Des Moines, 24 feet.

Power plant of the street car company abandoned and no car service possible for several days.

Imminent danger of the water works plant, the electric light plant and the gas plant closing down.

Business suspended and the energy of the people devoted to caring for the homeless in the churches and school houses and watching the flood.

Larger area than last year covered by the waters.

For the first time since 1856 the east approaches to the wagon bridges cut off by four blocks of water.

Travel over the bridges prohibited.

All train service into and out of the city abandoned.

Des Moines, June 1.—The water began to recede at an early hour yesterday morning. It fell rapidly the entire day despite the heavy rain which continued off and on throughout the day and night. The falling of the waters lent security to the public service corporations which had continued to run. These were the gas, electric light and waterworks companies. The street car company had been forced to abandon its plant on Saturday morning and no cars were possible even if the power plant had been relieved of the surrounding flood on account of the injury to the machinery. The city will be without street car service for a week, at least, even if the flood entirely recedes tonight.

An epidemic of sickness threatens to follow the other horrors of the flood which has made from 3,000 to 5,000 people homeless in this city within the last three days.
